VOLUME 40. OAKLAND, MARYLAND THURSDAY, JANUARY 6, 1916. NUMBER 45

MR. D. M. DIXON IS PRESIDENT OF NEW BOARD

County Commissioners Organized Monday—Mr. Walter G. Meyers Is Clerk.

The Board of County Commissioners organized on Monday of this week with the election of Mr. D. M. Dixon, of Oakland, as its president, succeeding Mr. A. C. Smith, who served in a like capacity during the past year.

Mr. George Warnick, of Bloomington, is the new member of the Board, having been elected at the general election last fall and he qualified as such before Clerk of the Circuit Court Tower, some time ago. The Board as now composed consists of Messrs. D. M. Dixon, A. C. Smith and George Earnick, the retiring member being Mr. Otho S. Fike, who served faithfully and well for two terms, giving entire satisfaction to the people of the county during his administration.

With the advent of the new Board Mr. Walter G. Meyers, of Crellin, who was also elected at the general election last fall, assumed his duties as Clerk to the Commissioners. For the present he will be assisted by Mr. A. G. Ross, who has been connected with the office for a great many years, whose efficiency and intimate knowledge of the affairs of the office is such as to render his service almost invaluable until his successor becomes better acquainted with the intricate workings of the county's affairs.

The new Board goes into office under most auspicioes circumstances, and they have the well wishes of hundreds of tax payers for a successful administration.

The Commissioners have been quite busy during the session selecting road supervisors for the various districts of the county and fixing the amounts to be expended by them on the many roads under the supervisions. This work will be completed by Friday. At that time constables will be appointed.

AN IMPORTANT RULING

Associate Judge Robert R. Henderson Decided Case in County's Favor.

A decision of some importance was rendered by Judge Henderson in Cumberland on last Friday when he held constitutional the law creating the Miners and Operators Co-Operative Relief Fund.

The question of constitutionality of the law was raised when the County Commissioners of Allegany and Garrett counties brought suit to compel certain mine owners to pay over to the respective funds the amount which they owe at the present time. One suit was brought in Allegany county and two in Garrett and all three were decided at the same time by the Court in favor of the claims of the counties.

The law in question was repealed at the last session of the Legislature, so far as new payments or claims are concerned, but it was provided that the mines and miners should continue to pay into the old fund until all claims existing against the same on Nov. 1, 1914, should be paid. Refusal to pay was based on the ground that the act was one of class legislation in that it compelled those engaged in mining to pay insurance which was not required of those engaged in other industries.

The effect of the decision so far as Garrett county is concerned will be to bring into the miners fund in this county about $1500 which will be sufficient to pay up all existing claims of that nature.

The local County Commissioners were represented by Attorneys G. S. Hamill and E. H. Sincell.

Resigned As Constable.

Democrats In Bitter Battle At Capital Over Speakership

Smith-Harrington Forces and Lee Followers Widen Breach in Party Ranks--- Senate Adjourns While House Squabbles.

ANNAPOLIS, Jan. 5.—The lagislature convened at noon. The Republicans, with the aid of two People's party members from Worcester county, have within six of a majority of the House and three short of a majority in the Senate.

The Caucus of Democratic Senators selected the following officers: President, Peter J. Campbell, of Baltimore City: Secretary, P. Watson Webb, of Cambridge; Journal Clerk, Andrew Schaab, of Howard county.

The Republican caucus selected as their candidate for President, Senator Zihlman, of Cumberland, who received the Republican vote.

Senator Williams, of Cecil county was selected as President of the Republican caucus. Mr. Williams is editor of the Cecil Whig.

After a bitter debate that lasted for two hours, the House of Delegates failed to elect a Speaker and adjourned until noon tomorrow when the battle will be resumed unless a conference of the leaders of the Democratic party results in a compromise. One ballot was taken, the result being Philip B. Laird, choice of Smith-Harrington caucus, 33; Millard E. Tydings, the Lee-Preston-Mahon candidate, 22; Oliver Metzerotto, Republican, 45; absentees 2. Necessary to elect, 52.

Throughout the attempt of the House to select a presiding officer for the 90-day session, United States Senator John Walter Smith occupied the Speaker's room and Governor-elect Harrington stood near one of the doors where he could hear all that was said. The fight for Mr. Laird was led by William Purnell Hall, of Baltimore City, an anti-Preston Democrat, while Robert E. Lee, the Mayor's secretary for five years led the fight against Mr. Laird. Lloyd Wilkinson made the first onslaught on the Montgomery county man. Lee was on his feet several times to answer Hall and McIntosh, of Baltimore county.

The result of the bitter debate was evidently to widen the breach in the Democratic ranks. The burden of the remarks of the Lee-Preston people was that they would take almost any Democrat except Laird and that the reason they did not want Laird was that Senator Blair Lee objected to him.

Howard Bryant, of Baltimore county was selected temporary Speaker by a party vote of 52 to 46.

After the House adjourned until tomorrow the Smith-Harrington people who are backing Mr. Laird, went into conference, evidently to discuss the threat of the Lee-Preston people that they will tie up the Legislature indefinitely to prevent the nomination of Mr. Laird.

ENGAGEMENT IS FORMALLY ANNOUNCED

Dr. John E. Legge, to Wed Mrs. Helen Louise Garrish, of Mt. Vernon, Ohio.

Formal announcement has been made in Mt. Vernon, Ohio, social circles by Mrs. Clara L. Gordon, of that city of the engagement of her daughter, Mrs. Helen Louise Garrish to Dr. John E. Legge, of Cumberland, Md.

To the host of friends of the happy twain in this city will this announcement come as a joyous surprise and their congratulations will be both prompt and profuse, and none the less earnest and sincere. The bride-to-be has been the guest here of her brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Smith, and during her brief residence has endeared herself to a large circle of friends by virtue of her charming personality, culture and refinement.

Dr. Legge, during the four years of his residence in Cumberland, has earned a prominent position in the front rank of medical practitioners in Western Maryland. His years of preparation in this country and abroad, but notably in the clinics of Vienna, Berlin, Paris and London, where he spent two years in assiduous study, gave him the broadened experience that was prompt to attract a large and lucrative practice.

While arrangements for the wedding have not been definitely determined, it is more than probable that the New Year will not have progressed far on its journey of the cycle of the seasons, ere the happy event is solemnized.—Friday's Cumberland News.

Quarterly Distribution of School Funds.

The first quarterly distribution of school funds for 1916 has been announced by the Comptroller of the Treasury. Garrett county will receive for public schools the sum of $7,150.53, divided as follows: For public schools, $5,411.29; for high schools, $925; for school book fund, $814.24. Garrett county stands sixteenth in the distribution of the fund. Somerset, Carroll and Kent counties received the same amount for high schools as did Garrett.

ALL-POWERFUL LONACONING CHAMPS ARE HUMBLED

Local Basket Ball Team Trimmed Them By a Score of 26-20

On New Year's night the famous Lonaconing Basket Ball "champeens" met their Waterloo, being defeated by the Oakland team in what was perhaps the fastest game ever staged in the city of Lonaconing, and what is more this game registered Coney's first defeat on its own floor in three years.

The playing of the local team was a revelation to those who were in attendance and showed what team work will accomplish.

An Increase in Tax Basis.

An increase of $13,640,318, or about 118 per-cent., in the assessed valuation of the intangible personal property in the State of Maryland, exclusive of Baltimore city and Baltimore county, is shown by the 1915 report of Allan E. Girdwood, secretary of the State Tax Commission. By intangible personal property is meant stocks, bonds and other securities.

According to the table published 10 per cent. of the increase has been found in Carrol, and 66 per cent. in Frederick county. In one county, Somerset, the ncrease found was 425 per cent, while in Allegany the increase was 104 per cent. and in Anne Arundel 340 per cent. Other counties furnished from 20 to 50 per cent.

CZAR HURLS GREAT ARMIES AGAINST AUSTRO-GERMANS 1,500,000 ON 300-MILE LINE

New Muscovite Offensive in Galicia Is in Full Swing---Series of Battles Projected in Effort to Influence Rumania to Join the War

BRITISH SHIP NATAL SUNK BY INTERNAL EXPLOSION

London.—Hard battles were fought by the vast Russian force which is pressing the new campaign of the Czar in Bessarabia, and the attacks covered a front of 300 miles, from the Pripet River to the Rumanian border.

The initiative over a distance of 190 miles on the Volhynian and Galician fronts is firmly on the side of the Russians, who seem to be securely established across the Styr River north of Czartorysk. They have captured the village of Khriask, three miles from the river.

The Russians continue to pour reinforcements into the region, and although the number of their troops engaged in the drive is not disclosed, reports from the Entente sources indicate that the Muscovite forces are much larger than those opposing them. The Austrians and Germans are said to total at least 1,500,000.

Dispatches from Petrograd emphasize the excellence of the equipment and munitions and the abundance of the supplies of the Russian army, accumulated in the period of inactivity following the retreat before the Germans in the last campaign.

London observers assert the Bessarabian move is likely to become the greatest dash of the whole war, and predict it will be a colossal attempt to break the backbone of the whole line of the Central Powers and their allies across the Balkans.

Both the Central Powers and Russia have been for months trying to influence Rumania to intervene on their sied. Russian, having failed to obtain Rumanian consent to drive through her territory for an invasion of Bulgaria, sent the large army which had been massed in Bessarabia to the Galician front, with the object, it is believed, of winning over King Ferdinand by inflicting a decisive defeat of the Austro-German troops there.

The British warship Natal, a first-class armored cruiser, was blown up in an English port, with heavy loss of life. The Admiralty stated officially that the explosion was due to internal causes aboard the vessel.

CAPTURE GERMAN TRENCHES

Paris.—More German defenses in the Vosges Mountains were added by the French to the trenches captured by them in the last few days.

Terrific fighting marked the battle for Hartmanns-Weilerkopf, and the struggle is fast developing into one of the big operations of the war.

After preparation by an intense cannonading in which guns of all calibre were employed, the Germans made several counter-attacks in an effort to recover lost ground. The troops came to grips in the open, and the Kaiser's forces, although fighting with the utmost determination, were repeatedly driven back, yielding each time a little more than they did before.

PITH OF THE WAR NEWS

Montenegro is suffering from a great dearth of provisions, owing to the sinking of foodships by Austrian submarines in the Mediterranean.

The French armored cruiser Suffren withdrew in flames after being hit twice by Turkish shore batteries at the Dardanelles.

The attitude of Rumania continues to grow in importance, and reports have been renewed that the entrance of Rumania into the war on the side of the Entente will not be delayed much longer.

Operations in the Austro-Italian arena are confined to artillery duels.

Rumania's entry into the war on the side of the Allies is imminent. This is the interpretation placed here on the new Russian offensive that has been launched from Pripet to Bukowina.

In the terrific battle in the Vosges for the summit of Hartmanns-Weilerkopf the French beat back German counter attacks made with grenades.

Every French soldier received as a New Year's gift from the government a slice of ham, a jar of jam, a pint of wine, a cigar, an orange and two apples.

Seventy-five thousand Serbians have re-formed at Scutari and Eloassan, in Albania, and the Montenegrin army is now throwing itself energetically into the contest against the Austrians.

The Russian advance in Persia is at points too remote to menace the Turks who are fighting the British under General Townshend, but the move is counted upon to have an important political effect.

Vienna asserts the renewed onslaughts against the Austro-Hungarians north of the Bukowina frontier failed, with losses to the Russians.

Amsterdam.—Two new landings by the Allies in the near East are reported. The British have transferred some troops from Saloniki to Orfano, a small Greek port sixty miles east of Saloniki, with the intention of checking any possibility of a hostile advance from that quarter.

The second landing was made by the French on the Greek island of Castelorizo, off the southeast coast of Asia Minor, not far from the important seaport of Adalia.

An Athens dispatchs says that the occupation of Adalia is the object of the landing. A railway runs north of Adalia, and the presence there of a strong allied force would menace the communications of any hostile force operating against Egypt or the lower Tigris region.

Rome reports that the Central Powers have begun a general withdrawal from the entire Macedonian front, owing to the serious Russian campaign in Bessarabia.

Durazo, capital of Albania and one of the chief Albania seaports, was occupied by the Italians, according to reports received by way of Geneva.

Exemption of Ireland from compulsory military service, and a compromise on a mild form of conscription, averted the threatened crisis in the British Cabinet, according to the general belief in London.

Russians, continuing their strong attacks in Galicia, were again repulsed with heavy losses, according to Vienna. The Czar's troops attempted to storm the bridgehead at Bukanoy, on the Strypa, but were thrown back, leaving dead and wounded on the field and 900 prisoners in the hands of the Austrians.

An overwhelming force of Turkish troops destined to co-operate in the Teuton-Bulgarian drive on Saloniki, is being rushed into Macedonia.

COMPULSION FOR BRITAIN.

London.—The advocates in the British Cabinet of compulsory military service for all unmarried "slackers" apparently have won the day. The departure from London of many of the leading Ministers after the Cabinet meeting is taken as indicating that a final decision has been reached. The question at issue was whether or not compulsion should be applied immediately to bring into the army every eligible unmarried man who had failed to attest his willingness to serve under Lord Derby's voluntary enlistment plan.

According to the Daily Mail the result was a triumph for the principle of single men first.

Andrew Bonar Law, the Colonial Secretary, is quoted in an interview given to the London correspondent of an Australian news agency as saying that when the time comes for the conclusion of peace "the dominions will be consulted and their views will have great weight in determining what the terms of peace shall be."

A despatch from Vienna says Chancellor von Bethmann-Hollweg, of Germany, is expected in Vienna soon with the full conditions under which the Teutonic Central Powers will accept peace.

After discussing the terms with Baron von Burian, the Austrian Foreign Minister, the conditions will be officially communicated to the Allies, Germany suggesting that the first conference be held at The Hague, asserts the despatch.

French gun fire frustrated a German sortie over an extensive front in Alsace. The French soldiery, then under cover of the same guns, flung themselves upon their retiring foes and captured a number of trenches between the Rehelfelsen and the Hirzstein.

Washington.—The steamer Solveig, owned by the American Transatlantic Company, has been condemned by the French prize court. The owners will appeal.

Flying a Norwegian flag, the Solveig was seized while in a French port. Her American papers reached her Commander a few days later. Suspected German ownership was given as the cause for detaining the vessel.

Sunshine In Your Home.

Beautify and Brighten Your Home AT SMALL COST,

By Installing Hollow Wire Gasoline Lighting System and Lamps.

The most successful and safest illuminating device in the world. Gasoline produces the most powerful light next to sunshine—and has no injurious effect on the eyes. Our modern systems are entirely safe and efficient, and more economical to maintain than either gas or electricity. Buy one of the systems for your home or store, and you will find that you have secured not only an economical light, but a more efficient one than is afforded by any other type of lighting system. These lamps are great labor savers, as there are no wicks to clean, no dirt nor objectionable odor; no trouble to light or operate, no danger of explosions. We guarantee them to be just as represented and perfectly satistactory. I represent three of the best companies who make these systems, all of which guarantee their system and back up their guarantee. These system are approved by all fire underwriters. I can also furnish systems suitable for halls, churches, hotels, street lamps, etc.

The following table shows the cost of maintaining 100 candle 'power of various kinds of light for 3 hours per night for one month, or 90 hours:

Gas (open burner)	6.37
Kerosene Lamps	1.61
Tallow Candle (100)	15.60
Single Candle	.15½
Gasoline Improved Lamps	.25

Below are the names and addresses of some of my many customers who have been using these systems, and who will be glad to recommend them and answer any enquiries:

We have built this business upon the solid rock of INTEGRITY, conscientious and faithful service, sincereity between ourselves and customers. This is our guiding principle and it will carry us to greater success. A big business founded on a little idea. Twelve months ago we planted a little seed, a ilttle idea; this little seed was planted in the earth of AMBITION, watered by the rains of HONESTY, and has grown into a tree whose branches extend throughout the county.

WALTER'S Oscillating Sleds

IF you want a sled you should buy a good hand made oscillating white oak bob sled, made of the best white oak wood that is possible to get, and will outlast any factory sled on the market.

I have been making sleds for a number of years, also repairing all kinds and certainly ought to know where a sled ought to be made stronger and better than a factory that perhaps never repaired a sled in their existence.

My stock is larger and better than ever before. If you need a sled come and see mine before you purchase, then if we don't deal it will be because quality won't have anything to do with it.

Prices very reasonable. Remember the name of the sled.

PARADISE

The recent rains of the last few days has put a stop to the labor loving class of Paradise.

Wm. Lohr and Chancey Glass were pleasant callers at T. E. Meese's on Sunday last.

W. W. Groves and son spent two days in Crellin having some repairs made to their engine.

The Sunshine Lumber Co expects to finish sawing on their contract at Arch Beckmans in a few days and will move hence to William Speicher's where they expect to live for the next 2½ or 3 months as the job has been estimated at something over 50,000 feet.

Our prospective bologna factor expects to do a good business on futures as Kit Carson is almost ready for market.

We are glad to learn that town sports can not always catch county does.

Mr. C. A. Miller and son are loading a car of hay at Altamont for Piedmont market.

The ice is now broken and a boat is waiting for the return of Gus Groves.

The stork made a visit at the home of L. H. Means and left a fine baby girl one night last week.

Wm. Lohr delivered a four horse load of produce, including a beef to O. H. Lee at Kitzmiller last week.

A. D. Fike has notified the superintendent of the Paradise bologna shop that "Dick" will be ready till he gets his lime hauled if prospective snows last.

We have been informed that P. J. Hamill has purchased the Arbuckle Bros. farm near Deer Park.

Mrs. Albert Groves and Mrs. A. D. Fike were calling on Mrs. L. H. Means Sunday afternoon. TIMOTHY.

The Mineral Spring School held a very interesting entertainment. A number of Cove folks attended.

Mr. and Mrs. Beason Glotfelty visited the latter's parents Saturday and Sunday.

The Sunday school in both churches rendered a very interesting program during the holidays, but on account of bad weather the attendance was not large.

Jessie McCintock who is quite ill with cancer is not improving.

BITTINGER.

The year 1916 has begun with unusually warm, bright weather, and it is our wish that the entire year may be bright, prosperous and full of all good for THE REPUBLICAN, its host of readers and every citizen of good old Garrett.

Miss Cora Bittinger was treated to a surprise party on New Year's evening and she with a number of her young friends spent a very enjoyable evening.

Mrs. C. J. Brenneman and son Clark spent last week visiting relatives in Akron, Ohio. Mrs. Chauncey Broadwater accompanied Mrs. and Mr. Brenneman.

An unusually heavy sleet last week did great damage to timber, fruit trees and telephone lines in this section. In many sugar camps a large number of trees were broken and blown down.

Freeman Stark, of New Germany, spent Saturday and Sunday here the guest of Miss Cora Bittinger.

Clyde Broadwater returned to New Windsor, Md., early this week, where he will resume his studies.

Harvey Mellinger, of North Glade, is employed in F. M. Bittinger's coal mine, this winter.

Poultry Program Out.

Within the next ten days six hundred copies of the program and prmium list of the Western Maryland Poultry Exhibit will be mailed to people in Allegany and Garrett counties, this state, and Hampshire county, W. Va.

The book will be very elaborate. It will contain the premium list and program of the show.

The forthcoming show gives promise of being a great success, as much interest is being taken in the preparations by people of the town generally as well as by the committees of the association.

THURSDAY, JANUARY 6, 1916

NEW year, new opportunities.

As this is leap year everybody should be on the jump.

YOU can make no better resolution with which to begin the New Year than that which pledges you to unfailing kindness toward man and beast.

THE gain in church membership for 1915 is reported as follows: Baptists, 145,000; Methodists, 104,000; Lutherans, 60,000; Disciples, 50,000; Episcopalians, 26,000.

THIS country is exceptionally fortunate. It begins the new year with peace and prosperity, and its head, with a honeymoon. It ought to prove a lucky augury.

THE Baltimore Sun calls it "an appalling prosperity," which is quite significant. A famous general once described a victory: "It is magnificent, but it is not war."

THE bureau of standards has found that better glass melting pots can be made of clay found in the United States than of clays imported from Germany heretofore believed necessary.

THREE hundred and sixty-six days in the New Year. It's well to remember that whatever they are to bring they can only come one at a time. No man would want to face them all at once.

LAST Saturday Iowa, Colorado, Washington, Oregon, Idaho, Arkansas and South Carolina became prohibition states making 18 dry states. Six other states will vote on prohibition during 1916.

JUSTICE Lamar, of the United States Supreme Court, died at Washington, D. C. Sunday last, aged 58 years. He was a native of Georgia. He was appointed to the supreme bench by President Taft.

IN human affairs it is generally customary to reflect on the mistakes of every closing twelfthmonth, and, profiting by experience, to turn to the New Year with higher hopes and greater resolves, to new determinations to overcome our personal faults and weaknesses. This introspective custom is one of the cheeriest attributes of human nature, the world over—the confession that we have not done as well as we should have done, and that we have grievous faults that should be corrected. And what, if we fail again, just as we did last year, the endeavor to do better counts for something, and by it we become a little stronger each year.

COUNTIES TO AID

A Movement On Foot to Mark Old Braddock Road.

Mrs. Bertha Hall Talbott, of Rockville, who is the chairman for Maryland of the National Old Trails Road Committee, of the Daughters of the American Revolution has written to this county, in an effort which is being made by this committee to have the old trails of the nation marked from coast to coast.

In order to do this, the expenditure of considerable money is needed. The marking selected, is to paint the telephone or telegraph poles along the trails a bright red, with a distinguishing mark. In Montgomery county, the county commissioners have appropriated $100 for the purpose and in Allegany county $125, and efforts are being made to raise money in other ways for the work. The work is to be done at a contract price of 40 cents per pole.

Maryland has the oldest trail or road in the nation and it was about 95 years after the trail was cut through this state that the trail reached to the Pacific Coast. The first trail was blazed in Maryland in 1750 by Nemacolein, an old Delaware Indian, which was little more than a riding path. Major Washington, afterward the first president of the U. S., in 1854, widened it to 12 feet in order to transport his army in its march against the French and General Braddock later further widened it in order to make his march with his army on its fatal trip to Fort Duquesne. This road follows the old national pike through this country, and for about 50 miles the road traverses Washington county soil.

The plan is to mark the trail by painted poles from Washington clear across the country to San Francisco. The work has gone forward in many places. Good Roads Commissions have done the work, in other places Commissioners have helped through their counties, in other cases automobile clubs have raised funds for the purpose and in others private subscriptions were taken to defray the expenses of the work. The Washington County Historical Society has been appealed to in this county, to assist those in charge of the work in an effort to raise funds in this county. The aim will be to have the County Commissioners start off with a substantial donation for the work, and the remainder of the money will be raised from other sources. It is estimated that the work in this county will require an expenditure of about $400.

PILLOWS AND FEATHER BEDS

Wanted By Maryland Red Cross Auxiliary for Hospital Use.

To the Editor of The Republican

The Maryland Red Cross Auxiliary has been asked to assist in the collection of pillows and feather beds—to be made into pillows—to be sent through the agency of Mrs. John W. Garrett, of Paris, to the war hospitals of Europe.

A campaign under the chairmanship of Mrs. T. Harrison Garrett, of the Maryland Red Cross Auxiliary is working to make January 6th, 1916, "Pillow Day." On that day the campaign is to be started and every one is asked to either send pillows or feather beds to be made into pillows to the various depositories in Baltimore or to notify the chairman who will send for them.

We are asking the newspapers of Maryland to assist us in their various localities in this most appaling and humane work. Can you not help by interesting the generous public so that they will send to Mrs. T. Harrison Garrett at the Arundell Club, 1000 N. Charles Strett, Baltimore, Md., pillows and feather beds to be made into pillows?

Thanking you for helping us by interesting the public, through your columns, in this noble work.

Very truly yours.
MRS. T. HARRISON GARRETT,
Chairman.

HUTTON

Owing to the imperative nature of my last letter in the Republican I was compelled to forego the pleasure of expressing the desired sentiments on the eve of the great New Year. The cathedral bells are now silent having tolled pathetically and solemnly the passing of the old year crowded with joys and sorrows, triumphs and disasters. All are gone, having passed to the great beyond, leaving fond recollections as a parting memento of the past. The lamenting dirge is interrupted, softly, but sweetly, harmonious chorals are borne on the midnight air. The mirthful strains, of melodious instruments, accompanied by chimes in distant belfries awaken us to the relization of a new dawn and the indefinite fleeting of time.

Our lives, like master musicians
That produce, with magical skill,
A rythmical chord of excellence—
Or otherwise, if He so wills.

Isn't life like a musical composition? That consists of a staff (intellectual ability) and many notes, (the power attributed) which may be formed according to the quality that constitutes the characteristics of life which produced reverberates, on the listner, causing an agreeable sensation, whilst the gifted may fascinate and attract large audiences merit their laudable applause, crowned with laurel wreaths, honored, revered, and loved, the selfish life prompted from the insursceptibleness of nature deserves a life of reproach.

A magic harp
Forbid to speak,
Talented interdicted—
A remorseful grave to seek.

News was received recently of a most unfortunate and painful accident which occurred to Mr. Joseph Pendergast, at Akron, Ohio, son of Mr. and Mrs. Michael W. Pendergast, of Hutton. At this writing nothing definitely has been learned as to the extent of the injuries received. However our sympathies are extended to the young gentleman.

OUT OF TOWN HAPPENINGS

A Variety of Interesting Paragraphs for Republican Readers.

Turn over several new leaves and plan for the best and most successful year of your farm life. Let all pull together for more and better roads, more ground under cultivation, more cattle for market, and a general improvement all over the farm.

Sometimes we imagine that no place has more bad weather than Garrett county. For instance, last Friday, the last day of 1915, they had four feet of snow on the level, in Arizon, and the temperature was 24 degrees below zero in Colorado. Garrett county was nothing like that.

More than a million acres of land will be added to the bird reservations in the United States if the National Association of Audubon Societies, with headquarters at 1174 Broadway, New York, succeeds in its campaign to have all the cemeteries of the country converted into bird sanctuaries. The plan includes not only the forty-eight burial grounds of New York city but all cemeteries down to the lonely gravyaerd of the smallest hamlet.

Small pieces of soap are usually thrown away, but quite a little economy may be practiced if the odd ends are gathered together and placed in a pan, covered with water and allowed to come slowly to the boiling point. Then pour the melted soap into molds or dishes; allow it to cool, and the result will be new cakes of soap. If oatmeal is added to the dissolved soap, it will improve it.

Senator H. J. Speicher, of Accident, Md., one of the most prominent citizens of Western Maryland, was here part of Thursday. The Senator had in charge a carload of registered draft stallions, one of the finest lots of horses ever seen at this station. On Thursday night, the C. & O. train crew made an extra trip to haul the car to Friendsville, where the horses were unloaded. —Republican Meyersdale.

The national organization of the Grand Army of the Republic, which controls the copyright of the tablet containing Lincoln's Gettysburg address, has long felt that it would be most appropriate to have these tablets erected alang the course of the Lincoln Highway through the many states it travels. Arrangements to this effect have been completed with the Lincoln Highway association and efforts will be made to have as many of these tablets placed along the route as possible. It is thought that no more appropriate terms of keeping Lincoln's famous utterance before the public could be found than that of placing such tablets along the course of the 3,384 mile highway dedirated to his memory.

Free Public Library Notice.

Dear Friends,

There will be a public meeting of those interested in the library, in the library rooms, on Thursday evening, January 13th, at 7:30 o'clock. The purpose of the meeting is to elect officers and effect a permanent organization.

We believe the results already obtained are sufficient to lay claim upon your interest.

We have no doubt but that you are interested in this library movement. Anyone with any conception of its great need would necessarily have to be interested, but is your interest of the practical kind? The kind that says, "I am going to push this thing all I can." That is the kind of interest we would like to have and the kind a few have already shown.

The library is in good working order. The number of books given out in the past month shows that the people intend to use it, and the reading room is a much used place.

Remember the meeting, Thursday, January 13th.

Sincerely,
O. A. BREMER.

MR. GILMOR S. HAMILL MADE PRESIDENT OF GARRETT NATIONAL

New Board of Directors Elected Tuesday Organized This Morning.

The annual stockholders meeting of the Garrett National Bank was held on Tuesday afternoon from 2 until 3 o'clock at the banking rooms of the institution and it proved to be a very successful meeting in every respect, resulting in the election of the following board of directors to serve for the term of one year: Messrs. Gilmor S. Hamill, George W. Legge, John T. Mitchell, Daniel E. Offutt, Jr., Joseph E. Harned, George A. Fraley and Harland L. Jones. The new board is composed of three former members and four new ones, the change being made owing to the fact that Messrs. D. E. Offutt, Sr., John M. Davis and Scott T. Jones have been and are yet quite ill and in consequence their inability to attend the meetings of the board of directors and give their attention to the management of the bank as they were accustomed to do prior to their sickness.

The new board of directors organized this morning when they elected the following officers: President, Mr. Gilmor S. Hamill; vice-president Mr. George W. Legge; cashier, Mr. George A. Fraley; assistant cashier, Mr. Harland L. Jones.

The bank is to be congratulated upon the election of Mr. Hamill as its head, who succeeds Mr. Offutt. Mr. Hamill has been a member of the board of directors as well as vice-president of the bank ever since its organization in 1888. As a business man he has been eminently successful and is well known throughout the county and state. Mr. Legge's elevation to the vice-presidency is a well deserved recognition of his services as a director for more than twenty-five years, while the re-election of Mr. Fraley as cashier and the election of Mr. Jones as his assistant will give general satisfaction to the customers of the institution.

The new members of the board of directors, Messrs. Offutt, Harned, Fraley and Jones, are all well known business men of more than ordinary ability.

GARRETT COUNTY'S NEW STATE'S ATTORNEY

MR. ERNEST R. JONES.

A Card of Appreciation From State's Attorney Jones.

To the people of Garrett County:

In taking up the duties of the office of State's Attorney for Garrett County I wish to again express my appreciation for the confidence reposed in me by the voters at the last election and to assure you that I shall strive to merit the same. At the same time I realize the responsibility of the office and it is my desire that I shall have the co-operation and support of all within the county who are interested in a just and impartial enforcement of the law. I feel confident that I shall have this.

Again thanking you, I am,

Very truly yours

ERNEST RAY JONES.

State's Attorney for Garrett County.

THE LEGISLATURE NOT YET DOWN TO BUSINESS

No Matters of Import Have Been Given Attention Thus Far.

An important move in the direction of legislative economy was made by Senator Harvey L. Cooper, of Caroline county who introduced an order paving the way for the abolition of the committee on public institutions whose junkets in the past have cost the taxpayers about $6,000 every session.

A uniform ballot law for the entire state and the abandonment of the requirement that a new citizen of Maryland must declare his intentions and then reside in the state one year before being allowed to vote will be provided for in two bills by Senator Frederick N. Zihlman, of Allegany county. The Republican Senate floor leader announced that he would introduce both measures in a few days. He will call upon the independent thinking men of both parties to support them.

The time has arrived when the people of the state are looking for a uniform ballot law, and even the Democratic party realizes that this lack of uniformity does not pay in the long run. The burden is upon the legislators of Maryland to remedy these evil conditions and to remedy them at this present session.

The House of Delegates organized last Thursday by electing Laird Speaker by a vote of 54 to 46 for Mezerott, Republican.

While Laird is not desired by the Lee faction it was too shrewd to hold up public business by continuing a deadlock in the House. Such a course would have ruined it with the mass of its adherents and so it made a virtue of necessity and swallowed the bitter pill. Doubtless the Lee people have assurance that they will not be ignored on the committees and in the distribution of the patronage.

The real fight between the factions will probably come on the election of the State Treasurer. The Lee people have sworn everlasting vengeance on Gen. Vandiver and it is hardly possible that the Smith State faction will consent to throw him over. To do so would give the Lee followers a great boost in the factional fight. The time hasn't come for the lion and the lamb to lie down together.

In his speech accepting the presidency of the Senate at Annapolis, Peter J. Campbell made the following reference to Senator Zihlman, the minority floor leader:

"A lover of the square deal, he, on every occasion, won the admiration of all his colleagues, irrespective of party, and I can pay him no greater tribute than to say that I agree with him that there were but few, if any, points of difference in the respective platforms of our parties, that we are all, as Senators, pledged to good, economical efficient government for the State and that we shall labor as best we know how to attain that end in order that good government shall reign in the State of Maryland."

Although the Republicans have within ten as many members in the House of Delegates, they will be given only two members on the large committee. Few of the committees have less than nine members, hence this allotment is out of all proportion. The counties of Frederick, Carroll, Allegany, Washington and Garrett would practically be disfranchised. The Republicans have appointed a committee of six to recommend assignments. Captain J. A. Hayden is one of the six.

The Republicans are also to be made the goats in the economy progam. They are to have one stenographer and a messenger—that's all. In other words, the Democrats intend to take all the credit of economizing, which is being done at the expense of the Republicans.

Free Public Library Meeting.

All those interested in the public library are invited and urged to be present at the meeting on Thursday evening, January 13th, at 7:30 o'clock in the Ravenscroft building.

WEDDING OF DR. JOHN E. LEGGE

And Mrs. Helen Louise Gerrish Occurred In Pittsburg Yesterday.

In the Louis XVI room of the Hotel Schenley, Pittsburgh, yesterday afternoon at one o'clock with a small company of relatives and intimate friends of the contracting parties to witness the ceremoney, Dr. John E. Legge, of Cumberland, Md., and Mrs. Helen Louise Gerrish, of Mt. Vernon, Ohio, were united in marriage, the nuptial rite being solemnized by the Reverend G. S. Richards, Ph. D., pastor of the First Congregational Church of Cumberland.

Both the Louis XIV and the private dining hall adjoining were beautifully decorated, a color scheme of red and green being artistically carried out. The bride, who was attired in a handsomely tailored traveling suit of dark blue panne velvet, with hat of harmonious shade, carried a boquet of lilies of the valley and wore the groom's gift, a pearl and diamond lavalliere. She was given in marriage by her mother, Mrs. Clara L. Gordon of Mt. Vernon, Ohio, while Master Charles Gordon Smith, the four-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Oliver H. Smith, of Cumberland, and a nephew of the bride, acted as ring bearer, the ring service of the Congregational Church being performed.

Following the ceremony and a brief period of congratulations, an elaborate wedding feast, especially prepared for the happy occasion, was served.

In addition to those already mentioned the company included Mrs. Oliver H. Smith, of Cumberland; Mr. and Mrs. Harry Zinch, of Steubenville, Ohio; Mr. Tennant and Dr. Behan, of Pittsburgh; Joseph M. Crouch, of Clarksburg, W. Va., and W. W. Brown of Cumberland.

Dr. and Mrs. Legge will spend their honeymoon in the East and upon their return to Cumberland will occupy the handsome and commodious residence No. 56 Cumberland street, recently purchased by the groom. Announcement cards state that they will be at home to their friends after March fifteenth.

Recapture Trenches at Hartmanns-Weilerkopf and 15 Machine Guns---Win After 3 Weeks Fight---French Continue Struggle and Train Guns on Lost Ground

RUSSIANS TAKING LINE AFTER LINE OF TRENCHES

London.—The War Office announced that Callipoli Peninsula has been completely evacuated by the Allies.

Sir Charles Monro, the British commander in chief, reports that only one British soldier was wounded in the withdrawal and that not a French soldier was harmed.

All the guns were saved, he says, except seventeen that had been worn out, and these were blown up.

A semi-official dispatch from Constantinople, received by way of Amsterdam, says the British withdrew from Seddul Bahr as a result of a battle in which they suffered great losses and that not a man was left behind.

The loss of the battleship King Edward VII., through striking a mine, was officially announced.

The entire crew, numbering about 800 men, was saved.

Following its policy the Admiralty does not reveal the place where the vessel met her fate.

The King Edward cost about $8,000,000 and was one of the finest of the last class of pre-dreadnoughts, corresponding in a general way to the American ships of the New Jersey and Nebraska type, and was only slightly older than the Natal, which was sunk by an internal explosion about a week ago.

The Germans, after three weeks of continuous fighting for the summit of Hartmanns-Weilerkopf, recaptured the trenches near Hirzstein, south of the mountain, lost by them on December 21 last, and in regaining the positions took 20 French officers, 15 machine guns and 1,083 chasseurs.

Paris admits the repulse in an official report, and says the withdrawal from the crest of Hirzstein was due to the capture by the Germans of a hill to the north, which dominated their treaches.

Arthur Henderson, President of the Board of Education and Labor representative in the Cabinet, resigned from the Government as the immediate result of the Government's stand on conscription as made clear by the bill.

PITH OF THE WAR NEWS

The military experts pay tribute to the remarkable recuperative power the Russians have displayed in the formation of their great fighting machine now battling on the Austro-German front. They are well supplied with munitions.

After a temporary lull in the operations the Montenegrins and Austrians are again clashing. An Austrian fleet has violently bombarded the Montenegrin positions on Mount Lovcen, near the Adriatic coast.

The Russians announce they have won further successes against the Turks in the Caucasus region.

A dispatch from Tokio credits to Count Okuma, the Japanese premier, the statement that Germany has made overtures to both Japan and Russia for a separate peace, which were rejected in both instances.

Bulgarian and German troops to the number of 200,000 are now massed on the Greek border awaiting the attack on the Allies at Saloniki.

According to advices from Constantinople the Russians have been defeated and driven back with heavy losses from an attack on a town in the province of Azerbain, Persia.

The Russian position 250 miles further north on the Middle Styr River has been much strengthened by successful operations in the region of the great marshes.

The Austrians are hard pressed in the Czernowitz section along a wide area, and are rushing huge reinforcements into the district.

The strained situation at Saloniki arising from the arrests made there may be solved by the withdrawal of the Greek forces from the town.

Bulgaria is reported to have approved a war credit of $100,000,000 for immediate use.

Paris.—The fighting in the Russian drive on the Bessarabian front, covering an area of 300 miles, has developed a ferocity hitherto unknown in the war, and has resulted in hand-to-hand fighting, in which no quarter is asked or given.

The dispatches say few prisoners are being taken on either side, and the infantry is rushing into encounters at close range for battles to the death.

The Russian losses are said by Vienna to have been at least 50,000 men in the last few days in the Bessarabian region and the Stripa sector.

Dispatches from other sources place the losses of Austro-Germans in killed as equal to those of the Russians.

The Russians are pressing their attacks from the Baltic to the Rumanian border. Petrograd has not disclosed officially whether the drive is the great offensive that has been predicted, and which, it was said, once begun was not to be ended until Russia had shot its bolt and the whole force of 8,000,00 men had done its utmost.

In some quarters the new movement is said to be a diversion of unparalleled magnitude and fierceness designed to weaken the pressure of the Central Powers in the Balkans and incidentally to lighten the burden of the Italians on the Austro-Italian front.

Dispatches from Kiev say the noise of cannon can be heard thirty-six miles and that windows in all the villages in the region have been broken by the concussions.

The battle is raging with particular fury on the Tarnopol-Trembowla front, where more than 800,000 men, with 3,500 cannon, are incessantly engaged. Long Austro-German Red Cross trains are leaving the front daily for more remote and thinly populated towns where hospitals have been organized.

The Russians have had to surmount enormous difficulties. Entanglements of barbed wire are often laid twenty-four deep and charged with powerful electric currents supplied from stations built for the sole purpose of furnishing the current.

BESSARABIAN BORDER FIGHT.

London.—The Russians repeated their attacks in the great battle along the borders of Bessarabia in their efforts to break the lines of the armies of the Central Powers.

Dispatches from Berlin say the fighting on the Bukowina front since Christmas Day, has been unexampled in its fury and in the extent of the losses.

The whole energy of the Russians is being directed to making a gap between the German armies in the centre and the southern Austrian forces, and the Austrians are attacking with determination in the region of Kolki to prevent the success of the Muscovite drive.

Reports from Austrian sources admit the withdrawal of Austrian troops from part of Czernowitz, and that the Russians are holding the heights above the city.

The Czar's forces have concentrated more than 200 guns and three divisions of infantry on a front of three quarters of a mile.

The most important event on the western line in France was the repulse by the French of a German attack in the region of Tahure.

On the Austro-Italian line a return of clear weather has brought about a renewal of the bombardments along the Isonzo front.

In Central Africa a British naval expedition on Lake Tanganyika has brought about the surrender of the German armed steamship Kingani, all the officers of which were killed.

BRITISH SPIES EXPELLED.

Sweden Acts Against Commercial Espionage of England.

Stockholm.—The activity of British commercial agents, whom the Swedes call "commercial spies," has caused the greatest irritation here. Several have been expelled because of their activity in "shadowing" cargoes unloaded at Gothenburg and other ports. American buyers are carefully watched and their negotiations with the Swedish business followed in detail.

GRANTSVILLE.

New Year's dawned without any noise or demonstration of the slightest in the village, as out of respect and sympathy for Mrs. J. J. Bender whose condition has been critical, the boys considerately agreed to ring no bells and fire no sky-rockets, a favor which was deeply appreciated by the family. A heavy rain fell all day upon New Year's, keeping most of the people in doors and making the day a very quiet one.

Mary Ellen, the infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Beachy, died on Wednesday morning, a victim of the dreaded whooping cough which has become epidemic among the children. The baby was not quite four months old, having been born Sept. 4th, and the frail little body soon succumbed to the ravages of the disease. Interment was made on Friday in the Grantsville cemetery, Rev. Carder officiating. Much sympathy is felt for the bereaved parents, as this is the third baby they have been called upon to give up within the last ten years. The other members of the family are afflicted with the malady, but are recovering.

Misses Beulah and Esther Bender entertained during the holidays by giving a party for some of the young people of the town. The guests included Misses Harriett, Lena and Mary Stanton, Edna Bender, Eva Miller, Edna Durst, Hazel Younkin; Messrs. Earle Miller, Frank Stanton, Lee Custer, Allen and Charles Bender, Harry Ambell, Charles Kellar and Clarence Durst. Games of different kinds were indulged in, after which ice cream, cake and candy were served.

The guests present were Misses Winifred Bonig, Ruth Keller, Ethel and Viola Broadwater, Vida and Beulah Engle, Lucretia and Almira Boucher; Messrs. John Livengood, Charles and Bayard Keller, Dan Dorsey, Olin Broadwater, Clay and Floyd Stanton, John Engle, Urban Blocher and John Younkin. Delicious refreshments were served.

The first basketball game in the New Year was played Saturday night in the Broadwater Hall between Eckhart and Grantsville. The game was most interesting and ran very closely, but resulted in a victory for our boys. Lineup:

Grantsville—22		Eckhart—20
Custer	F	McMillian
Stanton	F	Decker
Broadwater	C	Walters
Miller	G	Eckhart
Stanton	G	Logsdon

Teachers are to remain in charge of the same classes as during the previous year. At the close of the church service at this church, Dr. G. C. Keller was elected elder and Clay Stanton deacon for the coming term of office.

Richard Schlossnagle, the competent and obliging saddler of the village, has accepted a position with the Muncie Lumber Co of Pennsylvania, and will probably move his family in the near future. His departure will be regretted by his many patrons, as it will leave the village without a saddler, an office that is in much demand.

At a meeting of the town council last week, Albert Swauger was appointed policeman of the village, an office which he will no doubt discharge to the best of his ability and the entire satisfaction of the community which is, however, a quiet well-behaved one as a rule, and will cause little trouble to the good-natured village officer while in discharge of his duties.

Misses Gertie Hone, Blanche Miller and Marie Connor spent the holidays with friends in Friendsville, Md., Frostburg and Keyser, W. Va.

Dr. and Mrs. L. P. Young and Rev. E. E. Oney of Elk Lick, Rev. and Mrs. W. H. B. Carney and neice Miss Euxine Axe, of Garrett, were dinner guests of Dr. and Mrs. J. A. Carney on Wednesday last.

Misses Angela and Wilda Getty and Almira and Lucretia Boucher enjoyed a delightful New Year's dinner as guests of Misses Mollie and Carrie Dorsey.

Miss Bessie Engle is improving, being under treatment at the Passavator hospital, Pittsburgh.

The high wind and heavy sleet of last week did considerable damage to the telephone and telegraph wires. A corps of postal telegraph men have been working here the past week, being stationed at the Victoria hotel. A. T. Shirer, the W. U. lineman, and the Southern Pipe Line men have all been busy, as well as the men employed by the telephone companies,

Mrs. Laurence Bittinger and son Rexford have been guests of Mrs. Bittinger's parents, at Bittinger, this week.

Mrs. Jerry Yost, of Mt. Airy Farm, spent Thursday with Mrs. Susan Durst.

The body of E. W. Bevans, who died in Cumberland, was brought to this place last Thursday for burial. The funeral took place Saturday afternoon. The members of the Knights of Pythias lodge, of which he was a member, accompanied his widow and took charge of the remains. Mr. Bevans was a son of the late Dr. H. L. Bevans, and his widow is a daughter of Gilead Broadwater, merchant, formerly of this place and well known in Frostburg. Besides his bereaved widow six young children, one an infant of four months, also his mother, one brother and several sisters survive.

We have built this business upon the solid rock of INTEGRITY, conscientious and faithful service, sincereity between ourselves and customers. This is our guiding principle and it will carry us to greater success. A big business founded on a little idea. WALTER'S Oscillating Sleds

If you want a sled you should buy a good hand made oscillating white oak bob sled, made of the best white oak wood that is possible to get, and will outlast any factory sled on the market.

I have been making sleds for a number of years, also repairing all kinds and certainly ought to know where a sled ought to be made stronger and better than a factory that perhaps never repaired a sled in their existence.

My stock is larger and better than ever before. If you need a sled come and see mine before you purchase, then if we don't deal it will be because quality won't have anything to do with it.

Prices very reasonable. Remember the name of the sled.

The Republican--Garrett Co.'s Paper.

THE PEOPLE'S FORUM.

Notes by The Way.

To the Editor of The Republican:

Having occasion to drive across the county, the itinerary including Oakland, some things were learned "by bobservation" as a darkey was reputed as saying; and some deductions made which may be helpful if passed on to the public.

The change, in the line of improvement in buildings, more especially farm buildings and in farm lands is very marked but there is room for much improvement yet.

One of the most encouraging features, that bespeak progress, is the large number of silos which stand out so prominently as the vistas of those characteristic valleys or coves come into view.

The types of barns are a great improvement upon those of the past, but they ought to be used more continuously. (Please use italics, Mr. Printer) What I mean thereby is—They should be used to shelter the live stock in inclement weather which some were not on one of the worst days of last week. This indictment does not apply to the apparently shiftless only but to some, whose premises bespeak thrift and prosperity, had cattle and even a few horses outdoors—the cattle in some cases being supplied with a ration of uncut corn fodder or stover. And one farmer who is rated as somewhat prominent, had mower, tedder etc., standing in the barnyard in readiness (?) for next season's haying. And all this in plain sight of the state road. Live stock affords unprofitable source of heat or water shed for the great outdoors and the quicker our farmers realize and appreciate the fact the quicker will a change contribute to better prosperity and to more humane treatment of our dumb brutes which are a charge for which we are responsible.

Referring to barns recalls to mind what I consider defective construction and also short-sighted planning in barn construction. Some barns along Garrett county's state road have too low building site to begin with and additionally are built on foundations—walls—that are obviously and beyond question too low. The result is the yards and grounds surrounding barn do not drain off in wet weather, water forms in pools—there is mud and filth, insanitation and unpleasantness all of which are unnecessary evils and the foundation timbers will soon begin to decay where exposed to much dampness. Again judging from the distance some farmers have their nearest barns placed away from the residence one would think they had not figured on going to the barn very often. I can readily see why some barns or cattle sheds are remotely located from residence, but it is not to those that I object in this article. But it certainly is a short-sighted policy to locate house and barn further apart than safety from possible fires and proper sanitation demands.

I saw one man walk to the barn through the steady rain, in a shambling, slouchy gait he looked tired and probably was, too, if he had made several trips to the barn that morning for it certainly was a tiresome distance, but he may have fallen a victim to some other man's folly in planning, but some one was responsible for the plan. The addition of some windows in most barns would be a great, an exceedingly great improvement, for sunlight contributes much to sanitation and health—a fact that is too little appreciated—and when the stable doors must be left open in order to enable one to see, it not only indicts—it convicts, of mismanagement.

I also saw a woman very industriously devote her energies over an old washboard—tub combination—and I looked sharply, with the object of seeing nearby, somewhere, an improved washing machine, but there was none to be seen and I am of the opinion that there is none in use on the premises, yet the family, I have reason to believe, is a prosperous farmer family and has additional investments and interests and the head of the family drives an automobile and has considerable mechanical talent and skill. It is not the design or purpose of this article to "knock" or severely criticise, but to plainly and frankly call attention to defects as they were observed in passing along and I trust they may be read by some farmer who will not attend farmer's institutes nor read farm papers, for I know Garrett county has many a farmer in that class, and in evidence of the correctness of the last statement I cite the fact that farmer's institutes are no longer held in Oakland because nonattendance. To be just however, the institute management may in a measure, be blameable, because subjects and lectures were not always suited to Garrett county conditions and needs, when soils and climate are considered.

But to come back to my fellow farmer again, a number of you are so "sot" in your ways you wouldn't in all probability attend farmer's institute if Dr. Hill would bring in the best institute lecturers the whole county affords. When the former director of institutes, Mr. Amoss had Van Alstyne, now at the head, practically, of New York state institute work and a very practical lecturer and Prof. Watts a practical market gardner of near Johnstown, Penna., and now dean of that states agricultural college, and Wing from Ohio and Campbell from Pennsylvania and Kidd from Ontario and Jenanyou from Penna., as well as others, did you go to hear them? Oh no, many of you did not. You "got even" with the state like the man who "got even" with the railway company: he bought and paid for his ticket but didn't go and avenged himself on the company. We pay the price, in taxes, and—don't go.

Permit me to be a little more helpfully sarcastic some of you choose to get your farming information second and third handed. You scoff at scientific ideas advanced in the agricultural press, at farmer's institutes and by the state experiment stations, but when the thinking and enterprising farmer adopts and succeeds with these same ideas for about five or ten years and another gets the idea finally from farmer number one, then some of you, reluctantly "give in" and also adopt those ideas. Some Garrett county farmers who could not now be induced to do without a silo, scoffed, and, derided and scorned the silage idea and had once firmly, made up their minds their "critters" should never eat "silo" and they would, today have only a remote, long distance, vague, indefinite idea as to form and use of the silo—if the rest of us had not read and heard and talked silos and silage and put into practice the now familiar idea. The silo pioneers were few and far between in the county, except near Grantsville among the Pennsylvania German farmers, in which vicinity were, for some years probably more silos than in the other sections of the county put together. And the writer is gratified to add that that grand view point, Alleghany Heights, enables one to see a panorama of valley farms, commodious, well built barns, supplemented in so many cases with the useful silo, and above all the "homey" residences that one is reminded of some of Pennsylvanias well built well farmed valleys, and is really edified by the peaceful scene that feasts the eye. And the same is true of other valleys and coves in reach of the eye from the state road. I distinctly remember when a near neighbor got the first self binder that was ever used in the community. One of the merchants of the nearby town with oracular assurance and sage and seer-like mien solemnly and emphatically prophesied failure—but he came and saw the new fangled contrivance work—and—he figuratively and literally "left the field" before the elated and triumphant owner and operator could interview the wise (?) merchant.

I am told a certain farmer on the state road does not believe in silos—he has a large farm, principally cleared land. I am told he has a big barn too, but he doesn't have live-stock enough for more than one third of his barn capacity. Why is this, when he is too far from markets to sell farm products in crude and bulky and land-exhausting form such as hay and straw? I don't know, but it seems to me a practical progressive farmer could take that farm, build a silo, farm accordingly, keep twice as many sheep and then some more; at least four times as many cattle, and not feed the cows on straw.

Last, but not least, the saddest sight that met my gaze upon which I shall take the liberty to comment is that unused meeting house, by the side of the state road. Its door stands ajar—not to permit Sunday school and preaching service attendants to pass in and out, in regular and appointed and frequent attendance but it stands open—to neglect. It stands open to admit decay and decline. And does the same condition apply to the community, spiritually, or do the people assemble elsewhere to hold their public devotions? Was it a mistake to build the church—were its members too few in numbers—did they forget the Messianic assurance "Where two or three are gathered together in My name, there am I in the midst of them"? Did petty jealousies and rivalry for supremacy bring about luke warmness and indifference and the neglect and non-attendance? Did some of its former members give evidence of being, as a certain friend once characterized littleness and meanness as being "22 short in calibre?" I am writing this in ignorance as to who ever attended services at any time in the neglected church, but its mute appeals touch my heart. Let that abandoned-church-story which goes forth from other sections, never find basis in truth among the hills, the dells, the coves, the valleys and plateaus of Garrett, for its rock bound fastnesses should continually remind us of "The Rock of Ages, cleft for me."

THURSDAY, JANUARY 13, 1916

IT is Governor Harrington now. Good luck to him.

THE State of Maryland asks of its legislature not many laws, but good laws.

BRYAN is raising fruit in Florida and will raise hail Columbia at St. Louis in June—or worse.

WHAT can the Democratic party do with Bryan, yet what would it have been without him?

THERE is some hope for Secretary Redfield. He admits that the present prosperity is but of a temporary character.

SPEAKER Clark refused the overtures of Bryan for a coalition against Wilson, as he has a bigger settlement to make with the traitorous Commoner.

IN the first 12 days of present Congress, 6,781 bills were introduced. Our congested statute books teach our politicians nothing.

NOW Bryan threatens to expose his "treatment" while in the cabinet which would be exceedingly interesting reading for a campaign consumption.

SENATOR Gore says he does not "hear any dark horse neighing in the Democrating paddock." If his hearing is good he might hear the braying of an ass, however.

THE new vacancy on the Supreme bench gives President Wilson another opportunity to perform a graceful nonpartisan act, especially since Justice Lamar was a Taft appointment.

GENERAL Sherwood, Democrat of Ohio, went after the administration's defense program, in the House, rather rough shod in declaring it to be "without sanity or excuse."

THAT was rather a remarkable incident at a New York gathering, when Senator Chamberlain, of Oregon, chairman of the Senate Committee on Military affairs, denounced the foreign policies of the administration as cowardly, "But" said Senator Chamberlain, "when it comes to the time that we have to deal with the greater powers of the world we do not act like a brave and courageous nation, we act like cowards, I am ashamed to say."

THAT collection of organized hypocritics, known as the Democratic party, which shed crocodile tears over the extravagance of the Republican party in the creation of useless offices, has not reduced the number, but on the contrary has been engaged in constantly increasing them. Only a few days ago Secretary McAdoo asked that provision be made in the appropriations for a largely increased force in the Treasury Department, where, he cited, it took one man a whole day to check up one income tax return. Here is where the internal revenue force will be swelled to accommodate "deserving Democrats."

The Bend In The Road.

BY SARA ROBERTA GETTY

Tho' the way may be narrow and rugged,
And you stoop 'neath the weight of your load—
Yet be of good cheer, the way will be clear,
When you come to the bend in the road.

Oh searcher for Truth, be not hopeless
While struggling for things that are right!
Have courage, dear friend, when you come to the bend,
You will see in the distance, the light.

The bend in the road is still hidden,
The future may look dark and drear—
But hope fills the soul, we know that the goal
May be ours if we persevere!

BURROWING LIKE MOLES IN DARK

Democratic Administration Put Soft Pedal on Pitiless Publicity.

Washington, Jan. 12.—"Legislation without information."

This seems to be the official New Year greeting adopted by the Democratic administration. The legislation proposed, including as it does a comprehensive plan for greatly increasing army and navy appropriations, is regarded by many as the most important ever undertaken in this country.

Yet in spite of this, administration leaders propose to close to Congress one of the most important sources of information bearing upon national defense. Orders have been issued that army officers with views upon national preparedness must refrain from discussing them with or before members of the military committees of the House and Senate.

If the administration program of preparedness is for defense of the Democratic party at the 1916 polls, this order muzzling the officers of the army, especially those of the general staff, must be regarded as a grave error.

Representative Kahn, of the Military Affairs Committee, regards the matter in a very serious light.

"Accurate information is the one essential for the intelligent enactment of any legislation," said the California Representative today. "It is doubly important in the consideration of the proposed national defense program, dealing as it does with adequate protection for the homes of our people, their industries, and the honor of our flag and our country.

"Administration leaders ought to be the last, rather than the first, to hinder the legislative branch of our government is securing facts that in any way would aid in the passage of intelligent laws for national defense."

Impatience over the secretive policy of the administration is not confined to members of the Military Affairs Committee, Representative Miller of Minnesota, of the Insular Affairs Committee today bitterly criticised the President for suppressing information about Philippine conditions.

"American honor is at stake in the Philippines," said Mr. Miller. "During the terms of three former Presidents a splendid non-partisan governmental force was established. President Wilson wiped this out, substituting inexperienced Americans and natives.

"Could we know the truth we would learn of a government whose efficiency is vastly reduced, under which neither American sovereignty nor American citizenship is decently respected; one under which tens of thousands have died from cholera because health safeguards were removed; one under which an uprising was started last year.

"President Wilson and his officials kept from Americans knowledge of the real facts. Publicity! Not a czar upon a throne ever more completely kept the truth from a people."

THE DEATH RECORD.

MRS. MARGARET GRIFFITH.

Mrs. Margaret Griffith, of near Oakland, died on Tuesday morning and her funeral was conducted at Red House church last Thursday, the Rev. O. A. Bremer, pastor of the Oakland Lutheran church officiating. The family of the deceased wish at this time to thank those who were so kind to them during their days of sorrow. Mrs. Griffth was one of the oldest residents of Garrett county, this also being her native county. She was aged 82 years and her death occurred at the home of her son. At Red House a host of friends filled the church of her girlhood to listen to the words of promise that God through His word speaks to those who live lives of hope and faith and love.

JAMES FRIBLEY GRIMES.

James Fribley Grimes, aged 69, one of the founders of Knoxville and high in real estate circles in Pittsburgh for years, dropped dead in the office of the Knoxville Land Improvement Company, 86 Knox avenue, Knoxville, of which he was president, at 9 o'clock last night. Cerebral hemorrage was the cause of death.

Mr. Grimes was talking with a party of prospective investors in South Hills property when the attack seized him. A physician was summoned but death was instantaneous.

Mr. Grimes was born in Aurora, W. Va. He was educated in Morgantown Academy, now the University of West Virginia. He began his business career as a clerk for the Rev. J. Knox, who owned the land on which the borough of Knoxville now stands.

He served through the Civil War as a member of the Fourteenth West Virginia Regiment of Infantry. He was a member of the G. A. R., the Pittsburgh Press Club and the Methodist Episcopal Church of Knoxville.

Mr. Grimes leaves his widow, Mrs. Bell Hagerman Grimes: four sons, William D., R. R., J. L. and Jack Grimes, the latter of Keyser, W. Va.; four daughters, Mrs. George L. Sincell, Miss Helen, Miss Josephine and Miss Zuliah Grimes, and three brothers, J. N. Grimes of Grafton, W. Va., John A. Grimes of Henry, W. Va., and Dr. J. B. Grimes of the South Side.—Sunday's Pittsburgh Times.

HUTTON

The good "old fashioned" wintry weather paid its respects to our settlement with a snow to the depth of several inches Friday morning of last week, which was accompanied by a terrific gale whilst the thermometer registered at ten degrees below zero, on the first and second days of its visitation.

Mr. M. W. Pendergast is this week a visitor at Akron, Ohio, having been called to that city, on account of the recent accident that occured to his son Joseph. The writer is unable as yet to narrate definitely the result of the unfortunate event.

The Tioga Tanning Company of this place, erected last week a new smokestack the construction being somewhat distinct from the ones heretofore. The work was under the general supervision of the manager L. R. Harton, and assistant F. P. Baker.

Rev. James E. Connell, pastor of St. Peter's church, of Oakland, solemnized holy mass Sunday in the Pendergast hall and delivered in his ever eloquent diction a very instructive sermon on a "Perfect Christian Life" before a large assembly.

A supplement to the article entitled "The Passing of the Old Year," in these columns of last week's issue. At the final (which to many, no doubt appeared as a "Chinease puzzle") was no other than a fitting and justifiable penned tribute of St. Elmo's to the prevailing European Monarchism; even though seperated by a gigantic ocean, thanks to Divine Providence, our heart has never ceased to throb with tender emotion for our distant kindred banded together under the common term of brother-hood. Amazed, yet pitiful, we sympathize with the devoted subjects, their filial obedience to their royal soverign affects us. To love one and hate the other, "for our lives, like master musicians, that produce with magical skill a rhythmical chord of excellence, or otherwise if he so wills." Kings and rulers have convulsed nations into terror, when peace was at their command. Look at the many graves filled with the untimely talented! For surely among the warriors men of remarkable ability are lost, a gifted harp forbid to speak, talented interdicted, a remorseful grave to seek, which must be the final retribution for the unjust and selfish ruler. Not until brutality is extinct and humanitarianism regains its equilibrium peace cannot be restored, nor happiness take possession of a land filled with hate.

Miss Lena Wolfe, of Oakland, was the guest of Miss Margaret Feeney, Edgewood, Saturday and Sunday.

Mr. Edward M. Pendergast, of Clarksburg, W. Va., is visiting his parents in this section.

Mrs. John Wolfe and daughter Miss Bertha, of Oakland, were visiting friends in this vicinity recently.

FINE COURSE IN HORTICULTURE

To Begin January 25th to February 5th 1916 at Maryland Agricultural College.

The two weeks' course in Horticulture at the Maryland Agricultural College, January 25th to Feb. 5th 1916, is given for the discussion and demonstration of practical methods of meeting successfully the various problems which arise in the production of orchard crops, small fruits and truck crops.

Lectures are given on location as regards soil, climate and market conditions; the selection of suitable varieties for commercial and home purposes; the planting and pruning of trees, and small fruit plants; the cultivation and feeding of orchards, small fruit plantings, truck and garden crops; orchard and gardening implements; the control of insects and diseases; harvesting, grading, and packing of fruits and truck crops and the general problems of marketing as applied to fruit and truck growing. Special lectures will be given by practical authorities upon various subjects.

In view of the fact that attractive surroundings play such an important part in the home life, lectures pertaining to principles underlying the art of Landscape Gardening will be given. The relation of the house to the grounds and the proper method of embellishing same, will be treated. Flowers and their use in the home flower garden will be given due consideration. The propagation and care of the common ornamentals suitable for planting in home grounds will be discussed.

Demonstrations will be a strong feature of this course. Methods of propagation of both tree and bush fruits will be shown; the pruning and training of old and young trees, berry bushes and grape vines will be done in a practical way; planting of seed, making of cuttings, transplanting of seedlings, potting of plant and the construction of hotbeds and cold frames will be a part of the course in Market Gardening and in Landscape Gardening. Preparation of insecticides and fungicides and the spraying of fruit trees will be demonstrated in detail. Classes will also have an opportunity to grade and pack fruit. The idea of the demonstration work is to give a practical working knowledge of as many as possible of the subjects under discussion.

The Maryland Agricultural College is located at College Park, Md., on the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad between Baltimore and Washington, eight miles from the latter city with which it is connected by trolley. Located thus, there is every opportunity for visiting the United States Department of Agriculture, the Congressional Library and the Government Experiment Farms.

Adjoining the College Grounds, are the State Agricultural Experiment Station and Farm. The lecture rooms, laboratories and greenhouses of the College are offered freely for the use of the Short Course students as guests of the College and the regular student body. The College Library is open daily and students are encouraged to consult books bearing up their subject of study. The privileges of the College reading room are also extended to them.

There is no tuition charged for this course, instruction being free to all who may attend. Board may be had in College Park or in the adjoining trolley connected towns of Hyattsville, Riverdale or Berwyn at a cost of about five dollars per week for board and lodging. All persons planning to attend these courses should write to Dr. H. J. Patterson, President, promptly so that accomodations can be secured.

MOUNTAIN LAKE PARK.

Mr. Floyd White is visiting relatives in Baltimore this week. Before returning home he will spend several days taking in the sights of the National Capital, as well as looking over the U. S. Senate and House of Representatives. He may visit Annapolis for a day or two.

Capt. Bush Hardesty was a week end visitor at Washington, D. C., calling on some "old time" friends.

Mrs. T. H. Cuppett is very much improved in health.

The Methodist Sunday school sessions are reported as very interesting and profitable. The attendance is very large.

The laboring men are "watching and waiting" for the ice harvest.

Word reached the Park last Thursday of the death of Col. Charles B. Kefauver, at his home at Parkersburg, W. Va., after an illness of about six weeks, which developed into typhoid fever. He was 48 years of age. He served as chief clerk in the office of Former Auditor Lafollette for four years, a term of years as assistant adjutant general and several years as state bank examiner. He was for three years editor and manager of the Parkersburg News, and later served as manager of the Cairo and Kanawha railroad. In 1908, he was appointed clerk by Judge Dayton for the Northern District. He was prominent politically and managed several of Dayton's campaigns for Congress. He was married in 1901 to Miss Catherine Albert of Maysville, Ky.

Besides his wife and five children, a brother, Webster Kefauver, of Baltimore and his step-mother survive. The remains were taken to Baltimore for interment Friday, that being his former home.

The colonel and his family were summer citizens of the Park for several years and made many friends among our summer visitors.

J. Grant Hayden, son of Capt. and Mrs. J. A. Hayden, of the Park, has been appointed one of the tax collectors of Allegany county, known as the third collection district, embracing the territory from Lonaconing to Westernport.

Mr. Charles P. Martin and family are moving to Morgantown, W. Va.

Messers. Clyde Shipley and Walter Combs went to Akron, Ohio, Monday where they will work in the Goodyear Rubber factory.

Mr. William Johnson has gone to Meadowbrook, W. Va., where he has a position with the B. & O.

Miss Susan Pollock is "at home," at Cotha, Germany, 14, Thos. Brunnen St.

Mr. J. Gibson was a Terra Alta visitor Tuesday.

Rev. Dr. Wright preached in the Methodist church Sunday night, the pastor, Rev. Flanigan having gone to Clarksburg, W. Va., to attend a funeral.

George Dawson has employment at Akron, Ohio, for the winter. He will return to the Park in the early spring.

The date for the Training School of Missions has been changed from July 21-31 to August 21-31st, which date follows that of the Bible Conference.

CHESTNUT GROVE.

A very quiet but pretty home wedding took place at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Roman Tichnell of this place on Thursday, January 6, when their son, Mr. Troxell Tichnell and Miss Myrtle Gamer were united in marriage by Rev. Barnard. Intimate friends of the groom were the only guests present. The happy couple left early Friday morning for a two week's honeymoon trip.

Changeable weather seems to be the order of the day and is causing much sickness.

Our school closed for the holidays, reopened Monday morning with a large enrollment with Miss Anna Shaw as principal.

Mr. Howard Barnard accepted a position with the Monroe Coal Mining Company at Barnum recently.

Rev. Barnard of this place, was calling on Squire McRobie recently, who has been confined to his bed for the past two weeks.

JENNINGS

The farmers have considerable less poultry to feed since the celebration of the birth of Christ, than before.

We believe in this section in general everybody spent a quiet enjoyable Christmas. Very few were intoxicated, compared with previous years.

The Pentecostal people assembled at the home of Jacob Bittinger, Jr., on Thursday evening and held a cottage prayermeeting which was very interesting and edifying to all who attended it. T. E. Upole, the leader, appointed Mr. Groves who was leader on this occasion.

Rev. J. B. Carder, pastor of the M. E. church, did not begin his revival meeting at this place Sunday evening. The snow having very nearly all melted away, leaves the roads in a very muddy condition, and the water is considerably high, which makes church going quite difficult.

Henry Durst had a shooting match on New Year's afternoon, and disposed of some ducks and chickens.

John Blocher, Stephen Custer and Louis Hockman started for Akron, Ohio, a few days ago to visit friends and relatives.

In the article published in these columns last week referring to the decision of Judge Henderson upholding the constitutionality of the Miners' Co-Operative law, one line of the manuscript copy was omitted by the type setter with the result that Messrs. G. S. Hamill and E. H. Sincell were made to appear as counsel for the County Commissioners, whereas they were counsel for the mine owners, and the name of Attorney E. R. Mr. Jones' contention that the law is constitutional was upheld in every particular by the Court and the mine owners who refused to pay the amounts chargable against them will now be forced to do so.

Governor Goldsborough Retires From Office With Strong Stamp of Approval on His Work by the People of Maryland

Close of a Term of Four Years Marked By Constant Effort to Uplift Humanity, to Advance the Agricultural and Industrial Interests of the State and to Give the People a Wholesome Administration.

The Baltimore American of Sunday says:

The verdict of the people of Maryland on Wednesday, when Governor Phillips Lee Goldsborough lays behind him his term of four years and returns to private life, will be that he has made good. This verdict will be based upon the broad mind, free of partisan bias, which he has brought to bear upon the discharge of his public duties and upon his considaration of all public questions, his untiring efforts to uplift humanity and to improve the condition of the unfortunates, to bring cheer and happiness into lives of those whose struggle for existence is hard and tempestuous, to advance the industrial and agricultural interests of the state, to exploit its unsurpassed resources, to impart confidence of the people in their own commonwealth.

The verdict, too, will be that Mr. Goldsborough has been a dignified and safe governor; that he has won highest commendations at home and elsewhere by his courtesy, by his kindness, by his polished manners and by his devotion to his state. And when he, with Mrs. Goldsborough, retires to his home, at Cambridge, there will go with them the best wishes of a grateful people; for let it be recorded here and let it long be remembered that the success of Governor Goldsborough's administration has been due largely to the charm, to the gracious manners, to the unostentatious hospitality of the mistress of the executive mansion.

Lest the people of Maryland forget the long list of achievements of Governor Goldsborough, achievements made possible through the aid extended by a party in the majority in the General Assembly opposed to him politically, but endeared to him because of his kindly dealings with its members and because of his devotion to the interests of the state, let them be recorded here:

Creation of the State Industrial Accident Commission.

Organization of the State Tax Commission.

Organization and creation of the Advisory Board of Pardons and Parole.

Creation of the Peoples' Court in Baltimore city.

Ten-Hour Labor Law for Women.

Child Labor Law.

State Auditor.

Act passed creating the health districts of the state under the supervision of a competent health warden, and starting of health surveys, and the greatly increased power of the State Board of Health over the sanitary and water supply matters of the various communities.

Completion of the state roads.

Reform in the administration of the penal institutions of the state.

Procuring of an educational survey for the state.

Organization of a Co-operative Purchasing Committee, an agency used effectively by the state hospitals for the purchase of supplies, thereby reducing cost and waste.

The Tubercular Conference, which he called and to which he invited the school commissioners of the counties, the county commissioners, the county superintendents, the county health officers and others to study the question of tuberculosis among the negroes of the state and to provide some method, if possible, whereby this form of suffering may be alieviated.

A general awakening of the public conscience to the state's obligations toward the weaker and less fortunate citizens, such as a movement looking to the establishment of an inebriate farm, where persons who have become a slave to alcohol can find relief.

The establishment upon a firm basis the correctness of the theory that the most successful form of representative government is one that is impersonal, dealing justly and fairly with every question as it arises without reference to its effect upon individuals, looking only toward the general good of the state, ignoring the source from which the suggestion might come whether it be friend or foe, not attempting to use the powers of office for the advancement of the individual interest of friends or the punishment of political foes.

The launching of the idea of her consolidation of the schools of higher learning and giving some substance to the idea of creating a Maryland State University.

The establishment of a technical school in connection with Hopkins University, where the advanced technical learning might be acquired and where the opportunity could be best given to promote the interests of applied science.

Long and honorable as is this record of achievements by Governor Goldsborough, his greatest triumph has been personal. When he became governor four years ago there were doubts if he could escape from his environment and develop into an executive of broad vision. He had been trained in the school of practical politics, a school whose graduates are the best fitted to give and take in politics, to deal in patronage. He laid aside his training and there emerged a man who was governor of the whole people, to whom office brokerage was subordinate to his activities in behalf of the state. In thus entering upon a new political life he broke ties near and dear to him. He has bitterly complained in private, at times, that he has been misunderstood; that his acts were solely for the public good.

PHILLIPS LEE GOLDSBOROUGH

The greatest political achievement of Governor Goldsborough has been a demonstration by his acts that the Republican party in Maryland can give a decent, clean honorable administration, one free of partisan bias and one without predominance of a large bulk of its membership. There are many Democrats who frankly acknowledge that a Democratic administration at Washington is not likely to succeed itself because north of the Mason and Dixon's Line and north of the Ohio river there are not in the rank and file of the party enough Democrats of broad intelligence and education, individually and through public print, to defend their national administration. It is further claimed that in the Democratic rank and file in the north are not Democrats in sufficient numbers who are qualified to fill acceptably the federal offices to which they may be appointed.

Maryland Democrats have retaliated by putting forward a claim that the Republican party here has not enough high grade men in several communities who are qualified to discharge acceptably the duties of the offices to which they may be appointed, that in the rank and file of the party there are not men who can successfully defend the administration of their party. They confess that in the Republican party there is a large number of leading citizens, but, they add, there is a wide chasm to the colored vote.

Governor Goldsborough has put to utter rout this charge of Democrats. He has relegated to the waste heap the old and familiar cry of "negro domination." Democrats have not found it profitable in this campaign to bring the negro bugaboo to the front. He has put to rout the accusation that the Republican party in Maryland is incapable of giving the state an efficient administration.

Said the Governor in a recent interview:

"In reviewing the acts of my administration I must discard the ego. Otherwise hundreds of men and women, blessed with high ideals, would be deprived of that credit which is due them. It would have been impossible for me to have accomplished as much as has been good fortune without the co-operation of Democrats in the Legislature, who, as I have tried, have placed state above party. It has been my constant aim to help along my fellowman. There are many who say that my administration has been altruistic. By building hospitals for the unfortunate insane, by increasing the accommodations of others, by reforms in our prisons, I have constantly had in view the amelioration of the condition of our unfortunates, at the same time striving to restore them to citizenship. Actuated by the same purpose, I appointed a commission several months ago to study the question of cure of inebriates by healthy farm work. I want these utterly miserable people to be restored to the state to be self-supporting, instead of a burden upon the state or upon their relatives."

The political creed of the Governor was thus laid down by him in one of his public speeches during his administration:

"I admire the spirit which makes men loyal to a party. I admire a man who believes in a party and its principles and does all in his power to advance the interests of both the party and the principles. But while you are loyal to your party, you must also be loyal to your state and your nation. And if your party or my party puts forth a candidate who does not represent the highest principles or the highest type of manhood, that candidate should never be allowed to get to the state or national legislature.

"If the candidate of your party does not possess courage and manhood, vote for the candidate of the other party."

An appreciation of the social needs of the farmer, by which life to him becomes more edjovable and broader, was thus expressed by Governor Goldsborough in one of his several speeches to farmers:

"This is an age of evolution. We are constantly being confronted with new things. We see these things and we want them. This is a natural law. You people in the country are not doing enough for yourselves. You should put bath tubs, hot water and steam heat into your houses. Above all things, if you can possibly afford it, you should get an automobile. These things I say with all seriousness. When the day's labor is over and the sun is going down in the west, who can measure the amount of pleasure that the boys and girls would derive in riding to town and spending the evening with a group of friends. Build social centers for yourselves; gather together in the evening and talk over the things which affect farm life; declaim, debate, sing, exchange friendships. It is the development of such farm life as this that the present administration is trying to bring about."

Governor and Mrs. Goldsborough have won the Annapolis heart during their four years' stay in the executive mansion. None were ever more popular than they. By their hospitality and democratic ways they have endeared themselves to all classes in Annapolis. In the "naval set" they are popular, indeed, more popular than their predecessors in the executive, for the Governor belongs to a family identified with the navy. He knows the ways and traditions of the navy.

Mrs. Goldsborough is a "home woman" and a "homemaker." Her greatest consideration is for her husband and children and for her domestic affairs. She excels as a housekeeper and always, and under all circumstances, a most gracious and charming hostess. She is a womanly woman and everything about her is strictly feminine.

New Year's Thoughts.

The old year has gone but where is its fruits? Have you been devoted to the good and true? Our master looks for fruit. Did you offer the fruit of your strength the best of your energy? If we have not, the record of the past chides us and with an admonitory finger it warns us not to let this year also follow in the track of former ones.

He who has wasted youth and the early years of life has surley had enough folly. The time past should suffice to have wrought the will of the flesh. It will be the height of folly to allow this year to be trodden down and wasted in the service of sin. Some of us are in the prime of life, What is the record of the years that have gone? What amount of fruit can the husbandman gather? What an amount of good could have been accomplished! Were the years blanks? or was there a half or full crop?

Have the years passed and the unchanging Christ not your friend? O, wasted years! No wonder the Lord's prophet asked, "How long hault ye between two opinions?" Why hesitate to choose between the slavery of sin and bondage to Satan and the liberty of Christ? If former years have been squandered, not this year be used the same way. Sad, alas, these truths are they fall upon our ears and make nothing more than a passing impression.

Past the turn of life, going down but whither? Let not the year go against your account.

We pause as we enter the new year. We recall the years that sparkled with mercies and were full of pleasures. Did we scatter them to the winds or lay them at the feet of our Master? Was their music like the merry tinkling bells upon which was engraven "holiness to the Lord?"

How shall we answer if this year also is wasted and we plod along regardless of the claims of our Saviour?

Continued indifference makes the heart callous. It may be a year of mercy or of judgment. Now we are related to mercy by and by we will have to deal with justice. When the dresser pleaded for the tree, it was only for this year, thereby implying a limit. Poor unfruitful trees we are! Planted in the vineyard yet not living up to our duties Jesus pleads for us—but He will cease by and by. Doom then will be fixed. We may go beyond the limit of divine endurance. If we will not repent we must perish. If the spade do not benefit us the ax must fall at our roots. There will be a last warning, a last chance. The present is our only chance. From the cradle to the tomb life is a stupendous reality.

Squander youth and your one chance in it is gone. Waste middle life, your one chance in it is gone. Fritter away old age, there's but a single chance in it. The reckless moral leper has no second set of early years.

The last stage of the Pilgrimage will be reached. It is just next to the Jordan of death, and what wilt thou do in the swelling of the Jordan? What if this year should be thy last? The scene will change, the curtain that hides the future from our view will rise and eternity will flash upon us. We will hear the cry "Behold the Bride-groom cometh." Shall we go into the marriage supper? What a day! when the righteous are caught up to this supper. Some are growing old, others are in prime of manhood, many in the vigor of youth, but any of us may hear the sentence "This year thou shalt die." There is in the nature of things a limit to the Divine endurance.

The new year greets thee and urges the to prepare for the issue of eternity.

Awake, O believer, put on thy strength for your complete salvation is nearer than when you believed. Before the end of the year you may be in paradise in all the glory of a blissful eternity. For this you have been laboring. Can you sleep so near your home? With sweet anticipations we look forward to that rest. That will be a better day than your birthday for it will be your coronation day. Friends may say you are dead, but the shout of the angels will be, born to life eternal.

There is much yet to do. The more good we do here the greater will be our capacity for the enjoyment of happiness hereafter. They will bring their rewards. The more then we have of them the greater must be our reward. Do then with your might; what your hands find to do.

There is abundance of work to do, but only a short time in which to do it. May the Master grant you His blessing this year also. We have had great national prosperity, educational interests have increased, public benefactions have been conferred upon charitable and educational institutions. The attention of the church more than ever has been turned to benificince, but it needs the presence of the Divine Spirit to make the work effectual. Let the voices of supplication ascend continually to God, that the spirit may descend with power that the church may be quickened the impenitent converted and folly and sin be averted.

"Ring, bells ring! for the King is here;
Ring, bells ring! for the glad new year,
He mounts his throne with a smiling face
His scepter lifts with majestic grace,
Ring for the joy his advent brings;
Ring for the happy song he sings;
Ring for the promises sweet and true
With which he gladdens our hearts anew.
The new born year's a happy fellow,
His voice is sweet, and low, and mellow;
With the Christmas holly his head is crowned,
With the Christmas blessings we'll wrap him round.
Then ring, bells, ring! for the joyous day,
The past lies silent, the present is gay;
Ring out your merriest, cheer after cheer,
To welcome the birth of the happy new year.

May yours, dear reader, be a happy and prosperous New Year, of yours ever.

PARADISE

What is understood to be the latest move of the suffragetts is the "Leap Year" bill to be introduced in the present session of the legislature. Said bill acknowledges the ancient custom of "Maids popping the question," and any unmarried man more than thirty years old, who is not already engaged when said proposal is made, must either accept or confiscate a portion of his property for the support of the maid during her single life. As this bill will be effective from date of passage, it may work wonders during the present year among those who have found it lonely under the present "watching and waiting" It is rumored that at least one member of our local delegation will favor this bill. We advise all prospectives to have contract "signed, sealed and delivered" promptly.

Mrs. W. W. Groves spent part of last week with her father near Terra Alta.

W. H. Lohr and M. Calhoun traded horses last Saturday, and we understand that Will was not able to get to church Saturday evening, "Actions speak louder than words."

Gus Groves has perfected plans for an engine run by compressed air to propel his sleigh when old Prince is too tired to attend church at Steiding. If successful, a similar one will be installed in his scow running from Deep Creek bridge to Smith's crossing.

Chauncy Glass lost a valuable horse last week. Death caused by that dreaded disease typecuranimuncy.

T. E. Meese and family spent Sunday at John Smith's.

GERMANY YIELDS TO UNITED STATES

Pledges Humanity at Sea and Will Pay Lusitania Indemnity

ENDS SUBMARINE REPRISALS

Form of Settlement Negotiated With Lansing Is Satisfactory—All Submarine Captains in Mediterranean to Obey International Law.

Washington.—The German Government, in a memorandum presented to the State Department by Count Johann von Bernstorff, German Ambassador, announced it had yielded to every principle of submarine warfare contended for by the United States, and was conforming to those principles not only about the British Isles, where reprisals have been ordered stopped, but in the Mediterranean as well.

Two communications came from Berlin, one containing a proposal to pay an indemnity for the Americans lost in the Lusitania disaster, which may bring negotiations on that subject to a conclusion, and the other conveying assurances that German submarine commanders operating in the Mediterranean would not torpedo non-combatant ships of any character without warning them and according actual safety to their passengers and crews.

A final agreement over the previously unsettled points of difference in the Lusitania case hinges only on language mutually satisfactory.

GERMANY PLEDGES SAFETY OF LIVES

Secretary Lansing issued this statement:

"The German Ambassador left at the Department of State, under instructions from his government, the following communication:

"'1. German submarines in the Mediterranean had, from the beginning, orders to conduct cruiser warfare against enemy merchant vessels only in accordance with general principles of international law and, in particular, measures of reprisal as applied in the war zone around the British Isles were to be excluded.

"'2. German submarines are therefore permitted to destroy enemy merchant vessels in the Mediterranean—i. e., passenger as well as freight ships as far as they do not try to escape or offer resistance—only after passengers and crews have been accorded safety.

"'3. All cases of destruction of enemy merchant ships in the Mediterranean in which German submarines are concerned are made the subject of official investigation and, besides, submitted to regular prize court proceedings. In so far as American interests are concerned, the German government will communicate the result to the American government. Thus also in the Persia case if the circumstances should call for it.

"'4. If commanders of German submarines should not have obeyed the orders given to them they will be punished; furthermore, the German government will make reparation for damage caused by death of or injuries to American citizens.'"

WORLD'S NEWS IN CONDENSED FORM

WASHINGTON.—In full confidence that the submarine controversy with the central powers wil be settled very soon, Secretary Lansing is preparing to send a note to the British Foreign Office demanding that the Allies change their "hold-up" methods.

SOUTHINGTON, Conn.—The president and directors of the Southington National Bank issued a statement admitting that Fedral bank examiners had found a shortage of $87,500 in the accounts of Louis K. Curtiss, cashier of the bank for 20 years, who died of an overdose of poison, taken while the examination was in progress.

PARIS.—The Matin publishes a dispatch from Madrid which states that owing to the Kaiser's illness the rulers of all the German States have been called to Berlin. There is great anxiety, the dispatch says, about what may happen if the Crown Prince assumes the governing power.

WASHINGTON.—President Wilson was urged to appoint Senator O'Gorman to the Supreme Court vacancy, created by the death of Justice Lamar. The suggestion came from Senator Martine of New Jersey.

THE HAGUE.—A committee was formed to receive the Ford party.

ALBANY, N. Y.—Convinced that John B. Riley, Superintendent of Prisons, had deliberately set out to hamper the administration of Dr. George W. Kirchwey, the new warden of Sing Sing prison, Governor Whitman demanded his resignation.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind.—Direct authority came from the White House to place the President's name on the ballot to be voted at Indiana's May primary election in March.

NEW YORK.—The U. S. Steel Corporation decided to increase the wages of virtually all of its unskilled employes about 10 per cent.

(Patents granted or applied for on the above.)

BESIDES THESE EXCLUSIVE FEATURES, THE "FOUR-NINETY" HAS

(1) Steamline front; (2) Crown fenders; (3) Cellular radiator; (4) Body with flush sides and concealed hinges; (5) Three-speed transmission; (6) Three-quarter floating axle; (7) The world-famous Zenith carburetor.

MRS. LELIA J. MAIN IS PLEASED WITH RESULT FROM NEW PREPARATION

Maryland Ave. Lady Lauds Tanlac; Now Is Much Improved, She Says.

Mrs. Lelia J. Maine, a well known lady of 919 Maryland Avenue, Hagerstown, is the latest to endorse the Master Medicine, Tanlac, which has taken Hagerstown by storm. She says:

"For 9 years I have suffered from stomach trouble which defied all my efforts to obtain relief. Nothing I could eat seemed to agree with me and all food caused terrible gas and belching of hot water. When night came I'd roll and toss for hours before falling asleep and would feel tired and worn out in the morning.

"My head was often dry and stuffed up which caused me no end of annoyance and embarrassment. I finally became so sick and nervous that I couldn't do my housework. And then, one happy day, I saw where Tanlac was mentioned in the paper as doing so much good.

"I purchrsed a bottle and began using it. I have only taken the one bottle, but I am feeling so much better that I can now attend to my household duties and enjoy them. My digestion and appetite are both improved and I can sleep like a babe at night. I hope others will try Tanlac—I'm sure it will help them."

Tanlac, the premier preparation which has electrified the country by its marvelous powers as a restorative, combatant and tonic, is being introduced in Oakland by Gonder's Pharmacy, Westernport at Pauls, Lonaconing at Campbell & Sons, Frostburg at Shupes Pharmacy and Cumberland at Lichensteins Pharmacy at one $1.00 per bottle. MOB BURNS AND SACKS OHIO CITY

Troops Rush to Quell Raging Strikers at East Youngstown

DAMAGE PUT AT $1,500,000

After Score Are Shot and Many Houses Are Burning, Band Sets Out for Further Violence—Employed in Sheet & Tube Works.

East Youngstown, Ohio.—More than 2,000 soldiers are patrolling the streets of this devastated city. After the strike riots, during which the business section was reduced to ruins and hundreds of houses destroyed by flames, making as many families homeless, quiet and order again prevails. The toll of the mob violence will exceed $1,500,000 with but slight hope of retrieving the loss by insurance. With the arrival of the soldiers looting came to an end. A house to house search revealed thousands of dollars worth of plunder.

Rioters stole 500 pounds of dynamite and dynamited several houses. The bridge from East Youngstown to Struthers was burned to prevent rioters from entering the town.

Three of the dead men were killed in saloon fights and the fourth died of wounds inflicted earlier in the evening, when the mob shot promiscuously into the crowd.

Many of the leaders of the crowd were drink-crazed. Saloons were smashed and looted.

On request of Sheriff J. C. Umstead, who declared that the situation was beyond his control, Governor Willis summoned the 4th, 5th and 8th regiments.

The charge is made that the outbreak was fomented and is led by persons interested in closing war munitions plants. All of the rioters are foreign born, most of them Austrians.

The strikers have been demanding an increase from 19½ to 25 cents an hour. The announcement of four big concerns that they would grant an increase to 22 cents failed to bring peace.

N. H. JURORS ACQUIT SIX.

New Trials for Rockefeller, Brooker, Ledyard, Pratt and Robbins.

New York.—After fifty-one hours of acrimonious deliberation the jury that heard the evidence against the nine former and two present directors of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad—who have been on trial since October 13 for alleged violation of the Sherman law—broke its deadlock by acquitting:

James S. Hemingway,
Robert W. Taft,
A. Heaton Robertson,
Frederick F. Brewster,
D. Newton Barney and
Henry K. McHarg.

In the case of the following, after the jury admitted an irreconcilable difference of opinion, a disagreement was entered:

William Rockefeller,
Lewis Cass Ledyard,
Charles F. Brooker,
Charles M. Pratt, and Edward D. Robbins.

Immediately after the findings had been reported to Judge Hunt it was announced by R. L. Batts, chief of the prosecuting staff, that those on whom the jury disagreed will be put on trial again.

DU PONT PLANT BLOWS UP.

Accident Occurs at Carney's Point, N. J.—42 Men Missing.

Philadelphia.—Belchers plant of the du Pont powder works at Carney's Point, N. J., exploded. Forty-two men employed in the plant are missing. The flash of the explosion was seen in this city.

The shifts of workingmen were changing at the plant when there was a flash that shot into the air a hundred feet. Employes of the plant who reached Wilmington about an hour after the explosion said that the explosion had occurred in the tower of plant No. 3, an elevator-like structure in which the powder is blended.

STEAMER EASTLAND SOLD.

Chicago Excursion Death Ship Brings $46,000 Under Order of Court.

Chicago.—The sale of the steamer Eastland for $46,000 to Captain Edward A. Evers, of the Illinois Naval Reserve, was confirmed by Federal Judge Landis.

Counsel for 115 claimants against the hull, on behalf of the estate of the victims of the overturning of the excursion ship in the Chicago River last July, opposed the sale, asserting the vessel was worth at least $125,000.

RELIEF CLOTH FOR BELGIUM.

Commission to Send $150,000 Worth to Shivering War Refugees.

New York.—The commission for relief in Belgium announced that it had contracted for $150,000 worth of cloth to be rushed to Belgium on a steamer sailing this week. The destitute men, women and children in Belgium and northern France are reported suffering from lack of proper clothing and underwear.

The cloth will be used in making clothing and underwear.

News Is Stranger Than Fiction

By MOSS.

SUPPOSE advertising of all kinds the world over were wiped out for a month—utterly obliterated. Yes, it would ruin business. But it would do more—it would make this old world positively STUPID.

Why?

Because ADVERTISING IS NEWS, and we must keep pace with the news or grow stale.

Newspaper advertising—THE BEST ON EARTH—is displayed news, paid for with a purpose.

The latest news in newspaper advertising, a special sale of furs, a big reduction in suits, a saving in groceries, furniture at annual sale prices or five bars of soap for the price of three—all this latest news is as important to every housewife and the husband who pays the bills as the last word from Mexico or an account of the newest municipal or society scandal.

Advertising is POSITIVELY and ABSOLUTELY news.

Successful advertisers make their ads. as NEWSY as possible. Read the ads. in this paper as NEWS. Keep up with them. Truth is stranger than fiction. So is news.

McGRAW ACCUSED IN BANK FAILURE

Indicted By Grand Jury On Three Separate Counts.

At Grafton, W. Va., on last Friday after a four-day probe of the Grafton Bank case the grand jury made its report. Two of the leading officials of the bank were indicted.

The prosecuting attorney was assisted in the investigation by ex-Congressman S. B. Avis, who was sent by the State legal department.

Col. John T. McGraw, Democratic National Committeemrn and one of the organizers and a stockholder of the bank, was indicted on a felony charge of three counts. It is charged that he aided Charles R. Durbin, the president, to commit felonies. Mr. Durbin was indicted on three separate charges of embezzlement on 35 counts.

Immediately after the jurv had read its report Colonel McGraw appeared in court and entered a plea of not guilty. The charges were not read to him, as he stated that he had read the idictments personanlly and was familiar with the charges. He filed bond of $5,000 for his appearance in court for a hearing on January 17.

The Grafton Bank suspended payment a year ago. The management announced that the bank was overloaned but said it was solvent. Col. McGraw owned a majority of the stock and he, his associates and various connections were named as the heaviest borrowers from the bank.

After the suspension Colonel McGraw stated that the bank was entirely solvent and would reopen and reorganize in a few weeks. When it failed to do so, C. D. Hiatt was appointed receiver and is still engaged in settling up the bank's affairs.

The bank had deposits of $300,000, mostly small accounts, a number of which were paid personally by Col. McGraw. His own liabilities to the bank have not been met as yet, however, although it is stated that he has about closed a deal which will enable him to take over the bank and pay all the debts himself.

Charles R. Durbin, the former president, is brother-in law of Col. McGraw and also was heavily involved, it is alleged. He has entered voluntary bankruptcy and his schedule shows liabilities of $250,000.

Several other men also have been driven into bankruptcy as a result of the bank failure, it is said. Indictments were returned against McGraw and Durbin at the last term of the grand jury, but McGraw's indictment was quashed as were several of the counts against Durbin. A few of the old charges, however, are still in force against him, besides the charges presented Friday.

MRS. JAMES D. HAMILL, Sec'ty.

Dr. R. H. Riley, the state health officer for Garrett and Allegany counties, was in Oakland professionally last Friday, his visit here being occasioned by the development of a case of diphtheria by Oliver Smouse of Deer Park, a student in the high school. Cultures of each student of the school was taken Dr. Riley, assisted by Dr. Darby, and upon examination of these by the bacteriologist in charge of the division only one showed any evidence of the disease which was at once reported to the school authorities and the student was detained at her home as a precautionary measure against further spread of the disease.

PROHIBITION MEASURE INTRODUCED TUESDAY BY SENATOR SPEICHER

Saturday at Annapolis Capt. Hayden Fell and Was Painfully Hurt.

STATE HOUSE, ANNAPOLIS, Jan. 19.—With the appointment of the House committies yesterday and the swearing in of the legislative employes for the session, the General Assembly for 1916 got down to business, and by the end of the week the mill will be grinding out new laws, and measures amending old ones, to its usual capacity.

To Senator Speicher, of Garrett county, was given the distinction of introducing the Statewide Prohibition Bill of yesterday's session of the Senate. It was expected that this honor would be conferred upon a member of the majority party, and therefore, the selection of a Republican came as a surprise. Around this bill in both the Senate and House, the bitterest fight of the session is expected to be waged and the prominence attending the Garrett Senator reflects the confidence Rev. Dr. Thomas M. Hare, superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League, which organization is behind the bill, and others, have in Senator Speicher's loyalty to the cause and his ability of pushing the measure through.

The same can be said of Frof. Arthur F. Smith, of the Allegany county delegation into whose hands the Statewide Prohibition Bill was entrusted in the House. He is likewise a Republican, and a gentleman of fine ability as well as of unquestioned loyalty to the "dry" cause.

The Prohibition bill is not a constitutional amendment, but provides for a state-wide referendum on the subject of whether the "sale, manufacture for sale or transportation for sale" of all intoxicating drinks for "beverage purposes" shall be made illegal in the State. This referendum, according to the provisions of the bill must be held at the general election in the State next November, and if the verdict is for prohibition, the law is to go into effect on May 1, 1918.

Under the provisions of the bill, if approved by the voters, it would be unlawful to manufacture for sale, sell, purchase for sale or dispense any form of liquid for beverage purposes that would produce intoxication, except where such liquid is to be used for "medicinal, pharmaceutical, scientific, sacramental or mechanical purposes."

It is provided that if the referendum is against prohibition the laws on the subject of liquor selling now in force would continue just as they are, including the "gallon-a-month" law on the Eastern Shore and the prohibition regulations in the various counties and districts. The prohibitionists would, therefore, have all to gain and nothing to loose by the referendum, but Dr. Hare said he would be entirely willing to have the bill amended so that the referendum would make the whole State wet or dry, on the theory that the citizens would be more apt to vote dry if they saw any danger of their own counties going wet again.

Another bill bearing upon the temperance question and to further enforce the principles of the law which makes Garrett county dry, was introduced by Senator Speicher yesterday in the Senate. It amends the present present law by adding two sections—one forbidding the giving of spirituous or vinous livuors, etc., to minors, and the other prohibiting the shipment of intoxicants into Garrett couuty. This bill was referred to a Select Committee composed of Senators Speicher, Zihlman, of Allegany, and Bomberger, of Washington county, instead of the Temperance Committee, which has been customorv with measures of this character.

At yesterday's session of the Senate also, Senator Speicher introduced a bill to repeal the dog tax law now in force in Garrett county, and which was passed at the session of 1914. This bill was also referred to the Select Committee composed of Senators Speicher, Zihlman and Bombeger.

A contest for the Republican caucus nomination for State Treasurer was narrowly averted yesterday. Some of the Baltimore friends of former Collector of Customs William F. Stone boomed him for the honor, but Minority Floor Leader Metzerott, who arrived later, soon got wind of a probable contest in the caucus, and upon his suggestions and in the interest of harmonv, the "Stone talk" stopped and Robert F. Duer, of Somerset county, was decided upon. Mr. Duer was the Republican candidate State Comptroller in the last election against Hugh McMullen, of Allegany county, the Democratic Comptroller-elect. Mr. McMullen was to have been sworn in today at noon and enter upon his duties at once, but he is detained at his home in Cumberland by illness. Mr. McMullen was sworn in a week ago to fill out the unexpired term of Comptroller Harrington, who had resigned to become Governor.

Delegate John Shartzer, of Garrett county, last Thursday had an order passed in the House to furnish him with a certified copy of the House roll call sheet of February 25th, session of 1914, showing the vote of the House on Senate Bill No. 1, known as "the Speicher Local Option Bill for Garrett county." Mr. Shartzer claimed that the roll-call sheet incorrectly showed him as having voted against the bill, whereas, he had voted for it, and he charged that someone had either altered the roll-call sheet or substituted the correct one for the falsified one, and stated that his purpose in asking for the certified copy of the roll-call sheet was in order that he might present the evidence to the grand jury. Up to today the certified copy had not been turned over to him, nor has Mr. Shartzer made any further demand for it, but he says he will do so.

Captain James A. Hayden, of the Garrett County Delegation, met with a painful, though not very serious accident, Saturday about noon. When descending some stone steps in the State House grounds, on one of the approaches to the capitol, Capt. Hayden slipped and fell, striking the edge of one of the steps on his side on the upper part of the right hip and near the small part of the spinal column. He was picked up by several of the bystanders and Delegate Campbell, who happened to be passing, and they assisted Mr. Hayden to his room at the Hotel Maryland. A physician was summoned and first aid remedies applied, but an examination showed that no bones had been fractured. Captain Hayden will be confined to his room for several days yet. He was able to leave his bed today, but could not attend the session of the House this afternoon. He is still suffering from the shock.

The accident was due to the fact that ice was permitted on the State House steps. The ice was removed immediately after the accident. The assistant superintendent, who has charge of this work is said to be using the incident as a complaint against the economy plan recently adopted, claiming that he is not given sufficient help to keep the house and grounds in proper condition. Some one suggested to Captain Hayden that he file a claim against the State for damages but he will probably not take this suggestion seriously. Captain Hayden being an elderly man, other members of the House, especially those from Western Maryland are giving him as much kindly attention as possible during his disability.

It is expected that the Legislature will liberally recompense Captain Hayden for the expense, loss of time and suffering he has entailed because of the accident.

Speaker Laird late yesterday afternoon announced the House committee assignments. The Garrett county Delegates have places on the following committees:

Fox—Claims and Labor.

Hayden—Printing.

Shartzer—Internal Improvements, Contingent Fund at the Disposal of the Governor, and Hygiene.

Stork News.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Shartzer are rejoicing over the arrival of a baby girl at their home which was born Saturday morning.

The main hall of George Washington College, a state institution located at Chestertown, on the Eastern Shore, was burned to the ground last Saturday night and as a result the school has been closed indefinitely. ALLIES DEFEAT TURKS ON TIGRIS AUSTRIAN CRUISER IS SUNK TURKS TAKE KERMANSHAH

British Column Drawing Near Beleaguered Troops at Kut-el-Amara; Ottomans Caught Between Two Fires; Resumption of Bagdad Drive to Follow Siege.

ALLIES PREPARE TO WITHSTAND DRIVE AT SALONIKI

London.—On each of the three principal theatres in the Near East, widely separated but interdependent, the Turks have suffered serious setbacks. In Mesopotamia the British relief force marching to the aid of the army locked up at Kut-el-Amara has driven the Turks twenty-five miles northward along the Tigris.

In Persia the Russians who recently took the city of Hamadan have captured the town of Kengavar, half way between Hamadan and Kermanshah, which is in the hands of the Turks. Both places lie on the road to Bagdad. This Russian success may seriously affect the Turkish campaign in Mesopotamia.

In the Caucasus the re-enforced Russians have launched a new offensive on a 100 mile front. A five-day battle resulted in a defeat of the Turks in the Kavardag region.

The British force which recently started from Iami-Ali-Gherbi to the relief of the 45,000 British trooops bottled up at Kut-el-Amara, sixty-two miles further up the Tigris, have reached Orah, twenty-five miles from Kut-el-Amara, and is still advancing.

According to an official announcement the British attacked the Turks above Orah and forced them to retreat further. At last accounts the British were still in pursuit.

The morale of the Austrian troops is said by British military observers to have been impaired in the last great Russian offensive, and their losses are said to have been almost 100,000 men, 10,000 of whom were captured.

Rome.—Kermanshah, the so-called capital of Persia, has been occupied by the Turks.

The city is important commercially, famous for its rugs and carpets and surrounded by a fertile wheat country.

Unofficial dispatches from Berlin announcing the Turkish move said the Ottoman forces were warmly welcomed by the population.

A naval encounter is reported in the Adriatic Sea and an Austrian cruiser of the Novara type has been sunk by the French submarine Foucault, operating with the Italian fleet.

This is the first time recently that any of the warships of the Allies have been reported in those waters.

Austria has four scout cruisers of the Novara type, the others being the Helgoland, Saida and Admiral Spaun. They have a displacement of 3,384 tons and carry in their armament two 18-inch torpedo tubes and nine 3.9-inch guns.

With the flag of the Dual Monarchy flying over Cettinje the Austro-Hungarians are moving rapidly southward toward the fortified port of Antivari, driving before them by force of numbers the soldiers of King Nicholas.

Montenegro is now encompassed on all sides, except in the south, by the invaders, and across the southern border in Albania, should they be driven there, they will have to fight the Albanian tribesmen.

GREEK BRIDGES BLOWN UP.

London.—In connection with the advance toward Saloniki of the army of the Central Powers, estimated at 500,000 men, the troops of the Entente allies clashed with Greek forces, when the French and British blew up the important railroad bridge over the Struma River at Demir-Hissar.

The officer commanding the Greek guard ordered his men to resist the destruction of the viaduct, and called for reinforcements. Before aid arrived the bridge was destroyed and the troops of the Allies withdrew, avoiding further difficulty.

The Demir-Hissar bridge spanned the Struma fifty miles northeast of Saloniki, just south of the Bulgarian frontier, and was regarded as being of the utmost importance to a force moving from Bulgaria against the Allies at Saloniki.

The bombardment of the British line in the Doiran zone continues, indicating preparation for an infantry attack on a big scale.

It is now certain, say dispatches from Saloniki and other points, that the drive against Saloniki will be made by an army comprising Germans, Austrians, Bulgarians and Turks, all doubt regarding the participation of the Moslems having been removed by the developments of the last twenty-four hours.

PITH OF THE WAR NEWS

In addition to blowing up the railroad bridges at Demir-Hissar and Kilindir, in the northern Greece, the Entente forces also destroyed three small bridges between Kilindir and Dorian.

The Russians renewed their heavy offensive in east Galicia and on the Bessarabian frontier with the bloodiest fighting of many months but gained no ground, Berlin declared.

King Nicholas of Montenegro, with his valiant but small army almost wholly surrounded, officially denied rumors of a truce with the Austrian invaders.

Kaiser Wilhelm has congratulated the Turkish Sultan on the victory over the Allies at the Dardanelles.

In the Austro-Italian theatre the Italians are keeping up their offensive and have come to grips with the Austrians at several places.

Despite the complete evacuation of Gallipoli Peninsula by the Allies, naval attacks against the Turkish positions continue, assisted by aeroplane raids on both sides.

In response to an inquiry, Dr. von Bethmann-Hollweg, the Imperial Chancellor, stated that the Kaiser takes walks in the palace gardens.

Another decisive stage in the Balkan situation has been reached. Montenegro now follows Serbia in being, virtually absorbed by the invading forces. Austria and Montenegro have come to an armistice.

Russian troops stormed and occoupied Sadagora, the key to Czernowitz, and now menace the latter city which is the capital of Bukowina.

Despite precautions taken by the British Admiralty, German submarines are still operating in British waters off the coast of Ireland.

Greece protested against the occupation of the island of Corfu.

GERMANY TO AVENGE BARALONG SHOOTING

Berlin, (by Wireless to Sayville, N. Y.).—The German Government has transmitted to Great Britain through the American Embassy a note which declares that as a result of Great Britain not fulfilling Germany's demand for an explanation of the circumstances surrounding the sinking of a German submarine by British patrol beat Baralong, Germany will adopt suitable measures of reprisal.

AUSTRIA COMMANDS ADRIATIC.

Rome.—The reduction of Montenegro will enable Austria not only to command the Adriatic but also theaten the flank of any any advance from Saloniki and prevent any effective move by the Entente forces through Albania.

Cettinje, capital of Montenegro, was evacuated by all government officials, who removed the archives to an unknown place.

Mount Lovcen fell after five days of uninterrupted bombardment by the Austrian squadron in Cattaro harbor, the harbor forts and lighter Austrian artillery, brought up to close range.

Cettinje stands on an elevation 2,000 feet above the sea, completely dominated by Mount Lovcen, which is nearly 1,000 feet higher. In their retirement the Montenegrins were unable to destroy or remove their heaviest guns, which presumably are already being trained on Cettinje.

For Italy the new Austrian success has a most serious aspect. The long, narrow Italian peninsula is peculiarly vulnerable to an attack from the sea. Any really great Austrian naval base in the magnificent hrbor of Cattaro would have been impossible without Lovcen, but under the new circumstances Austrian possession of Cattaro is almost as great a menace to Italy as the German conquest of Calais would have been to Great Britain.

The great Russian drive on the Bessarabian front has been renewed and the Muscovites made six attacks on the Austrian positions with big forces of men.

The campaign of the Russians to reach the Balkans recently was halted by a drop in temperature to 20 degrees below zero on the battle line.

DENIES GERMANS LACK MILK.

"Daily Mail" Says Cattle Census Shows Cry Is Fraudulent.

London.—The Daily Mail publishes a denial of the assertion that German babies are without milk, citing a recent German census of milch cows, which shows, it says, that if the output were used for babies, instead of for conversion into nitroglycerine, there would be no lack now.

It quotes the Koelnische Zeitung and the Volkzeitung to the effect that milch cows are being slaughtered.

OPEN ATTACHE'S MAIL.

Private Letters Reach London Embassy After Being Read by Censor.

London.—Since the censorship on incoming American mails was inaugurated, personal letters have arrived at the American Embassy and Consulate, marked "Opened by the Censor." A collection of these letters is being made as evidence for a possible protest against this extension of the censorship.

No attempt has been made to interfere with embassy official mail.

CONSERVATION IN MARYLAND

WHY IT PAYS TO PRONECT BIRDS.

This is the third of a series of eight articles on the need of conservation in Maryland, puolished under the auspices of the Maryland Wild Life Protective Association at this time with a view of having some of the defects remedied by the passage of adequate conservation laws at the present session of the State Legislature.

In Washington there is a mausoleum wherein lie unknown to nearly every passer-by 130,000 bodies or parts of them. Nothing in the exterior of this bright and cleanly structure at 1358 B street S. W. goes to suggest the character of its interesting and as we shall come to see, immensely important interior. Entering its portals one finds himself not in a morgue or museum but in the corridors of a modern busy office building, and he must know his business if, while reading on door panels the names of departments and officials, he is to discover the structure's great secret. Not a morgue, did I say, yet it is, for the dead fragments are stomach's of birds, and they do await recognition by those to whom they proved friends, as the evidence they died holding demonstrates beyond peradventure. Here sits a line of trained analysts peering through six and eight-power microscopes into the foot balls before them—separating, classifying, tabulating, reporting. It is the Bureau of Biological Survey in the United States Department of Agriculture, which for 30 years, though most actively for the latter half of that period, has been determining the food habits, the distribution and migration of North American birds, publishing its findings as the basis for intelligent legislation, and reporting from year to year the progress of enactments, protective or destructive.

It is this great Bureau's good fortune and ours to have found the reason for saving wild life which gets a hearing when humanitarian considerations fail. It is demonstrating that birds pay in dollars and cents. We have been thinking of them generally as either pleasant to see and hear, or good to eat. These are but happy accidents. If indeed to enrich our aesthetic nature and stock the larder were their only service they would deserve our full protection. But their real function in nature is to keep in check the hordes of insects, rodents and weeds, to act as scavengers and so to render the earth habitable by us. In truth, Henry W. Henshaw, Chief of the Biological Survey, gives it as his conclusion that without insectivorous birds "it is more than likely—nay, it is almost certain—that within a limited time not only would successful agriculture become impossible, but the destruction of the greater part of vegetation would follow." (Nat. Geog. Mag. 1908, p. 89). Missing the point of their existence, we have allowed ignorance and greed to visit them with stupid and relentless persecution.

To test the effect of birds at work let us take what is regarded popularly as a hard case—that of hawks and owls, against which the hand of man is raised.

Dr. A. K. Fisher has written a monograph of 200 pages giving the detailed analysis of 2690 stomachs of these birds taken at all seasons and from every section. The result is that poultry is found to be practically confined to 6 out of 73 species and sub-species. Of these six, three are so extremely rare in agricultural America as to be negligible. This leaves the Sharp-shinned hawk, Cooper's hawk and great horned owl only to be shot. In 2212 stomachs of other 67, poultry and game birds are found in 3½ per cent., other birds in 11 per cent., contained mice and other noxious mammals, and 27 per cent insects.

Oddly and cruelly enough the two species commonly called Hen and Chicken Hawks (i. e., Red-shouldered and Red-tailed Hawks) prove to be about as innocent as Fido and immensely more useful. Of 206 stomachs of the former, poultry was found in three, fish in three, birds in 12, while the other 188 were filled with mice and other mammals, reptiles, batrachians, insects, spiders, crawfish, earthworms and offal.

Sparrow hawks, like many others, prefer grasshoppers. In 320 stomachs not a trace of poultry was found, though 215 had eaten insects and 89 had captured mice. It is estimated that an ordinary flock of Swainson's hawks consume 1,000,000 grasshoppers a month.

Owls at night are even more effective, for more rodents are abroad then.

In 1247 barn-owl pellets collected in the towers of the Smithsonian Building in Washington, D. C., Dr. Fisher found 3004 skulls of mice, rats, and other small rodents and shrews, with very few remains of birds, and these mostly English sparrows.

Owls are fond of the larger insects, such as grasshoppers, crickets and May beetles. Of 255 screech owl stomachs, 100 held insects, while all the rest held mice, etc., except one, which had taken poultry and 38, other birds, preferably English sparrows. This is representative owl work.

Is it valuable? Remove them and see. Rodents multiply. They are prolific, breeding several times a season and producing litters of from 6 to 10. Ordinary numbers cause serious loss in orchards, nurseries and forests. Under favorable circumstances, they amount to a plague. Eighteen thousand acres of alfalfa worth $250,000 were laid low in two winters (1906-08) in a section of Nevada. Nurserymen near Rochester, N. Y., sustained losses from meadow mice amounting to fully $100,000 during the winter of 1901-02.

The lesson ought to be patent. Shoot the three noxious species and the rare individuals of other species that find their way to the barn yard, but as for the rest they had better be given the spare bedroom than scared away.

Under no circumstances offer a bounty. Pennsylvania did it once and repented in a year and a half, after spending $90,000 in bounties and suffering from resultant rodent plague and immediate loss set at $4,000,000. For every dollar saved in poultry she had thrown away $2105.

In Maryland, hawks and owls receive protection nowhere. They may be shot, their nests and eggs destroyed with impunity. County Commissioners can lay bounties on their heads. Off and on this has been done, but when Frederick repealed such a provision in 1914, Allegany, Montgomery and Prince George's were apparently left alone in setting a price on hawks, and Allegany adds hoot owls. In the case of the former they are just 30 years behind the times, and while the great horned owl (i. e., hoot owl) does enough damage to deserve death perhaps despite the great execution he effects among rodents, there is no excuse for a bounty, since the inevitable result always is that large numbers of innocents also fall by mistake. Allegany, which deserves the greatest credid for prohibiting the slaughter of doves, should go one step further in clearing the record, and Montgomery and Prince George's follow suit.

Prospering in South DaKota.

There was quite a shipment of livestock from the yards in this city Saturday. Rathbun & Beachy shipped three cars of cattle to South St. Paul. One load they bought from H. O. Wickre, thirty head, for which they paid him $1,732.20 in the yard.

Rathbun & Beachy were offered $1.90 per bushel Tuesday for the 5,000-bushel flax crop they just completed threshing on their ranch on the reservation. They are holding it for $2.50 per bushel, and they will get it, too, as it is a fine, large, plump bright seed and tests 99 per cent. It is undoubtedly the finest and cleanest flax this country has ever produced and will be in great demand at seeding time next spring.—Reporter and Farmer, Webster, S. D.

The Mr. Beachy mentioned above is Eph A. Beachy, formerly of Grantsville, who went west to grow up with the country some years ago and appears to be growing rich through his industry and hustling ability. He is a son of the late Aaron Beachy and has a number of brothers still living at Grantsville and vicinity.—Republican, Meyersdale, Pa.

Sunshine In Your Home.

Beautify and Brighten Your Home AT SMALL COST,

By Installing Hollow Wire Gasoline Lighting System and Lamps.

The most successful and safest illuminating device in the world. Gasoline produces the most powerful light next to sunshine—and has no injurious effect on the eyes. Our modern systems are entirely safe and efficient, and more economical to maintain than either gas or electricity. Buy one of the systems for your home or store, and you will find that you have secured not only an economical light, but a more efficient one than is afforded by any other type of lighting system. These lamps are great labor savers, as there are no wicks to clean, no dirt nor objectionable odor; no trouble to light or operate, no danger of explosions. We guarantee them to be just as represented and perfectly satisfactory. I represent three of the best companies who make these systems, all of which guarantee their system and back up their guarantee. These system are approved by all fire underwriters. I can also furnish systems suitable for halls, churches, hotels, street lamps, etc.

The following table shows the cost of maintaining 100 candle power of various kinds of light for 3 hours per night for one month, or 90 hours:

Electric (size 16 candle power)	$4.48
Gas (with mantle)	.64½
Gas (open burner)	6.37
Kerosene Lamps	1.61
Tallow Candle (100)	15.60
Single Candle	.15½
Gasoline Improved Lamps	.25

Below are the names and addresses of some of my many customers who have been using these systems, and who will be glad to recommend them and answer any enquiries:

WALTER'S Oscillating Sleds

IF you want a sled you should buy a good hand made oscillating white oak bob sled, made of the best white oak wood that is possible to get, and will outlast any factory sled on the market.

I have been making sleds for a number of years, also repairing all kinds and certainly ought to know where a sled ought to be made stronger and better than a factory that perhaps never repaired a sled in their existence.

My stock is larger and better than ever before. If you need a sled come and see mine before you purchase, then if we don't deal it will be because quality won't have anything to do with it.

Prices very reasonable. Remember the name of the sled.

SUBMARINE IS BLOWN UP---4 DIE

Mysterious Explosion on the E-2 in Brooklyn Navy Yard

EDISON'S BATTERY ON BOARD

Accident That Traps Many Below Deck Occurs in Room Where Edison Battery Was Being Discharged—Fail to Reach Imprisoned.

Brooklyn.—An explosion which naval officers so far are unable to explain wrecked the interior of the U. S. submarine E-2 while she was being repaired in Dry Dock No. 2 in the New York Navy Yard, killing one enlisted man and three yard workmen and injuring at least ten others so severely that some of them are expected to die.

THE DEAD.

LONGAN, JOSEPH, plumber, No. 417 Forty-seventh street, Brooklyn.

PECK, J. H., plumber, No. 291 Ainslee Place, Brooklyn.

SCHULTZ, JOHN, yard workman.

SEABERT, A. B., third class electrician, No. 5689 East Forty-ninth street, Cleveland, O.

The E-2 was the only submarine in the navy equipped with Edison batteries, for which the chief merit claimed is that they do not give off chlorine gas. Also the E-2 had no gasolene aboard, as her motion power is generated by a Diesel oil burning engine. There was no explosive powder aboard.

The gas in the hull of the underwater boat for many minutes defied all attempts at rescuing those known to be inside. It was not until electric blowers had been rushed from the navy yard's shops and set to work clearing the air in the wrecked interior of the E-2 that rescuers could crawl through the little hatchway. Even then the descent could be made only by using a diver's helmet. It was more than three hours before the last body had been removed.

No one could be found who would say definitely what the actual damage to the boat amounts to, but from a description of the havoc wrought in the intricate machinery which fills the hull it is not thought the boat can be put back into commission for less than $75,000 to $100,000. It will be many months before the E-2 can take her place in the submarine flotilla.

EX-DICTATOR HUERTA DIES.

Onetime President of Mexico Passes Away in El Paso.

El Paso, Tex.—General Victoriano Huerta, ex-provisional President of Mexico, died at his home here from intestinal trouble, after four operations. He was 61 years old. General Huerta received the last rites of the Church from the Rev. Father Carlos M. Mayer, after saying, "I am a very weak man." With him at the time of his death were his wife and other members of his family.

General Huerta died a prisoner of the United States. He was to have been tried on Jan. 10, for alleged violation of neutrality in conspiring to foment in the Unite' States an armed rebellion in a foreign country. Owing to his illness, the trial was postponed; General Huerta remained nominally under $30,000 bail.

On March 3, 1915, General Huerta left Spain ostensibly for Buenos Ayres. He disembarked at Algeciras, Morocco, and early in April boarded a steamer for New York. June 27 he was arrested at Newman, N. M., on a charge of conspiring to incite a revolution against a friendly country. He was released on bond, but was rearrested by Secret Service men at El Paso on July 3, when apparently planning to cross the border.

Huerta remained in jail until December 28, when he was permitted to be removed to his home in El Paso on account of the serious nature of his illness.

Victoriano Huerta was a full blooded Indian. He was born in Colotlan, State of Jalisco, on December 23, 1854. Colotlan was an Indian village, and Huerta's parents were peons of the lowest class.

KANSAS HEALTH O. K.

Lowest Death Rate Ascribed to Its "Dry" Rule.

Topeka, Kan.—"Kansas, with a rate of 9.8 in each 1,000 population, has the lowest death rate of any State in the Union, because the people do not drink liquor, because they have money enough to live right and because they have the intelligence to read of the conditions that make for short lives and know how to dodge them."

That is the statement of W. J. V. Deacon of Kansas Statistics Bureau,

ZIHLMAN TO FATHER NEW BALLOT MEASURE

Uniform Ballot Law Eliminating the Senseless "Declaration" Clause Now Being Prepared.

A uniform ballot law for the entire State and the abandonment of the requirement that a new citizen of Maryland must declare his intentions and then reside in the State one year before being allowed to vote will be provided for in two bills by Senator Frederick N. Zihlman, of Allegany county. The Republican Senate floor leader announced today that he would introduce both measures in a few days. He will call upon the independent-thinking men of both parties to support them.

"A distinct burden and inequality is now placed upon the voters of some of the counties by the present system of election laws," said Senator Zihlman, "and this inequality should be ended at once. I now have in preparation a uniform ballot law which will place the voters of the entire State on an equal basis. Another crying evil is the law compelling a declaration of intentions.

"Under the present law," continued the Senator, "a man coming to Maryland to make the state his home must appear before the clerk of the court of the county in which he lives and state his intention of becoming a permanent resident. He must then live in the state one year before his name is entered on the registration books. Hundreds and even thousands of men who settle in Maryland are ignorant of this law and fail to declare their intentions, only to find on some future election day that they are temporarily disfranchised. A citizen of Maryland who plans to leave the state temporarily must declare his attention of not abandoning his local residence. The injustice of these provisions is manifest.

"In some counties gross discrimination is the case because of these laws. Court officials may co-operate with the voters of one party by touring the county and securing declarations of intentions, while the voters of an opposite party are forced to journey to the county seat to make their declarations through lack of knowledge that the clerk was nearby.

"I shall not seek in my bill to have the party emblem restored, but the measure will provide for a general rule as to advance copies of the ballots.

"At this time in the counties of Anne Arundel, Calvert, Charles, Kent, Prince Georges, St. Marys, Somerset, Talbot and Worcester, all persons, including newspapers, are forbidden, under penalty, to advertise or circulate in any way any copy or facsimile of the ballot to be used. Likewise, in these same counties, the ballots must be without party designations.

"Why should this law be on the statute books when in Baltimore city and in other counties it is mandatory upon the Election Supervisors to advertise and otherwise expose advanced copies of the ballot?

"In Anne Arundel and Worchester counties the entire ballot is thrown out and not counted if the voter marks the names of too many candidates in a single group. The other sections of Maryland have realized the gross injustice to the innocent candidates in this, and have so amended their election laws as to permit the remainder of the ballot to be counted.

"The time has arrived when the people of the state are looking for a uniform ballot law, and even the Democratic party realizes that this lack of uniformity does not pay in the long run. The burden is upon the legislators of Maryland to remedy these evil conditions and to remedy them at this present session."

Thirteen Brave Lads of Elkins Quit Sweets.

Thirteen brave boys of Elkins, W. Va., have signed an agreement whereby they undertake during the year to undergo the most rigid tests of will power that ever a lad has undergone. They have agreed to eschew tea, coffee, soda water, ice cream, candy, cakes, pies, pastry of any kind and chewing gum for a whole year.

They will abstain from these things in an experiment to show whether they have a harmful effect on youth.

McGraw Property Sold.

The real estate and personal property of Col. John T. McGraw, located at Deer Park, was sold at Sheriff's sale last Friday and Saturday by former Sheriff Bert C. Scott under an execution issued at the suit of the Second National Bank of Parkersburg, W. Va., which bank had secured a judgment in the court at Parkersburg and had it transferred to this county. The purchaser of the property was Mr. George Hay, of Parkersburg, who represented the judgment conditor. The property brought something over $14,000. The dwelling was erected by Senator Henry G. Davis and was his summer home for many years. The property is in splendid condition and is worth considerable more than it brought at the sale.

DR. FRANCE ENTERS LISTS FOR SENATE

Cecil Countain Announces Candidacy For Republican Nomination.

Dr. Joseph Irwin France, former state senator of Cecil county, has entered the Republican lists for the United States senatorial nomination. Dr. France formally announced his candidacy Monday morning and followed later in the day with a statement explaining the reasons for his entry.

Prominent in this statement is the fact that former Senator William P. Jackson has refused the pleas of Dr. France and other Republicans that he be a candidate and thus possibly eliminate a bitter primary fight.

Though he has been out of public life for several years Dr. France is recognized as one of the most vigorous men of the state. He has demonstrated a keen interest in all public questions and is one of the best posted men in Maryland on national, economic and educational conditions.

His career in the Senate of Maryland is well remembered by people who follow the legislative affairs of the state.

Dr. France made his personal debut in Maryland politics in 1905 when he was nominated for the state Senate against the late Governor Austin L. Crothers. The campaign was a fierce and memorable one. The late governor, then an ex-senator, was at the very height of his strength, had a powerful political machine and was known as an almost invincible personal adversary and an aggressive fighter. In addition Senator Crothers had in his favor the nominal Democratic majority of Cecil county of from 400 to 600 votes.

Nevertheless, on a platform which promised definite reforms, Dr. France stumped the county and interviewed personally the voters, with the result that he defeated Mr. Crothers, who was powerful enough in his party to secure the nomination and election as governor the following year.

In the State Senate Dr. France was a vigorous supporter of measures looking to a greater publicity for legislative procedure and for economy in the administaation of the business of the state. He made a notable fight for the printing of all bills, for the appointment of employes in open session of the Senate, and against the making of appropriations of lump sums for unspecified objects. He also sought to amend, strengthen and enforce the law against corruption in the lobby, favored the taxation of merely paper corporations and urged a bill designed to improve the educational sysem of the state. Senator France was recognized as a most aggressive advocate of these and many other measures involving the public welfare.

Since 1906 he has been devoting himself almost entirley to business affairs and has not been a candidate for any public office. He has taken an active interest in the various campalgns and has worked steadily in many directions to advance the cause of good government. When important public questions are being discussed he never hesitates to speak out fearlessly. He has always taken a great interest in public education, having been, at Port Deposit, actively engaged in that work and considers that a perfectly adapted efficient system would do as much or more than any other one thing to correct the ills of government.

In 1903 Dr. France married Mrs. Evalyn S. Tome, of Port Deposit, Md., who assisted the late Jacob Tome in founding the Jacob Tome Institute.

Mrs. France is a highly cultivated woman, who not only actively coperated in the great philanthropic work which was started at Port Deposit, but has always taken a prominent part in other important philanthropic and business affairs of the city and state.

THURSDAY, JANUARY 20, 1916

IT is a good thing these days to lose your "grip."

THE Democrats are scouting for an impossible thing—a popular tax.

THERE appears to be too much jelly-fish in the Wilsons administration's cosmos.

THIS time President Wilson has a Congress on his hands, not in his hands, like the former one.

GOVERNOR Harrington is now trying to divide a few offices among very many hungry Democrats.

CONGRESS wants the President to change his Mexican policy. How can you change a thing that doesn't exist?

HOW does it come that we rustled little Haiti and let Mexico go unrestrained in murder, pillage and outrage?

"What, revise the tariff!" exclaim the Democrats in Congress. "Why, didn't we revise it?" You certainly did.

THE Democratic party is quite incomsistent in declaring for the integrity of treaties when its repudation of its own platform is considered.

A MILLION and a quarter dollars is on deposit in school savings banks in the United States. This money is distributed among 217,000 pupils.

THE administration is greatly concerned about the safety of American citizens at sea, but wholly indifferent to the fate of those in Mexico.

SENATOR Newlands, of Nevada, and a Democrat, told the Senate what he thought of his own party, which coincides with the majority opinion of the country.

ACCORDING to Champ Clark this is to be a "Democratic year." And so it is. What the Speaker meant to say, however, was that this would be the "last Democratic year."

THE administration's program for national defense is in such a precarious position that the President is thinking about going to the country to arouse the people on the subject.

THE Sixty-third Congress made a record for a contumacious disregard of provident action is spending $166,000,000 more than any Republican Congress in forty years, and besides gave us an annoying and vexatious extra tax, which it blamed on the war, which had nothing to do with it.

THE Commoner, edited by William Jennings Bryan, in its last issue, sounds this warning note:

"The elections of 1915 ought to serve as a warning to the Democratic party. They indicate that the Progressives have returned to the regular Republican party, and that the Democrats can no longer hope to win by division in the ranks of the opposition. Neither can the Democrats afford to dally with vital issues."

MR. Forgan, the noted financier of Chicago, said in an address last week: "The country is far more in danger of going too fast than going too slow during the coming 12 months. For that reason I am not shouting 'prosperity,' but am convinced that the old principles of sober, careful and conservative business are the ones to be preached to the American people today." In this warning appears the good old doctrine of simple living; and also the profounder idea that all business has a moral basis, and that he who strives to make himself rich without bestowing upon the people a corresponding benefit will hurt himself and the people, too.

THE present administration stands in a very odious light when it is compared with others. Let us take the two Democratic administrations, the last Cleveland regime and the Wilson occupation of the White House and compare them with a middle Republican period. In 1893, under Grover Cleveland, the number of failures in the nation was 15,508, and the excess of liabilities over assets among those who failed was $150,000,000. In 1907, under Republican administration, the number of failures was 10,265 and the excess of liabilities over assets was $95,800,000. In 1914 under President Wilson's administration, the number of failures was 16, 579, and the excess of liabilities over assets was $162,213,407.

THE assertion has frequently been made by the President, and echoed by the Democratic press, that the tariff is the only issue the Republicans will have in this campaign. Undoutedly Mr. Wilson's wish is father to the thought. He would like to have the Republicans forget Democratic extravagance, Democratic inefficiency, broken Democratic pledges, Democratic overthrow of the merit system in the government service, Democratic mismanagement of foreign affairs, Democratic vacillation on every issue and subject before the American people. But it happens that no man or group of men can define the issues of 1916. The people want a free and full discussion of all importaut problems of government, and they particularly want to know why excessive direct taxes have become necessary at a time when the Democrats tell us we are enjoying the greatest prosperity in our history.

SENATOR ZIHLMAN'S BALLOT BILLS

Senator Zihlman, of Allegany, Republican floor leader in the Upper House of the legislature, served notice recently, practically at the beginning of the session, that he will shortly introduce two bills proposing important reforms in the election laws of the State. He proposes, in the first place, to remove the absurd restrictions upon the acquirement of the franchise privilege by new citizens of Maryland who have come hither from other States, and in the second to bring about uniformity in the form, the publication, the marking and the counting of ballots in the several counties.

The need of both changes is manifest to anyone who is familiar with existing laws and conditions. That a new resident of Maryland should have to wait a year, not after establishing himself permanently in the State, but after discovering that he must declare his intention of becoming a resident, in order to take part in the government of the commonwealth to which he has become a party, is but one of the many absurdities of our election and franchise system. The fact that some counties prohibit advance publication of the official ballot and others so circumscribe the publication of such information for the voter that it is practically worthless to him, represents a survival of Know-Nothingism, a throw-back to the era when our voters were practically driven blind folded and in droves, to the polling places, and under the figurative lash—and sometimes the literal fist—of the heeler, voted as they had been told to vote by the interested pillars of machine politics in its worst phase.

Mr. Zihlman's bills should provide an excellent test of the real temper of the majority at Annapolis this winter. Although fathered by the Senate leader of the minority, they will represent a reform which every honest citizen of Maryland sincerely believes should be brought about. If the old order has really changed and our representatives in Annapolis are anxious to revive both the good name and the credit of the State, financially and politically, they could in no wise more conclusively prove it than by passing these bills.—Baltimore Star.

HERE is something for the farmers of Garrett county to think over. These are indisputable, undeniable facts, and prove beyond doubt and contradiction that the Democratic party is not to be trusted with the government of this country.

In the ten months period under the Democratic law and before the outbreak of the war the total imports of meat and dairy products increased $28,000,000 or more than 200 per cent, This particular knock which the Democratic party aimed against American industry fell most severely on our agricultural population, upon which we depend for the largest measure of our prosperity.

During a seven months period under the Underwood law, and before the war broke out in Europe, our imports of woolens amounted to more than $20,000,000 as compared with less than $9,000,000 in a corresponding period under the Republican tariff rates. Here was an increase of $20,000,000 in a seven months' period, an increase of 225 per cent. As a knocker of the American woolen industry and as a booster for the foreigner the Democratic party is entitled to first prize. In an eight months' period the Democratic tariff law brought us an increase of 100 per cent in the imports of unmanufactured wool. In order to satisfy those economic theorists who believe in tariff for revenue only we sent out of this country more than $26,000,000 for increased purchases of wool from Australia, South Africa, Argentina and other countries. Again the American farmer received a particularly hard knock from the Democratic party.

Again the benevolence of the Democracy to foreign producers is seen in the imports of breadstuffs in a ten months' period, which increased from $13,000,000 to $35,000,000, an increase of $22,000,000 or at the rate of $2,200,000 per month. This was an increase of more than 250 per cent. Once more the Democrats found opportunity to bring their hammer down upon the heads of American farmers. Almost every other industry in the United States except perhaps one or two that are confined particularly to states that are Democratic, received similar knocks from Democratic legislation. The American voter will not forget however, that his injuries were wrought deliberately by Democratic statesmen and it was through no effort or intention on their part that their destructive influences were halted.

OAKLAND COLORS LOWERED BY K. O. G.

Cumberland Boys Take Across Cagemen of the Glades in Exciting Contest.

K. O. G., Cumberland, last year's amature basketball champions of Western Maryland, played in old form last evening and defeated the Oakland Collegians by the score of 23 to 20. The game was fast and furious, and marked by considerable rough playing on both sides.

In the first half the K. O. G. only allowed the Oakland players to make one field goal and four fouls, the score ending 17 to 6. In the last half the champs played on the defensive and Oakland was only able to toss two field goals. Boyle tossed the only goals that were made by his team. The goal shooting of Macfarlane in the first half was sensational. Piper and Ward also played well for the K. O. G., while Sanner and Boyle starred for Oakland. Oakland was handicapped by the absence of one of their regular forwards. Brownie Landis, one of the K. O. G. regular guards was not in the lineup on account of illness.

The victory over the Oakland Collegians on their home floor can be counted as a great win for the Cumberland quint as the Oakland team has defeated some of the best teams in Maryland, Pennsylvania and West Virginia this year. They defeated the Hollidaysburg Y. M. C. A. team at Oakland and are the only team from around this section that defeated the Lonaconing team on the latter's floor.

The lineup:

K. O. G.		Oakland
Macfarlane	F	Boyle
Spriggs	F	Sanner
Piper	C	Kildow
Nicholson	G	Geissman
Ward	G	Frantz

Goals—Macfarlane, 5; Piper, 2; Boyle, 3. Fouls—Macfarlane, 7 out of 16; Sanner, 8 out of 20. Referee—Boyle. Scorer—Fraley.

KINGWOOD DEFEATED.

The Oakland Collegians played up to usual form here Saturday night, defeating the fast Kingwood All Stars in a game which held the spectators spellbound at all stages. The final score was 42-19 in favor of the locals, who literally played "rings around" the visitors. The work of Mike Boyle for the locals was nothing short of spectecular, he having caged 12 field goals during the game. Considerable fouling was done by both teams.

The lineup:

Oakland 42		Kingwood 19
Sanner	F	S. White
Boyle	F	C. Hanst
Kildow	C	K. Hanst
Geissman	G	Murdock
Frantz	G	Liston

Field Goals—Boyle 12, Sanner 4, Kildow 1, Frantz 1, White 4, C. Hanst 3. Fouls—Sanner 6 out of 15, C. Hanst 3 out of 14, K. Hanst 2 out of 19. Referee, Bremer. Scorer, Fraley.

Announcement of the Candidacy of JOSEPH IRWIN FRANCE for the Republican United States Senatorial Nomination.

TO MY FELLOW REPUBLICANS OF MARYLAND:

In the forthcoming primary you will decide who shall be your candidate for the office of Senator of the United States.

It is no time for indulgence in a wearying waste of irrelevant personalities. It is no time for the subordination of the great problems of government to the clashing rivalries of petty political factions. We are in a critical period of transition. Large issues confront us. Public opinion upon them is fluid and unformed. Everywhere we hear the murmurings of a feverish discontent.

Practical men have begun to visualize a government administered with that efficiency which would make impossible the notorious, palpable, but curable ills of which we have all become so acutely conscious. We are just beginning to catch a vision of the vast possibilities which are wrapped up in the priceless heritage of our great new land and of our carefully ordered, perfectly balanced, constitutional democracy, a governmental system at once so essentially rational as to be indestructible, and so pliable and adaptable as to be fully capable of being shaped to achieve all of the proper and legitimate ends of government under any possible set of conditions.

It is now time for constructive thinking upon those fundamental and far-reaching governmental problems which are of such deep personal concern to every citizen of the state and nation. We must all, as good Republicans and good citizens, resolutely resist the temptation to descend to that superficial, narrow, personal form of discussion which, if persisted in, will sooner or later cause any political organization to become static, stale and reactionary. We must not, we cannot become this; for it is the high destiny of the Republican party to promote and to advance the cause of true progress, good government and humanity.

We pay as a people and as individuals a fearful toll of health, of life, of natural wealth, of personal freedom, of happiness, of national security against disintegrating influences within, and possible enemies without our borders, because of our abject failure to free ourselves from those small enmities and animosities and from those partisan prejudices which not only cloud and clog the currents of our thoughts, but impede all vigorous, effective, patriotic action.

Let us strive to emulate those great minds who conceived, founded and, with sacrifice of self, preserved to us this government. Let us seek to be imbued with and animated by their lofty spirit, in order that we may, in wisdom, direct, adapt and perfect that government to meet all the changing and growing complexities of human needs. Let us as strong men courageously and unselfishly take up anew the weighty responsibilities of our political duties, remembering with reverence those who feared not to live in devotion to and who even dared to die for the perpetuation of those institutions which we enjoy, hold and administer as a sacred trust.

I am thus announcing myself as a candidate for the Republican nomination for the United States Senate and what I consider to be the plane upon which the campaign should be conducted, because I prefer to appeal directly to you, to all of the people, and to ask you to pass upon my candidacy after giving me a full and fair hearing upon the issues in which we are all so profoundly interested.

To this end I propose to make an active personal canvass in every section of the state and in every part of Baltimore city, seeking thus to meet every individual Republican face to face and to put before him the actual issues of this campaign.

When I have had with you a man wise discussion of these matters of great movement to the social and governmental welfare, I shall be quite content to leave in your hands the verdict as to whether the opinions which I entertain and the policies which I advocate represent in any adequate measure your hopes and your desires.

JOSEPH IRWIN FRANCE,
Cecil County.

The Wheeling Intelligence of yesterday tells of a nameless man in Idaho. He has lost all knowledge of his identity or past life. He thinks he knows of a one armed negro character, "Jay Bird," at Oakland, Md., who has been at more weddings, as he puts it, than any man in the United States. "It may be fancy," he says, "and I may only have heard of him, it he is a real person instead of having known him." The officials of American Falls, Idaho, want any information that may lead to his identity.

Va., to which city he had been summoned early in the week to appear before the United States grand jury to testify in a matter in which it is alleged that some unknown party, had forged the local minister's name to a marriage certificate. The fake marriage ceremony according to the testimony of the girl victim, occurred during the month of June and was performed just outside the waiting room at the B. & O. station in Oakland. The man in the case was arrested several weeks ago and is being held in the jail at Huntington, W. Va. Dr. Ely was accompanied to and from Parkersburg by Mr. A. G. Ross, who acted as the deputy clerk of the Court here and produced the records before the grand jury.

Deputy State Health Officer Dr. R. H. Riley Wants Immediate Reports on Infectious Diseases.

To the Editor of The Republican.

DEAR SIR:—As you said that you would publish a little article on the matter of reporting of contagious and infectious diseases I am sending you some copy. It is not only information for the physicians but it will place the householder right in these matters. If this is of sufficient interest to your readers to give it any prominence in your paper I assure I will appreciate it and it will be my most direct method of reaching the greatest number of people. Thanking you for your valuable part in keeping down infectious diseases in Garrett through your paper, I am,

Very sincerely yours,
R. H. RILEY
Deputy State Health Officer.

The following diseases are reportable under the laws of the State of Maryland within twelve hours after ascertaining that such diseases exist. From reports that come to me I have reasons to believe that there are many cases of infectious diseases in Garrett county at this time and that there have been cases recently that have never been reported to the State Health authorities. The correspondents of local papers from time to time mention cases of la grip or influenza, whooping cough, mumps, chicken pox, and other contagious or infectious diseases that have never been reported.

These cases will be investigated later. Occasionally deaths are recorded by these correspondents as being due to some reportable contagious or infectious disease. I want to thank these reporters for the important part they are playing in getting these matters before the people and incidentally into the hands of the health officers. The work of the State Department of Health is to prevent diseases and how can an epidemic be prevented if the health authorities do not know of its presence.

Physicians are not by any means always responsible for this lack of reports and I do not say that they are falling short of their duty in this respect because I do not know of any positive violations. The householder that does not call a physician in the event there are known cases of contagious or infectious diseases in the home must report these diseases to the County Health Officer immediately.

On this point I wish to quote the law on the duties of householders that they may have due warning: "Whenever any householder knows that a person within his family or house is sick of smallpox, diphtheria, membranous croup, scarlet fever, typhoid fever, typhus fever, measles, mumps, whooping cough or any other infectious or contagious disease dangerous to public health, he shall immediately give notice thereof to the board of health of the city, town or county in which he dwells. Any person neglecting or refusing to comply with any of the provisions of this section shall be punished by a fine not exceeding one hundred dollars."

The physician's duty in the matter of reporting is stated as follows: "Whenever any physician knows or has reason to believe that any person whom he is called to visit is infected with smallpox, diphtheria, scarlet fever, typhoid fever, typhus fever, yellow fever, measles, whooping cough or any other disease dangerous to public health, he shall immediately give notice in writing over his own signature to the Board of Health or Health Officer of the city, town, county or district in which such disease exists; and if he refuses or neglects to give such notice, he shall be fined not less than ten dollars nor more than one hundred dollars."

The regulations of the State Department of health which have the effect of law list the following contagious and infectious that are reportable by the physician or by the householder in those homes where there is no physician in attendance:

Acute Dysentery, Anthrax, Asiatic, Cholera, Bubonic Plauge, Cerebo-Spinal Meningitis, Chickenpox, Dungue (Breakbone fever), Diphtheria (Membranous Croup), Erysipelas, German Measles, Glanders (Farcy), Influenza (La Grippe), Leprosy, Malaria, Measles, Mumps, Ophthalmia Neouatorum, Pellaga, Poliomyelitis (Infantile paralysis), Rabies (Hydrophobia), Relapsing Fever, Scarlet Fever (Scarlatina, Scarlet Rash), Septic Sore Throat, Smallpox (Variola, varioloid), Trachoma, Tuberculosis (Consumption), Typhoid Fever, Typhus Fever, Whooping Cough, Yellow Fever.

I advise the careful reading of this list of diseases and if it is found that there has been any of them in your home and not reported that you immediately write Dr. N. I. Broadwater to that effect giving the time of development of the disease, name, and age, and address of each one. This will save much correspondence in the future.

This is the day of preventive medicine and the people of the best communities have reached that point when they will not tolerate any loose methods in dealing with preventable contagious and infectious diseases. It is a pretty good sign to see interest taken in the first case of infectious diseases that shows up in a community. The people realize that one case of infectious disease is a p[illegible]nic and that if due precaution is taken with each individual case as it arises that an epidemic that will close schools and interrupt the usual business activities will hardly occur.

Winter.

The Holiday season interrupted our thoughts on winter. Christmas time have a way of their own of turning our thoughts away from everything else and fixing them upon the festal days. But they are gone though winter stays with us, so we may again resume our thoughts upon this stern evangelist of nature and list to his sermon which he thunders into our ears, and resume where we left off a few weeks since.

"Come thou, says the poet, to life's feast, with dove eyed meekness and bland charity and thou shall find even winter's blast, the teacher of thy well tuned soul and when the last drop of thy cup is drained, an sing with a song of praise—go up to the eternal banquet."

While we, during the inclemency of the season, enjoy convenience and comfort, let us not forget the poor and needy, who want even the commonest necessities of life. Remember those whose miserable hovels and shattered panes cannot screen them from the piercing cold. Think of the shivering creatures whose tattered garments scarcely cover their bodies. Let us think kindly of and help the hungry poor, who, after a hard struggle to determine which they will relinquish, give up their scanty pittance of bread to get some fuel to warm their aching limbs.

Think of the hatless, stockingless, half clad, hungry waifs who wrangle over a lump of coal that is jostled from the passing wagon; of those who cry for hunger, or talk in their sleep as visions of the old home and its abundance come up before them. Help the old and infirm, the sick and diseased, comfort and cheer them by giving a little of your abundance that the blessing of them that are ready to perish may come upon you. It is the council of the Lord that changes the face of the declining year. At his bidding the sun shortens his race and the wintry days appear. Hoar frost and fleecy snow descend and clothe the earth and streams are chained in icy fetters.

The hasty hours of the day faintly smile. Fields and gardens mourn, for the brow of winter is not decked with lucious fruit or blooming flowers The beams of the sun are withdrawn; warmth departs, and nature is drooping and apparently lifeless like the heart of man.

The sun of righteousness returns with soul reviving rays and changes mental winter into spring and the gloom of sorrow into the brightness of joy. We long for the beams of this light to be displayed, that our drooping joys may be restored and that we may be guided to realms of day where the frowns of winter are never seen.

Life too, has its seasons. Fair fleeting days of infancy they are gone like a dream. 'Tis the spring time of life. Youth comes with its buoyant limbs, ardent glance and kindling soul—it is the burning summer time. Manhood, matured with fruit of wisdom, when the fruit of learnings deep pursuit is gathered comes as the autumn follows the prime of summer. But this, too, soon passes away. Then comes the languid eye, the bowed form, the tottering frame, the hoary head, the quivering hand and the o'er cast soul. It is winters sickening withering blast—the season of life, for it is the last.

Let the soul arouse itself from its slumbers to see how soon the glories of this life flee away and the footstep of decay come stealing on them. As we see the rolling tide that is so rapidly bearing our hours away let us employ the present hour to the best advantage and prepare our frail craft for the ocean of eternity, in which the stream of our life, however circuitous it may be, is bound to engolf us--the ocean whose waves roll over the proud monarch of the noblest kingdom and engulfs crown and throne with peasant and pauper, nay all regardless of position, influence, wealth or rank. The beauty of God is seen in the spring, when his tenderness and love flush the fields while nature revives and rejoices in newness of life. Hearts then bound with joy. Summer proclaims his glory and "the sun shoots perfection through the swelling year."

Lurid lightnings and deafening thunder utter His voice. Autumn speaks of the bountiful repast which He spreads for all that lives, but winter, with clouds and storms and rolling tempest proclaims the terror of the fierceness of the wrath of Him who maketh the winds His chariots; rideth on the whirlwind; bidst the world adore and humbles proud nature with His terrible blasts.

JOANNES.

Within the next month or so an organized survey of rural church conditions in Maryland will be made for the distinct purpose of improving the church and country life in the State. Tentative plans for the work have already been formed and Dr. H. J. Patterson, head of the Maryland Agricultural College and Mr. B. H. Darrow, connected with the same institution, are among those most interested.

THE OPEN ROAD

Along Which An Effort Will Be Made to Assist the Wanderer on His Way Up Hill.

BY LEO J. RASCHE.

TWO WEEKS

The year is still very young, Erasmus, but young as it is, one twenty-sixth of it has already gone, and less than five months from today the great party conventions will be over and partly over. Don't seem but a very short time since the last ones were held, does it? Just the same it has been nearly four years. And in the interim you have had many opportunities to do things you haven't done, and opportunities also to do a great many things you have done.

With the weeks slipping away the way they do it don't take long for them to run into months and the months soon multiply themselves into years and the years into decades. When you figure the thing out there is not much time to lose as we meander along on our way up hill. Sometimes the time seems to be passing along very slowly, but when you consider a few years and how fast they have flown the consideration should serve to place a very great value on time. And time, Erasmus, while free as the air has a value greater than anything else we have if properly applied. The greatest extravagance we can be guilty of is waste of time. Knowing how to use time properly is an art and one of the easiest arts of all to learn, as well as one of the most profitable. Time offers much, Erasmus, but you must use your head to recognize the offers, and your head and your hands to grasp the offers when they are recognized. If you consume time talking things that get you nothing and arguing affairs that little concern you, you are apt to be extravagant with your time.

There are people who actually have their time so taken up with a multiplicity of small affairs that they are among the very busiest people you know and yet never get anywhere. Others have their time so occupied with other people's business that their own business goes to blazes, and you know them. Some have so little of their own business to attend to that they seem utterly unable to attend to what little business they have of their own. Still others are worn out working on the regulation of the public morals and worrying away their time trying to keep the old world straight, seeming to forget that the old world got along some way thousands of years before they ever landed, and the probabilities are that it will get along thousands of years after they have left.

The worst wasted of all time, Erasmus, is that time wasted in attending to the other fellow's business while neglecting your own. The other fellow, remember, is endowed with the same mind as you, is just as well qualified by nature to attend to his own affairs as you, and the chances are very great that he will not pay you anything for your time and trouble in attending to his affairs. On the other hand, if you get too zealous in attending to his business he's liable to dim your glim. Use your time and energy on yourself, old fellow, and it will help you on your way up hill.

BITTINGER.

On account of the prevalence of la grippe among our people communion services, which were announceed to be held last Sunday morning, were postponed until next Sunday morning at 10:30.

The sect, vulgarly styled, "Holy Rollers," are again holding a series of meetings in the Bear Hill settlement.

Dr. Carney, of Grantsville, was called to this village last week to administer relief to grip sufferers.

While working in his blacksmith shop one day last week, a small piece of steel flew and lodged in the eye of the smith, Jacob Brenneman. Dr. Carney removed the steel and Mr. Brenneman is recovering and there will not likely be any permanent injury to the eye.

A few days ago Andrew J. Oester slipped and fell, badly straining his knee, and as a result he is confined to his home.

At the regular annual meeting of the Mutual Telephone Co., held in this village last Saturday afternoon, little change was made in the corps of officers, but the members of the company regretted the resignation of their treasurer, Noah Brenneman, who will shortly remove to his new home near Grantsville.

HEAVENLY BODIES

A Letter to the Young People About the Stars.

BY REV. D. A. FRIEND.

My Dear Young Friends:

I just want to talk to you about "Aster." Now aster is the Greek word for star; and the word astronomy means the science of the stars.

And all the stars are known as heavenly bodies, and so the science of astronomy treats of the distance, form, magnitude and motion of the heavenly bodies.

Stars are designated as of different magnitudes or in other words different sizes, so the largest stars are termed stars of the first magnitude, and the next largest of the second magnitude and so on. Our sun is a star of the first magnitude and it has a great many worlds of lesser magnitude revolving around it, and at different distances from it; and the nearest they approach to the sun, or to each other is many millions of miles.

Those stars that revolve in this manner around the sun are called planets, and they all travel eastward, each one in its circle, or orbit, (it it true that they seem to be going westward but that is owing to the rotary motion of the earth) and they travel at the rate of many thousands of miles in an hour. Thus they run in their courses through all the ages of time, and eternity.

I will mention a few of the planets by name and tell you the distance of each from the sun, as we go along; and now we will begin up next to the sun. The first is Mercury, 35 millions of miles from the sun, then Venus 66 millions of miles then earth, 92 millions, and there is where we live at this time.

I suppose some of you never thought before that we live on a star, but such is really the case.

Next in order comes Mars, 139 millions of miles from the sun, and then we come to Jupiter, that wonderful planet which is 479 millions of miles from the sun, and has a diameter of 88,390 miles and is 1200 times larger than our earth and has five large moons to give it light.

Then comes Saturn, one of the most interesting of all the planets. It is 872 million of miles from the sun, and has eight moons and three wondrous white rings which encircle it to give it light and beauty. This planet is so beautiful that some one of the astronomers has suggested that it might be heaven itself.

Now we go way out to Uranus 1,754 millions of miles from the sun with a diameter of 33,024 miles.

And farthest of all the group we reach Neptune, 2,746 millions of miles from the sun, with a diameter of 36,620 miles.

Now these planets can be known from the fixed stars in the fact that they never twinkle. All the other stars are twinkling stars, but the planets never twinkle.

The twinkling stars are all said to be suns in the vast distance, and are supposed to have each a system of worlds revolving about it.

Our sun is more than a million of times as large as our earth and is 500 times as large as all its planets put together.

All these things seem to be great in our estimation, but they are only a beginning of the great universe which God, who alone is great, has formed, and the same God has made each one of us, that we might know Him and love Him, and enjoy Him forever, in that world where our Redeemer, Christ, has gone to prepare a place for us.

Friendsville, Md., January 15, 1916.

Farm Stationery.

Our correspondence with farmers shows a constantly increasing percentage of printed letter-heads and envelopes. The use of such stationery is a cheap and effective way of giving personality and efficiency to correspondence. It is cheap advertising of your farm specialties and insures special attention to your letters and their contents. Letterheads neatly printed to give name, address, perhaps name of farm, a few farm specialties and even a small cut of farm buildings if you choose, can be had at small cost.

Envelopes to match can be added at a little above the cost of plain envelopes. The cost is paid in every letter mailed. The value of special attention given to a single letter may pay the entire cost. If you are a breeder of any class of farm live stock, or grow any special crop, or are selling farm seeds of any kind or variety, the advertising given by a well arranged letter-head will many times pay the cost. Individual stationery is a mark of individuality and progress worth while whether your correspondence is large or small.

Sulphur To Ward Off Grip.

At Fairmont residents are putting sulphur in their shoes to keep away the grip. Older residents recall that 20 years ago when an epidemic of grip swept the country, Dr. George Angel, a celebrated physician, recommended at that time that everybody put sulphur in his shoes as a preventive, the discovery having been made that men employed in the sulphur mines were immune from the disease.

HUTTON

The rain and sleet of Sunday was followed by a terrible blizzard that "didn't slight Hutton," as a young gentleman recently termed it.

Mr. James Broderick, of Oakland, was a business visitor here Tuesday.

Miss Madeline Dent, of Crellin, was the guest of Miss Emma Saltzman Monday of last week.

Owing to the scarcity of home news the writer from time to time will contribute notes of interest on the general happenings of abroad, under the head of the community news as heretofore

Mr. Thos. Hughes was a business visitor at Uniontown, Pa., recently.

Miss Margaret Feeney, of Edgewood, was an Oakland visitor one day last week.

Miss Margaret Connell entertained a number of friends at her home Saturday evening.

In continuation of the subject of my last letter, suppletary to the one previous, the writer, no doubt, has been very uncharitable in his criticism of the European rulers. It is the enormity of wickedness that is being perpetrated day by day in the beautiful country of a once peaceful nation, that calls forth our righteous and just indignation. Sad, indeed, to see men in the prime of life destroyed as mere nothingness in the sight of a cruel and vainglorious ruler, for how often, kind reader, have we not gleaned from the daily news a royal edict of an unmerciful commander: "Gain the victory, irrespective of the loss of life!" Ah! it is here I may venture the old saying, but a very true one:—"The mills of the Gods grind slowly, but exceedingly fine." A day of retribution will come, be it a year hence or many, when the Supreme Ruler of the universe, who hath endowed the monarchs of the earthly kingdom with power, in a measure, to that of his own, will summons the offending before the divine tribunal of justice and demand an exact, an accurate account, of his stewardship, as well as to the safe keeping of the most precious treasurers of his heart. O! what a penalty the divine Judge and vindicator of righteousness will impose on the trangressor, I will leave for the reader to imagine, The dove appears bearing the olive branch of reconciliation whilst a loud shout ascends, "His majesty has won a triumphant victory, an overwhelming success," which terminates this outrageous slaughter, bought at a priceless sacrifice of thousands of poor unfortunate and innocent victims, whose very life current tinges crimson the snowclad battle fields of Europe. Shall not the people of nations rise up in anger and exclaim, "Is it worth the price?" Homes are shattered, ruin and desolation are everywhere; devoted wives are bereft of husbands; mothers separated from sons; sweethearts are parted from loved ones; home-ties are rent asunder, whilst the despairing cries of weeping mourners echo the fatal words "Is it worth the price?" Indeed it requires a strong mind and still stronger heart to take up the broken thread of life, and begin anew. O, sorrowing, tear stained, broken-hearted Europe, writhing anguishly in the blood of your innumerable slain, truly you may ask "Is it worth the price?" Whilst the inevitable answer must be "save the ship!" But first sound the warning cry across the channels:

O! captain at the helm take heed
When Higher Powers supersede—
A strict accountance of your deeds
Will be required before you're free
To persevere in liberty.

Then tow and row gently and safely the broken, weather-beaten vessel out of the abysa of hatred, and the whirlpool of contention, into a peaceful harbor of love and unity, where time and patience worketh wonders. Do you wish to help rescue the perishing ship and her human cargo from the perils of barbarism? Do you, reader, without leaving your beautiful and peaceful homes in this bright and sunny America, eagerly desire to accomplish that which Ford, and still greater crusaders, have utterly failed to achieve? Does not your christian belief hold out a most efficacious means by which you can, and may, if your faith does not waver. Ah! even move mountains if necessary. Won't you throwout the "life line," to the millions of beseeching and beckoning hands that are slowly but surely sinking below the water's edge? And finally, when the historian whose duty it will be to record the sad events of this terrible and atrocious catastrophe, shall he attribute (irrespective of nationality) the conquering monarch with the unfading laurel wreath of valor? Shall he pay him the admiration and homage like to that paid the noble Washington or the illustrious Lincoln, whose very life and ambition was a self sacrifice for the betterment of poor humanity? Shall he credit the "Lord of wars," with those honors? I leave for you to decide.

O! pen of Justice write indelibly on the never-to-be forgotten pages of history that fame and gain can never be obtained where sin, shame and stain have branded the fair name of civilization. In conclusion, dear readers, you have noticed that in this important and vital narrative I have prepared in a serial form of three instalments; the the first, to attract your attention; the second, to win your allegiance, and this the third, and last to enlist your sympathy and cooperation. "Cast your bread upon the waters, and after many days it shall return a hundred fold."

WILSON TO GIVE CARRANZA TIME

Administration Resists Cry in Congress to Invade Mexico

NEED AN ARMY OF 200,000

Determined That the Administration Shall Not Be Stampeded by War Talk and Cries of Vengeance Into Sending an Army to Mexico

Washington.—Gen. Carranza and the de facto Government of Mexico are to be given full opportunity, without intervention from the United States, to run to earth the murderers of American citizens at Santa Ysabel and to demonstrate ability to restore order and protect foreign rights in the southern republic.

That was the outstanding fact here after a meeting of the Cabinet, a conference between President Wilson and Chairman Stone of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, and stirring debates in the Senate Chamber.

Supported by his Cabinet and the Democratic leaders in Congress, the President is declared to be determined that the American Government shall not be stampeded by war talk and cries of vengeance into rushing an army across the Rio Grande to destroy in its infancy the de facto Government which the United States, with the co-operation of Pan-American nations, aided in establishing after the Mexican nation had been torn by revolution for years.

Carranza Promises Aid.

The oral announcement of the decision of the President followed the receipt of a telegram from General Venustiano Carranza, head of he de facto Government, to Eliseo Arredondo, Ambassador designate from the de facto Government to the United States, as follows:

The murderous attack on the passenger train near Chihuahua was made by the only remaining band of outlaws in that region. This band is being actively pursued in order to insure its capture whereupon condign punishment which their crime deserves will be meted out to every guilty participant. The Constitutionalist Government troops have been ordered to establish strong patrols from end to end of the railway line to forefend against similar outrages. You will make this declaration to the press of the United States.

VENUSTIANO CARRANZA.

Senator Works of California offered a resolution for armed intervention.

Senator Fall of New Mexico took up the cudgels and flayed the President's acts since the "war on Vera Cruz."

Senator Lodge was a sarcastic interrupter in the debates, on the side of the war advocates.

Senator Stone pleaded to let the President decide what to do in Mexico.

Army experts figure that it would take an army of 200,000 men at an enormous cost to pacify Mexico.

After riots at El Paso, between Mexicans and United States soldiers and civilians, troops stopped the trouble.

Funerals of C. R. Watson, general manager of the Cusihuiriachic Mining Co. of Chicago and head of the party of 18 Americans massacred and of Richard McHatton, private secretary to Watson, another victim were held at El Paso.

WORLD'S NEWS IN CONDENSED FORM

EL PASO.—Carranza has put a decree of death on Villa and all his "bandits." He promises speedy execution of the slayers of Americans. The First Chief also asks that Americans be patient and give time to avenge the massacre.

OTTAWA.—The first shot in a nationwide fight to make the entire Dominion of Canada "dry" was fired here with the publication of an appeal to the Parliament of Canada to enact a Federal prohibition law.

CHRISTIANIA.—A large part of Bergen, Norway, has been destroyed in biggest fire Norway has ever suffered.

LONDON.—Letters and other documents showing that Captain Franz von Papen advanced thousands of dollars to persons accused or suspected of bomb plots in connection with pro-German activities in the United States are included in the correspondence taken from the recalled military attache at Falmouth.

NEW YORK.—Details for the formation of a $150,000,000 oil merger, headed by the Mexican Petroleum Co., have been virtually completed except for the formal signing of the contracts.

PITTSBURGH.—Lehigh Valley R. R. placed orders for 1,500 automobile cars.

GALVESTON, Texas.—Captain Edward P. Nones and three privates were drowned in the Galveston channel when the boat J. L. 16 was run down and sunk by the tank steamer Charles E. Harwood.

NEW YORK.—Bankers are taking exceptional interest in the news that Great Britain is preparing to make her blockade of German ports effective. The opinion was expressed that an iron hand on traffic into German waters might considerably restrict our commerce with Europe.

CHEVROLET

THE "FOUR-NINETY" is a real automobile. It has a quiet, powerful, VALVE-IN-HEAD Motor. It has looks—it has style—it is beautifully finished and rides like a cradle.

THE "FOUR-NINETY" has the following novel and superior features not found in any other car built:

(1) Shock-absorbing duplex front springs; (2) Self-lubricating cluten collar; (3) Hub construction with triple-size bearings, preventing "wabble" of wheels and wear on tires; (4) Compound spur steering gear attached to body—the simplest and safest ever invented; (5) Unit power plant carrying transmission on open brackets, which gives accessibility to clutch and allows removal of all transmission, if necessary, in twenty minutes. (Patents granted or applied for on the above.)

BESIDES THESE EXCLUSIVE FEATURES, THE "FOUR-NINETY" HAS

(1) Steamline front; (2) Crown fenders; (3) Cellular radiator; (4) Body with flush sides and concealed hinges; (5) Three-speed transmission; (6) Three-quarter floating axle; (7) The world-famous Zenith carburetor.

OTHER THINGS WORTH KNOWING

THE "FOUR-NINETY" does not have a single hinged joint to squeak or a spring shackle to rattle—and you will find only six grease cups on the entire car.

News Is Stranger Than Fiction

By MOSS.

SUPPOSE advertising of all kinds the world over were wiped out for a month—utterly obliterated. Yes, it would ruin business. But it would do more—it would make this old world positively STUPID.

Why?

Because ADVERTISING IS NEWS, and we must keep pace with the news or grow stale.

Newspaper advertising—THE BEST ON EARTH—is displayed news, paid for with a purpose.

The latest news in newspaper advertising, a special sale of furs, a big reduction in suits, a saving in groceries, furniture at annual sale prices or five bars of soap for the price of three—all this latest news is as important to every housewife and the husband who pays the bills as the last word from Mexico or an account of the newest municipal or society scandal.

Advertising is POSITIVELY and ABSOLUTELY news.

Successful advertisers make their ads. as NEWSY as possible. Read the ads. in this paper as NEWS. Keep up with them. Truth is stranger than fiction. So is news.

TWO THINGS NEEDED IN COUNTRY LIFE

State Prize Winner In Maryland Week Essay Contest Urges Education and Organization.

JESSE M. HUFFUNGTON,
Wicomico County.

Education is a most important matter in our country life. Our farmer boys and girls should be trained in country industries. Our boys sho be taught the general principles of farming, farm management, crop and animal production, and the like. This work should be started in the elementary grades, continuing throughout their school days. Our girls should learn household economy and home sanitation. With such training in childhood, any country girl is better fitted for the many problems which confront her in later life.

A consolidated school in each rural community instead of so many small one-teacher schools would meet an urgent need in many communities. Advantages gained by having a consolidated school are more competition, better equipment, and more specialized instruction. Our high schools ought also to be provided with means for giving agricultural courses, particularly, winter short courses for the benefit of the older farmer boys. They should also have classes for training rural teachers, as many of our teachers do not understand the needs and problems of country life. Our normal schools should train teachers especially for country schools. Our Agricultural College ought to be looked up to as the greatest institution in the State devoted to teaching agriculture. Students either intending to be teachers or farmers should be encouraged to attend it. The agricultural short courses held there are of immeasurable value to the agricultural interests.

We need also to promote local organizations in our rural communities. Local improvement associations work effectively for improved roads, better schools, and a more effective local government. Women's clubs are useful in aiding our country mothers to become better home keepers, and secure necessary recreation. Boys' and Girls' Clubs give the boys enthusiasm for farming, and teach them improved methods, while they create in our girls an interest in household economy and give them the social life they need. The local grange has rendered valuable services in promoting improved living conditions, better agricultural methods, the elimination of unnecessary middlemen, economy and honesty in government, and satisfactory educational facilities.

In Maryland, particularly, the Affiliated Agricultural Societies, promoting the Maryland Week Exhibiti have been particularly helpful in affording an opportunity for the State's agricultural resources and a meeting place for our city and country people. The Essay contest for the boys and girls of the public schools, which they supervise, is an inducement to us to study our agricultural problems and help us become more useful men and women. It is a good thing that we have these societies and associations in our State. They are much needed. We should have them in every community in Maryland.

WHERE DO YOUR FOWLS ROOST ON WINTER NIGHTS?

ROY H. WAITE,
Maryland Agricultural Experiment Station.

Do you ever look into your hen house to see how the fowls are spending the night? It will pay you to keep track of how your birds arrange themselves for the night, especially during the cold winter months. This is one phase of poultry culture that seems to be overlooked by most writers.

We hear about colds being caused by all manner of things, but did it ever occur to you that isolated cases of colds might be caused by birds roosting apart in a drafty portion of the house? I have seen hens roost on nests, feed-hoppers, cross braces and even on drinking vessels. What is worse, I have seen many take cold apparently from no other reason than that they were in a very cold and drafty place. The best way to keep them off such places is to provide sloping tops so that the birds cannot obtain a foothold.

It is especially important to look after this situation when you have more than one male in the pen. Have you ever puzzled over the fact that one male bird seemed to stand the cold weather better than the others? It might be interesting for you to watch proceedings about roosting time some cold night. This may be about what happens: The more timid "rooster," gets on the perches early and settles down to enjoy the night's rest. A little later, up jumps the boss "rooster" (there is always a boss), and drives them off. They vainly try to get back a few times and then give it up, finally contenting themselves with m any place they can find. They a somewhat heated up and ready to take a cold and on extremely cold nights are in a fair way to get a frozen comb.

The "boss" sits up among the flock, their animal heat helping to keep him warm and comfortable. Those roosting apart are lucky to get off with simply a frozen comb, they sometimes in addition have their toes frozen.

Are your hens laying winter eggs, or are they "soldiering" on you? Then attend the annual short course in Poultry Keeping at your Agricultural College, January 17-20.

SEC. 2. And be it enacted, That this Act shall take effect from the date of passage.

Betrothal Dinner.

Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Liller, of Keyser, W. Va., Friday evening gave a dinner, attended by a few of their nearest relatives and friends, and at the dinner announcement was made of the engagement of their daughter, Miss Joretha Ambrose Liller, to Rev. H. F. Baughman, pastor of the Lutheran church at Keyser. The date for the wedding has not yet been set. Miss Liller is one of Keyser's most popular young ladies with a large circle of friends who will be much interested in the coming event.

TO LEGISLATE MILLER DISTILLERY OUT OF BUSINESS

Such a Measure Has Been Introduced At Annapolis.

STATE HOUSE, ANNAPOLIS, JAN. 25.—A number of bills for Garrett county will be introduced by the members and Senator from that county.

Senator Speicher has already introduced a bill to prohibit the giving or selling of liquors to minors in Garrett county, and to prevent the shipment of intoxicants into the county which is dry. He has also introduced a bill repealing the dog tax law in Garrett, another bill he will introduce probably this week, is one to incorporate the town of Accident.

Capt. Hayden, of the Garrett Delegation, introduced Monday night, the bill which appropriates $4,000 a year for two years to the School Commissioners of Garrett county for public school purposes. This bill is introduced at every session of the Legislature and is done to equalize the appropriations for schools which discrimates against Garrett county owing to the small colored population there. No difficulty will be experienced in passing the bill.

Delegate Shartzer's bill repealing the law exempting taxation on personal property, household furniture, etc., to the amount of $500 and under, has been introduced. It provides that the County Commissioners of Garrett County shall assess all such personal property of $100 and over. This makes it mandatory, instead of optional, upon the County Commissioners to make this assessment, but it is optional with municipalities, whether to asses household goods of $500 or less, or not, as they choose, and when unnecessary they need not so assess, and when they need the money they can assess. This bill was referred by Speaker Laird to the Committee on Ways and Means, explaining, when Mr. Shartzer asked that it be referred to the Garrett Delegation, that it is necessary for the Ways and Means Committee to examine it and determine whether or not the State's revenues will be affected. If the bill makes no provision for the assessment of the property for State taxes, it is probable it will be amended by the committee; if it does provide for State taxation, then the probability is that the Ways and Means Committee will recommend that the bill be referred to the Garrett Delegation in the House. The fact is, that no provision is made in the bill for assessing personal property for State purposes.

TO INCREASE TERM OF COUNTY COMMISSIONER'S CLERK.

Chairman Fox, of the Garrett Delegation, introduced Monday night a bill to increase the term of the Clerk to the Board of County Commissioners for Garrett county from two to four years. At present the term of the Clerk to the Commissioners is two years, and it is claimed that it is too short a term for so important an office. Besides, all the other counties of the State, without exception, so far as known, elect their Clerk to the County Commissioners for four years. The salary is left the same, $800 a year.

FISH AND GAME BILL.

The Garrett Delegation are in receipt of a petition signed by nearly 250 residents and citizens, asking that a bill be passed making the open season for game to begin not later than October first, and to permit the hunting of rabbits "when snow is on the ground." Under the present law "it is not unlawful to kill game except in the month of November," and hunting rabbits when snow is on the ground is forbidden. The petition also asks that the bill include protection for Mountain Brook Trout, and that a days catch be limited to fifty of the "speckled beauties."

Whether or not to introduce a new game and fish law for Garrett county, or to accept the proposed new Statewide bill has not yet been determined by the Garrett Delagation. As soon as the State Game Warden has the new Statewide bill ready for examination it will be gone over carefully, and such changds asked for as may be deemed necessary to meet the wishes of the sportsmen in Garrett county. It is the concensus of opinion among many legislators that a uniform law for all the counties will bring better results than for each county to have laws and regulations to suit its own purposes and differing in many essentials from those in the other counties. The matter will receive careful consideration, at any rate.

TO PROHIBIT MANUFACTURE OF INTOXICANTS.

At yesterday's session Delegate Shartzer introduced a bill to prohibit the manufacture for sale, of any spirituous liquor or intoxicants of any kind, and the bill was referred to the Committee on Temperance. If the bill passes, it will require the closing down and removal of the "Melky Miller" Distillery, which is situated in Garrett county, where it has been running for years.

Chairman Fox, of the Garrett Delegation, will probably introduce today or tomorrow, a bill authorizing $20,000 and the creation of a commission to build a protecting wall at Kitzmiller, Garrett county, against floods and high water. This bill was introduced two years ago but did not get through the House, as it was late in the session and fell by the wayside along with hundreds of other local and general bills.

STATEWIDE PROHIBITION BILL NEXT WEEK.

Next week the Statewide Prohibition Bill will be brought to the front, a hearing of the "Drys" before a joint meeting of the Senate and House Temperance Committees on Thursday afternoon, February 3. The hearing will take place in the chamber of the House of Delegates at 3 o'clock in the afternoon, unless the Legislature be still in session, in which event the hearing will take place as soon as adjournment occures, and the hearing will be public, the Senators and members of the House being especially invited, Senator Speicher, of Garrett county, will be one of the first speakers. The Garrett Senator introduced the bill in the Senate and he will explain the provisions of the measure to the joint committees. Numerous speakers of note will be present and speak at the hearing, and Dr. Thomas M. Hare, Superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League, will be the principal speaker. Prof. Arthur F. Smith, of the Allegany county Delegation, who introduced the Prohibition Bill in the House, has accepted the invitation to introduce the speakers as they appear before the hearing in their turn, and he will also give a ten minute talk in behalf of the bill. Senator Speicher will also make a speech on the floor favoring the passage of the Prohibition measure when it comes from the Temperance Committee. It is said that the committee will report the bill without recommendation, thus permitting the whole matter to be threshed out in open session.

At a later date the "Wets" will be given a hearing before the Temperance Committees in joint session in the same manner, the date for which will be announced later. It is assumed that each side will be given two hearings, in order to reply to each other's arguments after which the committees will report the bill and the real fight will be on. Senator Speicher will figure conspicuously in the contest and will be in the front for the bill throughout.

STATE HOUSE PERSONALS.

L. A. Rudisill, of Oakland, who was clerk to the minority Senators during the session of 1914, has again been appointed to this position by Senator Speicher, of Garrett county. Mr. Rudisill is an experienced newspaper man and performed his duties in a manner that was eminently satisfactory to the Republican members of the Senate two years ago. He arrived on Monday in Annapolis and entered upon his duties yesterday morning.

Capt. James A. Hayden, of the Garrett Delegation, and nestor of the House, was in his seat during Monday night's session for the first time since he met with the accident by falling on the icy steps at the State House grounds on January 15. He has almost fully recovered from the effects of the fall. He was warmly welcomed by his colleagues and associate members, all of whom expressed their pleasure upon his being able to resume his duties.

Prof. Frank Rathbun, Superintendent of Schools for Garrett county, arrived in Annapolis yesterday and will attend the meeting of the County Superintendents of the State here tomorrow.

TO FORM STATE BOARD OF AGRICULTURE IN MARYLAND

Plans Have Been Formulated Looking to That End.

A plan for a State Board of Agriculture, which shall be the official head of the agricultural interests of Maryland and be in charge of all State agencies having to do with agriculture, including the Maryland Agriculture College, was launched recently at a meeting in Baltimore of representatives of the various bodies organized for the promotion of farming and live-stock growing. A number of other organizations of state-wide importance also were represented.

Under the proposed plan, which is soon to be submitted to the Legislature, the Maryland Agricultural College is to be the head of the State system of agricultural education, demonstration, regulation and development, but it is to be a college modeled on lines broader than those on which the college now operates. It provides for a $1,000,000 plant at the college, the money to be available in lots of $200,000 extending over a series of years. The board of trustees of the college is to compose the State Board of Agriculture.

The special committee which called the meeting submitted the general plan, which was approved by the meeting and referred to a special committee of nine, of which Samuel M. Shoemaker was made chairman. The plan provides in detail:

The State Board of Agriculture shall be the board of trustees of the Maryland State College of Agriculture. The composition of this board to be safeguarded so as to insure stability of the work to be performed.

The State Board of Agriculture to select a chief executive officer, who shall be the executive head of the Maryland State College of Agriculture, the Maryland Experiment Station, the Extension Service and all other work under the control of the board.

The executive officer of the board to organize the work of the State Board of Agriculture and to have power, with the approval of the board, to select all officers, heads of departments, specialists, assistants, etc., to properly carry on the work assigned to the board.

The State Board of Agriculture to enforce all laws and have control of all work pertaining to regulatory, inspection, control and sanitary measures for the protection and fostering of the agricultural interests of the State, including:

(a) The prevention and control of infectious diseases among farm animals which the law now provides shall be conducted by the Live Stock Sanitary Board, State veterinarian, State dairy inspection, State biological laboratory and State Veterinary Medical Board.

(b) The inspection and analysis of all fertilizers, animal feeds and lime now conducted by the State Fertilizer, Feed and Lime Control Department.

(c) The prevention and control of injurious insects and diseases affecting farm crops, and the inspection of nurseries, orchards, apiaries and imported stock, now conducted by the State Horticultural Department.

(d) The inspection and analysis of farm seeds, now conducted by the State seed laboratory.

(e) The advertising of farm lands and placing of settlers, now conducted by the State Bureau of Immigration.

(f) All phases of the work pertaining to the gathering of industrial and agricultural statistics, as now conducted by the State Bureau of Statistics and Information.

The meeting also registered its approval of the idea of putting under the control of the State Board of Agriculture the inspection of tobacco and the control of the State tobacco warehouses the work done by the Maryland Horticultural Society, and the Peninsular Horticultural Society and the disbursing through the board of the appropriations made to the various agricultural fairs and exhibitions. Also the work of the State Board of Forestry should, it was asserted, logically be placed under the board, together with the enforcement of the law pertaining to drainage work and such other regulatory inspection and control measures as may be designated to the board by the Legislature or may be deemed advisable in order to conserve and protect the agricultural interests of the State.

It was also declared that the State Board of Agriculture should be granted power by the Legislature "to declare quarantine restrictions in any section of the State, to enter upon for purposes of inspection any and all premises, at any and all times, when, in their wisdom, such a course is necessary and to issue such rules and regulations which will have the effect of law as may seem necessary from time to time for proper performance of their duty and for the public good," and that "power to enforce all laws on the statute books pertaining to the above lines of work to be vested under the control of the State Board of Agriculture and all laws, or parts of laws, in conflict to be repealed."

The executive officers of the board will be required to submit in October, preceding the meeting of the Legislature, a budget covering requirements for the two succeeding years; that the board be given sufficient funds for carrying on its work as outlined and an emergency fund to provide for the control of special outbreaks of infectious diseases and so forth, and that it is to submit an annual report to the Governor on or before the 1st of January of each year.

Flight of Turks Continues---Roads Strewn With Dead as They Retreat Before Russians in Caucasus---Antivari and Dulcigno on the Adriatic Occupied by Austrians

MONTENEGRIN ARMY FALLING BACK ON ALBANIA

London.—The east coast of Kent was raided twice by hostile aeroplanes, one person being killed and six persons being injured.

Of the first raid which occurred early in the morning, the following official account was issued:

"The War Office announces that, taking advantage of the bright moonligth, a hostile aeroplane visited the east coast of Kent at 1 o'clock A. M. After dropping nine bombs in rapid succession it made off to seaward.

"No naval or military damage was done, but there was some damage to private property. Incendiary bombs caused fires, which were extinguished by 2 A. M.

"The following casualties occurred: One man killed; two men, one woman and three children slightly injured."

The second attack, this time by two seaplanes, was made on the same coast the same afternoon, but no casualties were reported. All the raiders escaped.

The War Office announcement concerning the second attack says:

"Following on the aerial attack on the east coast of Kent two hostile seaplanes made a second attack upon the same locality shortly after noon. After coming under a heavy fire the raiders disappeared, pursued by our naval and military machines.

"The enemy effected no damage, and no casualties have been reported."

Fifty thousand German troops have arrived at Constantinople, according to Saloniki dispatches. British correspondents express the view that the object of this army is not an expedition against Egypt, but to support the authority of the Turkish War Minister, Enver Pasha.

According to an official report from Amsterdam, Turkey had admitted that one of her submarines was responsible for the sinking of the liner Persia, in the Mediterranean last month, with the loss of American lives and many women and children.

The Russians are continuing their advance against the Turks in the Caucasus. Petrograd says the Turks are making a precipitate retreat in the region of Erzerum and that the Russians are capturing many prisoners and much ammunition and other supplies. The roads are strewn with Turkish dead.

The defeat of the Turks, it is asserted, was particularly disastrous in the direction of Koprukeui.

MONTENEGRO REJECTS TERMS.

London.—A dramatic change in the war situation in the Balkans was announced. Montenegro rejected the conditions imposed by Austria, and King Nicholas, it was reported, will fight so long as a man remains loyal.

The terms made by Vienna for Montenegro's surrender were said in dispatches from the Near Eastern capitals to be such as to reduce Montenegro to virtually a vassal state, and to be impossible of acceptance.

Delayed cablegrams were received giving both sides of the controversy which has arisen as to the part Greece is playing in the war.

King Constantine gave to a correspondent his version of what he called the "unheard of high-handedness of the recent action of the Allies toward Greece." This dispatch was held up by the censor until "the highest French authority" could prepare a reply to it, and then both were put on the cable simultaneously.

In effect, the Greek King complains of an attempt to force Greece into the war on the side of the Allies. The French reply is that the Allies acted at every turn with the full cognizance of the Greek Government, and in pursuance to a secret agreement which involved gains "not unconnected with the foreign policy of Greece."

CAN EQUIP 800,000 SOLDIERS.

Outfit Now in Store or Readily Purchased, Says Quartermaster.

Washington.—Quartermaster General Aleshire told the House Military Committee that equipment for an army of 800,000 men was either in the Government storehouses, or can be bought in the open market in less than three months. Equipment for 500,000 is in army or militia depots, and manufacturing concerns could easily turn out equipment for 300,000 in 90 days.

COLONEL HOUSE HUSTLING.

Will Hasten Journey to Report Findings to President.

London.—That Colonel House is anxious to return as soon as possible to America is shown by the fact that he has practically abandoned his plan to make a side trip to Italy to visit his closest personal friend, Ambassador Thomas Nelson Page. Colonel House has likewise advanced the time of his departure for Paris. After a few days in Paris, Colonel House will go to Switzerland.

Rome.—Peace negotiations between Austria and Montenegro have been broken off owing to the intervention of Gen. Martinovich, leader of the anti-Austrian party in Montenegro, who assumed command of the troops, including the Serbian detachments aiding the Montenegrins, and opposed their disarmament, thus averting the betrayal of the Allies by King Nicholas.

The entire population hails Gen. Martinovich as the deliverer of Montenegro. A complete exodus from the little country is expected. All efforts are now being concentrated on the defence of Scutari.

To aid in extricating the troops an appeal has been issued to the Allies for assistance such as was rendered the Serbs.

On the front in France and Belgium and in the Austro-Italian theatre the operations have been confined chiefly to mining and sapping moves and artillery duels.

A substantial victory of the Russians over the Turks in the Caucasus and the capture of the town of Hassan Kahah, twenty miles east of Erzerum, after a hard fight, was reported by Petrograd.

When the Turkish line broke under the heavy Russian fire, the Sultan's forces were pursued to the forts of Erzerum, the Russians sabering or taking prisoner more than 1,500.

The Turks retreated in all directions to the protection of the forts, abandoning magazines, guns and huge quantities of supplies in their flight.

COMMONS PASS CONSCRIPTION.

London.—Loud cheers greeted the final passage of the Military Service bill through the Committee of the whole of the House of Commons.

At every stage the government by its conciliatory attitude made friends for the bill, with the result that it had a much smoother passage through the House than had been expected.

Groups 2, 3, 4 and 5 of recruits who enlisted under the Earl of Derby's plan were formally called to the colors, in accordance with the proclamation of Dec. 13. These groups, the first Derby recruits to be called out, are composed of unmarried men from 19 to 22 years of age.

The men have been warned of the necessity of reporting for duty immediately, the Recruiting Committee having stated that any one who is summoned and does not appear will be treated as a deserter.

The number of men in the first four groups, after subtracting exemptions and postponements of service, is estimated roughly at 100,000.

From Dvinsk, southeast of Riga, to the centre of Persia four great Russian armies are fighting—and winning, according to the Russian reports.

TEUTONS HALT SALONIKI ATTACK

Transport Difficulties Hamper Them as Roads Are Bad.

Saloniki.—The belief is growing in Entente circles that the Austro-German attack on Saloniki is likely to be delayed some time. The Germans are finding that it will require considerable time to surmount all the obstacles facing them in this campaign. Chief among these is the transport of troops, heavy artillery and support along the bad roads and the railway line, which is still considerably damaged in several parts. It is said that the railway will not be completely established for two months yet.

PITH OF THE WAR NEWS

The Austrians captured Antivari and Dulcigno, the two principal seaports of Montenegro.

Vienna announced that the Montenegrins are surrendering in all parts of the country and that on the northeast front of Montenegro 1,500 Serbians, co-operating with the forces of King Nicholas, threw down their arms.

The Germans won two victories on the western front, taking an advanced position of the Allies near Neuville, north of Arras, by mining operations, gaining a series of defenses. Paris admits the losses.

Austrian armies have resumed the conquest of what remains of Montenegro.

North of Czartorysk an attempt by the Germans to recapture in a bayonet charge a hill held by Russians was beaten back with big losses.

To prevent the Central Powers from importing wheat from Rumania, an Anglo-French corporation has been formed to buy all the grain.

Berlin heard that the demands made by the Allies in their ultimatum to the king of Greece, that passports be handed to representatives of the Central Powers, were refused.

Sunshine In Your Home.

Beautify and Brighten Your Home AT SMALL COST,

By Installing Hollow Wire Gasoline Lighting System and Lamps.

The most successful and safest illuminating device in the world. Gasoline produces the most powerful light next to sunshine—and has no injurious effect on the eyes. Our modern systems are entirely safe and efficient, and more economical to maintain than either gas or electricity. Buy one of the systems for your home or store, and you will find that you have secured not only an economical light, but a more efficient one than is afforded by any other type of lighting system. These lamps are great labor savers, as there are no wicks to clean, no dirt nor objectionable odor; no trouble to light or operate, no danger of explosions. We guarantee them to be just as represented and perfectly satisfactory. I represent three of the best companies who make these systems, all of which guarantee their system and back up their guarantee. These system are approved by all fire underwriters. I can also furnish systems suitable for halls, churches, hotels, street lamps, etc.

The following table shows the cost of maintaining 100 candle power of various kinds of light for 3 hours per night for one month, or 90 hours:

Electric (size 16 candle power)	$4.48
Gas (with mantle)	.64½
Gas (open burner)	6.37
Kerosene Lamps	1.61
Tallow Candle (100)	15.60
Single Candle	.15½
Gasoline Improved Lamps	.25

Below are the names and addresses of some of my many customers who have been using these systems, and who will be glad to recommend them and answer any enquiries:

We have built this business upon the solid rock of INTEGRITY, conscientious and faithful service, sincereity between ourselves and customers. This is our guiding principle and it will carry us to greater success. A big business founded on a little idea. WALTER'S Oscillating Sleds

IF you want a sled you should buy a good hand made oscillating white oak bob sled, made of the best white oak wood that is possible to get, and will outlast any factory sled on the market.

I have been making sleds for a number of years, also repairing all kinds and certainly ought to know where a sled ought to be made stronger and better than a factory that perhaps never repaired a sled in their existence.

My stock is larger and better than ever before. If you need a sled come and see mine before you purchase, then if we don't deal it will be because quality won't have anything to do with it.

Prices very reasonable. Remember the name of the sled.

THE SHORT COURSE AND THE FARMER

Preserving Fertility In His Soil Is One Of the Lessons He Learns At His Agricultural College.

H. J. PATTERSON,
Maryland Agricultural College.

With the beginning of the annual winter short courses in improved farming methods at the Agricultural College the farmer who has not hitherto attended them is inclined to question what benefit is to be secured from them. Perhaps no more striking lesson is taught than the preserving of fertility in the soil, which is beyond doubt the foundation of all successful farming. Particularly is this true in the matter of properly handling the manure made on the farm.

How Manure Is Wasted.

Even though manure is regarded highly by farmers in all sections of the State, there is, nevertheless, no product of equal value which is so much neglected and poorly cared for. It has been found as a result of experiments that fresh manure during decay will lose from 20 to 70 per cent. of its weight. In losing weight, manure also loses in fertilizing value, sources of such loss being due to the incomplete absorption of the liquid manure, which, by the way, is richer both in nitrogen and potash than the dung; to leaching, as when manure is piled against the side of the stable or in a yard where rains wash out much of the nitrogen and potash, which is seen in the dark brown liquid oozing from the pile; and to heating and fermenting while in the pile which breaks down the organic matter, causes loss of humus, and the giving off of ammonia, compounds, containing the most valuable element in manure, the nitrogen.

How To Handle Manure.

Steps to be taken in preventing such losses are to provide sufficient bedding or litter in the stable to absorb all the liquid manure; to check fermantation by mixing the cooler cow manure with horse manure; to make piles compact so as to exclude air and lower the temperature; to use chemical absorbents such as plaster, kainit, phosphate rock, etc., sprinkled over the manure in the stable, thus preserving it and preventing loss; to prevent loss from leaching by piling the manure under a roof or still better hauling it directly to the field and spreading it as fast as it is produced.

This last practice is without question the most economical, both in the saving of labor and in preserving the fertilizing qualities of the manure Manure should be spread as soon as it is hauled to the field. The practice of putting it in piles is objectionable because of the loss that is likely to occur. The placing of it in piles also requires additional labor. The manner of spreading will depend on the equipment of the farmer, but where the distance is relatively short and it is desired to have the manure evenly spread, a manure spreader will prove a valuable investment.

The proper handling of farm manure is only one point among many that the farmer will have the opportunity to hear discussed at the winter short courses. The mixing of fertilizers their application, the securing of superior seed, the use of lime, the growing of clover crops, spring fertilization of grass, proper drainage, and the many other factors in successful soil building and crop production which every farmer ought to know furnish endless food for thought and future application in the improvement of methods and the increasing of yields What information his Agricultural College can give is freely his; it lies with the farmer himself to make the most of his opportunity to become acquainted with his Agricultural College and gain help from its instructions.

MARYLAND STATE GRANGE IN SESSION AT SALISBURY, DECEMBER 6-9.

Farmers and farm women belonging to the 80 subordinate granges of Maryland are in session this week at Salisbury where they are being entertained as guests of the Wicomico County Pomona Grange. Subjects of vital interest to all Maryland farmers are being discussed by well known speakers, among them being Governor-elect Emerson C. Harrington on "The Agricultural Development of Maryland;" Congressman David J. Lewis, on "Cheaper Telephone and Telegraph Service for the Farmer;" Dr. Wm. E. Palmer, Board of Health, Baltimore City, on "Co-Operation In Milk Production;" Prof. F. B. Bomberger, Maryland Agricultural College, on "Better Financial Credit for the Farmer," and Miss Katherine A. Pritchett, Maryland Africultural College, on "Home Demonstration Work In Maryland."

The representatives of local granges, presided over by State Grange Master B. John Black, of Baltimore county, will discuss a number of questions of especial interest to farmers such as better roads, the support of the Maryland Agricultural College, the employment of County Demonstration Agents, agricultural teaching in the rural schools, the representation of the agricultural interests of the State before the Legislature, the securing of a simplified land registration, and the establishing of rural credits. The session concludes with the biennial election and installation of officers on Thursday, Dec. 9, when National Grange Lecturer Edw. E. Chapman, of Massachusetts, will address the grangers.

MAKE GOOD OR QUIT

This Is the Demand Upon the Democrats Made By the Nation.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 29—Another day of reckoning.

The United States Treasury faces a deficit of over $100,000,000. The party responsible for that deficit must either meet the situation or surrender the reins of power.

In other words, the American people demand that a political party, either make good or give up.

The handwriting on the wall was recently revealed by Representative Joseph W. Fordney, of Michigan, in a discussion of the Democratic tariff and revenue politics before the House. He showed that the Democratic party has failed to make good.

"The Treasury balance is nealy $100,000,000 less than it was when the Republicans were in power," said Mr. Fordney. "The war in Europe is the EXCUSE, but it is not the CAUSE for the deficit. Without that war the Democratic party would have been compelled to admit ere this that tariff law is a complet failure.

"Compareing nine months from March to November, 1915, with the corresponding nine months from March to November, 1913, imports showed a gain of $72,716,000. Customs receipts that can be attributed to the war in Europe is $5,520,000 per month, and the war tax, so-called, is producing $6,800,000 per month, or about $1,300,000 per month more than the loss in customs receipts.

"Notwithstanding the fact that the war tax is more than making up for the loss in customs receipts, the balance in the general fund declined $75,603,336 from July 31, 1914, to July 31, 1915. On July 31, 1914, the balance was $143,776,800 and one year later it was down to $68,173,000.

"The Underwood law started out with a good balance in the Treasury. That is not an argument in favor of the Underwood law. Credit for that balance belongs to the preceding Republican tariff law. The real question is, what balance will you have at the end of the operation of the Underwood law?

"Up to the present time some $85,000,000 has been raised by the so-called war taxes, and not standing this and the fact that importations at present are breaking past records in volume, the balance in the general fund is now down to about $50,000,000.

"When the Underwood act is finally repealed and the reckoning is made, it will show some hundreds of millions raised by objectionable methods of taxation and an empty treasury!"

Marrying Parsons.

It is easy to jest about the marrying parsons of our local Gretna Green, but there is a serious side to the business.

Runaway marriages frequently are justifiable, but more frequently they are not. We have no knowledge of the actual conditions in Elkton, but as a general fact it may be stated that when ministers enter into competition for this sort of business they are apt to be less careful in screutinizing those who present themselves for the marriage ceremony, less scruplous in observing all the proprieties that should surround such marriages, than they should be.

The case is not entirely analogous to that of the shyster lawyer who foment litigation, but there are several points of similarity between the two. Senator Williams' bill is deserving of consideration.—Baltimore Sun.

WILSON ROUTE FOR SPEAKING

First Tour of Preparedness to Reach Into the West—May Reach South Later.

President Wilson plans to speak in Pittsburgh, Cleveland, Chicago, St. Louis, Kansas City, St. Joseph, Des Moines and Davenport on the first trip he will take to lay his national-defense program before the country. He expects to leave Washington January 28 and remain away one week.

An itinerary for the tour practically was completed at the White House last night. It was drafted with the view of including as many cities as possible in six days, but many of the points the President hoped to visit had to be stricken off the list, One of these was Cincinnati, and he still is being strongly urged to go there.

The President will not stop in Baltimore on this tour, but will take up the question of accepting an invitation in that city in connection with his second trip.

Preliminary plans for the second trip, to be made about the middle of next month, already are being considered. This journey probably will take the President as far West as Denver, and if possible he will spring through the South to stop at Birmingham and other cities.

Pittsburgh will hear the first preparedness speech Saturday, January 29. The President will go to New York January 27 to speak at banquets of the Railroad Business Association and the Motion Picture Board of Trade. He will return to Washington to attend a dinner given in his honor by the Secretary of the Treasury and Mrs. McAdoo, January 28, and that night will leave for Pittsburgh.

Special importance is attached by the President to his address, before the Railroad Business Association, and he will prepare it in advance. He is expected to speak particularly on the need for business preparedness and the necessity for the railroad and manufacturing plants getting ready to assist the Government in time of danger. In his second address, the same night, he may mention the Mexican question.

Messages from the cities chosen as stopping places indicate that elaborate plans will be made for the President's reception. In St. Louis a parade is in contemplation. As far as possible, the arrangements will be in the hands of nonpartisan organizations, because of the President's known position that the preparedness issue is not political.

Mrs. Wilson is expected to accompany her husband on the trip, and Secretary Tumulty also will be in the party. While the president is away he will be kept in close touch with the European and Mexican questions by Secretary Lansing.

In addition to the cities selected for formal addresses, the President probably will deliver a number of short speeches from the train. Although none of the preparedness addresses will be written out in advance he will begin work next week shaping the ideas he desires to present to the public.

"KEEP THE GARRETT COUNTY DOLLAR IN GARRETT COUNTY."

Commencing with our next issue The Republican will conduct a community building for a period of four weeks. The chief feature of this effort will be to bring about a more general co-operation between all the people of the county and to advocate the trading at home so far as is possible. It will be a campaign to "Keep the Garrett County Dollar in Garrett County."

We wish to have it understood in the beginning that this is not merely an effort to throw more money into the coffers of the local merchants and to bring about a benefit to them alone. We have solicited the co-operation of the business people generally throughout the county in this effort to bring about a better condition to all the people. They have responded generously as they always have in a move to improve conditions in their home community.

An investigation has disclosed the fact that a very large percent of our substance is being taken out of the community and contributed toward the building and enrichment of the already great metropolitan cities. The chief medium through which our money is being lured to the greater communities is the mail order houses which are making a special effort in this community.

It will be our aim to prove the advantage to be had on the part of everybody in keeping the money at home so far as it is possible and to prove the superior worth of goods to be found in the local business houses as well as the advantage in the mercantile service at home.

HELD FOR GRAND JURY

Beer Cause of Free-for-All Fight and One Arrest Follows.

Down on the Seventeen-Mile Grade at what is known as Strickner's siding is located a camp of railroad workmen who have been engaged during the past few months in keeping the track in repair and at odd times when work was not pushing, the men would indulge in the glass cheers, especially after the monthly paydays.

On the last celebration of this momentous event—pay-day—the men sent to Westernport and secured a keg or two of beer, and when it arrived at the camp they all partook freely. In the camp are representatives of many of the European nations now at war and while it is true that Ireland as a nation is peaceably inclined, allowing Johnny Bull to work out his own salvation in the warfare across the water, yet Johnny Kelly, who came to America many years ago from the Emerald Isle, and Herman Dohlke, a Tueton from the German Empire, could not settle the war amiably between themselves and resorted to methods now in vogue in and out of the trenches that make France and Russia checkerboards. Herman had a knife and used it pretty freely upon Johnny with the result that John was taken to the Keyser hospital for repairs where he was kept until he became so obstreperous that the nurse rebelled at keeping him longer and he was quietly brought to Oakland to which point Herman had been escorted by Sheriff Ashby several days before and kept in durance vile until last Thursday when he was given a hearing before Justice Fries upon the charge of attempted murder in slashing John with the knife. Kelly was the prosecuting witness and exhibited to the Court several scars he alleged were the result of the bout with the German. One of those across Kelly's abdomen measured twelve inches, while another was of lesser dimensions but almost entirely encireled his wrist.

After hearing the evidence in the case Justice Fries committed Dohlke to jail for the action of the June grand jury, while the prosecuting witness Kelly, was held under his personal recognizance to appear against his late fellow workman. Kelly said that he intended returning to Philadelphia and enter a hospital in that city but that he would be here in June to answer when he is called before the grand inquest.

Mrs. Ernest Bush, who recently arrived in Oakland with her husband and children from Florida, has entered the Home Sanatorium in Oakland for treatment prior to undergoing a surgical operation.

OAKLAND COLLEGIANS NOSE OUT ALTOONA

Result in Doubt Until Final Whistle So Close Was Contest.

The Altoona Y. M. C. A. team was defeated here Thursday night by the Oakland Collegians in what proved to be the best and most exciting game ever played on the local floor. The Altoona team is undoubtedly the fastest bunch yet visiting Oakland and their passing system was great. However the defensive work of the Collegians showed to good advantage and broke up the smooth playing of the visitors time and again. Boyle and Sanner for the locals were the star performers on offense while Giessman and Frantz were good on the defense. Donnelly and Wheelock for the visitors put up a strong game. The result was in doubt until the whistle blew and the Collegians won out 29-25. The lineup:

Oakland, 29.		Altonna, 25.
Sanner	F	Donnelly
Chance	F	Norris
Boyle	C	Kintry
Geissman	G	Wheelock
Frantz	G	Bowser

Summary:—Field Goals—Boyle 4, Sanner 2, Geissman 1, Frantz 1, Donnelly 3, Norris 1, Kintry 2, Wheelock 1. Foul Goals—Sanner 13 out of 26, Donnelly 7 out of 11. Referee Bremer. Scorer Fraley.

THE PEOPLE'S FORUM.

Real Sport.

To the Editor of The Republican.

We have just returned from the basket ball game with the Altoona Y. M. C. A. played on the Oakland floor.

Those who were so fortunate as to witness that game saw one of the fastest games ever played on the local floor. Our enthusiasm is unbounded and we wish to write while memory is fresh. Tonight, especially, we feel that we can heartily commend the Oakland Collegians to the local lovers of sport.

We have not always been able to do this, for many games have been marred with a surplus of unpleasant roughness and underhanded work. None of those ugly elements were visible in the game tonight. The game was fast and rough, rough because it was fast, but it was not an unpleasant roughness. It was not intentional roughness as we observed it, but it was that kind of a whole-souled game that is a joy to the spectators and a developer of true sportsmanship to the players themselves. The team work of the local players was superb and their floor-work was a joy to the beholder, and if ever a team deserved to win the Collegians deserved this game. We believe they out-did the visitors in every department of the game and were only out-done by the visitors when it came to roughness.

The visitors were in a way handicapped because of a lack of knowledge of the amateur atheletic rules which caused them to foul more than they would otherwise have done.

We hope that there will be many more games of this kind to be seen on the local floor. We attribute the winning of this game to one out-standing predominating element which has won many a game that would otherwise have been lost, and that is this: the team attended strictly to the business of winning the game. There was none of that ill-feeling between the teams which often causes a player to spend much of his time trying to get even with the other chap. When a game degenerates to this it doesn't deserve the honored name of sport.

We would find it difficult to mention one player above another, because they worked together as a well oiled machine each doing his part with victory as the result.

We would like to name one player in particular, not because his work has been better than the others, not because he shoots more goals, but because he has learned to do that which he found well-nigh impossible to do a year ago. We are thinking of Walter Sanner. He has learned to control himself under high pressure. and that is a victory worth more than any game ever won. A year ago he was the most consistent fouler on the team. He broke loose with his rough work often without the slightest excuse, and the referee was in constant dread of a necessary disqualification. But for most of the games of this season, and especially the last few, and more particularly this game, he has played an exceptionally clean and satisfactory game.

This is what basket ball should do and will do for that player who goes into the game for the joy of the sport, the development of a quick eye and a steady arm, and above all who consistently tries to conquer self.

The work of the referee is at best an unpleasant and difficult, plus a thankless, task, although we have no complaint against the public, but we would like very much to see a few of these games from the spectator's point of view.

THE REFEREE.

Oakland, Thursday, Jan. 20, 1916.

Mrs. Harry Turney, of this city, returned home last Thursday after a two weeks visit with her parents at Markleysburg, Pa. She was accompanied home by her mother, Mrs. Fisher, who will be her guest for a short time.

FORTY YEARS AGO

Happenings of Local Interest Occupying That Long Ago.

Francis Thomas "one of Maryland's greatest sons," was accidently killed on the B. & O. railroad near Frankville, a station named in his honor, adjacent to his home in Garrett county. The tragedy occured as Mr. Thomas stepped from an eastbound track to the westbouud and was run over by a helper engine. Col. Thomas R. Sharp, master of transportation, arranged for a special train to take the remains to Cumberland. Rev. Dr. Thrall, rector, officiated at the funeral services in Emmanuel Episcopal Church and the pallbearers were: Col. D. C. Bruce, Hon. Lloyd Lowndes, Jr., Joseph Shriver, Col. J. M. Schley, George A. Pearre, Col. W. H. Lowdermilk, H. W. Hoffman, Col. Henry J. Johnson, Judge Robert Bruce, Hopwell Hebb, Judge C. Slack and Capt. Rodger Perry. During his brilliant career GovernorThomas was speaker of the C. & O. Canal Company, member of constitutional conventional convention from Maryland, Governor of Maryland (1841-44), representative foe nine consecutive sessions of Congress (21st to 40th), collector of internal revenue appointed by President Grant, and in 1872 was appointed minister to Peru. In 1875 he resigned and secluded himself in his mountain home. He was an ardent Democrat. He was 55 years old at the time of his death.

Charles Perry, sold to Henry G. Davis property at Deer Park for $4,600.

T. J. Cadwell was killed on the railroad of the Garrett Coal Company near Oakland.

The Garrett county school board appropriated $6,000 each to Grantsville and Oakland to establish at those places high schools.

The following committee was appointed at the canal extension meeting in Baltimore to wait upon the representatives in Congress and urge an appropriation for an extension of the canal to the mouth of the Savage river: Dr. C. H. Orr, Capt. J. W. Pearce, John S. Combs, Allegany; Patrick Hamill and William I. Brown of Garrett.

In reminiscenses and sketches of the life of the late Governor Thomas, The Cumberland News refers to his domestic difficulties. The distinguished Marylander married Miss McDowell, daughter of Governor McDowell, of Virginia, exceedingly attractive. Thinking his wife unfaithful to him, Governor Thomas applied for a divorse and, as was the custom, the case was argued before the state legislature. Governor Thomas argued his own case and Governor McDowell, his wife's father, argued for the defendant. The argumentative efforts by the twodistinguished advocates is said not to have been excelled in the state forum. The Governor was refused a divorse but separated from his wife and in 1841 was granted a legal separation by the Virginia legislature. Following political difficulties starting, it was said, over a remark made by Mr. Thomas "that when the cat's away the mice will play," to which William Price, of Hagerstown took exception, a duel was arranged between the two men in 1840. Standing ten paces apart in a shaded nook on the road between Hancock and Bath the men fired. Neither shot took effect and the seconds, friends and surgeons attempted to effect an amicable settlement. After an hour's argument the two men shook hands. Those present at the duel as Mr. Thomas' seconds, friends and surgeon were: Col. John McPherson, of Frederick; Col. Edward Lucas and Robert Lucas, of Virginia; Dr. Chas. McGill, of Hagerstown; Mr. Price's friends were W. H. Norris, Reverdy Johnson, and Prof. Nathan R. Smith, of Baltimore; Col. Jacob Hollingsworth and Dr. Frederick Dorsey, Hagerstown; and Dr. C. H. Ohr, Hancock, later of Cumberland. Robert Shriver played a funeral march at the obsequies.

HILLEARY HOME BURNED

Fire Destroyed New Dwelling of Mr. Gus T. Hilleary Yesterday.

Yesterday morning about nine o'clock a telephone message was received in Oakland from the Hilleary Farm, near Gorman, stating that the new dwelling house of Mr. Gus T. Hilleary, erected about two years ago, was burning and asking that help be sent from here to that place for the purpose of preventing the spread of the flames to the barn and other buildings on the place.

Later a message was received stating that the dwelling had been entirely consumed, but that much of the furnishings had been saved and that the fire was confined to the house alone, the flames having started from a defective chimney.

The dwelling was comparatively new and was erected on the lower portion of the farm about two years ago. Mr. Hilleary carried insurance on the building to about $2900 with Mr. A. T. Matthews, agent.

The Frostburg correspondent of the Cumberland News Tuesday morning said: "Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Friend, who have been the guest of their daughter, Mrs. John Morgan, of Water street, have returned to their home at Selbysport, Md."

BRUCE MOORE ENDS LIFE

Saw Footprints of Man Leading From His Home; Had Fight.

Bruce Moore, a former resident of Terra Alta, W. Va., but now residing at Rowlesburg committed suicide at his home there last Friday night.

When on Tuesday evening of last week he returned to his home, the mercury was below zero. The water pipes in his home had frozen, Mrs. Moore had called in Jacob Shaffer, a Baltimore and Ohio engineer, to assist her in thawing out the pipes. Mr. Moore saw the foot prints of a man leading from the street to his back door, he demanded an explanation, which was given by the wife, but same failed to satisfy him and it is reported he drove her from the house. She went to the home of her father, Jacob Ayersman, where she remained. Friday evening Moore called at the home of his wife's father and demanded to see his wife. When she entered the room he started to upbraid her. Her parents came to her rescue, had a warrant sworn out for the arrest of the husband and placed in the hands of a local policuman, who subsequently arrested Moore. Then Moore, who asked time to go into his house to prepare to go to the town lockup, secured a revolver, with which he sent a bullet through his heart.

HUDSON AUTO AGENCY

Has Been Secured by Dr. Web. Ravenscroft For Garrett County.

During the past week Dr. W. Ravenscroft, of Oakland, secured the agency for the Hudson car, the territory assigned the local dealer being Garrett county.

Immediately after having secured the contract Dr. Ravenscroft sold four cars, the purchasers being Messrs. Edward H. Smouse, Willev I. Friend, of Oakland, and Dr. R. A. Ravenscroft, of Accident.

All the purchasers, with the exception of Dr. Ravenscroft, contracted for the six cylinder touring cars, the latter buying a roadster of 67 horse power.

Seven cars is the number allotted by the manufactures to Garrett county. The cars are expected here about March 1st.

OAKLAND PHARMACY ROBBED

Burglar Entered Through Rear Window Last Night, Securing Money.

Last night burglars entered the Oakland Pharmacy through a window in the rear of the store and after robbing the two cash registers of all the money they contained as well as a drawer in which postage stamps and money derived from their sale was kept, left the building through a rear door, with no clue to their identity. The amount of money secured is only a matter of conjecture, Mr. Harned, the proprietor, being of the opinion that not more than $15.00 in all was secured.

An effort was also made by the thief to secure the money contained in the Bell telephone, which concern maintains a pay station in the store, the evidence pointing to this being the fact that the cord connecting the instrument had been severed and the table upon which it was kept upset into the middle of the floor.

MRS. AMELIA GARLITZ FITZWATER.

To the Editor of The Republican:

Enclosed is a clipping from our local paper reporting the death of Mrs. Amelia Fitzwater.

She was a devout and useful member of the Baptist church here and will be greatly missed. Our entire community is in mourning for she was greatly beloved by all the people. As she was born in your community and has many friends and relatives there, I send the clipping and this personal tribute for publication.

As her pastor, I wish to bear personal testimony to her fine Christian character and devotion to duty.

Sincerely,
JOHN R. GEORGE.

Mrs. Amelia Garlitz Fitzwater, wife of Isaac Fitzwater, died suddenly of heart failure Wednesday evening Jan. 12, while on her way to prayer meeting. She left home in the best of spirits to attend the prayer meeting. Her body was found a few minutes later in the street near her home. It appeared that she had slipped on a piece of ice; the shock of the fall produced heart failure.

The funeral service will be held in the Baptist church, but the hour cannot be announced until word is received from children.

Mrs. Amelia Garlitz Fitzwater was born in Garrett county, Maryland, February 14, 1895. She was the youngest daughter of Jacob and Lydia Garlitz. She has three brothers and four sisters living. Her earlier life was spent in Maryland and Ohio. In 1885 she came to Socky Bar, Idaho, where she married on November 12, of that year, Isaac Fitzwater. Four children were born into the home, all of whom are living, Clyde W., Marguerite and Allen.

Her married life has been spent in this county where she is known for her life of helpful service. For many years up to her death she was a faithful member and an untiring worker in the Baptist church. As a wife and mother she was devoted to her home. A splendid neighbor and a woman of high moral and spiritual ideals. Her brusque manner only dimly concealed the gentlest tenderest of heart's within.

In the home, church and community her memory will be cherished as one singularly devoted to duty and who lovingly and unstingly gave herself to all good works. "Blessed are the dead who die in the Lord."—Mountain Home Republican, Mountain Home, Idaho.

MRS. UPTON CUPPETT.

Mrs. Upton Cuppett died last ningt at 10:30 o'clock at her home in Mt. Lake Park. No arrangements have yet been made for the funeral.

PUBLIC LIBRARY

Is Being Well Patronized and Number of Books Augmented.

The Free Public Library and Reading Rooms for Garrett county, located in Oakland, are now being pretty well patronized. Many of the current magazines are found on the reading room tables, and in addition, the editors of our county papers have consented to place a copy of their respective papers on the tables, gratis, each week.

To the public school teachers will say that the books of the teachers' library, formerly kept in the School Board office, have been placed on the library shelves, as well as other rererece books for teachers. Those books are always at your disposal.

I wish to also remind the general public that books will be added from time to time. These books will be donations for the present, as many people have promised to bring in books which have been read by members of the family. I might say to those who contemplate bringing in books that those suitable for boys are always in demand.

In closing will say that, as in every project of this nature, money is needed for the purpose of meeting requirements which can only be met with cash. Of course, we must have money with which to buy books as time demands, but aside from that we need money with which to pay for room rent and also to pay the librarian for her service. So do not wait to be asked for a cash donation but come forward of your own volition and contribute your mite. Any amount will be acceptable, if it is only five cents, but give what you can.

The librarian will always be glad to receive your donation and give you due credit for same.

One of the principal features with DeRue Bros. Ideal Minstrels will be the reappearance of the Lazello Brothers in America, direct from their tour of the principal cities of Europe, which included a ten weeks engagement at the Coliseum Hippodrome, in London, England, where their act met with great favor and was witnessed by DeRue Bros.' European agent, and immediately an agreement was made and they were engaged for their first return appearence in America. They have the distinction of being one of the few acrobatic duos who have performed and appeared before royalty. This sensational novelty is without a doubt the most marvelous performance which has yet appeared in America, performing seemingly impossible feats of acrobatic agility. Found in use in Virginia for the wholesale slaughter of game birds. Since the passage of the federal migratory bird law, of which Senators Weeks and McLean were the joint authors, more than forty State Legislatures have passed laws in conformity with the federal statute. The result has been a tremendous increase in the waterfowl population of the country.

"The insectivorous migratory bird is of incalculable value to the farmer in fighting the insect pest," Senator Weeks recently said, "and it is gratifying that the State law-making bodies have acted so promptly in bringing the local game regulations into conformity with the federal law."

GRANTSVILLE.

Susan Mitilda Stofer, an elderly maiden lady, died at the home of Mrs. George Younkin, at this place, on Monday morning at 3 o'clock. Death was due to tuberculosis, with which she had been afflicted for years, but in spite of the disease and a peculiar bodily affection, she was able to be up and about the house each day until Sunday when she complained of feeling tired and wished to remain in bed. Although protesting she felt no pain, Mrs. Younkin deemed it advisible to call a physician during the day, and at midnight she seemed to be resting easily, but before 3 o'clock she had passed away with little or no suffering. Miss Stofer was born at Accident, Md., and was a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Martin Stofer. She was within a few days of 68 years old, and has no living relatives. For years she was companion and attendent to Mrs. Sarah Broadwater and was one of the beneficiaries of her will. At the death of Mrs. Broadwater, a few years ago, Miss Stofer was placed in the home of Mrs. George Younkin, who looked after her wants and needs faithfully, according her the privilege of the home the same as one of the family. Miss Stofer was very quiet and reticent, seldom conversing with any one, and seldom going out, except to church. Being in ill health and without relatives, it was merciful that God should call her suddenly and quietly, and summoning the soul from the poor misshapen body, clothe it in a new frame, wearing the robe of the redeemed through Christ. The funeral was held on Wednesday morning at the Lutheran church, of which she was a member. Dr. L. P. Young officiated at the services; interment in the Grantsville cemetery.

The basketball season seems to be at its height and despite sickness among the members of the teams, several games were played last week. On Jan. 13 the Meyersdale team played our boys in the Broadwater hall and, except for the loss of a front tooth of Clay Stanton, one of the players, the game was a most enjoyable one, resulting in a score 47-15 in favor of Grantsville. Line-up:

Grantsville—47		Meyersdale—15
Gnagey	F	Brant
Stanton	F	Griffith
Broadwater	C	Benford
Warnick	G	Baldwin
Boucher	G	Hady

On Jan. 14 our boys met defeat at the hands of the Salisbury boys, the game being played at that place. The score was 7-24 in favor of the Salisbury team.

On Saturday night the girl's team, with Hazel Younkin as manager, played the Salisbury girls at the latter place. Several players being absent on account of illness, the Grantsville girls were considerably handicapped, but put up a good fight with substitute players, the game resulting in a score of 7-3 in Salisbury's favor. A dance was held in the hall at the conclusion of the game for which the Grantsville players and fans remained.

Wm. Gnagey from San Francisco, C[illegible]ing his sister, Mrs. Clarence Loechel. Since his arrival both M[illegible]l and the children have b[illegible]with the grippe. Miss Leota S[illegible]been at the helm in things o[illegible]e her aunt's illness. Mr. C[illegible]d his brother Edward and family at Washington, Pa., before coming here.

Mrs. Sophia Bonig and Mrs. Sophia Winterberg have both been quite ill with grippe the past few weeks, the latter's condition bordering on pneumonia; both are holding their own in spite of advanced years. Among some of the others who are ill are the families of Lewis Diefenbach, Joel H. Miller and Ralph Engle; also H. A. Schaefer, Mrs. Michael Nathan, Mrs. Fred Livengood, Mrs. T. H. Bittinger, Mrs. A. T. Shirer, and Mrs. Howard Ringer. Miss Helen Stanton is quite ill with pneumonia and Mrs. E. B. Durst is recovering from an attack of pleurisy.

The condition of Lee Meyers of Jennings is improving at the Western Maryland hospital in Cumberland. Mr. Meyers is fireman on the Jennings railroad and the accident occured while in the discharge of his duties. He has a wife and two small children anxiously awaiting his speedy return from the hospital.

Menno Hershberger is having brick hauled in readiness to put up a new house in the spring months. The brick come from Rockwood and are shipped up on the Jennings branch from the B. & O. at West Salisbury.

The Reformed congregation at this place was priviledged on Sunday afternoon in hearing Rev. Jocab Kombar, the Turkish Missionary of the Reformed church and Sunday school board, who threw some most interesting side lights on life in Turkey and her dependencies. The lecture was in the interest of foreign missions and was greatly enjoyed by all present, Rev. Kombar being a most entertaining lecturer as well as a zealous convert to the cause of the Master.

Mrs. Clarence Loechel, of near Grantsville, was given a postal shower by her many friends on Tuesday, 18th inst. Mrs. Loechel, who is just recovering from the grippe, greatly appreciated the attention on the part of her neighbors and friends, who thus remembered her.

The following party from Meyersdale took supper at the Victoria, Thursday night: Harry Baldwin, Park Weimer, Sidney Eisler, Walter Gress, George Demmer, Wm. Hady, Kenneth Brant, Geo. H. Benford, Guy Baer, Gilbert Fullem and C. Q. Griffith.

Services were held in the Catholic church Sunday morning, also in the Lutheran church. Rev. E. E. Oney, the Lutheran pastor, was a little late owing to an accident with his car on the way.

Mrs. Chas. Zeller and Mrs. Chas. Getty spent Thursday with Mrs. Clarence Loechel.

Mrs. R. C. Bowen was a Cumberland visitor on Tuesday last.

Master Elwood Bevans of Union Bridge, Md., is spending a few weeks with his aunt, Mrs. Fred Livengood.

PARADISE

It is announced that Mr. George Reckner, of North Glade, and Miss Jessie Dewitt, of our community, long since decided that it is not well for man to live alone; acting on that decision, by mutual consent, they boarded train No. 71 and journeyed to Oakland where they were joined in the holy bonds of matrimony by the minister, who happened to be present on said occasion.

Winchell, left Oakland Monday afternoon for her home at Missoula, Montana, being accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Winchell as far as Woodsfield, Ohio, their winter home. Mr. Winchell is now engaged in erecting a large public building at Rowell, Ohio, which will require his attention for some weeks to come.

Mr. Malcolm Chance, of Camden, New Jersey, arrived home Monday to visit his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Chance, for a short time.

Winter.

We can remember the time when by a good comfortable fire we shuddered at the roaring blasts without. The storm dashed out the silver light of the moon and night was cheered by never a star, as the angry wind burst forth on its mission of woe. The snow coming down all day covered hills and valleys; fences were lost and streams were hidden. Night fell on a world of snow. The air grew sharper; winds shrieked and the fierce north wester made the old trees writhe. He tossed the snow on the plans and howled with a savage will. Against that blinding storm a benighted traveler vainly urges his weary horse, blinded by the cutting sleet, and plunging through constantly increasing drifts he floundered in his struggles and lay exhausted in the snow. In vain the master urged, with words and blow. Snow deepens about him, hands grow numb, strength is going, hope is declining, and the poor man wraps himself with coat and robe in his half filled sleigh, vainly striving to find shelter till morning. Midnight comes, the storm has abated. The old trees no longer writhe in the blast, but the moon peacefully looks down on the snow capped hills, yet horse and master are locked in the embrace of a sleep that shall never be broken.

With fur cap tied under his chin and reigns and whip in hand, he sat in his sleigh with glazed eyes staring out into the darkness. Many a traveler in the journey of life has lost his way in the darkness and stormes of sin's gloomy night, and though he urges on his hobbies, and wraps the robes of his self-righteousness closely about him, and vainly tries to find his eternal home by a way of his own devising, he is overtaken by the storms of divine wrath; the fury of God's vengence sweeps down upon him and with moral sensibilities stupified by sin, he stares into an awfully dark future. The storms of life are ended but he awakes to find himself in the region of the lost. Heed well the lesson of winter to make "your calling and election sure," that you may enjoy the favor of God and awake in the likeness of Christ. The lessons it brings us are legion.

Where now are the joys of the summer of your life? Long ago you laid your dead away. Things have changed greatly. So much of your life and love are gone yet we live on, we some-times wonder why, and though we long to fly away and be at rest, yet we are loathe to give up these scenes. Love still dreams, faith trusts and we hope to meet again. Yes companions of other days have fallen. A leaf hangs here and there. Joyous youth has succumbed, prattling childhood has dropped. The frosts have nipped the tender bud you held so carefully in your arms, or rocked in the cradle. You kissed those smiling lips for the last time, but you preserved a lock of hair or a flower that decked the coffin and as you think of the mound in the cemetery you feel the premature frosts have blasted your hopes. Wintry winds of adversity have swept over your soul, a silver cord has been snapped, a branch has been torn from you and hurled to the ground, but the sweet voice that charmed your home swells the melody of the angel choir yonder. Waves of trouble roll high about you, bitter winds of sorrow beat against your vessel, darkness deepens, the light of hope flickers, but a form comes near which in the dark night of your grief you mistake for an enemy and cry out in consternation and despair and you only discover the form of the Master when His tender voice says, "It is I be not afraid." He enters the vessel with you and at his bidding waves subside, winds sink, the heart is at rest and the mind at peace because Jesus has administered the cordials of His grace. Some of us are in the winter season of life. Memory is busy with other times and scenes of by gone days flit before the imagination. Tears dim the eye as in sorrowful thought they turn away from you and thought flies back over the past and is busy with the friends who were with you for a season but are not now.

Like these children of the cloud and frost that dazzle the eye for a moment and then vanish, all are lost in the dark and silent forever. You look again, the clouds divide, because of the sun of righteousness streaming through. Joy comes to the soul, peace fills the mind as you hear a sweet voice saying, not lost but gone before. This year may be the winter season of your life. Though young and full of vigor and of good constitution the seeds of death are in you. Though full of business and with bright prospects the wintry night of death will not consult your leisure or wait for you to accomplish your design.

Though you deliberately delay preparation, or are unwilling to admit the thought of it, or hope the contrary, the journey of life may end when you least expect it.

Reason, conscience and God tell you that it is the part of wisdom to prepare for the future. May you so live that your transit through the Jordan may be calm, peaceful and triumphant. May your death be that of the righteous and your last days as peaceful as a summer's evening.

"Tis' a fearful night in the winter time,
As cold as it ever can be;
The roar of the blast is heard like the chime
Of the waves of an angry sea.
The moon is full; but her silver light
The storm dashes out with its wings tonight;
And over the sky from south to north
Not a star is seen, as the wind comes forth,
In the strength of a mighty glee."

The End.

JOHANNES.

PLANETS VISIBLE TO THE NAKED EYE

Venus, Mars, Jupiter and Saturn Giving World a Good View.

The sky just now presents many interesting features to those who may have only a slight knowledge of the movements of the stars and planets, and from shortly after dusk until about nine o'clock four of the planets of our solar system are visible in the sky to the naked eye. They are the planets Venus, Mars, Jupiter and Saturn.

Venus is now quite bright in the southwestern heavens, but as it is not yet very high it must be observed early in the evening. This planet is almost as large as the earth, and its orbit is between the earth and sun. Somewhat higher in the heavens and looking almost as bright, although not of as whitish color, Jupiter, the giant of our planetasy system, may be observed. More than eleven times the diameter of the earth is this great planet, and from Chicago comes the news that another moon has been discovered for the planet, making a grand total of eight. Details of the unar phenomenon were given at the Chicago Academy of Sciences. Last spring some remarkable photographs of Jupiter were taken, which evidenced the existence of the eighth moon, and this verified the contention of certain well known European astronomers. One of the moons of Jupiter is estimated to be larger than the planet Mars, and of a density less than water.

Saturn, whose rings are plainly seen through a small telescope, is observable almost over head at ten o'clock, the apparent position of the planet being about midway between the Twins (Pollux and Castor) and the bright first magnitude star in the head of Orion. Saturn is apparently moving backward through the heavens just now, towards the Hyades, although its real motion is eastward.

Mars may be seen low down in the east, and is rapidly becoming brighter and ruddier, as in its movement around its orbit it comes closer to the earth.

Mars, too, has moved rapidly over the sky eastward and several months ago was very close to Saturn, both planets at that time lying near the Pleiades. Mars is now in the constellation Leo and very close to a faint star in the handle of the sickle, from which it is apparent rapidly moving westward. Mars appears decidely brighter and larger than the first magnitude star Regulus, at the end of the sickle handle.

Many of the most prominent and beautiful constellations are to be seen in the winter sky, and as the heavens continue to grow darker for the next two weeks, because of the waning of the moon, they will stand out still more prominently in the sky overhead.

Forty Years Ago.

Last Saturday's Cumberland News related the following as having occured forty years ago:

The canal extension committee met in a room at Barnum's hotel, Baltimore. There were present: Hon. P. Hamill, chairman; Col. Horace Resley, John S. Grove, James Parks, Col. J. M. Schley and G. W. Kildow, of Allegany; R. T. Browning and W. H. Barnard, of Garrett; Col. J. E. Wood, Mineral; Judge J. D. Armstrong, of Hampshire; W. I. Brown, of Grant, and Thomas Maslenn, of Hardy; also ex-Mayor Platt, Dr. C. H. Ohr, Capt. J. W. Pearce, Asa Willison and G. F. Gephart, of Cumberland; Senator T. G. McCulloh and Wm. Ward, of Frostburg; John S. Combs, Lonaconing, and C. P. Manning, Cumberland. It was proposed to extend the canal to the mouth of the Savage river. This would tap an undeveloped coal region with half a million tons of coal a year.

Now that Uncle Sam is to have an adequate Navy, the academy at Annapolis will be kept busy preparing young officers for the new ships that Congress is expected to authorize this session. Senator John W. Weeks, of Massachusetts, who is taking an active part in the discussion of preparedness in the Senate, is the only member of Congress who is a graduate of Annapolis, and for this reason his speeches concerning the needs of the Navy are listened to with especial interest.

CONSERVATION IN MARYLAND

A BULWARK AGAINST STARVATION

This is the fourth of a series of articles on the need of conservation in Maryland, published under the auspices of the Maryland Wild Life Protective Association at this time with a view of having some of the defects remedied by the passage of adequate conservation laws at the present session of the State Legislature.

Birds stand between us and starvation through the ravages of insects. There are but 14,000 species of the former as against some 5,000,000 species of the latter, but if man is hands off the birds can hold the hungry millions down. Under control the function of insects in the world is as big as their numbers. They carry pollen from blossom to blossom, and so get plants fertilized and propagated. The doctrine of botany is that flowers, with their wonderful endowment of color, perfume, nectar and form are only tricks to win insects visitation. But out from control insects constitute man's greatest earthly menace. Through extension of cultivated areas and reduction in bird population, we have disturbed the balance. Insect depredation is now a major concern. In its year book for 1904 the Department of Agriculture published the following estimate of the annual loss occasioned by the destructive insects in the United States:

Cereals	$200,000,000
Hay	53,000,000
Cotton	60,000,000
Tobacco	5,300,000
Truck crops	53,000,000
Sugars	5,000,000
Fruits	27,000,000
Farm forests	11,000,000
Miscellaneous crops	5,800,000
Animal products	175,000,000
Natural forest and forest products	100,000,000
Products in storage	100,000,000
Grand total	$795,100,000

The accuracy of these figures has apparently never been questioned.

Insects are possessed of prodigious fecundity and voracity. Given a free hand, a pair of Colorado potato beetles would in one season be the progenitors of over 60,000,000, and they are slow coaches compared with plant lice. There are larva which in 24 hours will consume 200 times their original weight. If an infant did as much he would eat 1500 pounds his first day, or if he grew like some caterpillars he would weigh 40 tons at maturity. Against them nature has, aside from disease and the elements, two regulative agencies: First, birds; second, predacious and parasitic insects. Some insects feed on others, but it is insectivorous birds that act as the primary check. They are well equipped. Flight gets them quickly to points of threatened outbreak. The bird's eye is unmatched; he can become far-sighted or near-sighted instantaneously.

Its hearing is keener than ours. Its heart beats faster, blood is warmer, lung capacity higher, and muscular activity greater than those of any other animal. To maintain such hot fires of life, great quantities of food are required, and for assimulating it they have enormous capacity.

A nestling needs one-half its own weight of food daily. Three hundred parental visits daily with one to a dozen insects each trip may be called a low average. Here are a few single meals of adult birds and there may be a dozen or more a day. One cuckoo, 217 webworms; another, 250 caterpillars; a flicker, 5000 ants; another, 1000 chinch bugs; a nighthawk, 60 grass-hoppers; another, 500 mosquitos; red-winged blackbird, 28 cutworms; cedar bird, 100 cankerworms; 2 Maryland yellow-throats each 3500 plant lice on a birch in 40 minutes, and they were apparently on this job about three hours a day. (Count that up for a week); 2 scarlet tangers, 35 gipsy moths a minute for 18 minutes.

If they worked one hour a day, they would clear off 14,700 in a week or enough to defoliate two apple trees, and thus save a crop worth $200 to $500 or more. Thirty-six species eat the coddling moth, which destroys apples, and 52 the cotton-boll weevil.

Let us pass this army of defense rapidly in review.

The cuckoo is a caterpillar specialist. One hundred and fifty-five stomachs contained 2771 (chiefly hairy), plus 818 other insects. And yet they can be shot in Maryland.

The woodpecker's function is the protection of trees, especially those of the forest. His beak is a chisel and with it he drives into wood after boring insects, while his long barbed tongue drags them forth. Damage to trees is confined to one species—the yellow-bellied sapsucker. Woodpeckers (this includes flickers) stay with us all winter, living on eggs of insects picked out of the bark. The Maryland statute dealing with this genus is a joke, the sapsucker being fully protected, while the word "woodpecker" does not appear.

The nighthawk, or bullbat, feeds awing, and, of course, wholly on insects. Thousands go to make up a meal. One-fourth of them are ants, which damage stored products and foster destructive plant lice. Other delicacies are the adults of white grubs, noted pests, cotton-boll weevils and malarial mosquitoes. Maryland is no refuge for them, however, but metes out merciless persecution, for they are grand targets on a summer's evening.

"The kingbird destroys honeybees, and so we will have none of him," they cry from Dan to Beersheba, but in 665 stomachs examined in Washington, 51 drones and 8 workers was the total. The great bulk of their food is noxious insects, and to a poultry yard they are insurance against hawks and crows.

Indeed, the whole remaining brood of flycatchers—phoebes, pewees—of whip-porwills and swifts, of martins and swallows, join to purge the air. Brown thrasher, towhee, meadowlark and thrush scour the ground between songs, while vireos and warblers twice a year comb the foliage, and creepers, kinglets, nuthatches, titmice and chickadees cleanse the trunks and limbs of the forests.

Orchard or grove, honored by hummingbird, oriole, mockingbirds, catbird, wren, robin or bluebird, is assured of a long and happy life, even if a Russian mulberry must be included to toll some away from the cherries.

Finally, to the finch or sparrow family (including the snowbirds and grosbeaks), most numerous of all, 40 species strong, is set the task of consuming weed seed. All are beneficial except the English sparrow, an immigrant of 1852. A single species, the tree sparrow, has been estimated to take 875 tons annually in Iowa. More of this another day.

In behalf of this host of gifted friends we are going to ask the next Legislature to pass the Audubon model law. This was prepared originally by the American Ornithologists' Union in 1886, but reached its perfected form in Louisiana in 1904. It is now on the statute books of 39 States. Maryland is the only State in North, East or South now without it, the others being sparcely settled Western States. Its Legislature is the only one of this groupe which meets in 1916. An enactment by unanimous consent will prove that our delay was an oversight, and that is expected.

MANY TYPES OF ROADS ARE FOUND IN STATE

Soil Traffic and Topography Considered in Building Maryland Highways.

In the section of the report of the State Roads Commission dealing with the types of roads in Maryland this statement is made:

Perhaps no other state has a wider diversification of road building conditions than Maryland, this including crossing the Alleghany Mountains in Garrett and Allegany counties; the smaller ranges of the Blue Ridge east of there; the broken and hilly region of Central Maryland, with its variety of soils; the sandy Eeastern Shore counties, with no road-building material, and in cases with tidewater only a few inches below the surface; the broken and irregular sand and clay country of Southern Maryland, with no stone, many rivers and swamps, and scant transportation facilties; the expenditure of several million dollars in paving city streets in and around Baltimore, with a population of nearly three-quarters of a million; the designing and construction of a number of large bridges, etc.

In carrying out this great undertaking, close study has been given to adapting the types of our roads, as far as is consistent with a system of modern highways, to the resources of the state, and to the physical characteristics, the traffic requirements, and the wishes of the people in the several parts of same. As a result, these vary from sand-clay roads in Southern Maryland to the highest class of street improvements in Baltimore city.

Generally speaking, the types of roads vary greatly, according to the availability of material, the character of soil, the intensity of traffic and the topography of the county.

In Western Maryland operations have been largely confined to macadamizing the old National, Frederick and other turnpikes, the stone roadbeds being resurfaced with five or six inches of new hard stone, thus making a highway which compares very favorably with our standard macadam. In 1912 contractors would not bid on this class of work except on a percentage basis, but a plan has since been devised, whereby a large mileage in that section has been built by contract on a unit basis. Near Green Ridge, in the mountains east of Cumberland, where the cost of hauling in a stone suitable for macadam would be excessive, seven miles have been built of shale, which is found in quantities in that vicinity. This makes a smooth and comparatively inexpensive road, similar to that through the Delaware Water Gap, in Pennsylvania. It is not costly to maintain, and is soft only in the wet spring months, when it is little traveled. Through the Alleghany Mountains much local material had to be used, as the long hauls over the mountains made the importation of other materials so excessive that the cost of the roads would have been prohibitive. Limestone was used where it could be secured at a reasonable cost and whsre it could not be thus had, local sandstone, which had been exposed to the weather, or a hard variety that was found at the foot of the mountains, was utilized and bound together with a bituminous product.

FRAMES NATIONS' RIGHTS AT LAW

Remarkable Declaration Resists Aggression of Belligerents

AMERICAN REPUBLICS JOIN

Five Principles Set Forth Based on Rights of Existence and Independence—Bearing on Belgium—Violation Seemingly Condemned.

Washington.—A Declaration of the Rights of Nations, applying to the countries of the world the principles of human rights set forth in the American Declaration of Independence, has been prepared by the American Institute of International Law, which is composed of 105 members—five from each of the twenty-one American republics. The institute, which recently has taken on an almost official character, with Secretary of State Lansing and two ex-Secretaries of State on the delegation from the United States, drafted the declaration during the recent sessions of the Pan-American Scientific Congress here.

The declaration, as made public by Dr. James Brown Scott, president of the institute, chairman of the Joint Neutrality Board of the State and Navy Departments, and secretary of the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace, sets forth five international principles, two of which seem to have a direct and significant bearing on the events of the war in Europe. The first declares that every nation has the right to exist, but is not justified in defending this right at the expense of "innocent and unoffending states." The other declares that "every nation entitled to a right by the law of nations is entitled to have that right respected and protected by all other nations." The first seems to condemn the German invasion of Belgium. The second is held in some quarters to imply that all the nations of the world should have rallied to Belgium's protection.

The importance of this declaration of principles lies in the fact it represents the opinion of the most eminent authorities of the 21 republics of the Western Hemisphere. Among the five American representatives in the institute are Elihu Root and Secretary Lansing.

BIG CALIFORNIA FLOOD.

Sixteen Dead and $3,000,000 Loss In State Wide Disaster.

Los Angeles, Cal.—With sixteen persons known to have perished, property loss exceeding $3,000,000, and a number of cites and towns still isolated, southern California began repairing the damage done by the six day storm, which swept this State. San Diego, Pomona, Colton, Riverside, Ontario, Sandimas and Monrovia were the worst sufferers. San Diego and Pomona report property losses estimated at $1,000,000.

Halted by heavy snows in the mountains the flood waters are receding gradually. All the isolated cities have been heard from. Many rescues were made. In a number of cases the rescued, marooned on islands for several days, were nearly starved, and had to be taken to hospitals. It is estimated that two thousand are homeless.

Passenger trains which had been stalled for six days have arrived here.

FLOODS SWEEP ILLINOIS.

Joliet and Other Towns in Valley of Des Plaines Inundated.

Chicago.—Rivers throughout northern Illinois, swollen by rain which fell almost continuously for a night, overflowed their banks and inundated a score of cities and villages. No loss of life was reported, but the property damage was estimated at several hundred thousand dollars.

The worst flood since 1902 engulfed Joliet. Water ran five feet deep in the streets. Nearly a thousand persons were driven from home.

Rockdale, a manufacturing town, reported six feet of water on the level, and business suspended.

The whole valley of the Des Plaines River was inundated.

The river rose six feet at Wilmington, and much damage was done there and throughout the adjoining country.

TO ADMIT MRS. PANKHURST.

All Formalities Will Probably End on President's Order.

Washington.—Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst, the Suffragist leader, on parole in New York, will be formally admitted to the United States.

Commissioner General Caminetti said that unless it was shown that something since Mrs. Pankhurst's admission two years ago was sufficient to exclude her, he could not see any reason to alter the Immigration Bureau's ruling admitting her then.

JOBS FOR GIRLS; NO GIRLS.

Baltimore Firm Is Offering Bonuses for Operators.

Baltimore.—Scarcity of girl operators has forced several Baltimore manufacturers of shirts and other clothing to sublet 10 per cent or more of contracts to Philadelphia firms.

Never, they say, in the history of the city has it been so difficult to get girls for work in factories. Competition among firms to obtain girl operators is keen, and each firm is trying to outdo the others in inducements.

CHEVROLET

THE "FOUR-NINETY" has the following novel and superior features not found in any other car built:

(1) Shock-absorbing duplex front springs; (2) Self-lubricating cluten collar; (3) Hub construction with triple-size bearings, preventing "wabble" of wheels and wear on tires; (4) Compound spur steering gear attached to body—the simplest and safest ever invented; (5) Unit power plant carrying transmission on open brackets, which gives accessibility to clutch and allows removal of all transmission, if necessary, in twenty minutes. (Patents granted or applied for on the above.)

These cars may be inspected at Lawton's Garage. Upon request demonstrations will be gladly given. Write for booklets describing these cars to

THE OPEN ROAD

Along Which An Effort Will Be Made to Assist the Wanderer on His Way Up Hill.

BY LEO J. RASCHE.

Daily events these days have a great tendency to arouse the war spirit, particularly the events in the country to the South of us, and there are some very aggravating occurances down that way. Things are pretty provoking sometimes. But the chances are, George, resting comfortably and living in ease at home as you are, many of those fellows in the trenches of Europe would gladly change places with you, and if your fighting spirit gets too strong you might migrate to Canada and the probabilities are that they would give you an opportunity to enlist.

Here's annother suggestion: You have personaly never been killed in Mexico, George, and if you have good sense the chances are that you are not going to be killed there. Things have been pretty much mussed up there for a long time and it has been a danger zone for several years. Plenty of time has been given for all time in the danger zone to move out, and those who take hazardous risks during troublous times not only endanger their own personal safety, but the peace of their own people. When the man in the circus places his head between the jaws of the lion it must sorely tempt the lion and it is a question whether it would be right to kill the lion if he took advantage of the fool-hardiness of the adventurer, or whether an immediate expedition should be organized to invade the jungles and kill off all the lions.

If the Mexicans would hold this coutry responsible for every "greaser" killed in the West it is probable they would be daily demanding reparation for some life or another, and there would be a big score to pay. It would be the part of patriotism for Americans to keep out of war zones during war, lest the adventurous spirits they are so frequently deprived of in the danger zones should arouse the naturally peaceful spirits of their countrymen and plunge the nation in war. Keeping out of danger and thereby keeping alive is a duty they owe themselves and their country. People have a right to go when and where they please, but if they go into the jaws of the lion in his rage, they should do so wholly and solely upon their own responsibility. If you go where killing is a popular pastime, George, you may expect to get yours at any time, and if you remain where peace prevails you may run a good chance of reaching your "three score and ten."

All good Americans regret the loss of good American lives at any time or place, but did the giving of a score of lives of American sailors and marines at Vera Cruz avenge the arrest of a couple of American sailors? Because a couple sailors were arrested did it pay to give the lives of a score or more? This war business is worth considering carefully, George, Peace at any price? Uo. But war when absolutely necessary and not before. There will always be war, but it should not be for trifles.

Artesian Wells Long Known.

Chinese have obtained water through the means of artesian wells for over a thousand years. One of the most famous wells in existence is that of Grenelle in the outskirts of Paris, where the water is brought from a depth of 1,796 feet. It yields 516¼ gallons of water a minute. A well in Pesth was sunk to the depth of 3,100 feet in the '70s.

News Is Stranger Than Fiction

By MOSS.

SUPPOSE advertising of all kinds the world over were wiped out for a month—utterly obliterated. Yes, it would ruin business. But it would do more—it would make this old world positively STUPID.

Why?

Because ADVERTISING IS NEWS, and we must keep pace with the news or grow stale.

Newspaper advertising—THE BEST ON EARTH—is displayed news, paid for with a purpose.

The latest news in newspaper advertising, a special sale of furs, a big reduction in suits, a saving in groceries, furniture at annual sale prices or five bars of soap for the price of three—all this latest news is as important to every housewife and the husband who pays the bills as the last word from Mexico or an account of the newest municipal or society scandal.

Advertising is POSITIVELY and ABSOLUTELY news.

Successful advertisers make their ads. as NEWSY as possible. Read the ads. in this paper as NEWS. Keep up with them. Truth is stranger than fiction. So is news.

VOLUME 40. OAKLAND, MARYLAND THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 3, 1916. NUMBER 49

FORMER AGENT AT ROWLESBURG HELD FOR COURT

Charged with Having Used B. & O. Pass Belonging To Another Man.

A preliminary hearing last Thursday before U. S. Commissioner Charles R. Lilly, at Grafton, was given W. V. Fairall on the charge of having used a pass belonging to another man to make the trip over the B. & O. lines from Fairmont to Uniontown. Fairall was ordered held under $500 bond for trial in the federal court at Wheeling in May. Bond was furnished in the required amount and he was released until the day of his trial.

Fairell is a prominent Rowlesburg man and for a number of years was employed as the agent of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Company at that place. He left the service several months ago, it is understood that his arrest came as a great surprise to his many friends in Oakland where he was born and reared as he held an excellent reputation here and his friends are hoping that he will be able to make a successful defense when the case comes up for a hearing in the federal court.

Big Engines Coming.

Officials of the Cumberland division of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad have been notified that several of the big Santa Fe type locomotives to be used on the Cumberland and Grafton divisions of the road will arrive at Martinsburg on February 10th It is expected that by that time improvements to the right of way will be completed and that the bridges along the road will be sufficiently strengthened to allow the passage of the huge machines over them. In order to accommodate the new type of power the tracks all over the system have been moved seven inches further apart. In Oakland the platforms at the station have been sawed off that much. The locomotives are the largest and most powerful machines ever built for use on an eastern road.

BASKET BALL

Lonaconing Defeats Collegians By Close Score.

The mighty Lonaconing "Champs," loaded for bear, came to Oakland last Friday evening and took the Collegians into camp by the close score of 23-19, before the largest crowd ever assembled in Oakland for a basket ball game.

This game was the fourth of a series of five games, the Champs previously winning two, and had the locals won, the series would have been tied two and two hence the great interest in this particular contest.

Both teams were determined to win, and the playing was fast and furious all through the contest. The first half ended 14—8 in the visitors' favor, but a sensational spurt by the locals early in the second half tied up the game at 18 each. The game after this became a veritable whirlwind, both teams going for all that was in them.

The Collegians had the ball in close proximity of the visitors' goal all through the contest, but were off in their shooting for the basket. Had they been up to form in this department, they would have won hands down, for time after time they had opportunities for goals and missed.

Spear, the "tall Sycamore" of the Champs, was a team in himself, caging five field goals, some of which were of sensational order. Chance, for the locals made one "circus" shot, Boyle and Sanner getting two good ones each. Frantz and Giessman were "there" as usual with good defensive play. National rules were played for the first time on the local floor. The Line-up.

GOLDSBOROUGH GETS READY FOR THE CONTEST

Former Governor in Baltimore Conferring On Plans For His Campaign.

BALTIMORE, Jan. 31.—Former Governor Phillips Lee Goldsborough is in town today for the first time since he left the chief executive's chair. He is here to confer with friends regarding his campaign for the Republican United States Senatorial nomination.

"I am full of confidence as to the result," he said this afternoon at the Rennert. "I believe that the great mass of the party are for my nomination, and I propose to make an active campaign. The only way I can be gotten out of the fight is for the other fellow to lick me, and then I will turn around and help him all I can in the general election."

Except for a slight cold, the former Governor said he felt tiptop. He will remain in Baltimore for the first half of the present week and during that time, he said, his papers may be filed with the Secretary of State.

Dr. Joseph I. France, who will oppose the former Governor in the senatorial primaries, is also shaping his plans for an active canvass of the state.

Both candidates will probably get into the open in a short time with their respective appeals for support.

That he is looking ahead for months Mr. Goldsborough indicated by the acceptance today of an invitation to be the orator at the Decoration Day exercises at Grant's Tomb in New York on May 30. The former governor was invited to make the oration last year, but he was compelled to decline and the invitation was again extended this year.

As to my active plans for headquarters," said Mr. Goldsborough, "they have not yet been completed. I will open headquarters as soon as it is necessary. As to when I shall file my papers, that also has not been decided. I may send them to the Secretary of State tomorrow, or I may wait until I come to Baltimore again."

Laughingly the former Governor added, "I had hoped to get the nomination without a fight, but since that is apparently impossible, I propose to fight in the primaries to get it. While I am here I shall confer with a number of persons as to my campaign plans."

Shortly after this talk the ex-Governor was joined by Col. W. Bailen Lowndes, and Chairman John B. Hanna, of the Industrial Accident Board who are expected to be prominent figures in the Goldsborough campaign.

The Republican senatorial primaries this year will be one of the most interesting settos ever seen in Maryland. Himself a good campaigner, Mr. Goldsborough will have against him in Dr. France a most aggressive candidate. Dr. France is generally recognized as a well-posted man on all public questions, a keen thinker and an able speaker.

In addition, he is a hard fighter and one who will carry the campaign from end to end of the state. It is too early to forecast the actual lineups, but every indication points to Dr. France receiving some of the strongest Republicans in the state.

The former Governor will, of course, make his campaign on his record in office just completed, and his friends are expected to appeal to all those who held state offices under the late administration.

THE DEATH RECORD.

DR. JAMES MCHENRY HOWARD.

Dr. James McHenry Howard, 76 years old, 939 St. Paul street Baltimore a veteran of the Civil War, died at the Johns Hopkins Hospital Monday, following an illness of about 12 weeks. Death was due to a complication of diseases. Dr. Howard who had an office at 202 East Twenty-fifth street for many years, was born March 26, 1839, and was a son of the late James Howard and Katherine M. Ross Howard, and received his education at the University of Virginia, where he graduated with honors. At the beginning of the Civil War he enlisted with the University of Virginia Guards, and went with that contingent of the Confederate Army when it was dispatched to Harpers Ferry. Later Dr. Howard joined Company C., of the First Maryland Regiment, and served under Capt. Edward Dorsey for one year, when he went to Richmond and joined Gen. Jeb Stuart's Horse Artillery.

During the railroad riots of 1878 he was made lieutenant colonel of the Seventh Maryland Regiment, and during the years of 1881 and 1882 was quarantine officer.

Dr. Howard is survived by two brothers (Harry C. Howard and David Ridgley Howard) and one sister (Miss Anne Harrison Howard), all of Baltimore.

For more than fifty years Dr. Howard was a summer visitor to Oakland and was well-known about town where he made and retained many warm friends.

Resolutions of Respect.

At a recent meeting of Fort Lodge No. 236, I. O. O. F. held at Gormania, W. Va., the following was adopted:

WHEREAS, By the inscrutable mystery of Divine dispensation, we are deprived of the companionship of our beloved Brotner E. R. Hilleary, who departed this life January 2nd, 1916, in the fullness of his manly vigor, and mature manhood; Be it

Resolved, That yielding obedience to the infinite wisdom of Him who is too wise to err, and too good to be unkind, we join his beloved family and friends in mourning and tender our united sympathy to his sorrowing wife and children, bereft of husband and father, soliciting for them the comforting presence of Him who never leaves or forsakes those who put their trust in Him; Be it further

Resolved, That the charter be draped, and the official mourning badge be worn for thirty days, and that a copy of these resolutions be sent to the bereaved widow and family, Mrs. Ethel Hilleary, and published in the Grant County, Press, and Oakland Republican, and a copy spread on the minutes.

WM. MORGAN CHARGED WITH MURDEROUS ASSAULT

Upon His Brother-in-Law, Donald Frazee, Is Held In The Oakland Jail.

William Morgan, aged about 45 years, is in jail in Oakland charged with having shot with intent to kill his brother-in-law, Donald Frazee, at Selbysport this county, on last Thursday evening as they were returning from services in the church at that point.

What brought about the trouble seems to have been a family affair Morgan, so it is claimed, treated his wife, a sister of Frazee, so shamefully that she left him and on the day preceding the shooting he made an effort to see her and effect a reconcillation, which brought about the trouble.

Morgan shot Frazee twice, one bullet entering his brest and another struck him about the shoulder. Both bullets came in contact with the ribs of the young man and following them around lodged in his back near the surface. Immediately after the shooting Morgan left and was apprehended at a point over the state line in Pennsylvaina, being delivered to Sheriff Ashby, who left for the scene of the shooting as soon as he was notified, at Somerfield, Pa., who brought him to Oakland and where he is being held pending the result of the injuries of Frazee who will appear against him as soon as he is able to leave his bed.

WHERE THE SHOE PINCHES.

This man KNOWS where the shoe pinches, and he lays the blame on no one but HIMSELF. "I should have KNOWN better." This is the kind of reform that counts. MOST people busy themselves trying to reform OTHER people. They think things would be just a little better if somebody ELSE did just a little different. But where the shoe pinches is probably with yourSELF, with MYself, with OURselves. When we get to the point of KNOWING this and acknowledging it, THEN we have made a start. Let's try this line of reasoning in tackling our Community problems. Where does the SHOE PINCH? "Am I doing anything that is keeping BACK the growth of Clarksburg?" "Am I leaving anything UNDONE to advance the growth?" With THIS spirit we CAN co-operate. Co-operation wins every time.

MONEY AT HOME

The fad for "imported" goods in this country for practically all times past has been discovered as a genuine fallacy. The European war has practically cut off the supply of these supposed superior goods and has thrown the proper light upon the merits of the domestic products. Already the fad has changed and today the popular article is the one "Made in U. S. A."

This means that millions of dollars heretofore going out of this country annually because of a mere fad will now remain in the United States and that there will be just that much more money at home and within reach of everybody. It means that many thousands of men will receive employment here making the articles which have heretofore been made in the foreign country.

During the past few years a fad has developed among the people throughout this country to do their shopping with the mail order houses. It is a fad much less warranted than that of buying the "imported" goods and has deprived the local communities of more than did the other fad deprive this great country in the way of money and home prosperity.

Through the influence of this fad the mail order houses have been reaping a great harvest. The popularity of the fad has enabled them to fleece the people in a manner which is truly shameful They have made gross misrepresentations in their catalogues and have employed many deceptive means to sell their goods to the unthinking public.

It is estima ed that several hundred thousand dollars annually is being sent from Garrett county and its trading district to these mail order houses. This means that just that amount of cash is being sent away never to return and the business men who have no interest whatever in this community and who do not pay one cent of taxes here profits to just that extent.

The local business people are your greatest assistance in building your community. They are your friends on all occasions and the people who will appreciate your co-operation in the effort to build a greater business community.

When misfortune befalls anyone of the community the business men are the first to be appealed to for assistance. When money must be raised for the bringing of an industry the same men are looked to for it. He is called upon to support the band, the ball team, the volunteer fire department and the many other institutions and causes for the protection, pleasure and convenience of all the people. An appeal to a mail order house for a donation in any one of these events or for any cause would be completely ignored.

This "fad" is proving a real detriment to every community throughout the country. The patrons of the mail order houses are not only receiving an inferior article in their purchases but the financial drain is retarding local development.

Community Building Is Our Aim.

We are here to serve the public and help make Kitzmiller and community a better place to live. We want to co-operate with everybody to this end.

THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 3, 1916

AND did you ever stop to think what would have happened if Noah had been against preparedness?

THE President hopes every man in public life will get what's coming to him. Could he have had Mr. Bryan in mind?

IN the last 38 years, from 1877 to 1914, including the total loss by fire in the United States and Canada was $5,866,000,000.

FREEDOM should be given the Philippines when they are able to appreciate the fact that it is a responsibility as well as a privilege.

MR. BRANEDEIS who has been appointed a Judge of the United States Supreme Court, was frequently mentioned for the attorney generalship in Wilson's cabinet, and had his Democratic affiliation been a little more marked would probably have been selected. He is an independent in politics, voting as seems best to him and holding no close allegiance to the Democratic machine in his state, Massachusetts. By his appointment, President Wilson has placed a member of Jewish race upon the Supreme Bench of the United States, for the first time in the history of the country and the selection is the more notable on that account.

A WILSON SCARECROW.

In these days, when the democracy of the country appears to be hopelessly divided, the House of Representatives entirely apathetic over the President's "preparedness policy," and the latter going about the country trying to make political capital, as many people believe to save his skin at the approaching fall election, the people generally can look with complacency upon the situation with a deep rooted conviction that this is only a Wilson and Bryan fight.

To read the President's speeches, one would conclude that the world was getting ready to pounce upon us—whereas, we believe that Wilson has gotton up his scorecrow and the press supporting him have resorted to their scare headlines for no other purpose than to break the hold Bryan has upon the affections of the rank and file of his party. Of course, to admit this would result in a smash up of the Wilson "preparedness" propaganda, and therefore, he is giving the country an example of what he is pleased to style his patriotism and his unselfish devotion to the country's cause. The truth of the matter is, Wilson wants the job of President again, and the only way he sees to get it, in the face of the Bryan opposition, is to go out among the people and try to scare them into belaboring their representatives to support his newly discovered remedy for his political ills.

The President tells the people that the blood of Americans will be shed for the flag if needed, but some of us can remember the time when the opportunity to shed their blood for the flag was presented to the Woodrow Wilson tribe and can recall no particular instance where the Wilson blood was so shed. Wonder how much blood the President is prepared to give himself in defense of the flag?

It is all very well to prepare for eventualities, but we recall that about a year ago, when Bryan was still with him, he announced his unalterable opposition to a policy of "preparedness." Wilson says he has changed his mind, and while anybody is at liberty to change his mind, the President has changed his mind upon so many matters of public interest that we have about reached the conclusion that he never had any settled convictions upon any of these matters, and we are forced to doubt the sincerity of his position now, and question the motives that have lead him to advocate his "preparedness policy."

We are opposed to war, for war is what Sherman said it was, but it will take more than Woodrow Wilson's finely rounded academic word pictures to convince the people of this country that we are on the verge of a clash with the rest of the world, especially when we know that he wants the job again, and that his fear is the fear of Bryan and nothing more.

DAILY GRIND AT THE STATE CAPITAL LEGISLATIVE MILL

Many Measures of Local Import Through The Hoppers.

STATE HOUSE, ANNAPOLIS, FEB. 2.—If the Rural Post Roads Bill, which has passed the National House of Representatives and is now pending in the Senate, shall become a law, it will be a very great aid toward completing the system of good roads throughout this State which has been so well managed for several years. The bill in Congress carries an appropriation of several millions of dollars, and each State is to receive a sum stipulated in the bill, which is to be applied and used in the work of good road building here. Maryland's share, according to the apprortionment in the bill, is $350,000, and the Maryland legislators are extremely anxious to have the Senate pass the bill, and to have the bill become effective before the annual roads appropriations shall have been made by the General Assembly now in session. With this in view, Delegate Fisher, Republican, of Prince George's county, just before adjournment for the week-end last Friday, introduced a Joint Resolution, calling upon the Senate of the United States to pass the Rural Post Roads Bill as speedily as possible, and the Resolution passed both Houses here without dissent. Certified copies of the Resolutions were immediately forwarded to Washington.

MAKES ROADS COMMISSION SMALLER.

Along the line of the good roads movement also, Delegate Wimbrow, Republican, of Worcester county, has introduced a bill in the House, reducing the membership of the Good Roads Commission from five to three members. Delegate Wimbrow states that the large amount of work already accomplished in the matter of good roads in Maryland puts the system in condition where the future work can be accomplished with three members of the board quite as "efficiently," and with considerably more "economy," as if five members are retained. He believes the present stage and condition of the good roads system fully justifies a decrease in the personnel of the Commission, and a great many other members of the House think the same thing.

BIG "DRY" DEMONSTRATION TOMORROW.

Tomorrow the State House will be in possession of the "Dry" faction of the State—representative men and women from every section of Maryland being expected to attend and participate in the hearing before the Senate and House Temperance Committees, jointly, in the House Chamber, and endeavor to persuade those committees that they ought to bring in the Statewide Prohibition Bills which each committee is considering; and they will at the same time try to convince the members of the General Assembly, who are expected to occupy seats in the House during the hearing, that they should pass the bill and submit the question to a vote of the people and let them determine this important question for themselves. Prof. Smith, of the Allegany Delegation, who introduced the bill in the House, will make a 10 minute speech and introduce the speakers among whom will be Senator Speicher, of Garrett county, who introduced the Prohibition Bill in the Senate, Dr. Thomas M. Hare, of the Anti Saloon league of Maryland, and other speakers of note.

AFRAID OF "BILLY" SUNDAY.

Activity upon the part of the liquor interests is said to be due to the desire of the "wets" to get the Prohibition Bill out of the Committees and disposed in both the Senate and House as quickly as possible. It is claimed by the representatives of the Liquor Dealers' Association that they have enough votes to defeat the bill if the measure can be gotten out and submitted to a vote of the Legislaturemen now, as they fear if action is postponed until the "Billy" Sunday campaign gets under way in Baltimore, in two or three weeks, a stronger sentiment in favor of the measure will be created and the danger of the bill passing will be materially increased. It is believed the "Billy" Sunday campaign will cause a wave of temperance and prohibition sentiment to sweep the State that will be irresistible on the part of certain members of the Legislature who are now "on the fence" or openly opposed to the pending Prohibition Bill.

LEGISLATION FOR GARRETT COUNTY.

A bill carrying an appropriation from the State of $20,000, for the purpose of providing protection against floods along the banks of the Potomac River, at Kitzmiller, along Bear Creek, at Friendsville, both in Garrett county, has been introduced by Chairman Fox, of the Garrett Delegation. Of this money, $10,000 is to be spent at Kitzmiller, and $10,000 at Friendsville, for the purposes stated, and two commissions of three members are created to supervise the work and carry out the provisions of the bill. The commissions named in the bill, will be composed of Messrs. Stanley S. Bender, Bert Pew and Bradley Bray, for Kitzmiller, and Messrs. Orval E. Welch, Henry L. Wolfe and Frederick Kemp, for Friendsville. Their compensation is fixed at 30 cents per hour for actual work performed in carrying out the provisions of the bill, and each commission will select one of its own members to act as secretary and treasurer. The bill was referred to the Committee on Ways and Means.

Subsequently it was found that the technical wording and phraseology of Fox's bill were found to be defective, and in order to avoid the delay incident to having the bill returned, the corrections made and then reintroduced in the House, Senator Speicher immediately had a duplicate bill drawn, correcting the errors in the fish bill, and introduced the new dratt in the Senate, where it was sent to the Committee on Finance.

CHANGING BOUNDARIES OF LOCH LYNN.

It has been discovered that the boundaries of Loch Lynn Heights in Garrett county, as described in the charter incorporating that town, includes a farm and other property which were not intended to be included when the charter was made originally. In order to correct these errors, an amendment to the charter of Loch Lynn Heights, changing the boundaries of the incorporated limits of the town so as to omit these properties which should not have been included at all, has been introduced in the House by Capt. Hayden, of the Garrett Delegation. Being a local measure, the bill was referred to the Delegation, and they have reported it favorably, sending it to the third-reading file for final passage. It will then go to the Senate.

READY FOR THIRD READING FILE.

The bill extending the term of the Clerk of the County Commissioners of Garrett county, from two to four years, was reported favorably by the Garrett Delegation as a Select Committee, and it was ordered to be printed for a third reading.

Other bills which have been reported favorably and ordered to be printed for the third reading file, are Chairman Fox's bill fixing a bounty for fox and hawk scalps, and delegate Hayden's prohibiting the killing of deer in Garrett county for a period of six years, or until October, 1922.

Delegate Shartzer has introduced a bill to repeal the law enacted in 1914, prohibiting ministers from paying fees or commissions to anyone for bringing or sending couples to them to be married. It is said this law became unpopular because of the reflection the bill cast, inferentially, upon the clergymen of Garrett county.

A bill to enact a law similar to the one Mr. Shartzer's bill aims to repeal, has been introduced in the Senate by Senator Williams, of Cecil county.

FOR JUSTICE OF THE PEACE IN OAKLAND.

Capt. Hayden, of the Garrett Delegation, has endorsed the application of E. I. West, of Oakland, for Justice of the Peace for Oakland District No 14, vice, Justice Dunham, deceased. Capt. Hayden, who is a Republican, called on Governor Harrington in the interest of Mr. West, who is a Democrat, and filed his application, petitions, etc. Mr. West seeks the appointment now to fill out the unexpired term of his deceased predecessor, and then wants reappointment for the full term. Mr. West's petition is signed by prominent attorneys, court officers, business men and citizens, and when Capt. Hayden's endorsement was added, Gov. Harrington said, practically, that Mr. West will be named. Capt. Hayden explained to the Governor that it was a case of a Republican endorcing a Democrat, due to a situation in which Mr. West had no Democrats in the General Assembly of Maryland, for Garrett county, to whom he could send his petition, and the Republican member knew that the appointee will be a Democrat, so that he need not recommend one of his own party, and the courtesies are mutual. It is expected that Mr. West will be appointed promptly.

STATE HOUSE NOTES AND PERSONALS.

Six Republicans, residents of Annapolis, retained to keep the State House clean pending the appointment of the employees for the session, have been displaced by six Democrats. When it came to paying off the Republicans they were not allowed for their night work at 15 cents per hour and were paid only for ten hours daytime. This is regarded as carrying the "economy" program a trifle too far, and it may be made the subject of some speech making before long.

Chairman Fox, of the Garrett Delegation, missed his train connections somewhere enroute and was absent from the session Monday night. He turned up "right side up" "with care," yesterday, however, and the 1916 session was thus enabled to proceed.

Mr. William Miller, of the "Melky Miller" Distillery, Garrett county, dropped in at roll call Monday night with "a message from mars." "Silver Bill" is making "google eyes" at the House Temperance Committee, where reposes Delegate Shartzer's bill to "stop the works" at the gin mill. Mr. Miller explained that he just dropped in to renew some old acquaintances, and make some new ones, incidently.

GARRETT WILL BE VERY "DRY."

Senator Speicher's bill amending the local option law of Garrett county so as to make it a crime to give or furnish liquor to any person under 21 years of age in the county, and also appending an anti-shipping provision to the original law, was passed by the Senate today.

The measure provides that no "person or public or private carrier shall knowingly accept or receive for shipment, transportation or delivery to any person or place within the limits of Garrett county, or to carry, bring into, transfer to any other person, carrier or agent, handle, deliver or distribute in Garrett county, any intoxicating liquor, regardless of the name by which it may be called; provided, however, that individuals may bring into Garrett county, upon their person or as their personal baggage, for their personal use only, such liquor in quantity not to exceed one quart, and the proper officers of churches may receive wine in unbroken packages for sacramental purposes only."

When the Speicher bill was called upon its final passage Senator Norris called attention to the fact that the law it is intended to amend has been voted upon in Garrett county and that the voters have approved it as it stands.

"It is now being changed by the Legislature," he said. "Under this bill no liquor can be shipped into the county, but a man living near the border can go across and bring in a quart and he can make as many trips a day as he wants to. All of the provisions in the bill were voted upon, and if they are to be changed it seems to be a sort of breach of faith, but in view of the idea that Senator Speicher is supposed to know what his constituents want I cast my vote in the affirmative."

Senator Ogden said that he felt a strong indisposition toward the legislation, but that the principle of home rule was strong within him and remarked "if Garrett county wants it they shall have it. Anything the county wants the delegation from Baltimore city will help them to get."

"And I hope that when similar questions arise that will affect Baltimore the representatives of localities will concede to our wishes in regard thereto." The Senator added that under the Speicher bill a father who happened to have a bottle of beer in his house and gave it to his son who was under age would be sent to jail.

Senator Speicher said that the provision was made under a previously enacted law to the effect that if the State should go "wet" no saloon should sell or give liquor to minors.

KILLING TYPHOID

U. S. Public Health Service Co-operates With Rural Districts And Shows Results.

Reduction in typhoid fever and improvement in sanitary conditions have followed the intensive investigations of rural communities carried on by the United States Public Health Service in co-operation with the local and State health officers, according to the annual report of the Surgeon General of that Service. During the past fiscal year 16,359 rural homes in eight different states were visited and many of them re-visited. In each of these homes information was obtained as to the prevalence of disease and insanitary conditions and a complete sanitary survey of the premises conducted. This was followed by reinspections to determine if remedial measures has been instituted. In but a relatively small precentage of the cases did the persons concerned, after having their attention drawn to the danger of a particular unhygienic condition, fail to inaugurate corrective measures. Stimulus was given to the work by means of public lectures, the formation of active sanitary organizations, and the enlisting of all public spirited citizens in the campaigns for reform. Public buildings were also inspected and local authorities given expert advice in solving such sanitary problems as the disposal of excrete, the prevention of soil pollution, and the maintenance of pure water supplies.

The surveys made during the year 1914 had shown that in rural communities less than one per cent. of the homes had sanitary toilets and that more than fifty per cent. of the people were using water from polluted sources. This condition, according to the Public Health Service, made the rural sanitation question, loom large among the matters vitally affecting the welfare of the nation. Following these studies and as a result of the interest aroused, the typhoid fever rate, and excellent indicator of the sanitary status of a community, has in some places frequently been cut to one quarter of its previous figure. In Berkeley county, West Virginia, the cases of typhoid fever were reduced from 249 to 40 in one year. In Orange County, North Carolina, the rural sanitation campaign resulted in a reduction of the cases from 59 to 17.

The tangible results of operations in rural sanitation indicate that marked advancement in maintaining hygienic and satisfactory surroundings in country districts is possible by the application of the common principles of preventive medicine. Insanitary conditions exist largely because they are not known to be such. Actual demonstrations of their harmfulness, together with definite recommendations for their correction, remain one of the most gratifying and successful methods for instituting reforms and has been, in the experience of the Public Health Service, invariably accompanied by definite and measureable results.

The people of Bloomington feel elated over the thought that a branch railroad and county road will be built from Luke along the north side of the Potomac to Bloomington and Lochiel. This means a bright future for Bloomington and easier and quicker access to the Tri-Towns. Then the extension of the county road up Savage river to the mouth of Crabtree, following that creek to Swanton on a slight grade, from thence to Oakland, would mean thousands of dollars value to the county, giving access to the fine markets of the Tri-Towns. Bloomington has prospects of her coal to last many years. One company on the West Virginia side claims they have coal for a hundred years. So with roads and new developments Bloomington will be one of the desirable towns in Garrett county.

Home Merchant vs. M. O. Houses

SYMPATHY—BUT NO ASSISTANCE.

A farmer of very moderate means living near the central part of W. Va., became a patron of one of the large mail order houses in Chicago. He boasted to his neighbors that he did not spend one cent of money with the local merchants. He even solicited his neighbors to join him in ordering goods from this favorite mail order house and was successful in taking considerable trade from the local stores.

It was but a few months ago that this same farmer had a misfortune of a fire which swept away his house with all its contents and his barn with all his feed and farming implements. He immediately wrote to the mail order house, related his calamity and asked for assistance. It is needless to relate the reply but here it is:

"Dear Mr—

We are sorry indeed to hear of your great misfortune. It is contrary to the rules of this company to make any donations. However, we hope you will soon recover your losses and be in position to continue your patronage of this house.

Yours truly, etc."

In order to alleviate the suffering of the family action was taken by the neighbors and by the assistance of the local business men the man was relieved of his embarrassment. It was done by the men that this man had refused to patronize and whom he opposed by soliciting business for the out-of-town business.

With its magnificent climate great area of fertile and well lying farm land along with other natural advantages, Garrett county is coming into her own at a rapid rate. There has been more rapid developments of these resources during the past few years than ever before and the immediate future for this section of the state is particularly bright. This is because these fine natural conditions are attracting people from other sections and the on-coming generations are applying modern farming ideas as well as business development.

There can be but one material fault found with the conditions as they exist here and that is the lack of co-operation between the business men of the county and the citizens in general. In view of the high standard of citizenship which is found throughout the entire county this condition should not exist and it is the general belief that much of it comes from lack of giving the matter the careful thought it should have. It is with the view of setting all the people to thinking the matter over that we have taken up this campaign.

If the business men of the various commercial centers of the county are at fault we would urge them to make themselves right with the people without delay for their own welfare as well as for the good of the community and where the farmer and other citizens are neglecting their own interests as well as the interests of the entire community by throwing their support to other communities we likewise urge them to correct their fault and get in working harmony with their local merchant.

Like other communities there are many instances where the slight difference arising between the merchant and patron is permitted to end their business relations and in place of adjusting the difference and establishing an alliance for mutual benefit the real substance of the dissatisfied patron is sent into some far away metropolitan city. With their immense amount of misleading literature the mail order houses of the cities are encouraging this dissatisfaction with the local merchant as far as possible. They have been the means f disturbing the peace and prosperity of thousands of communities throughout the country and have thereby built up great business concerns. These concerns have no interest whatever in the welfare of the local communities, pay no taxes here or contribute in any way to the maintenance of the local community.

They have made themselves unwelcome invaders in every community where they have operated, and that extends all over the country. There are many instances, however, where the citizens have gotten together and after getting a thorough understanding of the situation have returned to home cooperation and have done entirely away with the objectionable out-of-town trading. Where this has been accomplished the towns and villages have been built up and made prosperous. The stores were made larger and greater with the result that the patrons were given a great advantage in shopping in every line. The farmers were given a greater and better market for their products. The city, town and villages paid a greater volume of taxes and reduced the tax rate on the farm and homes of every individual. Farm land became more valuable on account of its proximity to a good trading point. The local prosperity results in better schools, better churches, improved roads and many other advantages not enjoyed by the community not receiving the full benefit of the money produced there.

As stated above, Garrett county is developing at a rapid rate and with a better co-operation between all the people we will develop more rapidly and will have many advantages which we will not otherwise receive from the fruits of our labor. It is with this aim in view The Republican is making this campaign.

The superiority of home products over that which is handled by the mail order house is best demonstrated in the harness business. The illustrations and descriptions given in the catalogue would lead one to believe that the harness handled by them was the best material and was just as good if not better than that produced by the man at the bench in the home town harness shop. When the harness arrives the purchaser is usually pretty well satisfied with what he has gotten because it has the appearance of being genuine.

It is but a few weeks however, until the difference comes to the surface. The leather begins to stretch, sag and twist. The machine sewing begins to let lose and the owner soon finds that it is very unsafe to go out on the roads with it. The interiority has come to the front but it is too late to send it back and the owner must "grin and bear it."

In the state of Ohio there is a large manufacturing concern which, for many years, manufactured high grade harness exclusively. In useing only the best material for its products there became a great accumulation of second and third grade leather which was useless in such a manufacturing plant. It would not do for their class of harness.

One day a bill came from a mail order house for cheap harness. "We want them cheap. Make them look good but make them cheap" wrote the mail order house. Here was the solution of the great accumulation of inferior leather. The contract was made and by the cheapest of the material and the rapidity with which the cheap harness could be turned out there was found to be more profit in this class of work than in the higher grade. The result is that this big plant is now making the mail order house harness almost exclusively.

Grantsville has long been one of the most important trading centers in Garrett county and the presence of the business houses there has always been a great convenience to all the people of the great community which surrounds it. It has afforded the people throughout that section the best possible schools, churches and social advantages. The many people living there and not engaged in active business have been attracted by the presence of the splendid mercantile service and the many conveniences which are brought about by the centralization of business.

These attractive conditions are contingent entirely upon the financial prosperity of the business houses as without them the attractiveness of the place would be taken away. The business men are the largest contributors toward the maintainence of the public institutions and it is entirely through them that the farmers of the community have a market for their products. This being the case it is to the advantage of all that they co-operate to the end of making Grantsville a better business center. If the people of the community will patronize the local stores as much as possible they will soon find themselves doing as much for themselves as they are for the merchants.

No community can boast of a better trading place than that which is being conducted in Grantsville by J. J. Bender. He has been engaged in business there during the past seventeen years and has done much toward the building of that fine community. He has made for the people there a cash market for their produce and has supplied them thebest possible line of merchandise. His fine store is truly a credit to the people.

During his long career there he has seen to it that his customers received full value for their money in every transaction. His high class goods are the best to be had anywhere in the country and his cheaper goods are just what they are represented to be and likewise worth every penny paid for them.

The stock of groceries found in this store is seldom equaled outside of the much larger towns or cities. There is also a large stock of flour, feed, hardware, harness, farming impliments, paints, oils, glass, drugs and queensware.

Mr. Bender is a community builder, is interested in the welfare of every person in the community and has always made himselt a valuable citizen in Grantsville.

Did you ever stop to think what would be the ultimate result should every family in this community purchase all their supplies from the mail order house? And some of you are doing that very thing for thousands of dollars are being sent out of this community each month for merchandise no better and no cheaper than your local merchants carry in stock. Should every family here be so disloyal to their home city, what use would there be for store buildings, office buildings and bank? None! The merchants would be forced out of business and their empty buildings would stand as ghastly monuments to your disloyalty, while their clerks and employes would be forced to go elsewhere in search of employment, leaving "For Rent" signs on their homes to stare you in the face for months, and even years, homes which some of them had worked hard for years to acquire, while others were paying for on the installment plan, now forced to stand idle and vacant and falling into decay for lack of purchasers and tenants.

The banks would also be forced to close their doore and quit business after the merchants left the city, for it is largely the merchants money that sustains the banks. There would be no more beautiful bank buildings erected to adorn your city. And if you needed some money to lift a mortgage or buy a home, or to pay doctor bills or funeral expenses, where would you get it? Would the mail order house which had been getting your trade and your money come to your rescue? Hardly! You would be obliged to pay for a money order each and every time you sent an order away for supplies, instead of enclosing the convenient certified check or New York draft, which your bank formerly accommodated you with free of charge. If you had unexpected guests for dinner and found you were out of coffee, sugar, flour or other essential, instead of sending out to the corner grocery as you do now, you would have to keep your guests in waiting until you sent to Chicago for the missing articles.

Take a look at the tax books of the city and see if the merchants and the bankers do not pay the bulk of your taxes. With them gone, who will contribute the money to keep up your streets and support your schools, unless you do? With the merchants and the bankers and their employes and their money gone out of the city and property depreciating in value, it would inflict a great hardship on those remaining to bear the burden of taxation, and they would eventually grow discouraged and leave like rats deserting a sinking ship. And this community would be doomed. By buying at home and boosting for the home town you will not only make this a great and prosperous industrial and commercial center, but you will save money while you are bringing this about. Be loyal to your city and be loyal to your home by leaving the outside merchants alone.

MRS. M. G. MARTIN.

The presence of Mrs. M. G. Martin's establishment has been the means of making Oakland a more popular shopping place for the women of this section of the country. The millinery establishment of Mrs. Martin has become well established as the place where none but the very latest styles are carried. In order to keep in touch with the current fads and prevailing styles Mrs. Martin makes semi-annual trips to New York where she acquaints herself with them.

In addition to the millinery business there is a fine line of suits, coats and waists which are likewise strictly up-to-the minute in respect to material and style. Mrs. Martin is also agent for the famous Gossard corset which has long been the most popular with the best dressed women throughout the country.

It cannot be said that Mrs. Martin is in competition with the mail order houses as such goods as carried by her cannot be purchased from them even though she handles some popular price goods. When a purchase is made here the purchaser knows just what has been purchased and knows that it not only fits, is strictly in harmony with the style of that day but is also becoming to the person who is to wear it.

W. H. KAHL & SONS.

It is safe to say that there is not a business establishment in the city of Oakland which is of greater importance to all the plople than that which is being conducted by H. W. Kahl & Sons. It is not only proving a great convenience to all the people of the entire county but it is the means of bringing much money to the community.

Whether it is the building of a new home, barn or any other structure, or the remodeling or repairing of such a building the service of this concern is right here at your door to do the work just as cheap and good as it can be done by any person or firm in the country. This includes wood work, brick or concrete. There is a lumber for every purpose as well as a fine stock of sash, doors, roofing and material for any building.

A special effort is how being made along the line of silos for farmers. They are being produced in both wood and concrete and those who have investigated have found him to be furnishing a silo far superior to that purchased elsewhere and at a lower cost.

Mr. Kahl and his sons, Messrs Albert and Walter, are boosters for Oakland and can be depended upon to do their full share toward the betterment of the community.

WALTER'S
Oscillating
Sleds

If you want a sled you should buy a good hand made oscillating white oak bob sled, made of the best white oak wood that is possible to get, and will outlast any factory sled on the market.

I have been making sleds for a number of years, also repairing all kinds and certainly ought to know where a sled ought to be made stronger and better than a factory that perhaps never repaired a sled in their existence.

My stock is larger and better than ever before. If you need a sled come and see mine before you purchase, then if we don't deal it will be because quality won't have anything to do with it.

Prices very reasonable. Remember the name of the sled.

ZEPPELINS TWICE BOMBARD PARIS; TURKS ROUTED IN THE CAUCASUS PRUSSIANS PIERCE FRENCH FRONT

German Army in Artois Drive Captures Line of Trenches ---Key to Suez Canal Surrounded by Superior Army of Turks and Arabs

BRITISH GARRISON IS HEMMED IN BY THE MOSLEMS

Paris.—German Zeppelins raided Paris twice within 2 hours. Nine women were killed and 14 wounded, one baby was killed and two children wounded, the total casualities being 54.

Ten houses were damaged by the raiders. Three houses were the scenes of eight killed and injured each; in another house seven persons were killed or injured.

One of the houses in which the most serious damage was done was a home in which the family had met to celebrate the return of a son, a Zouave, on leave of absence from the front. Around the table were the grandfather 66 years of age; his daughter, the latter's husband, and aunt, two sons and a girl of 15 years. Seven mutilated corpses were found in the wreckage of the house.

Renewal of the German offensive south of the Somme, in France, resulted in the capture by the Germans of two miles of French positions south of Frise and also the capture of that village. Northeast of Neuville the Germans stormed trenches over a front of 1,700 yards, Berlin claiming the capture of 1,287 prisoners and nine machine guns.

Turkish airmen dropped bombs on an Allied monitor, which fired upon Akbach, in the Dardar lles. Three bombs hit the vessel aft of the bridge, setting it ablaze, so that only with difficulty could the monitor flee to the Bay of Kephalos on the island of Imbros, reported Constantinople.

Abandonment of all attempts to stop the Teuton drive through Albania is foreshadowed in an official statement issued by the French War Office telling of the continued retreat of the Serbians.

Guns and munitions are being taken from Albania to Italy. The fact that these stores are sent to Italy instead of to Avlona, where the Italian expedition is concentrated, is taken to indicate that Italy may abandon even that port.

Prisoners taken during the last few days by the Russians confirm reports of the terrible condition of the German troops in the Pinsk marshes, where a rapid thaw released vast quantities of subterranean water.

Not only have thousands of caissons, quantities of munitions and numerous guns been ingulfed, the dispatch says, but various intrenched detachments of troops, and often large ones, have been cut off, and, having been unable to extricate themselves from the marshy labyrinth, they perished miserably.

TURKS DRIVE BACK BRITISH.

London.—A British army protecting Aden, the "Gibraltar of the East" and key to the Suez Canal, was reported by Berlin to be in great peril from attacks by vastly superior forces of Turks and Arabs.

The British are said to have been driven from all the vast territory held by them in southern and southwestern Arabia at the beginning of the war and to have fallen back to Aden for a final stand after losing 15,000 men killed and 20,000 wounded.

The Germans say the British forces are penned up in Aden, near the entrance to the Red Sea, and if they fail to hold their position the approach to the canal will pass from their hands.

The garrison is defending itself stubbornly and only the support of the warships, it is said, has saved it from capture.

The British official Press Bureau gave out a statement denying the truth of German reports concerning the situation at Aden.

The British army besieged at Kut-el-Amara by the Turks has driven back the investing force. The Moslems have evacuated their trenches on the land side of the city and withdrawn to about a mile from the British defenses.

Fighting has been renewed on the Russian front, and at many places from Riga down into eastern Galicia the armies have come to grips without important changes of terrain.

Dispatches regarding the situation in Albania indicate that the Austrians are still advancing. British military men predict that Essad Pasha, the Provisional Governor, would be able to hold out a considerable time, as the condition of the roads prevents the moving of artillery.

BRITAIN NEEDS SHIPS.

War Requirements Inspire Proposal for Imports Embargo.

London.—Walter Runciman, president of the Board of Trade, has been holding conferences for the last few days with representatives of various business interests which would be affected by the proposed embargo, the purpose of the conferences being to evolve means of a practical character, while at the same time minimizing, as far as possible, all damage to legitimate trade.

Rome.—The Russian drive in the Caucasus, having as its object the relief of the British army beleaguered at Kut-el-Amara, made another big gain.

The Muscovites followed up their previous successes and swept into the town of Khynsskala, between Erzerum and Mush.

They captured large quantities of arms and ammunition and many prisoners fell into their hands.

Russian military experts assert it is practically impossible for the Germans to send reinforcements from Constantinople to aid the Turks at Erzerum. To send troops from Bagdad would mean the weakening of the forces which are facing the British in Mesopotamia. As between Kut-el-Amara and Erzerum it is believed in Petrograd the Turks will decide to concentrate their strength at Erzerum.

In Persia the Czar's army defeated a large force of Turks, inflicting a heavy loss in killed and wounded and taking many prisoners and large quantities of ammunition and military supplies. Petrograd says the victory is important, as the Russians got hold of munitions which apparently had been stored for an extensive campaign.

The fighting on the Austro-Italian front is of a desperate character and the Italians, with the bayonet, have reoccupied on the heights west of Gorizia, ground they had been forced to give up in an Austrian attack.

Berlin gave out for publication through James W. Gerard, United States Ambassador, a charge that the French and British have been guilty of cruelty and have violated the rules of war on the western front.

MONTENEGRO SURRENDERS.

Berlin.—The formal surrender of Montenegro and the signing of articles for the laying down of arms by the Montenegrins was officially announced here.

The act by which Montenegro was definitely eliminated as an active factor in the war was completed at 6 o'clock Tuesday night, Berlin says, the representatives of the Montenegrin Government accepting the terms named by Austria-Hungary. The demands had previously been rejected on the ground that they made practically a vassal state of Montenegro.

Germans reported that enormous damage was done at Dover when their air squadron raided the British coast and that a transport anchored in the harbor was sunk, despite the British announcement that the results were slight.

They also say one of their bombs fell on a deposit of mines, killing thirty-nine persons, including one officer and twenty-four soldiers.

Hard fighting is reported on the western front, and the French and Germans met foot to foot near Neuville when the French tried to retake the trenches captured from them by the Germans. The loss on both sides was heavy.

PRESS ALLIED TRADE PLANS.

French Chambers of Commerce Hope to Capture German Markets.

Paris.—A commercial understanding among the allied countries and plans to conquer the foreign markets were among the important economic questions discussed at a meeting of the Presidents of the Chambers of Commerce of France. More than 120 chambers were represented.

The promoters of the alliance of business interests, represent Great Britain and France.

PITH OF THE WAR NEWS

The Germans began another big drive in the west, centering their attacks at two points on the French line. The gain in territory made by the Germans was the most extensive reported in several months.

In the Caucasus the Russians have scored further successes against the Turks.

In the Balkans the Austrians continue to make progress in Albania, reporting the occupation of Alessio and San Giovanni di Medua.

On he eastern front there have been only isolated engagements between the Austrians and the Russians.

Since Oct. 1, 1915, 16 German aeroplanes have been lost in engagements on the western front, while the Allies are known to have lost 63, the Berlin War Office stated.

It is alleged that wounded German prisoners, including officers, have been placed in positions before the defenses of the Allies, where they would be under the fire of German guns, and have been kept there for hours, in some cases, in the utmost agony.

South of Givenchy the Germans succeeded in getting a footing in some parts of the French trenches.

PRESIDENT SAYS NATION MUST ARM

Arouses Middle West in Campaign for Preparedness

PEACE AND EXPANSION

America Will at No Time Cravenly Avoid Conflict to Uphold Its Convictions, He Asserts — Must Stand as Strong Brother.

POINTS IN SPEECHES OF WILSON ON DEFENSE

Country faces danger because of the world war.

Time might come when the President of the United States could not keep out of war and maintain honor of the nation.

New circumstances have arisen that make it necessary that the country should prepare herself for national defense.

Dangers are infinite and constant. Wherever there is contact there is friction. Wherever the ordinary rules of commerce at sea and of international relationships are apt to be thrust aside and ignored there is danger of the more critical kind of controversy.

Exert fullest influence for preparedness.

There are many differences between Republicans and Democrats, but not upon nation's safety.

Sorry this is a campaign year. Seeks no personal profit out of defense.

The only way you can maintain peace is by enjoying the thorough respect of everybody with whom you deal.

We must defend life of this nation against any sort of interference.

Willingness of young men of country to volunteer in proposed army is going to be test of preparedness.

Has no anxiety on what Congress will do.

World is on fire; tinder everywhere.

Women feel the pulse of the nation more than men do. No difference between men and women when it comes to national defense.

National Guard not instrument for immmediate use.

Chicago.—President Wilson's campaign to inform the country of the grave dangers it must face unless the army and navy are strengthened adequately continued with renewed energy. His schedule called for five speeches in Illinois and Wisconsin. The President spoke from the observation end of his private car at Waukegan, Ill., and Kenosha and Racine, Wis., He delivered a set speech in an auditorimu at Milwaukee at 2:30 o'clock in the afternoon and in the evening made another in the Auditorium at Chicago.

Chicago gave the President a big non-paatisan reception.

New York.—Sounding a solemn warning that the world of today is not the world of tomorrow, no man knowing today what the world will be tomorrow, and declaring that "No political party can disappoint America," Woodrow Wilson, President of the United States, opened his country wide campaign for preparedness in this city.

"Let no man dare be a marplot. Let no man bring partisan passion into these great things," he said.

MANN PLEADS FOR DEFENSE.

Republican Leader Sees U. S. in Danger After Present Conflict.

Washington.—Representative James R. Mann of Illinois, the Republican leader, in a speech in the House, expressed the opinion that the United States is likely to be called to defend itself at the close of the present war. He urged Congress to make large appropriations for the army and navy and enact legislation which will enable American industry to supply all the Government needs in the event of war.

Mr. Mann, who has heretofore opposed increased armaments, spoke with great deliberation, and as he urged that the question of national defense be treated in a non-partisan way, he was applauded by members of the House.

THE OPEN ROAD

Along Which An Effort Will Be Made to Assist the Wanderer on His Way Up Hill.

BY LEO J. RASCHE.

KAISER BILL'S BIRTHDAY.

"Some men are born great, some achieve greatness, others have greatness thrust upon them." That's an old one and a good one, but the best word in it is the word, "achieve" because most men who mount the hill are not born at the top but at the bottom and this thing of thrusting greatness is not a daily practice, so most conspicuously out of the quotation arises the one word, "achieve." Many dubs have been born to great places, but that did not make them great. Others have been born to great places and made the places greater because they occupied them, and none ever had their backs broken with the greatness thrust upon them because they had first to be great enough to bear the burden. So from the sentence above quoted we sift the word "achieve," as the one part that stands best the test of analyzation.

If a man be born to a princely place and fails to achieve he is lost behind the barrier of his own insignificance, and if a man is born in the most lowly estate and does by his own efforts achieve, for all achievement is by individual effort, he will loom like a light of obscurity, and surmount the barrier of birth that originally hid him from his well won heritage. Achievement is a powerful personality made strong by perseverance. Greatness is in the man and not in the place he occupies. Character will conquer conditions.

In all ages there have been men great in peace and great in war. War is one of the worst woes that warps the world. It has always been a hindrance to humanity, a voracious, greedy glutton that gloats over gore. It has always substituted sorrow and distress and desolation for happiness and husbandry and humanitarianism. It always will. Mars is a mighty old meddler whom men cannot resist when he starts to stir up strife. There are those who are wasting words in the vain hope that they can head off future strife—pacifists who imagine they can make men with the blood of ten thousand years of fighting ancestors coursing through their veins simply kiss and make up when they feel like fighting—make their little arguments with ink and air. Would that they could! But it is an absurd idea for parleying pacifists to imagine they can obstruct the tide of men's passions. Men have fought from the beginning of the world, and what effect will the work and words of these pacifists have on the fighting generations of the future. Long after their scattered dust has mingled again with Mother Earth, in unborn centuries to come, red blood will still be ruling—young blood, fighting blood—and when wrong outrages this blood of the future and arouses it to resentment and revenge to the flood-tide of fury—it will demand an outlet in war. Men don't kiss when they're mad, they fight. Mars has lived since the beginning. He's in the prime of his youth today. The years rest lightly upon him, which seems to indicate that he'll probably live to a ripe old age. All of which leads us up to today, and to the war lord of today.

Fifty-seven years ago today he was born, not great but to a great place. Greatness was not thrust upon him, but he was thrust into a place of greatness, a place of power. He studied, he planned, he thought, he achieved. He was not content to live in luxury and tote a title. He could have done so and he could have lived fit, fed and fat and wandered on his way without worry. He had an empire, did this tiny mite that entered the world fifty-seven years ago today. But he was not content with merely the title of ruler he wanted to rule and he rules. He wanted to make his empire the mightiest in the world and he is trying to, is Kaiser Bill. Today he is the most prominent figure in the entire world, the storm centre of the nations, the most conspicuous personality that looms upon the horizon of worlds events—he is Germany. What one Louis of France once said of himself, "I am the state," might well today be actually applied to Wilhelm. He is not only the Fatherland, but the father of the Fatherland. Some accuse him of setting the world aflame with war. That's a question that cannot be settled here. But get this fixed in your ko-ke, Fritz: No one man ever starts a war. Wars usually start themselves when men get ready to fight. And remember this: An argument has two sides, even a small one, and an argument of the proportions of the one in which Wilhelm is engaged today on his 57th anniversary, has to naturally have several sides. But this is not an eulogy of William the warior, but a citation of the vigorous work of William the man. He could have lounged in luxury and ooze out his life in a secure throne rendered obscure by his own obscurity. But he worked, he planned, he studied and he achieved. And then, with his achievements, he put the force of his powerful personality working toward empire aggrandizement and empire expansion, and today the princes who played while William worked are puppets in the purple of the court in comparison with William who wears the stern habilements of war. He was not born great, Fritz, but to a great place, and he has achieved greatness as a man by individual effort, the only channe thru which men high and low arrive. And because William, the man, made himself great, Fritz, win or lose, his tory will write William, the Emperor great. Not as a warrior, mind you, but as a man and an emperor.

THE PEOPLE'S FORUM.

Perilous Times.

It is undoubtedly true that we are living in perilous times. Such times were predicted long ago and it looks as if we were coming into the times predicted by prophets of former ages. Be that as it may there have never been times so fraught with vital interests to the world as now, times that are enough to make the heart of all men, and especially christians quail.

You can find anxiety enough everywhere, without doubt and this necessiates all christians to stand by their annus; and do their duty. It may be well to consider some of the perils of the day, or some of the things that make our times perilous.

(1) We are in perilous times morally We are apt to boast of our times and comfort ourselves with the thought that they are so much better than they used to be, and so rest content. You may not all agree with me, yet I must say what I believe, and what I hope you will believe too. However, I am not concerned about pleasing all, as much as I am to present the truth. I know there are some who will say pessimism—you are trying to give needless alarm. There is no danger, for things are going on as they always have. Nor am I seeking popularity, for those who warn of evil to come, are seldom popular.

Some may say, he's a bit blue, he doesn't see the great amount of good that is being done in the world, I do not forget that. It is easy to look on one side of things and from that view point, draw very strong conclusions, though they may be wholly wrong. We must look at the good and the evil as well, for there is an immense amount of evil—a far greater amount than the good. From a moral standpoint we are in perilous times. The unrest of the world is very noticeable.

In some of the countries of Europe it reached the point of revolution; it passed that and plunged the nations into the most gigantic war of the ages.

The forment of discontent is evident in our own country. Back of sudden outbreaks of strikes in Spain, is what appears to be an organized revolutionary movement. Portugal has been in a state of turmoil which has at times made the ezistence of the republic precarious. Food notes have necessitated material law in some quarters severe droughts and crop failures in others, with rising cost of living, is the most serious question of the day in France and Austria. Lawlessness seems to be in the air. Lack of confidence characterizes the business of the world. Uncertainty and forebodings of evil control the minds of multitudes. Yet in a large part of the church is an optomistic feeling which verges on delusion. Presently they will see signs in the sun and moon and stars and upon the earth distress of nations in perplexity for the roaring of the sea and the billows; men fainting for fear and for expectation of the things which are coming on the world, for the powers of the heavens shall be shaken.

These words refer to the last period of the present dispensation, when grievous times shall come; when men shall be without love for kindred, implacable, incontent, fierce, yielding to self indulgence, hard hearted and haters of good things and persons, betrayers of their brethren, false in friendship, headstrong, impulsive, lovers of pleasure more than lovers of God—for, the love of pleasure destroys the love of God.

The outward profession of religion is maintained under a visible prevalence of wickedness. Men are prone to forsake the truth and seducers abound.

There is a mixture on the part of professions with the world, indeed you can scarcely distinguish them at times. Outward duties receive attention but the inward spiritual duties decay. Persecution against true believers will be, indeed is rampant now, in many places.

The form of godliness which is in itself right, beautiful and advantageous, will continue to exist, but the powers thereof will be and is already denied. Its consequences are alarming, as seen in the lack of heart searching; of pungent sorrow for sin; a lack of love of the truth with refusal to conform to the Divine will. Mere form does not entitle one to christian fellowship, for formalities have no sympathy with the sentiments of true believers. The sense of personal relationship to God seems to have been lost for the most part, hence but little interest in the progress of his work throughout the world. The standard of morality is low it is verging on the immoral, moral principle does not grip us as it once did. The fact is the age does not want a moral code to which it shall bring its conduct for something. The general state of society is deplorable. In the last decade the increase in the number of divorces has been more than seven times the increase of the population. Moral forces seem to have failed, legislative bodies are trying to induce women to dress modestly. The "white slave" traffic is appaling. The consumption of cigarettes is increasing by the billion annually.

One gets tired of the sounding brass of this cultural religion which spends itself in all kinds of service because it is the fad, but does little or nothing from a loving expression of a personal relation to the Lord. It is a form of religion, true enough, but as hopeless and helpless to save as the sphinx of Egypt.

People are courteous but the word fails like hail on an iron roof. They hear it but they heed not. Surely these are perilous times and the earth is filled with violence. The latest statistics show that 8,000 murders were committed in the United States last year, showing a marked increase over the previous year. No doubt there were many more murders committed which were not known to man. What of Europe! Hundreds of thousands have been killed and fearful deeds of violence are constantly being done. But there must and will follow awful judgments upon the violence of this age. The lynching record for 1915 surpasses all previous ones. There were 69 in all, of which 55 were negroes and 14 whites. Three women are included in the record. It was discovered that at least four of these were innocent. More than one fourth of these were in one state. Fifteen per cent were charged with rape, about twenty-five per cent with murder. Then there were various charges killing officers, sleaying hogs, not regarding warnings of night riders, insulting women, stealing meat, cotton, a cow, furnishing amunition to a man resisting arrest, showing the wide range of offences that drew the prize of lynching.

There are scholars who deny the truth of Moses and impeach the veracity of the Son of man, but it will be just as he said, "as it was in the days of Noah, so, shall it be in the days of the Son of man." There were days of violence and bloodshed in the days of Noah, and such will be the case before the Son of man comes back to this earth.

CONSERVATION IN MARYLAND

A PLEA FOR BOBWHITE

This is the fifth of a series of articles on the need of conservation in Maryland, published under the auspices of the Maryland Wild Life Protective Association at this time with a view of having some of the defects remedied by the passage of adequate conservation laws at the present session of the State Legislature.

There is something more to bobwhite than gameness and six ounces. That is news to lawmakers, but lawmakers have been taking their cue from gunners, and gunners cannot afford to know. But Dr. Silvester Sudd, of the Biological Survey, has held autopsy over bobwhite dead, and Mrs. Margaret Morse Nice, of Clark University, has played detective on bobwhite living, and bobwhite is innocent—innocent, not merely, but marvelously beneficent to humankind. Such another little combination of scourger to insects and exterminator of weed seed never left the hand of nature under feathers.

Non-migratory, he will be found 12 months in the year on the little plot of ground lucky enough to have him for tenant.

On his bill of fare are 141 species of insects and 129 of weed seed. The gunner who shoots him in the stubble, imagines that grain is about all that he eats, but as a matter of fact it amounts to only one-sixth of his food for the year and this is taken not from the standing crop or among the sheves at harvest time but from what escapes the reaper. When grain is sprouting and when the crop is in the milk, bobwhite has other concerns, for in late spring and summer one to two-thirds of his food consists of the field's insect foes, which make 15 per cent. of the year's total in the wild, or more than a third in captivity. It is an important list, too, for birds not of his order eschew many of his favorites. Potato beetles he likes, and the cucumber bettle, squash ladybug, corn billbug, cutworms, the tobacco worm, army worm, cotton boll worm, clover weevil, cotton boll weevil, imbricated snout beetle, may beetle, plant lice, grasshoppers, Rocky mountain locust and chinchbug. The chick, eating 44 per cent. of his weight daily, lives for six weeks on insects, and in this time one consumes some 20,000 and increases in weight tenfold. One, a week old, ate 2326 plant lice and 20 mealworms, but was not done for the day.

Here are some single meals of adults: Forty-seven boll weevils, 101 potato bugs, 100 chinchbugs, 12 squashbugs, 12 army worms, 12 cutworms and 568 mosquitoes in three hours. And as samples of a day's work in addition to seeds, grain and green food, note 1350 flies or 1286 rose slugs or 5000 plant lice.

In the winter months he turns to weed seed, which forms more than half his food for the year, and here are some samples of one day's consumption by one bird.

Barnyard grass, 2500; beggar tricks, 1400; black mustard, 2500; burdock, 600; crab grass, 2000; curled dock, 4175; dodder, 1560; evening primrose, 10,000; lamb's quarter, 15,000; milkweed, 770; peppergrass 2400; pigweed, 12,000; plantain, 12,500; rabbitsfoot clover, 30,000; bush clover, 1800; smartweed, 2250; white vervain, 18,750; water smartweed, 2000.

Finally the year's consumption by one pair in captivity was 130,905 insects and 10,442,688 weed seeds.

If bobwhite were a machine what would a farmer give for him? Common sense would have run like a chicken over field and garden and the gunner should be taboo.

This brings us to ruffed grouse and wild turkey, and one of the absurdities of human conduct. I wonder how many know that the royal bird which has graced our Christmas tables is of Mexican origin, while our native turkey is the one which we are letting gunners persecute to annihilation. Spaniards took some Mexican turkeys to Europe early in the Sixteenth Century, and there they were domesticated, and finally exported to the United States. Grain and shelter are their portion, while our own bird draws shot and trap.

Similiarly, while the incomparable bobwhite, heath hen and ruffled grouse have been interrupted in their skilled labors for agriculture and rushed through a program to the verge of extinction, three-fourths of the States in the Union are falling over one another to extend complete protection to the Hungarian partridge and European and Asiatic pheasants, which are imported to take the very ranges that by preemption and demonstrated fitness belong to our own superior birds.

Caught in improper conduct, it is much less galling for one to fly off on a spectacular tangent than to turn simply around in one's tracks and retrace the erroneous steps. The cure for lessening game is less gunning, and it is the only cure. When a gunner can be made to stop firing long enough to realize that, it is possible that he may listen to the economic ornithologist, who is earnestly telling what the real function of the bird in the world is.

The time was when the Southern rice-grower was justified in warring on what we call the reedbird because of his depredations on that crop in both spring and autumn. But this basis for its classification as a game bird in the Eastern States has been swept away because this industry has vanished. In the North it is an economic factor of great importance, for in May, June and July 85 per cent. of its food is insects. It is very destructive to grasshoppers and caterpillars, particularly to the army worm. After the young are able to fly, the whole family gathers for a vicious assault on weed seed.

It ought to be a pleasure for the South to treasure for the North this efficient and melodious harlequin of the meadows, just as the North should foster the swallows and orioles, the blackbirds and meadowlarks, which work so bravely on the cotton boll weevil of the South. Maryland is one of only six States, which, with the District of Columbia, keep up the slaughter.

The shore birds have a bigger task before them than to provide liveliness for city dwellers by the sea and sport for gunners on the uplands. They form the most important bird enemy to mosquitoes known to us, according to Professor McAtee, who has reported on their food. Like numerous other species, they are death to grasshoppers. Take the individual diet of upland plover, which sportsmen seem determined to retire: Crane flies, destructive to grasslands and wheat fields; cut-worms, pests of forage and grain crops; North American fever ticks, which attacks cattle; cotton cutworm; boll weevil, cloverleaf weevil, cowpea weevil and clover root curculio; billbugs, that damage corn; wire worms, cornleaf beetle and the grape vine colaspic; crayfish, which is a pest in rice and cornfields in the South and which injures levees; diving beetle, which are a nuisance in fish hatcheries.

Shoulder to shoulder with him in most of this work stand woodcock and killdeer, and the latter is in a group which devours the larvae of horseflies and eats marine worms, which prey upon oysters.

Is this not enough to spoil the aim of a gunner with a heart?

Mad Johnson Stumped.

Doctor Johnson and Macklin were arguing a literary question, when the former quoted Greek. "I don't understand Greek," said Macklin. "The man who presumes to argue literature should understand every language," replied Johnson, severely. Whereupon Macklin began reeling off a string of Gaelic, and for once Johnson had nothing to say.

MASONS FEASTED.

Two Score Were Guests Of Mr. Henry Lauer at an Oyster Roast.

Tuesday evening of this week about forty members of the Masonic fraternity, along with one or two non-members, were guests of Mr. Henry Lauer, of Oakland Bakery fame, at an oyster roast, the affair following the regular communication of the Masonic lodge of that evening.

The host had secured barrels of the finest Chesapeake Bay bivalves and they were roasted to a turn in the large oven of the bakery and served to the guests in tremendous proportions, so many in fact that fears were entertained for the welfare of several present.

In addition to the oysters served all that went with them were provided in abundance and a most enjoyable evening was had by those present upon the occasion.

FOURTEEN-YEAR OLD BOY KILLED YOUNGER BROTHER

Son of Charles Platter, Negro Monntain, Victim of Simple-Minded Brother.

On last Friday one of the most horrible occurrences in the history of the county took place when the fourteen-year old son of Charles Platter, residing on Negro Mountain, about two miles from the new lumber town of Davis, and some six or eight miles from Grantsville, secured a shot gun and with it fired upon and killed his nine-year old brother instantly, the charge of shot taking effect in the boy's face and blowing a portion of it away.

From what can be learned of the matter it seems that the boy who did the shooting is simple-minded and on Friday he ran into the house and picking up the loaded gun returned to the yard where the smaller boy was playing and without a word pointed the gun at him and fired, returning the gun to the place he had gotten it and walked away.

The funeral of the victim took place on Sunday.

The matter has been brought to the attention of the State's Attorney and he is making an investigation of the affair.

Valuable Farms at Mortgagee's Sale.

In another column of this paper today Mr. Stuart F. Hamill, mortgagee, advertises a farm of more than 400 acres to be sold at mortgagee's sale on Saturday, March 4, in front of the court house in Oakland, the property being what is commonly known as the Lowdermilk Farm, located near Friendsville, in this county.

Mr. G. S. Hamill also advertises at mortgagee's sale the Brafford place of about thirty acres, located near the State road, to occur on next Saturday.

THE PUBLIC SCHOOL SYSTEM OF MARYLAND

Is Soundly Organized But Poorly Managed.--Have Too Much Politics.

The Legislature of Maryland in 1914 authorized the appointment of a Commission to procure a survey of education in Maryland and appropriated $5,000 for its expenses. The Governor appointed as members of this commission B. Howell Groswold, Jr., of Baltimore; Col. Albert W. Sisk, of Preston, and Dr. McPerson Scott, of Hagerstown.

At the request of the Commission the General Education Board of New York undertook to make the survey, agreeing to bear any expense incurred in excess of the State appropriation. The results of the survey are made public today.

The report says: Every county in Maryland was visited and typical schools of all kinds were studied throughout the State.

"Public education in Maryland is on the whole soundly organized," says the report of the General Education Board. "Further, the State deals generously with its public schools in the matter of money.

"We do not propose therefore any fundamental changes in the general structure of the public school system of Maryland nor do we suggest that the State increase at all its appropriations to the schools.

"But there are other aspects which will cause grave concern. A few counties possess good and steadily improving schools; a good school may be found here and there in other counties. But the large majority of the schools are poor; teachers are, for the most part, poorly trained; instruction is ineffective and obsolete; children attend school with disastrous irregularity; school buildings are far too often in unsatisfactory condition, school grounds, neglected and untidy.

"A few words suffice to explain. Public education in Maryland is 'in politics.' Politics are apt to prevent the State Board from acting with vigor; to determine the composition of the County Boards; to affect the choice of the County Superintendens; even to enter into the selection of the one room rural school teacher.

"Of course, there are exceptions. Some of the county boards are excellent; some schools are entirely free from political taint. But in general political and personal considerations impair the vigor, independence, thoroughness and efficiency of the school system. The public does not begin to realize the seriousness of the political infection or the damage it does."

Salaries are too low to obtain well-trained teachers; they range "from an average of $271 a year in St. Mary's to $662 a year in Baltimore county. Three counties pay an average of less than $300; four less than $350; seven less than $450, and only two, Allegany and Baltimore, pay in excess of $450."

The report points out that it is in the selection of county superintendents that the next session's instance of political influence are exhibited.

"The county superintendents are elected by the politically constituted county boards. The politicians view the county superintendency as "spoils," and in most counties the indifference of the people permits them to dispose of it on that basis. A general election, bringing about a change in party controls, scarcely over before political candidates are brought forth and 'groomed' for this important office.

"In the four years during which the Republicans were in power—1896-1900—new county superintendents were chosen in 19 out of 23 counties of the State, 11 of them in the year when the county school board became Republican. In the first year of the new Democratic administration of 1900, 16 new county superintendents were appointed, whereas during the ensuing 11 years, aside from removals by death there was a total of only 11 changes.

"Similarly, the first three years of the present Republican control witnessed the election of 12 new superintendents. Some of these changes were indeed for the better; but as long as a political upset is the cause, there can be no certainty that changes will be based upon public advantage. Luckily, these deplorable conditions are not universal.

"In a few—a very few—countie, politics play no part in either the selection or retention of the county superintendents. While a dozen superintendent's have served three years or less, three have been in office for fourteen years.

The general conclusion is that, unless education is taken out of politics, even the improvements recommended by the report will be of little avail.

OAKLAND GIRLS WIN CLOSE GAME

Play-Off Was Necessary to Decied Contest With Allegany County High Sextet.

In a contest which took an extra period to decide, the Oakland High School girls defeated the girl's basketball team at the Allegany County High School, at Cumberland, Saturday afternoon, by the score of 16 to 14. The Central Y. M. C. A. gymnasium in which the game was staged was crowded with Blue and White students who tried hard to urge their team by cheers.

The score was 14 all when the final whistle sounded. In the play-off, after several minutes of exciting work, Miss Thrasher, one of the Oakland forwards, caged the winning goal with a sensational one-handed shot. The A. C. H. S. defeat was due mostly to their inability to shoot fouls. The visitors were guilty of 24 violations of the rules and of these only six were tossed. The A. C. H. S. girls played a hard contest and never gave up. The line-up:

Oakland 16		High School 14
Thrasher	F	Alburtis
Hendrickson	F	Keiser
Sincell	C	Bernstein
Jones	C S	Taylor
C. Bush	G	Willison
G. Bush	G	Scharf

Goals—Thrasher 7, Alburtis 3, Keiser 2. Fouls—Hendrickson 2, Keiser 1, Alburtis 1. Referee—Ford. Scorer—Gould.

ROAD TO STATE LINE OF WEST VIRGINIA

Proposed to Build Shoemaker Road From Oakland to Hutton.

A large delegation of the citizens of Oakland and the section of country lying between this point and the West Virginia state line at or near Hutton, appeared before the Board of County Commissioners yesterday afternoon and laid before that body a petition and bond as required by law, asking that the proper legal steps be taken preliminary to building a State-Aid road from the western limits of Oakland to the West Virginia line near Hutton.

The route for the proposed road as laid down in the petition is practically the same as that now traversed by the old road leading out Liberty street through the Bradley lane and crossing the river below the railroad, eliminating, however, by a new survey the heavy hills on either side of the Yough by relocating the present road.

At the West Virginia line Portland District, in Preston county, will begin the building of its new system of roads as soon as the weather conditions will permit, and it is proposed that the new road asked for by the Garrett county people join Preston county road at this point.

New Tie Specifications.

The Baltimore and Ohio has posted notices of revised specifications and prices on railroad ties, effective March 1. Prices remain practically unchanged, but some species of timbers will no longer be accepted. Prices ranged from 77 cents for first class and 62 cents for second class white oak and rock oak down. Red oak, once a standard timber for ties, has fallen off in price from what was paid years ago. Red Oak now brings but 55 cents for first class, as compared with 65 cents several years age. Third class is quoted at 25 cents and second at 40.

TO BUILD CONCRETE ROAD LUKE TO BLOOMINGTON

West Virginia Pulp and Paper Company Has Made the Proposition.

Mr. Allan L. Luke, manager of th W. Va. Pulp & Paper Co., of Luke, and Atty. H. P. Whitworth, of Westernport, appeared before the Allegany county Road Directors Wednesday, offering to construct a concrete road approximately 4,000 feet long from Luke along the Potomac river to the Garrett county bridge at Bloomington. They also offered to build a retaining wall approximately 2,000 feet long to support the county road, providing that the Road Directors grant them a right of way for a railroad to their pulp mill storage yard at the Savage river dam. The new road improvements will cost the company over $10,000, and will comply with state and county requirements in every respect.

Mr. Carroll Pattison, of Bloomington, presented a petition, signed by the business people and residents of that town, urging the board to accept the offer. It was explained that the new road will connect with roads being built in Garrett county.

The road directors were favorably impressed with the offer and requested their attorney to draw up the necessary papers.

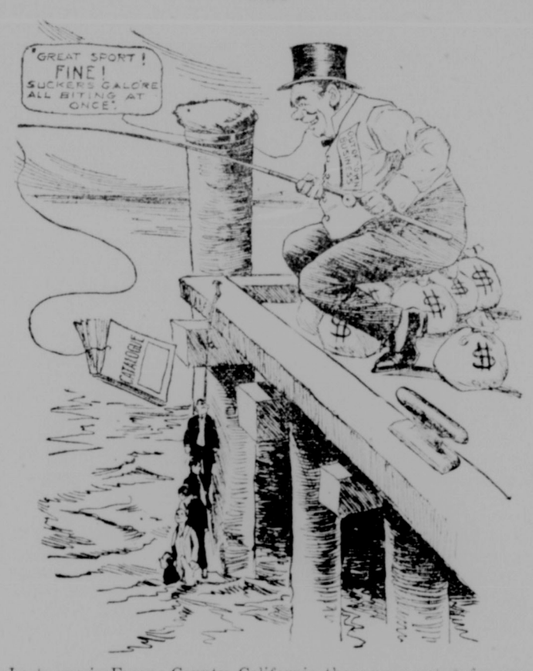
BAIT



Last year in Fresno County, California, there were orders for over one hundred windmills sent to one mail order house alone. In each case the man who bought "long distance" had to pay the freight, haul the windmill out to his place and stand the expense of erecting it—WHEN, if he had been wise, he could have bought the same, identical windmill at his local dealer's for the same money, could have had it taken to his place and erected without cost or trouble and without the freight from Chicago to Fresno tacked on. "Fishing for suckers" may be good sport — for the other fellow — but it's hard on the suckers. Let us shun this "out-of-town" bait religiously.

MONEY AT HOME

The fad for "imported" goods in this country for practically all times past has been discovered as a genuine fallacy. The European war has practically cut off the supply of these supposed superior goods and has thrown the proper light upon the merits of the domestic products. Already the fad has changed and today the popular article is the one "Made in U. S. A."

This means that millions of dollars heretofore going out of this country annually because of a mere fad will now remain in the United States and that there will be just that much more money at home and within reach of everybody. It means that many thousands of men will receive employment here making the articles which have heretofore been made in the foreign country.

During the past few years a fad has developed among the people throughout this country to do their shopping with the mail order houses. It is a fad much less warranted than that of buying the "imported" goods and has deprived the local communities of more than did the other fad deprive this great country in the way of money and home prosperity.

Through the influence of this fad the mail order houses have been reaping a great harvest. The popularity of the fad has enabled them to fleece the people in a manner which is truly shameful They have made gross misrepresentations in their catalogues and have employed many deceptive means to sell their goods to the unthinking public.

It is estimated that several hundred thousand dollars annually is being sent from Garrett county and its trading district to these mail order houses. This means that just that amount of cash is being sent away never to return and the business men who have no interest whatever in this community and who do not pay one cent of taxes here profits to just that extent.

The local business people are your greatest assistance in building your community. They are your friends on all occasions and the people who will appreciate your co-operation in the effort to build a greater business community.

When misfortune befalls anyone of the community the business men are the first to be appealed to for assistance. When money must be raised for the bringing of an industry the same men are looked to for it. He is called upon to support the band, the ball team, the volunteer fire department and the many other institutions and causes for the protection, pleasure and convenience of all the people. An appeal to a mail order house for a donation in any one of these events or for any cause would be completely ignored.

This "fad" is proving a real detriment to every community throughout the country. The patrons of the mail order houses are not only receiving an inferior article in their purchases but the financial drain is retarding local development.

Community Building Is Our Aim.

We are here to serve the public and help make Kitzmiller and community a better place to live. We want to co-operate with everybody to this end.

THE TWO LITE DOLLATLRS.

Once upon a time there were two little dollars that started out in life together at the little stone bank in Apple Center.

One was round and hard and shiney, and the other was square and soft and crinkly.

The first trip outside the little bank was when they were crowded close together in Farmer Watkins' big wallet after he had cashed his check for a load of wheat. Thus the two little dollars became quite chummy, and they hoped they would not be separated for a long time.

As luck would have it, they were not. The first thing they knew they were plunked together into the cash drawer at Wilson's Dry Goods Store. Then they were paid out together to a busy little country as change for an aristocratic ten-dollar bill which would hardly look at them as it passed by.

Their next trip was to Jones Bros. Grocery store where they almost lost each other in the mad scramble of the Saturday afternoon trade, but finally found themselves in two different rooms of the cash drawer with only a thin partition between.

"How do you like it?" whispered the round hard dollar to the soft crinkly one.

"Fine business," answered the other. "Everybody is so busy and seems so happy."

Just then the round dollar was whisked out of the drawer and didn't have time even to say good-by.

But the two little dollars met again and again, quite often, in fact, for they were busy all the time. Now it would be back to the stone bank they would be carefully sorted and stacked. Then at the grocery store, and once in a while at one of the many farm houses which they each visited every few days. They became well acquainted with the farmers, the trades people, the carpenters, the doctor, the druggest, and, in fact, all the busy folks in Apple Center.

Then for a long time they did not see one another. The round little dollar kept on working just as tight as it could work, sometimes doing the work of twenty dollars in a day and making twenty people glad. He wondered where his old friend, the soft little dollar, had disappeared to. Finally after about a year they came together at the bank.

"My, how old you look!" was the hard little dollar's first words. "Where have you been?"

"I've been in Chicago, leading too fast a life," was the soft little dollar's reply.

"How on earth did you get to Chicago?" asked the hard little dollar again.

"Mrs. Hartigan sent me to a mail-order house after an order of groceries," was the answer, "and such a time I had. I haven't seen a farmer for an age. And I though I never would get back."

"They seldom do," remarked the hard little dollar.

"Are things as busy as they used to be?" asked the soft little dollar.

"Not since so many of you went away to the mail-order house in Chicago," answered the round one. The Jones Boys have closed their grocery and Wilson's are running a general store now. The farmers are complaining about hard times and high prices. Two or three of them have moved away."

"How about Mrs. Hartigan, the lady that sent me to Chicago?"

"Well, I haven't seen her for a long time. We all stopped calling on her after her husband lost his job. Then they began to buy their goods at home here on the credit and finally they moved away."

The two little dollars lived to a good old age, although the hard dollar outlived the soft dollar.

And they stayed in Apple Center the rest of their lives and made many people happy many, many times. For the people in Apple Center learned wisdom—and after the Hartigan and some others had moved away, the rest of the people decided they would keep their money at home. So the mail-order business in Apple Center dwindled and dwindled and dwindled and finally became so small that it could be rolled up in a little wad and balanced on the point of a cambric needle.

Which, as you all know, is some small.

OUR WEEKLY LETTER FROM THE STATE CAPITOL

Legislative Matters of Interest To Garrett Countains.

STATE HOUSE, ANNAPOLIS, FEB. 9—By a vote of 56 to 34 on roll call, Monday night, Delegate Shartzer's bill, which was aimed at the Miller Distillery at Accident, Garrett county, was substituted for the unfavorable report of the House Temperance Committee, and was passed on to the third-reading file. It would seem now that nothing can prevent the passage of the bill through both House and Senate, and the subsequent discontinuance of the Miller Distillery in Garrett county. The fight for and against this bill was the most interesting and hotly contested that has taken place this far over any legislative measure, and called out the best oratorical and wire manipulating talent on the floor.

TEMPERANCE COMMITTEE TURNED DOWN.

Under ordinary conditions the House stands by its committees and allows their reports to be adopted, incidents to the contrary being the exception. Yet the House reversed the Temperance Committee on this occasion, notwithstanding the unfavorable report of the committee was supported by eight of the nine members of the committee, only one—Delegate Baederston, of Cecil county,—voting against the unfavorable report in the committee. Then, too, the fight against the bill and for the report of the committee was led, p n ed and outlined by that pastmaster in legislative technique, ex-Senator Carville D. Benson, of Baltimore county, than whom there is no more skillful manipulator or shrewd parliamentarian. Mr. Benson, who was defeated for re-election to the State Senate last November by a reversal of the large Democratic majority in Baltimore county, and whom Senator Allen, a "dry" Republican, now succeeds, had charge of Mr. Miller's fight, and at times it looked as if he would win; but the delegates from Baltimore City, for the most part, were looking ahead, and in the hope that the same principal will be applied to them when the Statewide Prohibition Bill comes up, they declared that the policy of "Home Rule" should be adhered to and they voted with the Garrett Delegation to substitute the bill for the unfavorable report of the Temperance Committee on that basis. Montgomery county and a few others did the same thing, all evidently with the same motive—that will be allowed to exempt themselves from the operation of the Statewide Bill when it comes before them. The Garrett Delegation, however, made no promises and entered no deals, winning out on their merits entirely.

LAW TO TAKE EFFECT ONE YEAR LATER.

Immediately the bill had been substituted for the unfavorable report of the committee, an amendment was offered making it go into effect June 1, 1917, instead of June 1, 1916, thus giving the Distillery people more than a year in which to close down the distillery, remove it to some other point, if they want to, and adjust themselves to the new conditions. The amendment was adopted without dissent and the bill was ordered to be printed for the third reading file. There is little if any doubt that the bill will pass the House, and the application of the same principle of "Home Rule" in the Senate will pass the bill ultimately. Monday night's vote is not regarded as a test of strength on the "Dry" Bill, many "wet" members voting with the Garrett Delegation on the ground that each section should be its own judge in such matters.

OTHER GARRETT COUNTY BILLS.

Senator Speicher's bill repealing the Dog Tax Law for Garrett county passed the Senate last week-end, and was referred to the Garrett Delegation Monday night. It was reported out promptly and passed the House yesterday.

Senator Speicher has introduced in the Senate a bill amending the charter of the town of Deer Park, empowering and authorizing the Mayor and Common Council of that place "to purchase, receive by gift, donation or otherwise, hold and enjoy, sue for and defend, a suitable piece of land within the limits of said town of Deer Park, not exceeding the quantity of two acres, for the purpose of a public park for the use of the inhabitants of said town, and on which to erect any necessary municipal building."

Delegate Shartzer has introduced a bill providing that hotel and restaurant proprietors and keepers of boarding houses, who serve other than genuine butter with meals post placards in the dining room stating that "Oleomargaine is served here," or naming what ever other kind of imitation butter is being used. The bill is Statewide.

The following bills passed their third reading in the House yesterday: Amending the charter of Loch Lynn Heights; providing for payment of bounty on fox and hawk scalps and forbidding the killing of deer for six years, to October, 1922. These bills now go to the Senate.

"WETS" HAVE HEARING TODAY.

This afternoon immediately upon adjournment of the House, not earlier than 3 o'clock, the "Wets" or apponents of the Statewide Prohibition Bill will have a hearing before tne Temperance Committee in the House chamber.

BOTH GET PHOTOS OF ROLL CALL SHEET.

Chief Clerk Almoney, of the House of Delegates, in accordance with the order adopted during the second week of the session, is having photographic copies made of the House roll call sheet of February 25, 1914, on Senate Bill No. 1, known as the "Speicher Local Option Bill." This is the roll-call sheet which Delegate Shartzer alleges has been tampered with, it showing Shartzer, who was a member of the 1914 session, as having voted against the Speicher Bill, he claiming that he voted for it. Inasmuch as Senator Speicher has also ordered copies of the photographs of the roll call sheet, it would appear that both sides to the controversy are satisfied with what the photograph is expected to show. At the time he asked for the certified copy Delegate Shartzer stated that he wanted to offer it as evidence before the grand jury in an effort to have the parties whom he alleges tampered with the original roll-call sheet (Senator Speicher and L. A. Rudisill by inference and implication) indicted and prosecuted. Senator Speicher declares the roll-call sheet sustains his contention from the begining, viz: that it had not been altered or changed.

DELEGATE FOX HAS MUSICAL EAR.

Fred Fox, Chairman of the Garrett county Delegation, is a musician of more than ordinary ability, and besides having a good ear for music, he has a well developed talent that enables him to distinguish between the difficult classical compositions and the ordinary melodies. He takes great delight in listening to the concerts by the Naval Academy Band in the Academy grounds, which takes place twice daily, morning and afternoon, and the Garrett statesman is often found listening to the splendid music rendered by the band.

ACTION DEFERRED TWO WEEKS.

Action on the "Smithing" and "Docking mine bills, for Allegany and Garrett counties has been deferred by the House Labor Committee until Tuesday, February 22.

SOCIAL EVENTS AT THE CAPITOL.

Invitations have been issued to the reception to be givin by Governor and Mrs. Harrington on Wednesday evening next, February 16, from 8:30 to 11 o'clock, to the members of the General Assembly.

A number of ladies, wives and daughters of Senators and Members of the House, give a dance at Carvel Hal every Wednesday night. The gentlemen are preparing for a reciprocall dance in the Annapolis Armory within the next two weeks.

Members of the Senate Finance and House Ways and Means Committees will be guests of the Fifth Regiment officers in Baltimore next Monday afternoon.

NATIONAL PREPAREDNESS

Has Beed Tardily Urged By The Democratic Admisistration.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 9.—An appalling oversight of the Demooratic administration in providing for national defense has been laid bare.

Representative Patrick H. Kelly of Michigan, a member of the Naval Affairs Committee, has disclosed to the House that of the nine dreadnaughts, seventeen destroyers, thirty-nine submarines and two transport and supply ships authorized by Congress or under construction, since the Democrats have been in control of the House, NOT ONE IS COMPLETED.

More important still, no apparent effort has been made by the President or the Navy Department since the beginning of the war in Europe to hasten the construction and completion of these additions to the Navy.

Why this neglect on the part of the administration to carry out the mandate of Congress to equip the navy for adequate national defense at this time?

In a resolution seting forth this condition Mr. Kelley referred to the President's recent statement that "the world is on fire and we are daily treading amidst dangers not of our making and not under our control; no man can tell what a day may bring forth."

His resolution proposed that the Secretary of the Navy be directed to negotiate at once with contractors and government ship yards to learn the earliest time within which these war craft can be completed, and report to the House.

"The President has said in his recent speeches that the country faces a crisis," said Mr. Kelley, "and none could tell what a day might bring forth. If this language means anything, it means that our need of defense is a present need. Dreadnaughts and battle cruisers authorized by this Congress will not be available for the defense of the country for four years to come.

"Hence it seems to me that the first duty of Congress is to see that the sixty-seven ships now under construction or authorized for the American navy are completed and made available at the earliest possible moment. Preparations which do not materialize for five years would not avail us anything if our danger is a present one.

"I cannot understand how the President, knowing the danger as he only can know it, has made no suggestion to Congress that the ships now under construction ought to be rushed to completion.

"Either we are not in danger or the President has been negligent in this regard."

OAKLAND-FROSTBURG GAME OF BASKET BALL LAST FRIDAY

Referee Bremer, of Oakland. Contributes an Article Describing It.

The Republican is in receipt of the following from the pen of the Rev. O. A. Bremer, of Oakland, who witnessed the game of basket ball played at Frostburg on last Friday evening between the team of that city and the Oakland Collegians. The result of the game and the manifest unfairness of some of those participating in it has put the local "fans" so high in the air that it is doubtful whether or not they will come down until they succeed in hanging the scalps of their opponents at their belts at a future game in case such can be arranged. Rev. Bremer's article follows:

On February 4, the Oakland Collegians and a few lovers of the sport travelled to Frostburg for the contest scheduled with that team. The game promised to be an interesting one and when the editor of the Republican turned his mileage book over to the writer the invitation to witness the game was straightway accepted.

The town of Frostburg has a very nice floor on which to play the game, with one exception, the ceiling is rather low. But the floor space gives lots of room for open work in passing.

The evening's entertainment opened with the game between the Oakland and the Frostburg High School girls. The halves were played alternately, girl's first half, then boy's first half, etc.

The game was very interesting. We expected to see the Oakland girls win. We are quite sure they played the better game, but it ill becomes one official to criticize another, so we will say no more. The final score was Oakland 14, Frostburg 18.

The men's game proved to be most unsatisfactory. It was quite a farce. We believe there would be a splendid opportunity for further labors for that "Thompson investigating committee." They might unearth considerable graft. The moneyed interests seemed much in evidence.

It was a splendid game in many respects and any one thoroughly enjoying the game had ample opportunity in point of time, for the first half lasted thirty eight minutes when it should have closed in twenty. Oakland did not have a chance from the first, but we are sure that man for man the Oakland team was superior.

The floor work and the passing, with the exception of one player, was as good as any we have seen. Mike Boyle, at center, seemed to be having a very bad night. His spirits seemed to be good, but he couldn't jump for the ball. His passes were invariably wild, just wild enough to reach a Frostburg player, and his goal shooting was practically a negative factor, not withstanding the fact that his opportunities were many. We were greatly surprised at this, for we have always considered Mr. Boyle the superior player on the team, yet out of thirty-three points, he made but one goal, but as we have said, it seemed to be an off-night for Mr. Boyle.

During the first half the spectators were very abusive toward the visiting team, something which could never be said of the Oakland spectators.

At the request of the Collegians the writer took charge of the second half, and the said abuse cost the Frostburg team seven points in quick succession, and the slander and abuse in general was soon stopped.

The game ended, if we remember correctly, thirty-three to fifty-nine in favor of the Frostburg team.

The Frostburg team seemed determined to win under any circumstances, and when they couldn't win on their own merits they created conditions that made victory possible, but it is the kind of victory that we do not want in Oakland.

We believe thoroughly in clean sports. We believe that baseball, tennis, basketball, and all other indoor and outdoor manly sports if properly conducted are genuine helps in the development of true manhood.

MOUNTAIN LAKE PARK.

Word has reached the friends of Miss Sarah Harris in the Park, that her brother, Robert, recently died at his home near Franklin, Va. Mr. Harris was an occasional visitor at the Park, and was a pleasant man.

Mrs. John Thompson, of Philadelphia, has been invited to be the guest of the Deaconness' home.

The Doctor personally will preside at the sessions and will preach the opening sermon and conduct a daily Bible instruction. Mr. Charles G. Trumbull, of the Sunday School Times; Mr. A. C. Gaebelein, Editor of Our Hope; Prof. E. O. Sellers; Pastor Joseph W. Kemp, formerly of Edinburg; Dr. R. McWatty Russell, ex-moderator of the United Presbyterian church and Miss Elinor Stafford Miller, known as the Australian evangelist will be among the workers.

The corporation of Loch Lynn Heights is considering the advisability of issuing bonds to the amount of $1000, to complete the sewer system of the village. The bonds will be redeemable at the rate of $200 a year. This is a most sensible move on the part of the citizens of that progressive village, which now has a water system, natural gas and a partial sewer system.

We are glad to report that Charlie Dawson, now of Chicago, has fully recovered from his injuries and is able to be about as usual. Mr. Dawson holds a good position with one of the largest paint firms of Chicago.

Mr. Wolfe has just returned to his store here after a few days visit with his family in Elkins.

Mr. L. B. Harmison is visiting his son Luther east of Romney, W. Va. Marvin Harmison, the modern Nimrod, is giving some of the old foxes their last chase.

The spring like weather is not giving us much ice on the lake. Only a small crop has been harvested.

Mr. Oliver Hayward and his little daughter, Mary, are visiting Mrs. Beatris Norris at Wallace, W. Va.

Mrs. A. V. Enlow and Miss Helen are visiting Mrs. W. E. Dean in Beallsville, Ohio.

Mr. Chas. Weimer left for Keyser last week.

We have had two weddings recently: Mr. Scott White and Miss Stuart and Mr. Ira Barnhouse and Miss Rhoda Welch. Miss Welch gave up her school in Loch Lynn and Miss Cora Weimer is now the teacher.

Several of our people have been on the sick list: E. A. Coronis, Mrs. Lulu Dawson, Mrs. Schooley and Grant Rightsman, but all are reported better.

Mrs. Ida Lee, who has been shut in for several weeks, was out again last Sunday.

During the past three weeks Rev. Flanigan, the faithful M. E. pastor, has done excellent work in his special meetings. The church was greatly helped and there were some additions. Revs. Jones and Barnhouse and members of their congregations gave splendid help in these meetings in the Park.

J. A. Enlow, the licensed real estate and insurance agent, is having calls already for the purchase and renting of property here.

We are looking for a lengthy and splendid season here.

An effort is on foot to organize a Boy's Scout company here.

BITTINGER.

A few cold days, accompanied by a delightful fall of snow last week, is again followed by rain and slushy weather.

Miss Cora Bittinger, of near Deer Park, in company with her two brothers, Lester and Irvin, spent Sunday with relatives here.

Mrs. Chauncey R. Broadwater, who has been in Akron, Ohio, for several weeks, returned to her home here last Friday night.

Messrs. George Wiley and Lewis Orendorf were marketing on George's Creek last week.

It is reported that George Wiley has already made about one thousand pounds of maple sugar this early in the season.

About 2 o'clock a. m. one day last week fire was found in the residence of John Beitzell, but fortunately Mr. Beitzell discovered the fire in time to extinguish the flames before they were well started, and but little damage was done to the building, the only loss being a quantity of clothing.

Mrs. Amos H. Reckner and daughter, Mrs. William Fitzwater, of North Glade, with Master Johnny Reckner, spent the early part of last week calling on friends and relatives in this neighborhood.

Mrs. Patterson Engle, who has been ailing for some time, is reported to be recovering from her malady.

The many friends of Mr. Stuck regret his removal from Oakland where during his short stay he formed numerous and lasting friendships.

It is probable that more than three hundred property owners from different sections of the county were in Oakland during the past three days, their visit to town being for the purpose of having the Board of County Commissioners reduce the assessment upon their respective properties. Immediately following the accident the injured young man was taken to the Miners' Hospital at Fairmont, W. Va., but he never rallied, his death occurring Wednesday evening at 6:30 o'clock. The funeral took place Friday afternoon with interment in the Oakland cemetery.

Forty Years Ago.

Forty years ago, on the 5th inst., the Cumberland News contained this item. "Seven marriage licenses were issued in Garrett county last month." During the past month of 1916, many times that number of licenses were issued. The same paper said: James Chisholm, John Delawder, Playford Townshend and Edward Pennington, four young men of Garrett county, petitioned the county commissioners for $12, for new hats, their old ones being ruined in carrying water in them to extinguishing a blaze which threatened to destroy a small bridge. The commissioners returned the request to the lads with the reply that "virtue was its own reward.

The Republican-The Leading Paper.

Home Merchant vs. M. O. Houses

A prominent Oakland woman is still waiting for the holiday goods which she ordered from one of the leading mail order houses of the country. She has made attempts to recover her money but has failed so far.

THINK of this. If all the people of Garrett county should turn their back on the local merchant and deal with the mail order houses exclusively, what would become of Oakland and the other trading centers throughout the country?

LESSON IN SHOES.

A farmer living in central West Virginia discovered that he was buying three pair of shoes each winter for his boys while his neighbor was buying but one pair for a boy of the same age. He enquired of his neighbor as to the difference and found that the good wearing shoes came from one of the leading stores in the home town. Here was where the big mail order houses lost a customer because it set the farmer who had been buying three pairs of shoes to thinking. If he was getting bit that way in shoes they were doing the same thing in their goods. He is now keeping the money at home and patronizing the merchants who stand back of every piece of goods sold.

HIS SHOE BARGAIN.

At Cameron, W. Va., recently a young man walked into the shoe store of Frank P. Ross with a pair of shoes purchased from a Chicago mail order house. They were entirely too small and he asked Mr. Ross to stretch them for him which he did to the limit of safety for the shoes. The young man explained to Mr. Ross that he had got a bargain in the shoes, paying only $3.98 for them. He and Mr. Ross figured the cost of getting them and it totaled $4.25. Then the mail order house customer was shown a pair of shoes which he admitted were superior to his and the price mark, in plain figures on the box, showing that Mr. Ross was selling them for $3.50. Like any other shoe man Mr. Ross will not allow a customer to leave his store without a perfect fit.

LESSON IN WATCHES.

A Garrett county citizen has just received a lesson in the difference between mail order goods and those handled by the local merchant. He paid the neat sum of $21 for a watch which was beautifully illustrated in the catalogue and which appeared to be a real bargain.

Soon after receiving the watch the owner discovered that it was not keeping good time and took the time piece to the local jeweler. To prove his assertion that the watch was old the local jeweler sent it to the factory for examination. The factory replied that the watch was all of twenty-five years of age and was completely worn out. The local jeweler's price for a new watch of the same class nine dollars.

WHERE IS YOUR MONEY WORKING?

Every day more or less expressions are heard on the streets and throughout the community on the part of good citizens to the effect that they would like to see a new industry located here—something to afford employment to many men and bring more real money into the community. That long looked for industry may come knocking at our door any day. Will we be in position to take care of it? One of the first questions to come from the prospective manufacturer will be "Can your local people raise enough cash for a suitable site and a sidetrack to our plant?" And the next question will be "Are your banks in position to take care of our business? On certain occasions we will need accommodations to the extent of several thousand dollars."

When such propositions as this come to a community the local business people, and no others, are looked to take care of the situation. If they have enjoyed the co-operation of the people and are made prosperous it is an easy matter to furnish the money which will bring the new industry to the community. If the money is going out of town and the merchant is left to take care of the credit business and to struggle along with the small amount of patronage the people care to give them when they cannot wait long enough to get it from the mail order house, they will be found greatly handicapped as public benefactors.

The ability of the local bank or banks is controlled by the people just the same as the local merchant. With the support of all the community the local banking institutions can well be depended upon to come to the front to encourage and welcome the new industry and to foster any business enterprise designed to improve the conditions in the home community. But if the local people persist in doing their banking away from home and assisting some other community the local institutions will find it impossible to assist no matter what their desires may be.

No matter what degree of prosperity may prevail in this community it needs every dollar produced here and needs the co-operation of the local banking institutions.

KITZMILLER

With such an establishment as that of Coffman & Fisher in their midst the people of Kitzmiller and vicinity have a mercantile service which they can well be proud of. It is now giving a service seldom found outside of the much larger towns and cities and is truly a credit to the community as well as a great advantage and convenience to all the people.

This is one of the largest and best stores in Garrett county and no where can there be found a better grade and more modern stock of dry goods, notions and ready-to-wear garments for men, women and children than is carried in stock here. It is truly a store of "Furnishing for the Whole Family" and not only do they carry a line such as will meet the fa[illegible]on who may enter the establishment but every article goes out of the store with a strict guarantee to be just as represented by the salesman. The high standard in quality, strict adherence to the prevailing styles and the very fair prices asked for these goods have made this one of the most popular shopping centers in this section of the country.

None but the most reliable goods are allowed to be placed on sale in this store. As evidence of the high character of merchandise sold there the shoe department carries a complete stock of the famous King Quality for men and Queen Quality for women and misses. In men's clothing the Styleplus brand is the leader. For those who want their clothing made to measure this firm takes orders for some of the best known tailoring establishments in the country.

One of the most important departments of the store is that of the coats and suits for ladies and misses. The stock is large with such an assortment as to meet the demands of all.

The people of Kitzmiller have this store in their midst because they patronize it. With more co-operation on the part of the people Coffman and Fisher will make it greater and will be in position to do more for the community. Mr. G. W. Coffman, the manager, is a young man of the community building type and one of the kind who would make himself a valuable citizen in any community.

KITZMILLER BREAD.

Since the first of last November the people of Kitzmiller and Blaine have had a first class bakery service in their community. C. J. DeRoo, the baker, has already demonstrated the fact that he is a man of more than ordinary ability in his line. The people of the community are fully appreciative of the high grade bread and pastry produced. Mr. DeRoo and his business venture is proving a decided success.

A full line of bread and pastries are carried in stock and attractively arranged in his retail store.

GULLY & WATKINS.

For those who want goods at popular prices the firm of Gully & Watkins at Blaine is in position to supply the demand in a most satisfactory manner. Their 5, 10 and 25 cent store is stocked with almost anything needed in the home. These goods beat the mail order house offerings in both quality and price and in addition to this the purchaser has an opportunity to examine the goods before paying for the same. this establishment is a great convenience to the people of that section.

COMPLETE STORE.

The general mercantile establishment of the Hamill Coal & Coke Company at Blain is one of the largest and most complete establishment in this section of the country and is doing its full share toward community building in its trading district. With its forty-two hundred feet of floor space taken up to the very best advantage in handling the great assortment of high class merchandise it is a business institution which would do credit to any town or city in the country.

In addition to the great stock of dry goods, notions, groceries and general hardware carried there is a fine shoe department where foot wear is carried for every member of the family and for the people in every walk of life. There is a millinery department which gives the ladies and misses of that community a direct advantage over almost any community of a like size in the country.

There is a department for mine and miners supplies which is a big establishment within itself. More than seven kegs of powder were handled in this department during last year. In this and the flour and feed department the supplies are purchased in car load lots and by this means the company is in position to meet all competition.

There is also a furniture department which is stocked to supply every want in the way of home furnishing and like the goods in every other department of the big establishment the prices are right considering the real worth of the goods.

Such a business establishment as this is essential in the building of any community and should have the support of every person in that section who is interested in the welfare of home.

POOL & SCOTHERN.

The people of Kitzmiller would find themselves confronted with a most inconvenient situation indeed were they to be deprived of such a store as that conducted by Pool & Scothern. It is one of the most complete stores of general merchandise to be found in all this section of the country. There is a fine line of dry goods, notions, clothing for every member of the family, groceries and cured meats.

As representatives of the I. H. C. this firm is in position to supply the wants of the farmers with the best farming impliments and supplies to be found anywhere. The hardware department is supplied with everything desired by the people there in this line. The feed department is proving a great convenience to all the people of that community.

THE BANK.

That the presence of the First National Bank of Kitzmiller is a great convenience to all the people of that community is readily agreed by everybody. In addition to giving a fine banking service to the people this institution is taking the initiative in community improvement and the building of a greater business center. With the money of the community going to the metropolitan cities this bank is being interferred with in its effort toward the good of everybody in that section of the county.

J. M. DAVIS & SONS.

For more than half a century the name of J. M. Davis has been prominently associated with the business interests of Oakland and Garrett county. When Mr. Davis launched into the business affairs of this community more than fifty years ago he became a community builder and it was through the efforts of this man and his associates in business development that we have the fine community here in Garrett county as it exists today.

But few of the present generation can realize the wonderful change which has taken place in this section during the business career of Mr. Davis and a less number can comprehend the difficulties which were necessarily overcome by the business man in those early and primitive days. There were no banking facilities, no telephone and the means of transportation were limited to practically nothing outside of the railroad running East and West.

However, in those days, the people depended entirely upon the local merchant as a market for their goods and source of supply and it was this business policy which built this great community. In this manner the community received the full benefit from its products. The spirit of co-operation prevailed among all the people and while each individual was receiving a direct benefit the entire community prospered and advanced at a wonderful rate.

While the invasion of the mail order houses has retarded business development during late years the folly of the practice of throwing their support to other communities is rapidly becoming realized by the people and they are coming back to the home merchant. Messrs. Charles S. and J. W. Davis, sons of the pioneer business man and community builder in Garrett county, and who are now in charge of the business of the firm of J. M. Davis & Sons, have fully prepared themselves to meet the requirements of the present day business conditions and are giving the people of this community a store of which they are justly proud. While Mr. Davis has retired from active business he is still greatly interested in the welfare of this great community and is anxious to see everybody prosper.

The great hardware establishment of this firm deserves the support of every individual in Garrett county. It is a business institution of a most complete and modern character and one which fills the requirements of today just as the general store of Mr. Davis did a half a century ago. In this great store is not only found an assemblage of a great stock of goods to meet every requirement in the way of hardware and to give the people of this community a hardware service such as is seldom found outside of the larger cities but the buying has been done to such an advantage as to meet all competition in the way of prices.

While there is a department in this store made up of a cheaper grade of goods and which are sold at the popular prices to meet the demand for that class of goods the store is made up generally of the highest character and most reliable goods to be had on the market. Every department, except the one mentioned, bear this evidence. In the cutlery department the leading brand is the Robeson "Sure Edge" which is well known to the best posted trade as one of the best to be found in the country. No better tools can be had at any price than the "O. V. B." brand which are made by one of those high class concerns which competes with the world on the reliability of its produce and is proud to place its name on every article turned out.

During the thirty years this firm has been engaged in the hardware business it has catered particularly to the paint business and in that time has given much attention to the matter of paint service. In order to make the paint department harmonize with the remainder of the store it was necessary to carry the very best brand. Their long experience has taught them that the product of H. B. Davis of Baltimore was not only the highest standard of paint on the market but was the most adaptable for this climate. During the many years they have been handling this paint it has been giving absolute satisfaction and has proven its superior worth.

The Davis Steel Ranges, patented and manufactured by Mr. Charles S. Davis has become popular with the housewives throughout this country where it has been introduced. This business enterprise on the part of Mr. Davis has been the means of bringing much outside business to Oakland. In addition to this particular type of range there is a complete line of gas and coal heaters and cooking stoves. They are there in such a wide range of styles, sizes and prices as to meet the desires of everybody.

Throughout this and many of the adjoining states the best barns are equipped with the great labor saving outfits sold and installed by this firm. They have been found the most economical and convenient among the other makes and have been the means of attracting farmers here from long distances.

The roofing department has also been developed until it has become a trade drawing feature for the town. Roofing material of every description is carried in stock and in every instance the reliability can be depended upon.

With its thirteen thousand square feet of floor space and immense stock of well selected goods it is truly a wonderful store and is a great convenience and advantage to this community. In addition to those features mentioned above there is everything to make up a complete and up-to-date hardware store. On the same grade of goods this establishment will compete with any retail establishment in the country, including the stores of the larger cities and the mail order houses.

The women of this community are invited to visit the model kitchen which has been installed in the rear of the room fronting on Alder street. It is equipped with every modern convenience and will prove especially interesting to those contemplating the building of a home or the remodeling of their kitchen. In this connection there is a complete kitchen utensil outfit of one hundred pieces which is sold for ten dollars, or on an average of ten cents per piece.

These are but a few of the interesting features of this store and to those who have been sending their money to the catalogue houses or going to other points to do their shopping in this line we wish to assure that they have been doing themselves an injustice in not first ascertaining what can be had here.

After his long years of active service in business here and community building Mr. J. M. Davis has practically retired from active service. The work, however, has been taken up where he left off by the two sons who are now in the very prime of life and who are here to do their full share toward making Oakland and Garrett county a greater and more prosperous business center and a better place in which to live.

THE PEOPLE'S FORUM.

Perilous Times.

In my last I spoke of Perilous Times Morally. In this let me call attention to the social aspect of this question. It will scarcely be called in question that there is an immense amount of social unrest. It is everywhere apparent. There is a mad rush for new pleasures. We are reminded of the experience of an old Monarch, who having gone the round of all the known pleasures, only to be disgusted with the whole thing, offered a fabulous sum to the man who would invent a new pleasure.

The masses want new excitement. Anything to gratify a morbid desire and taste, there is a frenzied rush for blood curdling spectacles; an insatiable greed for money. Men, women and children go half wild over races, one of the favorites being auto races. But these have degenerated into a means of satisfying a thirst for blood on the part of spectators and greed for money on the part of promoters. Every appeal possible is made to the lowest element in man's nature. What can Americans say of Spanish or Mexican bull fights or gladiatorial contests of old Rome, when an auto race is advertised as follows:

"Shaking Dice With Death—20 Dare Devil drivers in thrilling speed duels. The field vs. death. Which will win."

Here is another.—60-40 car No. 4 ran into car No. 7. Two men hurt. Come out to see the spill.

It is hypocrisy and a misnomer to call the ghastly results of such races accidents. They are "features" "drawing cards." The killed and wounded are victims of human sacrifice to the twin gods of blood lust and money-lust. This is the opinion of those who can distinguish between what is robust and murderous in healthful and invigorating sport.

Barney Oldfield, in "Popular Mechanics" says, "I was never popular until I went through the fence at St. Louis and killed two spectators. Promoters fell over themselves to sign me up. It is the call of the old Roman Arena; of the Spanish Bull ring. It is no more sport than hanging is sport. The game is not worth the candle. It took ten years to prove this. It has been a decade replete with black headlines and black mourning. The interest of the public was immense, but so was the interest in cock-fighting, in prize fights, in gladiatorial contests. So it was in the old Mexican bull fights, where in the name of sport they killed cattle instead of human beings, though now and then they managed to sacrifice a man or two to add interest to the show. While the body of Basle still lay beside his machine, women tried to cut off pieces of his clothing as a souvenir. On the day after his death 10,000 persons fought for front seats at the track.

Today daily papers fairly drive their readers into the chamber of horrors by their ingenuity in phrasing of headlines and the prominence and space given to reports of bloody murders, of lynching, of shocking incidents and hideous violations of the customs of civilized society. Sensational papers and many respectable journals devote more space to crime than to virtue, courage and honor; while they report at length the views of criminals and sometimes of harlots. They thereby invest lawbreakers with the importance of great public figures.

The center of the stage, is awarded with enthusiasm to the "affinities," who figure as journalistic heroes and heroines. Unhappy affinities have fallen into this trap of the devil but their end is monotonously miserable, though they are accorded the front of the stage to give their views of the marriage relation, as if they were leaders in the war for the emancipation of humanity. But they are blind guides that have fallen into the pit.

Does the violation of the seventh commandment qualify a woman to become a teacher of manners and morals? When men by reason of their wealth defy the laws of the land, and because of their adulterous practices are divorced and forbidden to remarry, yet trample under foot all decency, despoil the integrity of the family and strike at the foundations of society and defy the moral sense of the community by marrying one who is silly enough to sacrifice her virtue on the alter of lust, it is time for society to let such feel its displeasure, and if it is sensitive to right and wrong, it will repudiate the woman who thus surrenders herself to one judicially unfit to marry again. It will rebuke also the empty pated mother and fool father who connived at it, for the sake of money and position, and especially will it rebuke the vain godless concubine the polluted social barnacle, who through her doubles his own offence.

Decent, moral, christian society should consign such to oblivion and let them rest under the blighting perpetual stigma of an outraged society.

This condition of things socially is the legitimate result of the style of dressing that characterizes so much of our Social High Life.

The kind of dressing adopted by some of our women in the social functions is a disgrace, a slur on decency; a travesty on virtue. It ought to bring a blush of shame to the cheeks of womanhood. The low neck and short sleeves and perforated stockings and thin skirts in warm weather all combine to work evil, which if unchecked results disastrously. Cards, dances, shows, some of them decidedly lascivious, corrupt the mind, debase the morals and suggest thoughts that lead to sensuality and eventually to destruction of virtue and morals.

The fearful thing too, is the prominent part that professing christians play in this thing.

Society in its present condition needs the reforming influences of christianity, the elevating power of grace, and the sweetness and sanctifying tendencies of Him who honored it by his presence in Galilee, and gave it a divine touch, an example—the imitation of which will elevate and purify it and make it a fit place for the Angels of Light, but it will put the ban forever on the presence and influence of the angels of darkness. Perilous times socially are surely upon us.

JOHANNES.

GRANTSVILLE.

George Oester, an employe at the home of S. C. Loechel, near the Mason and Dixon line, had a painful experience last week from which he has not yet recovered. Mr. Oester was indulging in the luxury of a yawn when his jaws became unhinged and to his dismay he found himself unable to close them again. A physician was hastily summoned from the village who, finding himself unable to administer ether and perform the operation alone, sent in a hurry call for the other physician and the two, after hard work, restored the sufferer's jaws to their normal position. Mr. Oester is a son of Conrad Oester of the Cove and has been in the employ of Mr. Loechel for some time, being a quiet industrious young man. Owing to the severe shock and unavoidable laceration of the young man's mouth, which causes him much pain, he has gone to his home for a few weeks until recovered from his painful misadventure.

Little Anna Catharine, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Schrock of near Grantsville, died on Wednesday, Jan. 19th, from pneumonia and complications resulting from whooping cough. The child had been ill but a short while. She was aged 7 years, 1 month and 26 days. Two smaller sisters, who also have the same malady, are bereaved besides the parents. Funeral services were held Friday in the Amish church, Rev. Jonas B. Miller and Christian W. Bender officiating.

The families of Mrs. J. P. Miller, H. P. Miller and Lewis Schrock are recovering from the whooping cough and grippe. A trained nurse has been secured for Miss Helen Stanton who has had a relapse with pneumonia lately. The condition of Mrs. Sophia Bonig remains about the same, also that of Mrs. J. J. Bender and Squire Peter Nathan, all of whom have been quite seriously ill. Miss Althea Engle is about recovered from the whooping cough and has started to school again. Master Guy Stanton has been obliged to stay home from school the past month, owing to a badly infected foot due to having been frozen.

Lee Meyers, the fireman who was badly injured on the Jennings railroad several weeks ago, has sufficiently recovered to permit his being brought home from the Western Maryland hospital last week. He was brought up in M. J. Miller's car to his home, where he will remain in bed until entirely recovered.

A basket ball game was held Saturday night at this place between Mt. Savage and Grantsville, resulting in a score of 18-13 in favor of the Mt. Savage team. The line-up:

Grantsville 13		Mt. Savage 18
Gnagey	F	Collins
Stanton	F	Caslay
Broadwater	C	Graham
Warnick	G	Shaffer
Boucher	G	Carter

Referee—Bloucher. Timekeeper—Broadwater. The Mt. Savage boys were guests at the Victoria Hotel over night returning Sunday morning.

Provided with lots of good things to eat, about eighteen or twenty young folks descended upon Master Oliver Bender on Jan. 31, in honor of his 12th birthday, and gave him the surprise of his life. After an evening spent in various kinds of games, refreshments were served and the party dispersed.

Miss Ethel Broadwater entertained informally on Friday night in honor of her guest, Miss Jennie Lee. Games were the diversion and refreshments followed. The guests included Misses Angela Getty, Ruth Keller, Beulah and Hazel Engle, Messrs. U. O. Blocher, W. M. Gnagey, Charles Keller, John Livengood and John Younkin.

The Late Governor Francis Thomas

BY CHARLES M. MILLER

This is the first of a series of several articles relative to an illustrious but unfortunate Governor of Maryland who is remembered by many.

A compactly constructed and engagingly phrased review of the unhappy yet not inglorious career of this gifted Marylander lately printed in your columns, lessen such faint excuse as may have existed for this burden upon the reading public. An earnest avowal is here registered against even the slightest pretention in these mentions of any biographical production or pretended tracings of the occurrences of a life so deserving of intelligent study and of the closest accumulation of facts. The purpose here is to reproduce some of the striking features noted in a brief acquaintance with this remarkable personage late in the evening of a long life; to catch some of the sun-beams falling through the clouds, and to revive some of the sayings that came to me from respected sources, with the hope that some part of such charm of personality and brilliancy of mind may be rescued from oblivion.

Likely a little investigation will make clear to you that the above mentioned published article was in error in its statement that Governor Thomas was a Democrat. He was not of the type of men concealing their attitude upon public policies. Though a son of the South, when the war of 1861-1865 called the divided sections to arms, he stood upon the Federal side of that fierce conflict and gave unchanging adherence to the administration of President Lincoln. After the triumph of the Union armies, he received from President Grant appointment of Plenipotentiary from this government to Peru. Prior to the Civil war he served a term as governor of Maryland, making his inauguration notable by the announcement that morning of his separation from Mrs. Thomas. This event occured more than a quarter of a century before this writer ever heard of either of the actors in this singular estrangement; but that the Governor in his declining years, mellowed by time and calm reflection, censured himself as the wrongful cause of that deplorable act and became so embittered by its memory as to seek the home of a recluse, no one will be apt to deny. In the western part of Allegany, now covered by Garrett county, possessing himself of a magnificent stretch of real estate in virgin growth, unbroken for the distance of about thirty miles in length, with width, in parts, of four miles. Far back in the interior of the untamed forest, he erected himself a home (now known as the Joel Wiland farm of New Germany) and, for a time, lived there a life of lonliness, beyond the confines of that society in which he was fitted by nature and attainments to shine as a center.

Perplexing surveys, escheat titles and vexing contentions in courts, required unrelaxing attention and entailed such enormous costs in securing a clear right to, perhaps, near fifty separate tracts and a great number of "Military Lots," tracts and lots making an aggregate approximating fifty thousand acres of mountain and glade lands, that the Governor became so heavily involved in debt as to induce him, after a reservation of four hundred and ten acres, embraced in the generally known Frankville home under the name of "Polo Alto," to sell the entire remaining part of this princely holdings to General Joseph R. Anderson, of Richmond Virginia, who was not only a kinsman but a most ardent admirer of Gov. Thomas and, after an interval of some fifteen years, this large purchase of timbered land, eventuated in the coming of the undersigned to Garrett county, in the year 1873, as the personal representative of General Anderson and of a consequent contact with Governor Thomas.

When the star of the Governor's widening future was in its, apparently, assured ascendancy, Virginia's commanding septre in the sister-hood of states had not departed from her, and at so auspicious a period, his marriage alliance with the accomplished daughter of Governor McDowell of the "Old Dominion," bringing to the support of his political ambition one of the best founded and most influential families of Virginia, the way to the presidency was in view. But an unseen folly robbed fortune of her fruits. In a blind passion of insane jealousy, like Othelo, he threw away the jewel worth all things else and, stripped of his plumage he fell in his flight, a destined victim of an endless disappointment. The one aspiration now remaining as a distinct element in that altered mind, was to get beyond the foot-fall of moving humanity, into a quiet that would have been a prison, before a blow from a pitiless decree

One night, deep in the mountains, this writer picked up a pamphlet, yellowed by age, and found it to be an address by Gov. Thomas to the people of Maryland, vindicating his stand in a proceding for divorce. This printed address was read with growing interest to the last page, which in some way had been detached and lost. My feelings were so keenly stirred by the intensity of the author's language as to compel acceptence of his suspicions and his charges. Returning the next evening from a survey to the same house, the pamphlet was again but more guardely read, and then not one allegation impressed one as being equal either to the test of logic or the application of a dispassionate weighing.

The opinion was current that the Governor bitterly regreted this publication and did all he could to gather every copy of the issuance.

FISH PROTECTION MUST BE INSURED

Closed Season of Two Years Proposed in Order to Get Stock From the Government.

In order to secure fish to stock streams from the United States Fish Commission, it is proposed by sportsmen to have the present Legislature pass laws for the protection of fish. It is understood that the government refuses to supply fish for stocking streams longer unless there is protection. It is proposed to have the trout streams closed for fishing for two years in order to permit propagation to proceed unhindered.

In this event it is understood, the government likely will accede to a request for two carloads of fish this spring for local streams—one of bass, pike and other varieties and one of trout. The plan is to stock every stream in Allegany and Garrett. A delegation from Allegany county is expected to visit Annapolis in behalf of this legislation and also to go to Washington to urge a liberal allotment of fish stock for the local streams.

Fertilizer.

A carload of Rock Phosphate will be unloaded at the railroad siding in Oakland on or after February 22nd. Anyone desiring any of this phosphate will please notify the undersigned and I will then advise when it may be expected. The price will be $9.75 per ton at the car. D. J. SWARTZENTRUBER.

LARGE BLOCK OF PARK STOCK CHANGES HANDS

One Hundred and Twenty-two Shares Sold to a Wheeling Business Man.

Last Saturday one hundred and twenty-two shares of the stock of the Mountain Lake Park Association changed hands, the purchaser being Mr. Edward W. Westwood, of Wheeling, W. Va., where the new owner of the stock is engaged in the real estate business.

The stock sold comprised ninety-two shares owned by Dr. John F. Goucher; twenty shares of the Woman's College and ten shares of Dr. C. W. Baldwin, all of Baltimore. It is said that the price paid for the stock was $150 per share, or a bonus of $50 per share, the par value being $100.

The transfer on the books of the Association was made by Secretary Rudisill, who came to Oakland from Annapolis for that purpose, meeting Mr. Westwood here with whom he went over the affairs of the Park. Mr. Westwood will visit Oakland again on next Friday and will take over other shares of the stock of the Association, expecting to purchase sufficient to give him control, when a syndicate will be formed and the Park property will be improved and many things done to make it more attractive.

The present board of directors will continue until the annual meeting next July.

WRECK ON GRADE.

Many Cars Broken Up and All Tracks Were Blocked Monday Afternoon.

Monday afternoon a wreck of a freight train on the Seventeen mile grade, near Bond Junction, tied up all traffic for several hours.

The wreck was caused by a broken wheel of a freight car on an eastbound train which caused it to leave the track and pile up along with several other cars, blocking all three tracks so completely that trains were delayed four to five hours. The westbound accommodation, due in Oakland at 5:15 in the afternoon, did not get through until after 11 o'clock that night. Eastbound train No. 16 was held at Altamont until the tracks were cleared.

FOREST PLANTING IS A GOOD INVESTMENT

Experience in Maryland Shows Tree Planting On Poor Farm Soils Pays.

During the past two years the State Board of Forestry at Baltimore has distributed from the State Forest Nursery more than 125,000 trees at cost prices for forest planting on waste lands. The average charge to residents and land owners of the State was only $5.85 per thousand, representing the actual expense of growing them. The office of the State Forester directed the planting of 50,000 of the trees.

It would therefore seem that local land owners are appreciating the facilities offered by the State Nursery and have become convinced of the soundness of such a proposition, and of the thorough practicability, in a financial sense, of reclaiming, through tree planting, exhausted soils which cannot be made to grow farm crops in paying quantities.

One landowner in Northern Maryland, near Havre de Grace, had 18,000 young oak and Locust trees set out on poor pasture land in 1914, and the plantation so far is very successful. Another, living on the Eastern Shore, used 30,000 Loblolly Pine seedlings for reforestration purposes to his own satisfaction and the improvement of the land. On the former site there should be a good crop of posts in not over 12 to 15 years from the time of planting, and the whole plantation may either be handeled for such products, in short rotations, or managed as a longer-time investment for valuable saw timber. The Loblolly should produce a heavy yield of the latter, in addition to smaller material, secured from occasional thinnings, for use about the farm. In either case the work is constructive and desirable, and should be profitable. A plantation of forest trees protects the soil from erosion, and is a good investment for the sake of the trees alone, though it is undoubtedly true that a stand of merchantable or growing timber adds to the cash value of any farm.

The board has at this time about 150,000 forest seedlings and transplants available for planting next month. These, as were those last year, will be sold to local land owners at the cost of growing them. Prices for small trees of suitable size to run from $3.50 per thousand for White Pine seedlings to $12 per thousand for Black Walnut transplants, and there are also for sale at corresponding prices Norway, Red Oak, Black Locust, White Ash, Honey Locust and American Elm. Orders for less than a thousand will be filled at the regular per thousand rate, with a small charge for packing.

Stocks of some varieties are limited, but trees will be reserved for those who get their orders into the office of the State Forester, Johns Hopkins University, Baltimore, before the stock is exhausted. Price lists and blanks for ordering will be forwarded upon application, together with any information desired on the subject of tree planting, but the planting should be done before April 10th for best results.

O. H. S. NOTES.

News From The Oakland Temple Of Learning.

The recital given by Miss Helen Virginia Nesbitt in the Assembly hall last Thursday evening, February 10, was a literary treat which would be hard to surpass. Miss Nesbitt had a well arranged program of humorous, pathetic, oratorical and witty selections. She evinced great ability as a reader and held the closest attention of her audience. Her charming personality and her unaffected demeanor added greatly to her performance. It is to be hoped that Miss Nesbitt will appear in Oakland again sometime, and that all the lovers of art and literary culture may have the privilege of hearing her.

Miss Hanna gave us a very interesting and instructive talk about the care of the teeth last Monday.

The Senior Class has decided to take a trip to Washington in the spring, substituting it for the usual class day exercises.

The Lancastrian and Yorkist literary societies will combine to render two programs on February 22. One is to be given in the morning at 9:45 in honor of Lincoln, the other in the afternoon at two o'clock in honor of Washington. At both programs there will be special addresses delivered, and the work of our best local musical talent will be a feature. We extend a most cordial invitation to the community to be present at the rendition of both programs. The programs are as follows:

DROPPED DEAD WHILE HANDLING HAY FROM STACK

Sudden Death of Mr. Michael Garrett of Near Deer Park, Monday.

On Monday of this week, Mr. Michael Garrett, of near Deer Park, dropped dead as he was pitching hay from the top of a stack standing in a field near his home, and in view of members of his household who were observing what he was doing at the time.

Mr. Garrett owns the Thomas Hayes place, west of Deer Park and adjacent to the tracks of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad. He had left the dinner table just a few minutes before his sudden demise for the purpose of feeding his stock, going directly to the field in which he had stacked some hay and was engaged in pitching it to the ground when death overtook him. He fell upon the top of the stack and lay there until his body was removed to the house just a short time afterwards, where it was prepared for burial, the funeral occuring yesterday morning from St. Peter's Catholic church in Oakland after a high mass conducted by the pastor, Rev. James E. Connell.

Mr. Garrett was aged 59 years. He was born in Ireland and came to this country while yet a young man, locating at Deer Park where he always resided. He is survived by his widow and one daughter. He was an excelent citizen and was held in high esteem by all.

WISE TO THE GAME

This is the type of man OUR community needs. The man who is "WISE to the game." The man who CAN'T be "April-fooled." HE is on to all the tricks of the mail order business. He's got them all down PAT, and so he smiles as he passes up the gold brick on his way home with his basket of home bought goods on his arm. Take a good look at this man, for we need more of his kind. The crying need of today is for more men and women who refuse to be fooled by this most gigantic swindle of modern times. Every community needs men and women who will INVESTIGATE for themselves, who will compare home [illegible] values. Let US all get wise to this game and

MONEY AT HOME

The fad for "imported" goods in this country for practically all times past has been discovered as a genuine fallacy. The European war has practically cut off the supply of these supposed superior goods and has thrown the proper light upon the merits of the domestic products. Already the fad has changed and today the popular article is the one "Made in U. S. A."

This means that millions of dollars heretofore going out of this country annually because of a mere fad will now remain in the United States and that there will be just that much more money at home and within reach of everybody. It means that many thousands of men will receive employment here making the articles which have heretofore been made in the foreign country.

During the past few years a fad has developed among the people throughout this country to do their shopping with the mail order houses. It is a fad much less warranted than that of buying the "imported" goods and has deprived the local communities of more than did the other fad deprive this great country in the way of money and home prosperity.

Through the influence of this fad the mail order houses have been reaping a great harvest. The popularity of the fad has enabled them to fleece the people in a manner which is truly shameful They have made gross misrepresentations in their catalogues and have employed many deceptive means to sell their goods to the unthinking public.

It is estima ed that several hundred thousand dollars annually is being sent fromtGarrett county and its trading district to these mail order houses. This means that just that amount of cash is being sent away never to return and the business men who have no interest whatever in this community and who do not pay one cent of taxes here profits to just that extent.

The local business people are your greatest assistance in building your community. They are your friends on all occasions and the people who will appreciate your co-operation in the effort to build a greater business community.

When misfortune befalls anyone of the community the business men are the first to be appealed to for assistance. When money must be raised for the bringing of an industry the same men are looked to for it. He is called upon to support the band, the ball team, the volunteer fire department and the many other institutions and causes for the protection, pleasure and convenience of all the people. An appeal to a mail order house for a donation in any one of these events or for any cause would be completely ignored.

This "fad" is proving a real detriment to every community throughout the country. The patrons of the mail order houses are not only receiving an inferior article in their purchases but the financial drain is retarding local development.

THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 17, 1916

NEW York has about 700,000 school children.

THE policy of chocking an individual, an enterprise or a city never was known to be helpful to normal growth.

Now that President Wilson has risen above politics he finds his own party sinking to a selfish partisan level.

THE area in square miles of the United States of America (continental) is 2,025,000; all Europe, 3,800,000.

MR. WILSON says he would rather surrender territory than ideals. But why consider the surrender of either?

IT is easy to clamor against preparedness, but those who did it in Noah's time have not had their names enshrined in history.

These are great times. In the intervals of skating one can wander in the fields and pick fresh-blooming violets and daisies.

A New York shoemaker was fined $10 for mending his own shoes on Sunday. Yes, indeed, Gotham's morals are improving and the world is growing better.

IT is estimated that the annual loss to agriculture in this country from the depredation of insects and rodents alone is $10,000,000,000—about $1 a month for every man, woman and child in the United States.

ABRAHAM LINCOLN.

Doubtful is it if any character in American history has been as great an inspiration to men as that of Abraham Lincoln. Washington, the soldier, the pioneer in the exemplification of the principles of free government, has ever held first place in the estimate of the youth of every generation and by all has the great first-president been revered as the master mould of true Americanism, but Lincoln, because he more intimately touched the masses and because of the obstacles he had to overcome in preparing himself for the attainment of the high position he held—these facts added to those connected with the remarkable phases of his career in most troublous times have left an indefinable impress upon every era.

Hardly any notable character has had more superlatives woven into the delineation of his life; few have had more good-intentioned, but overfanciful romances written about him; not many have had so great a number of well-meaning yet totally inaccurate principles ascribed to him as has Lincoln. But making due allowance for this inexactness, this tendency to overestimate, to exaggerate, Lincoln stands out to-day as a rare type of rugged honesty, simplicity, fair-mindedness, broad humanity, high principle and indomitable will—a character well worthy of emulation.

SOME WEATHER

The groundhog didn't see it, so he is not to blame; it's up to Old Man Winter, who got there just the same. And thus again 'tis proven, in manner that is clear, we're up against a season that certainly is queer.

The day a chap goes biking, and feels a springtime thrill, the next day he goes sledding down snow-clad street or hill. At morn he's gladly doffing his heavy overcoat, at noontime Old Man Winter swoops down and gets his goat.

One day a fellow's hearing the robins' merry lay; next day the bird has scooted to regions far away. One day a fellow's giving his rubber shoes the slip; the next day he's a victim of chills and aches and grip.

One day a fellow's chuckling because of balmy clime, and mentions that the plumberis idle all the time; nextmorning he awakens to learn that in the night a sudden change of weather froze water pipes up tight.

One day a fellow shivers, the next day he declares he's suffering from spring fever that struck him unawares. And thus, through frequent changes, vile drugs we're forced to sup, and meanwhile vainly question, Who balled this winter up?

MILLER DISTILLERY BILL PASSED HOUSE TUESDAY

To Put The Only Distillery In The County Out of Business.

STATE HOUSE, ANNAPOLIS, FEB., 16.—Shartzer's bill, prohibiting the manufacture of intoxicants in Garrett county, and aimed directly at the Miller Distillery at Accident, passed the House yesterday after a stormy session. The bill came up after the regular business had been disposed of, as a special order of the day being on its passage in the House. Shartzer immediately took the floor and asked the members of the House to stand by Garrett county on the bill, assuring them that the entire representation, including Senator Speicher, is for the bill, and telling them how badly the people of his section wanted the distillery removed.

Delegate League, of Baltimore, a member of the Temperance Committee, spoke against the bill and said it is only a "political scheme" to help somebody politically in Garrett county.

THREATENED TO "GET MILLER NEXT TIME."

Chairman Herpich, of the Allegany Delegation, took the floor in opposition to the bill and declared that it is a personal matter with Shartzer, and said that at the close of the 1914 session, a similar bill having been introduced and failed, Shartzer had threatened to "get Bill Miller next time." Mr. Herpich, referring to Shartzer's remark that "Miller is not the white-winged angel the opponents of the bill would try to make him," said "there are others from Garrett county who are not white-winged angels." He said the bill was a medium for personal spite and he hoped the House would not pass it.

Delegates Wilkinson, of Baltimore City, and Winsborow, of Worcester, spoke in favor of the bill, and Delegate Tydings, of Ha... against it.

"PREVIOUS QUESTIONS" CALLED FOR.

As the debate proceeded it became more and more acrimonious and heated, and the "hot shot" of oratory was kept going at a lively rate. When the talkfest was at its height and there were some indications of the severing of diplomatic relations between some of the members, majority Floor Leader Bryant, of Baltimore county made a motion to take a recess until 5 o'clock, but the motion went under beneath a flood of "Noes!"

Delegate Shartzer moved "the previous question," and that stopped all the eloquence and most of the noise. The bill was then read and put upon its passage.

The roll-call proceeded quietly, now and then one member and another taking occasion to "explain his vote," either for or against the bill, and at last "the returns" were all in, and the bill passed by the vote of 55 to 38.

It will now go to the Senate, where the fight to defeat it is expected to be renewed.

TO CREATE A POLL-TAX IN MARYLAND.

Shartzer has introduced a bill proposing two amendments—one to the Constitution, and one to the Bill of Rights—providing for the creation of a poll-tax in this State, and no voter can cast his ballot under that law unless he can produce his poll-tax receipt for the year previous to and the year of the election.

WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION LAW AMENDMENT.

Senator Zihlman's bill amending the Workmen's Compensation Law or Employes' Liability Act, or whatever it is called, has been favorably reported by the Senate Committee on Insurance and Loans, and it has gone to the third reading file in that branch. This bill, as was explained at the time it was introduced, makes eligible for compensation, in the event of accident, any miner or mine employe who may be hurt or killed while at work underground, although the place where the accident occurs may be across the line and in another State, provided that the entrance, or "mouth" of the mine be located in Maryland. This feature was overlooked when the Compensation Act was passed, and several suits in litigation have taken place, the occasion for which will be obviated by the passage of the Zihlman bill.

TO AMEND THE ANTI-BLUE LAWS.

Chairman Herpich, of the Allegany Delegation, last Friday introduced in the House a bill amending what is known as the "old Blue Laws," under which it is claimed, great inconvenience to the public results when they are rigidly enforced, as they are in some localities, especially in Allegany county. The bill just offered will permit the sale on Sunday of ice cream, soda water, mineral water, medicines, cigars, tobacco and newspapers, and lubricating oil and gasoline by bona fide garages. It was Mr. Herpich's intention at first to make it a local bill applicable only to Allegany county, but Delegates from other counties were so numerous in requesting to have their county included in its provisions, that he determined to make it a state wide measure and it was so introduced. If itp asses it will apply to every county of the State and to Baltimore City. A bill very similar was introduced early in the session two years ago, and had good prospects of passing, and then failing by a lack of not more than half a dozen votes to give it the necessary "constitutional" majority. The indications are that it will pass this session.

GARRETT COUNTY BILLS MOVING.

Not many new bills for Garrett county have been introduced during the past week, but most of those already in have been making reasonable headway.

Delegate Hayden's bill amending the charter of Loch Lynn, Garrett county, so as to revise the lines and limits of the incorporated territory, and one forbidding the killing ot deer in Garrett county, until October, 1922; also Delegate Fox's bill providing for payment of bounty for fox and hawk scalps, have passed the House and are now over in the Senate.

Delegate Fox has introduced a bill repealing that portion of the Election Law which requires a resident to make a declaration of his intentions to become a resident of Maryland one year prior to the election, before he can register and vote.

REV. RUDISILL SAVES THE MORALS OF THE SENATE.

Last Friday the officiating chaplain of the Senate either did not know or had forgotten that the Upper House would convene at 11 o'clock in the morning, instead of at noon, as is customary when the week-end adjournment is due. Anyway, when the Senate was ready to convene there was no chaplain present to start the Senate off with an opening prayer, and looked bad. Finally, just when matters were at their worst, someone suggested that Mr. Rudisill, clerk to the minority Senators in 1914 and reappointed this session, is an ordained minister and fully equipped to conduct the religious services of the Senate and perform the marriage ceremony when necessary. A messenger was dispatched post-haste to Room No. 33 in the "lower regions"—of the State House—and Mr. Rudisill very promptly, and, it was afterwards said, very eloquently and impressively, offered the prayer which opened the day's proceedings and the morals of the Senate (if not the Senators) were saved.

"SLATED" FOR JUSTICES OF THE PEACE.

It is understood that the following have been "slated" for appointment as Justices or the Peace for Oakland Districts in Garrett county. District No. 7, James D. Hamill, and Ed. Browning; District No. 14, E. I. West and William King.

NOTES AND PERSONALS.

Many ladies from the counties are in Annapolis this week and will attend the Governor's reception tonight.

Former Senator W. McCulloh Brown, of Garrett county, was in Annapolis last Friday, and called at the State House.

Rev. L. A. Rudisill, Miss Ruth Rudisill and Miss Vernie Schrock, of Mt. Lake Park, attended the Governor's reception held in the Executive mansion last night.

The fight of the session will take place this week when the Speicher Statewide Local Option bill comes up in the Senate. Senator Speicher will make the opening speech in favor of the bill. He is untiring in his efforts to secure the enactment of the measure into a law, and is recognized everywhere throughout the State as one of the leaders in the temperance movement in the present legislature.

JENNINGS

We are having very variable weather. It is quite unhealthy. There are lots of la grippe and various other personal ailments due to the unevenness of the temperature.

Mr. Groundhog failed to see his shadow, this year, as his day was cloudy from sunrise to sunset.

The funeral of Daniel Klotz's baby was preached last Sunday in the Lutheran church by Rev. Marvin.

The Pentecostal Saints held a prayer meeting Saturday evening at Thomas Hoover's house. It was well attended and one converted to God, and others came out for prayers. The religious movement seems to be progressing rapidly.

Joe Lytle recently returned home. He was here for several weeks taking up maple lumber for the Appalachia Lumber Co., of Cincinnati, O.

As we have been absent a week we will try again.

Our roads are in a deplorable condition, as this weather is not summer nor yet winter weather.

A good many farmers were visitors at the county capital the first of the week.

The schools of this community are progressing nicely under the instruction of Miss Anna Shaw and Miss Edith Durst.

Miss Lidia Titchnell and little sister, Ada made a flying trip to Kitzmiller Friday.

Miss Anna Shaw entertained on Monday night a number of young people in honor of her sister, Miss Laura. Refreshments were served.

MOUNTAIN LAKE PARK.

The Ladies Aid of the Baptist church of Loch Lynn, were very pleasantly entertained at luncheon, at the home of Mrs. E. E. Kessner, by the U. B. Ladies Aid last Friday. The afternoon was spent very pleasantly and enjoyed by all, thanks to all concerned.

Mr. and Mrs. C. S. May, now of Grafton, W. Va., were visiting Mrs. S. E. Garthright last Friday.

Mrs. Buckwold returned from New York on Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Cornwall and little daughter are now visiting his mother, Mrs. L. J. Cornwall, but will soon leave for their western home in Montana where they own quite a ranch.

Mrs. Lulu Dawson is quite ill again with grip.

I made a very pleasant visit last week to our old friend, Mr. Abe Wilson, at Wilson, Md. He has partly recovered from his stroke of paralysis in his right side, and talks well, and it is a treat to any one to listen to the thrilling accounts of his early days. His devoted niece is taking most excellent care of him. He was in his wheel chair and can get around in his room in that way. If he lives until next July he will complete his hundredth year. The weight of years seem to bear rather heavily upon him. He said, "I am done for, and I wish to go home." I sang a few old hymns for him which he seemed to enjoy. He then repeated one his grand-mother used to sing, "When we've been there ten thousand years, etc." His good wishes for me were expressed most earnestly.

Rev. Barnhouse is now conducting his special meetings at Loch Lynn.

Mr. Bush Hardesty become badly choked on a piece of meat Monday and was sent to Cumberland after an effort to relieve him at Oakland.

Miller Doman made a business trip to Midland last Monday.

We, of the Park, are hoping that the purchasers of Association stock, sold last week, will prove live wires in developing the Park as Maryland's great summer resort.

Mr. L. A. Rudisill spent Sunday at home, returning to Annapolis Monday morning.

Monday morning the thermometer registered 10 degrees below zero.

SUNNYSIDE

Several cattle buyers have been in our vicinity buying young cattle. The demand for young choice cattle is pretty good, but for ordinary ones they don't seem to want any. They do not price so high as they did last year and year before.

Mr. Peter Speicher, our up-town saw miller, is now ready for business. He has a yard full of logs and still more coming in.

Quite a number of our young people attended the literary at Hauser last night. They all report a pleasant time.

Some four or six weeks ago Mr. Peter Brenneman left here for Ohio. Later, we understand he left for Iowa and his last letter says I am going farther. Our good wishes go with him for a pleasant trip, but invite him back next spring, for he is one of our leading farmers.

Mr. W. P. Welch, formerly of this place, now residing in Oakland, was calling among old friends and relatives.

Mr. Jonas Yutzy, who has been visiting his son Guy, of Thomas, W. Va., is back again.

HAUSER

It has been so long since you have heard from us that no doubt it would be agreeable to get us located again.

Our community is known as Hauser; the school as Gauer and our post office address is Oakland, while we get our mail on free rural delivery number two.

We are situated about ten miles west of Oakland and near the main road through from Oakland to Davis, W. Va. It is just two miles from the main highway to the famous Roth Rock, which is 3200 feet above sea level, and one half mile to the West Virginia state line. We can honestly boast of having one of the most beautiful farming sections and the prettiest natural scenery of anywhere in the county. For many a mile stretch on the main highway will you encounter any remarkably steep hills or find a farm that is not in good condition or at least cannot boast of a comfortable house and a spacious well painted barn.

The roads, in summer, are generally in good condition and as the mojority of farmers in this community have automobiles it is very convenient for them to do their shopping in Oakland, Davis and other large towns. The farmers also market their products for the highest market price, in Dobbin, Thomas, Henry and other nearby-towns, where sawmilling and mining are the main industries.

The school house is situated on the main highway at a convenient distance from the homes of all the thirty-eight pupils as is also our little church where we worship twice on Sunday and once during the week. There is a large and very modern Lutheran church situated about two miles from here where we attend preaching, have our harvest home, missionary and Christmas day exercises. There are, on an average about three hundred persons represented in that church. The Lutheran West Virginia and Maryland Synod met there in October where they all reported a very pleasant and successful meeting. Rev. H. E. H. Sloop is on the circuit now and is conducting a series of lectures on home and foreign missions. There will be a program rendered on February 20 for Foreign Mission day in that church.

The Gauer School Progressive Literary Society was organized a few weeks ago, the following officers being elected: Pres., Mr. Clyde C. Gnegy; Vice Pres., Mr. R. Lathrum; chairman, Mr. H. L. Gnegy; Editor, Mr. Page Gnegy, and Secretary, Miss Ada Friend. The program committee is composed of: Messrs. H. Roth, Floyd Shaffer, Robert Lathrum, L. J. Reed and Miss Ada B. Friend. The debates given on January 28 and February 11 were quite a success and the speakers held the audience enwrapped in the best of attention throughout on the questions, respectively, under discussion: "Resolved, that the Orator has more Power than the Editor," and "Resolved, that the Farmer is a greater Benefactor to the Community than the Manufacturer." The affirmative won the decision on the first and the negative on the latter.

There was also a spelling contest given by the Gauer school on Jan. 4. The teacher and part of the pupils from Slabaugh school attended. The spellers were all enthusiastic and did exceptionally well. Mr. Clyde Gnegy, formerly of Gauer school, received the highest honors as best speller.

The Progressive Literary Society will have a debate here again on February 29, the question for discussion to be: "Resolved, that Doctors are more Beneficial than Lawyers." There will also be a home talent play entitled: "A Kiss in the Dark," rendered the same night, by Miss Oda Gnegy, Miss Ada Friend, Miss Mabel Lathrum, Messrs. Thurston Cosner and Wm. Gnegy.

Miss Nina Lathrum has been spending a few weeks with her parents here, but yesterday returned to her sister, Mrs. Edward Leary, of Oakland.

Mr. Steward Roth spent a short vacation with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. D. O. Roth, but returned on Feb. 4, to Hagerstown, where he again assumed his duties as fireman on the W. M. R. His many friends were sorry to say good bye again, for he was very popular and a great favorite in this community.

The stork visited the home of Mr. and Mrs. D. R. Bittner's a few days ago and left a baby boy which, we are sorry to learn, has been seriously ill since its birth.

Miss Lela Mosser is visiting her sister, Mrs. Artie Dodge, at Sunnyside.

Mrs. S. C. Mosser was called to the bed-side of her sick brother, Mr. Wm. Hollen, at Clarksburg, W. Va. She was accompanied by another brother, Mr. B. H. Hollen.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Fowler and sister, Miss Alice, spent Sunday at the home of Mr. D. O. Roth.

Messrs. Harvey A. Roth and Robert Lathrum were business callers in Oakland Tuesday.

Mr. Geo. Blamble purchased a fine three year old colt from Mr. D. O. Roth a few days ago.

Messrs. Elsworth Moon and Ernest Gortner are frequent callers in this community. Did you say you imagined you heard wedding bells?

An effort is being made to secure donations to purchase a new bell for the Red House church.

Mr. T. N. Tanner has finished his saw-milling in this section and is now removing his mill.

The weather has been eight below zero for several days here.

TRIXIE.

A Big Porker.

Mr. S. W. Slabach, of Gortner, places himself before the Garrett county pork raisers association as the champion producer. Some time ago this paper stated that a hog dressing 611 pounds had been killed in the county and invited its readers to enter into competition. Now comes Mr. Slabach with a hog dressing 622 pounds without the heart or liver; with these two very important organs weighed with the carcass it weighed 640 pounds. Who's next?

Boy Killed in Mine.

A young son of Lawrence Finzel, of Finzel, Md., was killed in a West Virginia coal mine several days ago. The body was brought home for burial today.

GARRISON'S resignation is the second bad break in the President's cabinet. Bryan quit because he, Wilson and Congress could not hit it off together. And the war in Europe is the cause of it all.

Entertainment.

The Ladies aid of Deer Park, M. E. church, will give an entertainment and festival in the Savedge Hall on the evening of Feb. 22nd, 1916. All are cordially invited. Admission free.

MRS CLARY, Sec.

SUNNYSIDE

The Sunnyside Literary society will hold its next meeting on the evening of the 12th of February. The question for discussion is "Resolved, That Monopolies and Trusts should be Abolished." The following speakers have been appointed for the occasion. Affirmative, Harry Stahl, Al Fike, Jonas Yutzy, negative, Wm. Kolb, Marshall Wolf and Ernest Soilter. A programme has been prepared for the occasion and everybody is cordially invited to spend an enjoyable evening with the society.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Yutzy spent Saturday and Sunday at the home of the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Sanders at Gortner.

We are sorry to loose our valued neighbor, Mr. Hurley Blamble, who will take charge of the farm of Mr. George Shartzer near Oakland in the near future.

The new saw mill located in our vicinity, operated by Mr. Peter Spiker, is now running regular ready to do sawing for the general public.

Messrs. Jacob and Wellington Yutzy spent Sunday as the guests of Parley sisters and family.

Mr. Edward Kight, of Cumberland, spent a few days recently with his family at this place.

Quite a number of the young people, this place, attended the literary at Houser, also at Mason last week. All report a fine time.

THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 17, 1916

NEW York has about 700,000 school children.

THE policy of chocking an individual, an enterprise or a city never was known to be helpful to normal growth.

Now that President Wilson has risen above politics he finds his own party sinking to a selfish partisan level.

THE area in square miles of the United States of America (continental) is 2,025,000; all Europe, 3,800,000.

MR. WILSON says he would rather surrender territory than ideals. But why consider the surrender of either?

IT is easy to clamor against preparedness, but those who did it in Noah's time have not had their names enshrined in history.

These are great times. In the intervals of skating one can wander in the fields and pick fresh-blooming violets and daisies.

A New York shoemaker was fined $10 for mending his own shoes on Sunday. Yes, indeed, Gotham's morals are improving and the world is growing better.

IT is estimated that the annual loss to agriculture in this country from the depredation of insects and rodents alone is $10,000,000,000—about $1 a month for every man, woman and child in the United States.

ABRAHAM LINCOLN.

Doubtful is it if any character in American history has been as great an inspiration to men as that of Abraham Lincoln. Washington, the soldier, the pioneer in the exemplification of the principles of free government, has ever held first place in the estimate of the youth of every generation and by all has the great first-president been revered as the master mould of true Americanism, but Lincoln, because he more intimately touched the masses and because of the obstacles he had to overcome in preparing himself for the attainment of the high position he held —these facts added to those connected with the remarkable phases of his career in most troublous times have left an indefinable impress upon every era.

Hardly any notable character has had more superlatives woven into the delineation of his life; few have had more good-intentioned, but overfanciful romances written about him; not many have had so great a number of well-meaning yet totally inaccurate principles ascribed to him as has Lincoln. But making due allowance for this inexactness, this tendency to overestimate, to exaggerate, Lincoln stands out to-day as a rare type of rugged honesty, simplicity, fair-mindedness, broad humanity, high principle and indomitable will—a character well worthy of emulation.

SOME WEATHER

The groundhog didn't see it, so he is not to blame; it's up to Old Man Winter, who got there just the same. And thus again 'tis proven, in manner that is clear, we're up against a season that certainly is queer.

The day a chap goes biking, and feels a springtime thrill, the next day he goes sledding down snow-clad street or hill. At morn he's gladly doffing his heavy overcoat, at noontime Old Man Winter swoops down and gets his goat.

One day a fellow's hearing the robins' merry lay; next day the bird has scooted to regions far away. One day a fellow's giving his rubber shoes the slip; the next day he's a victim of chills and aches and grip.

One day a fellow's chuckling because of balmy clime, and mentions that the plumberis idle all the time; nextmorning he awakens to learn that in the night a sudden change of weather froze water pipes up tight.

One day a fellow shivers, the next day he declares he's suffering from spring fever that struck him unawares. And thus, through frequent changes, vile drugs we're forced to sup, and meanwhile vainly question, Who balled this winter up?

MILLER DISTILLERY BILL PASSED HOUSE TUESDAY

To Put The Only Distillery In The County Out of Business.

STATE HOUSE, ANNAPOLIS, FEB., 16.—Shartzer's bill, prohibiting the manufacture of intoxicants in Garrett county, and aimed directly at the Miller Distillery at Accident, passed the House yesterday after a stormy session. The bill came up after the regular business had been disposed of, as a special order of the day being on its passage in the House. Shartzer immediately took the floor and asked the members of the House to stand by Garrett county on the bill, assuring them that the entire representation, including Senator Speicher, is for the bill, and telling them how badly the people of his section wanted the distillery removed.

Delegate League, of Baltimore, a member of the Temperance Committee, spoke against the bill and said it is only a "political scheme" to help somebody politically in Garrett county.

THREATENED TO "GET MILLER NEXT TIME."

Chairman Herpich, of the Allegany Delegation, took the floor in opposition to the bill and declared that it is a personal matter with Shartzer, and said that at the close of the 1914 session, a similar bill having been introduced and failed, Shartzer had threatened to "get Bill Miller next time." Mr. Herpich, referring to Shartzer's remark that "Miller is not the white-winged angel the opponents of the bill would try to make him," said "there are others from Garrett county who are not white-winged angels." He said the bill was a medium for personal spite and he hoped the House would not pass it.

Delegates Wilkinson, of Baltimore City, and Winsborow, of Worcester, spoke in favor of the bill, and Delegate Tydings, of Ha..., against it.

"PREVIOUS QUESTIONS" CALLED FOR.

As the debate proceeded it became more and more acrimonious and heated, and the "hot shot" of oratory was kept going at a lively rate. When the talkfest was at its height and there were some indications of the severing of diplomatic relations between some of the members, majority Floor Leader Bryant, of Baltimore county made a motion to take a recess until 5 o'clock, but the motion went under beneath a flood of "Noes!"

Delegate Shartzer moved "the previous question," and that stopped all the eloquence and most of the noise. The bill was then read and put upon its passage.

The roll-call proceeded quietly, now and then one member and another taking occasion to "explain his vote," either for or against the bill, and at last "the returns" were all in, and the bill passed by the vote of 55 to 38.

It will now go to the Senate, where the fight to defeat it is expected to be renewed.

TO CREATE A POLL-TAX IN MARYLAND.

Shartzer has introduced a bill proposing two amendments—one to the Constitution, and one to the Bill of Rights—providing for the creation of a poll-tax in this State, and no voter can cast his ballot under that law unless he can produce his poll-tax receipt for the year previous to and the year of the election.

WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION LAW AMENDMENT.

Senator Zihlman's bill amending the Workmen's Compensation Law or Employes' Liability Act, or whatever it is called, has been favorably reported by the Senate Committee on Insurance and Loans, and it has gone to the third reading file in that branch. This bill, as was explained at the time it was introduced, makes eligible for compensation, in the event of accident, any miner or mine employe who may be hurt or killed while at work underground, although the place where the accident occurs may be across the line and in another State, provided that the entrance, or "mouth" of the mine be located in Maryland. This feature was overlooked when the Compensation Act was passed, and several suits in litigation have taken place, the occasion for which will be obviated by the passage of the Zihlman bill.

TO AMEND THE ANTI-BLUE LAWS.

Chairman Herpich, of the Allegany Delegation, last Friday introduced in the House a bill amending what is known as the "old Blue Laws," under which it is claimed, great inconvenience to the public results when they are rigidly enforced, as they are in some localities, especially in Allegany county. The bill just offered will permit the sale on Sunday of ice cream, soda water, mineral water, medicines, cigars, tobacco and newspapers, and lubricating oil and gasoline by bona fide garages. It was Mr. Herpich's intention at first to make it a local bill applicable only to Allegany county, but Delegates from other counties were so numerous in requesting to have their county included in its provisions, that he determined to make it a state wide measure and it was so introduced. If itp asses it will apply to every county of the State and to Baltimore City. A bill very similar was introduced early in the session two years ago, and had good prospects of passing, and then failing by a lack of not more than half a dozen votes to give it the necessary "constitutional" majority. The indications are that it will pass this session.

GARRETT COUNTY BILLS MOVING.

Not many new bills for Garrett county have been introduced during the past week, but most of those already in have been making reasonable headway.

Delegate Hayden's bill amending the charter of Loch Lynn, Garrett county, so as to revise the lines and limits of the incorporated territory, and one forbidding the killing of deer in Garrett county, until October, 1922; also Delegate Fox's bill providing for payment of bounty for fox and hawk scalps, have passed the House and are now over in the Senate.

Delegate Fox has introduced a bill repealing that portion of the Election Law which requires a resident to make a declaration of his intentions to become a resident of Maryland one year prior to the election, before he can register and vote.

REV. RUDISILL SAVES THE MORALS OF THE SENATE.

Last Friday the officiating chaplain of the Senate either did not know or had forgotten that the Upper House would convene at 11 o'clock in the morning, instead of at noon, as is customary when the week-end adjournment is due. Anyway, when the Senate was ready to convene there was no chaplain present to start the Senate off with an opening prayer, and looked bad. Finally, just when matters were at their worst, someone suggested that Mr. Rudisill, clerk to the minority Senators in 1914 and reappointed this session, is an ordained minister and fully equipped to conduct the religious services of the Senate and perform the marriage ceremony when necessary. A messenger was dispatched post-haste to Room No. 33 in the "lower regions" —of the State House—and Mr. Rudisill very promptly, and, it was afterwards said, very eloquently and impressively, offered the prayer which opened the day's proceedings and the morals of the Senate(if not the Senators)were saved.

"SLATED" FOR JUSTICES OF THE PEACE.

It is understood that the following have been "slated" for appointment as Justices or the Peace for Oakland Districts in Garrett county. District No. 7, James D. Hamill, and Ed. Browning; District No. 14, E. I. West and William King.

NOTES AND PERSONALS.

Many ladies from the counties are in Annapolis this week and will attend the Governor's reception tonight.

Former Senator W. McCulloh Brown, of Garrett county, was in Annapolis last Friday, and called at the State House.

Rev. L. A. Rudisill, Miss Ruth Rudisill and Miss Vernie Schrock, of Mt. Lake Park, attended the Governor's reception held in the Executive mansion last night.

The fight of the session will take place this week when the Speicher Statewide Local Option bill comes up in the Senate. Senator Speicher will make the opening speech in favor of the bill. He is untiring in his efforts to secure the enactment of the measure into a law, and is recognized everywhere throughout the State as one of the leaders in the temperance movement in the present legislature.

JENNINGS

The funeral of Daniel Klotz's baby was preached last Sunday in the Lutheran church by Rev. Marvin.

The Pentecostal Saints held a prayer meeting Saturday evening at Thomas Hoover's house. It was well attended and one converted to God, and others came out for prayers. The religious movement seems to be progressing rapidly.

A good many farmers were visitors at the county capital the first of the week.

Miss Anna Shaw entertained on Monday night a number of young people in honor of her sister, Miss Laura. Refreshments were served.

MOUNTAIN LAKE PARK.

Mrs. Lulu Dawson is quite ill again with grip.

I made a very pleasant visit last week to our old friend, Mr. Abe Wilson, at Wilson, Md. He has partly recovered from his stroke of paralysis in his right side, and talks well, and it is a treat to any one to listen to the thrilling accounts of his early days. His devoted niece is taking most excellent care of him. He was in his wheel chair and can get around in his room in that way. If he lives until next July he will complete his hundredth year. The weight of years seem to bear rather heavily upon him. He said, "I am done for, and I wish to go home." I sang a few old hymns for him which he seemed to enjoy. He then repeated one his grand-mother used to sing, "When we've been there ten thousand years, etc." His good wishes for me were expressed most earnestly.

Rev. Barnhouse is now conducting his special meetings at Loch Lynn.

Mr. Bush Hardesty become badly choked on a piece of meat Monday and was sent to Cumberland after an effort to relieve him at Oakland.

Miller Doman made a business trip to Midland last Monday.

We, of the Park, are hoping that the purchasers of Association stock, sold last week, will prove live wires in developing the Park as Maryland's great summer resort.

Mr. L. A. Rudisill spent Sunday at home, returning to Annapolis Monday morning.

Monday morning the thermometer registered 10 degrees below zero.

SUNNYSIDE

Several cattle buyers have been in our vicinity buying young cattle. The demand for young choice cattle is pretty good, but for ordinary ones they don't seem to want any. They do not price so high as they did last year and year before.

Mr. Peter Speicher, our up-town saw miller, is now ready for business. He has a yard full of logs and still more coming in.

Quite a number of our young people attended the literary at Hauser last night. They all report a pleasant time.

Some four or six weeks ago Mr. Peter Brenneman left here for Ohio. Later, we understand he left for Iowa and his last letter says I am going farther. Our good wishes go with him for a pleasant trip, but invite him back next spring, for he is one of our leading farmers.

Mr. W. P. Welch, formerly of this place, now residing in Oakland, was calling among old friends and relatives.

Mr. Jonas Yutzy, who has been visiting his son Guy, of Thomas, W. Va., is back again.

HAUSER

It has been so long since you have heard from us that no doubt it would be agreeable to get us located again.

Our community is known as Hauser; the school as Gauer and our post office address is Oakland, while we get our mail on free rural delivery number two.

We are situated about ten miles west of Oakland and near the main road through from Oakland to Davis, W. Va. It is just two miles from the main highway to the famous Roth Rock, which is 3200 feet above sea level, and one half mile to the West Virginia state line, We can honestly boast of having one of the most beautiful farming sections and the prettiest natural scenery of anywhere in the county. For many a mile stretch on the main highway will you encounter any remarkably steep hills or find a farm that is not in good condition or at least cannot boast of a comfortable house and a spacious well painted barn.

The roads, in summer, are generally in good condition and as the mojority of farmers in this community have automobiles it is very convenient for them to do their shopping in Oakland, Davis and other large towns. The farmers also market their products for the highest market price, in Dobbin, Thomas, Henry and other nearby-towns, where sawmilling and mining are the main industries.

The school house is situated on the main highway at a convenient distance from the homes of all the thirty-eight pupils as is also our little church where we worship twice on Sunday and once during the week. There is a large and very modern Lutheran church situated about two miles from here where we attend preaching, have our harvest home, missionary and Christmas day exercises. There are, on an average about three hundred persons represented in that church. The Lutheran West Virginia and Maryland Synod met there in October where they all reported a very pleasant and successful meeting. Rev. H. E. H. Sloop is on the circuit now and is conducting a series of lectures on home and foreign missions. There will be a program rendered on February 20 for Foreign Mission day in that church.

The Gauer School Progressive Literary Society was organized a few weeks ago, the following officers being elected: Pres., Mr. Clyde C. Gnegy; Vice Pres., Mr. R. Lathrum; chairman, Mr. H. L. Gnegy; Editor, Mr. Page Gnegy, and Secretary, Miss Ada Friend. The program committee is composed of: Messrs. H. Roth, Floyd Shaffer, Robert Lathrum, L. J. Reed and Miss Ada B. Friend. The debates given on January 28 and February 11 were quite a success and the speakers held the audience enwrapped in the best of attention throughout on the questions, respectively, under discussion: "Resolved, that the Orator has more Power than the Editor," and "Resolved, that the Farmer is a greater Benefactor to the Community than the Manufacturer." The affirmative won the decision on the first and the negative on the latter.

There was also a spelling contest given by the Gauer school on Jan. 4. The teacher and part of the pupils from Slabaugh school attended. The spellers were all enthusiastic and did exceptionally well. Mr. Clyde Gnegy, formerly of Gauer school, received the highest honors as best speller.

The Progressive Literary Society will have a debate here again on February 29, the question for discussion to be: "Resolved, that Doctors are more Beneficial than Lawyers." There will also be a home talent play entitled: "A Kiss in the Dark," rendered the same night, by Miss Oda Gnegy, Miss Ada Friend, Miss Mabel Lathrum, Messrs. Thurston Cosner and Wm. Gnegy.

Miss Nina Lathrum has been spending a few weeks with her parents here, but yesterday returned to her sister, Mrs. Edward Leary, of Oakland.

Mr. Steward Roth spent a short vacation with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. D. O. Roth, but returned on Feb. 4, to Hagerstown, where he again assumed his duties as fireman on the W. M. R. His many friends were sorry to say good bye again, for he was very popular and a great favorite in this community.

The stork visited the home of Mr. and Mrs. D. R. Bittner's a few days ago and left a baby boy which, we are sorry to learn, has been seriously ill since its birth.

Miss Lela Mosser is visiting her sister, Mrs. Artie Dodge, at Sunnyside.

Mrs. S. C. Mosser was called to the bed-side of her sick brother, Mr. Wm. Hollen, at Clarksburg, W. Va. She was accompanied by another brother, Mr. B. H. Hollen.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Fowler and sister, Miss Alice, spent Sunday at the home of Mr. D. O. Roth.

Messrs. Harvey A. Roth and Robert Lathrum were business callers in Oakland Tuesday.

Mr. Geo. Blamble purchased a fine three year old colt from Mr. D. O. Roth a few days ago.

Messrs. Elsworth Moon and Ernest Gortner are frequent callers in this community. Did you say you imagined you heard wedding bells?

An effort is being made to secure donations to purchase a new bell for the Red House church.

Mr. T. N. Tanner has finished his saw-milling in this section and is now removing his mill.

The weather has been eight below zero for several days here.

TRIXIE.

A Big Porker.

Mr. S. W. Slabach, of Gortner, places himself before the Garrett county pork raisers association as the champion producer. Some time ago this paper stated that a hog dressing 611 pounds had been killed in the county and invited its readers to enter into competition. Now comes Mr. Slabach with a hog dressing 622 pounds without the heart or liver; with these two very important organs weighed with the carcass it weighed 640 pounds. Who's next?

Boy Killed in Mine.

A young son of Lawrence Finzel, of Finzel, Md., was killed in a West Virginia coal mine several days ago. The body was brought home for burial today.

GARRISON'S resignation is the second bad break in the President's cabinet. Bryan quit because he. Wilson and Congress could not hit it off together. And the war in Europe is the cause of it all.

Entertainment.

The Ladies aid of Deer Park, M. E. church, will give an entertainment and festival in the Savedge Hall on the evening of Feb. 22nd, 1916. All are cordially invited. Admission free.

MRS CLARY, Sec.

SUNNYSIDE

The Sunnyside Literary society will hold its next meeting on the evening of the 12th of February. The question for discussion is "Resolved, That Monopolies and Trusts should be Aboliished." The following speakers have been appointed for the occasion. Affirmative, Harry Stahl, Al Fike, Jonas Yutzy, negative, Wm. Kolb, Marshall Wolf and Ernest Soilter. A programme has been prepared for the occasion and everybody is cordially invited to spend an enjoyable evening with the society.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Yutzy spent Saturday and Sunday at the home of the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Sanders at Gortner.

We are sorry to loose our valued neighbor, Mr. Hurley Blamble, who will take charge of the farm of Mr. George Shartzer near Oakland in the near future.

The new saw mill located in our vicinity, operated by Mr. Peter Spiker, is now running regular ready to do sawing for the general public.

Messrs. Jacob and Wellington Yutzy spent Sunday as the guests of Parley sisters and family.

Our school is progressing nicely with a large attendance under the management of Harry N. Turney.

Mr. Edward Kight, of Cumberland, spent a few days recently with his family at this place.

Quite a number of the young people, this place, attended the literary at Houser, also at Mason last week. All report a fine time.

Home Merchant vs. M. O. Houses

"GOOD ENOUGH FOR CHILDREN."

There are comparatively few grown people who have so little regard for their personal comfort as to take a chance on getting shoes from the mail order house. They are to particular about the fit. Those who have tried it have been thoroughly convinced of the folly of attempting to get a satisfactory shoe service at a long distance.

However, many of those who will not endure the tortures of wearing ill fitting shoes themselves but impose the hardships on their children. This is truly a tragedy on the helpless little one. It is at this time that the feet are being shaped for a lifetime. The bones are soft and in their rapid growth are forced to take the shape of the shoe placed upon them. One pair of ill fitting shoes will bring about a condition which will mar their comfort and happiness for the remainder of their days. This will start a corn or bunion which will cause untold suffering for years. The bones of the foot are thrown into an unnatural position which will make a comfortable fit impossible from that time on.

This fault economy is very often practised by parents who are devoted to their children and who are vitally interested in their future welfare. They are striving to give these children the proper education to fit them for the battle of life and are careful about their social environments. Yet they are unconsciously inflicting an injury which may contract much of the good training and influence. Physical comfort is one of the essentials in a successful business or professional career.

MAKE THEM CHEAP!

Not long ago a manager of a furniture concern in this state was looking over the catalogue of one of the leading mail order houses of this country. He spied the illustration of a very good looking table which was advertised for One Dollar f. o. b. the factory. While the description of the table related the fact that it was a very substantitable, made of select wood and well furnished he figured that he could make a legitimate profit, especially in the fact that shipments were made from the mill and there would be no investment on the part of the Chicago people who sold it.

The factory manufacturer wrote to the mail order house as to the possibility of getting his business. There was a prompt reply to the effect that the mail order house would take their entire output providing that the price was right and the writer added "make them cheap, remember we never see the tables." Under these conditions the furniture manufacturer figured that he could sell the table for sixty-five cents, there being no restrictions as to the material and workmanship. In reply to his bid of sixty-five cents, making the mail order house a profit of thirty-five cents without a penny invested, the Chicago firm's reply in substances was this: "Nothing doing, we can buy all we want for forty-nine cents."

Here the mail order house is getting more than one hundred per cent on their sales, without one cent invested, without freight bill or having to see the goods they are handing out to the public. In addition to this immense profit without an investment the mail order house has use of your money for a period of at least thirty days.

There is certainly some significance attached to the statement of the mail order houses letter "make them cheap, remember we never see the tables." If your local dealer would attempt to sell you such tables as that you would take it as an insult to your intelligence and respectability.

DEER PARK

Deer Park is well on the way to become a much more important trading point and at the present rate of progress will be recognized as one of the most important in Garrett county. Since the firm of Whetsell & Browning entered business there last August the business of the community has been practically doubled. This means that it has been made more attractive for the people of that community in many ways and by this improvement everybody in that section of the county have been benefitted.

It is the old story of the "young blood" taking charge of the situation and the instalation of modern business ideas. Mr. C. H. Browning, who is in charge of the business, is formerly of Oakland where he received his business training. He was well known to many of the people there before entering business in that community and his worth to the community was known to those who knew him. He has had the confidence of everybody since locating there and is daily growing in their esteem.

The modern business methods of the new firm has met with the approval of all the people. The better class and more modern goods have been the means of keeping much of the trade at home which was formerly going to other trading centers. The good care which has been taken of the producers of the community in the way of handling their products to the best possible advantage has made many friends for the firm.

This big store now carries a fine line of dry goods, notions, groceries, shoes and everything for the home with furnishings for every member of the family. Through the agency for one of the best known tailoring companies in the country they are in position to furnish high class tailormade clothing to the men and young men.

This store will be to the people of the Deer Park community just what the people there will permit Mr. Browning to make it. With reasonable co-operation he will give them a store such as will compete in every way with the large mercantile establishments of the metropolitan cities and will make a market for their products which will prove a great advantage to them. The influence of this business house will be far reaching and will bring about a direct benefit to every individual of the entire community.

While Mr. Browning is there working for the betterment of that community the millionaires at the head of the mail order houses are contributing their efforts and money toward the betterment of New York and Chicago. Your patronage is your co-operation in community building.

MOUNTAIN LAKE PARK.

No matter what the natural conditions may be no business community is better than what it is made to be by the people residing there. Although the country may be rich with coal, oil or some other valuable mineral it must be developed and marketed so as to reap the benefit in the right place—at home. In the midst of the richest natural gas territory in West Virginia, in many instances, the local people are paying a higher rate for gas than people who consume the gas a long distance away. This condition came about for lack of local co-operation and interest in the home community.

All Garrett county can well be termed a rich community. Through farming and other industries there is a sufficient amount produced here to make this one of the most prosperous communities in the country and while it must be said that prosperity prevails here to a certain degree it is also a fact that with a complete co-operation of all the people many times greater benefits could be realized throughout the entire county.

The value of a farm is regulated largely by its proximity to a live town or trading point, a place where the products of the farm can be marketed to an advantage and where shopping can be done in a satisfactory manner. In other words the town or trading point is there for the convenience of the people of that community and the extent of this convenience depends entirely upon the support which it receives from the people of the community. Then, with a complete co-operation of the farmer and business men all are made more prosperous.

In order to give an illustration at home we will site you to Mt. Lake Park. There are many farmers in that section of the county who do not find it convenient to come to Oakland to do their shopping and who do not find it profitable to make the trip here to market a small quantity of produce. It is convenient, however, to run into Mt. Lake Park and if the stores there are justified in carrying a large stock of goods the business men of that place will supply the demand. They will make their stores just as good as the patrons of the community will permit them.

The big store of Harvey Brothers at Mt. Lake Park reflects credit upon the entire community and it must be said that the people there are receiving a great mercantile service at the hands of this firm. It is an establishment which deserves the support of every resident of the community and which is well designed to assist in community building. This great mercantile establishment not only serves the people with high class merchandise at the right prices but makes a most satisfactory market for every product of the farmer.

In order to make it a complete community store Harvey Brothers have stocked the store with goods to fill every want of the people. There is an immense stock of dry goods, notions, groceries, hardware, farming implements, flour and feed. There is a handsome line of high class shoes with style and fit for every member of the family. To supply the demand for men's and young men's clothing orders are taken for one of the leading tailoring establishments of the country.

For the producer this establishment affords a market for every product of the community. In addition buying the farm products.

For the producer this establishment affords a market for every product of the community. In addition to buying the farm products this firm buys mine props and ties. In all this can well be termed a great community market and shopping place where the most reliable goods are sold at the right prices and where the produces of the farmer can be disposed of at the best prices.

It therefore behooves every property owner and resident of thrt vicinity to make Mt. Lake as large a business center as possible. The Messrs. Harvey are business men of ability and are citizens of worth to the community. They are community builders of the highest type and to co-operate with them means to assist in making Mt. Lake Park and community more prosperous and a better place in which to live.

THE C. M. RATHBUN SONS CO.

Such an establishment as that owned and operated by The C. M. Rathbun Son's Co. is seldom found outside of the larger towns and cities. Mt. Lake Park is fortunate indeed in having such an establishment as this in their community. It not only affords a market for a great amount of lumber and other material produced in this section but gives employment to a number of men. In addition to this the people of this vicinity have a supply of high class building material and supplies right at their door.

Here are some of the things manufactured and handled by this firm: Building materials, siding, flooring, ceiling, frames, roofing, building paper, screen doors and windows, building lime, cement, brick, hardware tools and cutlery, sporting goods, gas stoves, gas fixtures, oils, paint brushes. Their specialties are sash, doors and blinds, interior finish, mouldings and porch work.

GRANTSVILLE.

A sleighing party drove to Addison, Pa., on Thursday night and took supper at the Rush Hotel, the menu being most elaborate and palatable and greatly enjoyed by the guests who included Misses Beulah, Esther and Hazel Engle, Ethel Broadwater, Jennie Lee, Winifred Bonig, Angela Getty and Hazel Younkin; Messrs. Wm. Gnagey, John Livengood, Emmons Younkin, Clay Stanton and Forest Beachy. After the supper a dance was held in the hotel dining room, music being furnished by Emmons Younkin. The trip was made in J. A. Beachy's big sled.

The Salisbury basketball team played our boys in the Broadwater hall Saturday night, the game resulting in a score of 21 9 in favor of Grantsville. A number of Salisbury people accompanied the players. A dance was held in the hall after the game.

Mrs. Ida Hershberger has had her home remodeled by building a new kitchen, and adding a heating plant, bath room and other improvements which add greatly to the attractiveness and comfort of the home. Painting and papering are in progress at present.

Squire Peter L. Nathan was taken to Allegany Hospital, Cumberland, on Tuesday for examination and treatment, he being ill with a complication of maladies. He remained under the care of a Cumberland specialist until Saturday when he was brought home by M. J. Miller in his car and will continue treatment at home. Miss Gertrude Hone, Mr. Nathan's niece, accompanied him to and from the hospital.

The little "Dutch College" (as the Amish school near Grantsville is called) has been closed the past two weeks, owing to the illness of the teacher, Miss Carrie Horchler, who has been suffering with scarlatina, but she is now almost recovered and, fortunately, as none of her pupils have contracted the disease she will be able to resume her duties shortly.

Miss Gertrude, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Beachy of the Mountain, has been ill with scarlatina.

The infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Miller has contracted whooping cough. Clyde, the older brother, is recovering from pneumonia.

Miss Ruth Keller has been quite sick with grip and tonsilitis for several days. In consequence her pupils have been granted a brief holiday until their teacher's recovery.

Mrs. Frank Peterson has been suffering with acute indigestion. Her mother, Mrs. Sophia Bonig, who has been quite ill, remains in the same condition.

The Adult Bible Class of the Lutheran Sunday School held a social on Tuesday night at the Stone House Farm, Mr. and Mrs. H. P. Miller being host and hostess. Refreshments, consisting of ice cream, cake, and cocoa, were provided by members of the class and games and music were the diversion. The guests included Mr. and Mrs. Richard Younkin, Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Diefenbach and daughter, Miss Carrie, Mr. and Mrs. Menno Miller and little son, Philip, Mr. and Mrs. Mark T. Bender, Dr. and Mrs. J. A. Carney, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Loechel, Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Zeller, Messrs. William Winterberg, George Younkin and daughter, Nina, William Schafer, Christ Merbaugh, Frank Younkin, Asa Miller, Mrs. Albert Swauger and daughter, Irma, Mrs. Joel Miller, Mrs. Irene Hayes, Mrs. C. B. Getty, Misses Dorothy and Hazel Younkin, Esther Engle, Evelyn Beachy, Winifred Bonig, Maggie Cuppett, Katherine Crone, Masters Henry Bonig and Webster Bittinger. The class members were indebted to Menno Miller, Clarence Loechel and George Younkin for driving them to and from in auto and carriages. The old farm-house, with its new heating plant installed, was delightfully warm and pleasant and the guests all enjoyed the evening and the drive.

BITTINGER.

The ladies of the Women's Home Missionary society were pleasantly entertained by Mrs. C. E. Ellithorp, at her home, on Wednesday afternoon of last week.

Andrew J. Oester had the misfortune to slip and fall a few days ago, sustaining considerable injury to his left knee, which has kept him indoors since the accident.

Clyde Broadwater returned last Wednesday from a few days visit with friends over in Pennsylvania.

Frank Brenneman spent the early part of last week in Oakland, where he transacted business with the Board of County Commissioners.

Perry H. Broadwater recently sold his splendid farm, near here, to his two sons, Messrs. Chauncey and Clyde, and Mr. Broadwater now expects to live a retired life.

While returning from a marketing trip to Lonaconing some days ago Clarence Stephens, of near this place, was taken ill and was sheltered in the home of Columbus Broadwater, some miles from New Germany, where he is now very ill of pheumonia.

The little sun-beams that filter through the curtains at the State House seem to confuse the vision of the general public and many are not quite certain whether the Shartzer bill or Silver Bill will be finally sustained for the unfavorable report of the Temperance Committee.

THE PEOPLE'S FORUM.

Perilous Times.

It will be generally conceded that politically our times are fraught with more or less peril.

There are political gangs galore. So corrupt too, that they reek with filth. Machine or gang rule is largely responsible for it all. They do not owe their supremacy in power year after to honesty or virtue. Crime and corruption keeps them where they are, and that is why they wink at crime and protect criminals. Graft prevails on all hands. Where the gang is supreme in municipal politics. Every aspirant knows that his only hope is to do the will of the bosses and faithfully serve the gang. All who have business with the city know they must do it with the gang. As is to be expected under such circumstances, votes are demanded--more votes--enough votes to accomplish their purposes and every subaltern knows what that means. If bribery will help, then that is a go. If theft is necessary they stop not at that. If stuffed ballot boxes or even murder are necessary, some way is found to accomplish these bits of deviltry. The gang must be perpetuated at all hazzards. Labor gangs may use a large proportion of the money paid by unsophisticated working men, not to relieve suffers, but to keep them in power. The organizers, well a lot of them, get good pay and travel around at the expense of the American Federation of Labor.

The head of the great Burn's Detective agency says, "It has been preached all over the country, of course, that after all, power rests within the people who have the votes and can put municipal rings out of business. So, of course with the labor movement in general, the honest labor men have the votes and can at any time put its ring out of business. But the gangs, both the municipal and labor gangs, know that story by heart. That is the reason why you see the municipal gangs pad the registration lists and commit election frauds of all kinds even when they don't strictly have to do it to win an election. They keep the majorities big by fraud to discourage honest citizens.

The labor ring knows that, after all, it must have the revenues from the honest working people in order to keep itself in power. Without those revenues, the machine could not keep up the pay roll of its retainers, its ward bosses as you might call some of those national organizers. So when strikes cannot be won, they must be lost dearly That's where the loyal dynamiter's work comes in. The dynamiter is the labor machines substitute for the municipal machines' ballot box stuffer, election thing and vote intimidator."

Corruption always breeds corruption —Burns speaking on the point says, "The criminal gang has fostered the dynamite gang. They use the same methods to accomplish their ends of the work together. The political gang is the more terrible of the two, as it is always working and corrupting and to protect itself commands the basic bulwarks of our liberties, courts, juries and executives."

It is practically useless to arrest a gangster for the Boss is right there to back him up and with no uncertain hand supports him. He has no fear of failing for has he not filled the jury boxes and drawn the juries and made the local judges his creatures. He practically owns the court officials and the officers recognize their obligation to the chief. Political gangs are worse than dynamiters for while these may blow up our properties by taxation our liberties, independence and everything else necessary to uphold a firm Republic. Our institutions are nothing to them. Everything is sacrificed to their greed for power. A rotten boodle gang of vicious politicians is a greater menace than a gang of burglars or horse thieves could ever be. They undermine and would destroy the American system of government by corrupting the voters at elections and this is a greater crime than that of the McNamaras who are now serving time. No one who carefully observes the trend of the times will doubt that the world is laboring under an acute nervous tension. We are on the alert, suspicious, fearful that some unseen enemy is lurking about just ready to do us up.

In New York City steps were hastily taken to guard the subway lest it should be blown up or some unknown calamity happen to it. In Canada, the spy scare is sweeping the country. Under normal conditions no attention would be given the threats made in New York City. Now an idle threat is likely to be magnified into a real menace and cause the populace to be thrown into a state of high excitement. We may ask, why anyone should wish to destroy the subway? But deeds as unjustifiable and as improbable have been attempted in the past year. Why was the explosion in the United States capitol? Enemies of the British Empire are bold, resourceful and enterprising. True it is said that the burning of the Parliament at Ottawa was accidental, yet there is ground for suspicion that this may be a mistake.

There have been many outbreaks of a mysterious character in the dominion of late to be passed on the score of mere coincidence. Call it hysteria if you wish to; or make light of the threatening dangers whether they are real or imaginary—it is up to Canada and the United States to adopt every means in their power to guard against the possibility of anything that might be done in the heat of mistaken patriotism or partisanship which would result in the destruction of property or life. Eternal vigilance is the price of safety as well as of liberty in these troublous times and there is little danger of taking measures that are too precautionary. Horrible beyond description or comprehension are the atrocities against the Americans by the Turks. It is reported that half a million have been foully murdered. Even if this estimate is too high, there is no doubt that tens of thousands innocent victims have been cruelly slaughtered. Thousands of women and young girls were carried into slavery. Hundreds of thousands have been driven from their homes and are poverty stricken wanderers. Alas! is there no help for poor America? Was there ever such a time of sorrow, blood shed and crime as there is now? In our next we shall speak of perilous times religiously.

The Late Governor Francis Thomas

BY CHARLES M. MILLER

This is the second of a series of several articles relative to an illustrious but unfortunate Governor of Maryland who is remembered by many.

If memory is not at fault, Governor Thomas terminated his official appointment to the government of Peru in the year 1874, to return to his native country.

On the way home from a fatigueing horseback ride over an extensive territory, my attention was attracted at Frankville by one or more freight cars standing on the station switch, with an unusual number of men moving about the locality. In answer to an inquiry, information was had of the arrival of Gov. Thomas to the United States and to Frankville, with twenty-five Peruvian sheep from South America for an experimental introduction into North America. While looking over the men busy in their employment about the loaded cars, an erect form appeared in such contaidistinction to the others as to convince me in the first glance of the presence of the famous Marylander. The dignified bearing, high hat and black suit bespoke the respectable yet unostentatious dress of a gentleman with an affability of manner inviting deferential approach. After a brief self-introduction, with a reference to so much clearly requiring his immediate supervision, the wish was expressed to call at his residence in a more convenient season, particularly on account of the high esteem in which he was held by Gen'l Anderson, his established prominence in the State of Maryland and to more closely observe the novelty and merit of the extraordinary breed of sheep now moking their first landing on the soil of North America. Here, with a lightening countenance and a courtly bow, he quickly interposed: "Ah Mr. Miller! now you disclose the real object of the proposed visit. I will relate a short story of Alcibides' little dog. People, disguising their curiosity under their pretended tribute to the great Greek, called on him in truth to see the no less notable little dog. You want to see the sheep, Sir, and it will afford me pleasure to gratify the wish." While relating this incident from ancient history in an inimitable zest, an opportuniy came to me for a calm scrutiny of the enchanting conversationalist of whom so much had been heard. His straight silvery hair was brushed back from a ruddy cleanly shaved face played over by a pair of black piercing eyes limitless in their power to please or repel. The voice was of marvelous modulation, rich in tone and of flute-like clearness. Looking at him in the multiplicity of his gifts, it ceased to be strange with such a master in the forum, audiences of thousands would sit spell bound listening to the music of his eloquence. At this time he was, probably, not less than seventy-five years old, but he was not bent by age nor were his native forces abated.

These Alpaca sheep, the original name of the Peruvian sheep, have an attached value peculiarly their own. The Governor explained that they were selected from the mountain section of Peru, that being the cooler part in the pacific climate of the country, with the hope of more endurance for the extreme cold of Western Maryland and the high altitude of Garrett. Peru has an even climate, continuing near temperate the year round. Many will remember these sheep, with us about a year and then disappeared forever. In contour and appearance, with the drooping curve of the neck from the shoulder to the head was suggestive rather of the camel than of our native sheep, and the wool hung down from the sides in more profusion than it existed on the back. This wool would uncurl in long, soft strands of the finest texture and would bring in market, it is said, most any price a vendor might name, from fifteen dollars to thirty dollars to the pound. The rarity of a commodity so valuable considered with its growing demand in refining factories, induced Peru to prohibit the exportation of the Alpaca sheep and compel all purchasers from the outside to come to her and her rates. The Governor stated that the Peruvian government had deviated from this restriction in but two instances, twenty five of Alpacas had been presented to the Queen of England and twenty five to this country as the greatest Republic. Could we trace back to the actuating motive in such a compliment from Peru to this government the origin, most likely, would be found in admiration of a statesman for a Minister so delightful, serving in their midst. We are safely in the bounds of reason in the venture of the assertion that had Gov. Thomas lived the sheep would have lived. He knew what was needed for their nurture and preservation through an acclimating process, and be regarded neither time nor cost to protect their lives and propagate their worth in this country; his energies were dedicated to an undertaking with promise to result in a national benefit. Three miles North of Swanton, the Governor purchased a tract of glade and woodland, embracing several hundred acres; procured a sawmill and had it in busy operation under the direction of the late Mr. Richard J. West, manufacturing plank intended for the enclosure of the purchased tract by a fence so high and so close as to keep these sheep in security from prowling dogs and carnivorous animals. Before a realization of these extensive plans for a successful transmission of the Peruvian sheep to coming ages, in the twinkling of a moment and with fatality of a lightning flash the Governor was struck dead.

In a short time after this tragic end, all of these curious sheep, with every one of the lambs, so dependent upon human care, died except ten which remained for disposition to the day of the executor's sale. At the sale in the final settlement of the estate in 1876, a stock combination from Frederick county came up and paid one thousand dollars for the remaining ten animals with the view of taking them to the Centennial that year in the city of Philadelphia. Unfortunately to an extent beyond estimate, when these sheep, accustomed to the mountains of Peru, got into the close climate of the low altitude of Frederick county, all died from prostration before the time of leaving for Philadelphia. This was a calamity to Garrett, to Maryland and the United States.

WILL YOU HELP?

Pertinent Question Propounded By The Public Library Secretary.

Do you remember when you finished reading the "best book that was ever written?" What a deep sense of real enjoyment filled your soul! Perhaps it was when you were a child and some of the words in the story were new to you, but you caught their meaning and read on, page after page, with growing wonder and delight! New worlds of beauty and adventure were opened to you. You held the key to a wonderful garden where you were free to enter and gather the choicest fruits and the most fragrant blossoms.

Good books have come into the world to stay and they have proved real friends to all of us.

Our lives are made richer in proportion to our acquaintance with good literature. Our knowledge is increased, our imagination quickened, our ideals made higher.

Are you generous? Do you wish to make it possible for every one to have the opportunity to read the kind of books that will delight the heart? On the shelves of the Free Public Library of Oakland are many good books but there is still room for more. Why not share those books you read last month or last year with others who have not had the privilege of reading them? Where are those books you read when you were a child? Won't you give them or lend them to the Library to be enjoyed by the scores of boys and girls who are, hungry for something to read?

The books do not stay on the shelves long, especially boys books and the late books of fiction. You are doing an immeasurable good for the public when you bring your books and magazines to the library.

Something else is needed besides books. The expenses of the rooms and of the librarian's salary must be met with money. In order that the work may be built upon a permanent basis the Library Board desires that every individual in the community as well as every lodge and social organization will make a generous annual pledge.

The leaders in this great movement are busy men and women and they cannot conveniently see you in person to appeal to you for money. This is your work as well as theirs.

Will you please, in the near future, let the librarian know the amount of money you are willing to give each year for the purpose of carrying on this splendid work?

Remember, everyone in the county is cordially invited to assist in this work and to share its benefits by using the library and reading room at any time.

Mrs. O. A. Bremer,
Secretary.

Contributions have been received from the following people, since our last report:

Mrs. E. Z. Tower, Mrs. W. S. Martin, Miss Bertie Turney; Messrs. J. E. Harned, Carl Welch, Homer Speicher, Emerson Cross, Miss Beulah Loughridge, Mrs. L. C. Cross.

Cora Weimer,
Treas. and Librarian.

One Hundred Elk For Pennsylvania Forest.

At Pittsburgh last week a shipment of 100 elk from Yellowstone Park was received by the State Game Commission to stock the forest reserves of Pennsylvania. Four of the animals died in transit. The remainder were transhipped from Pittsburgh to various counties in the central part of the State to be turned loose in the forests. Secretary Kalbfus of the State Board of Game Commissioners, County Game Protector Osmar and other employes of the State Game Board were present to help unload the animals from the train on which they arrived and load them for other points. It was some job as the huge animals were hard to handle.

Library Benefit.

A benefit for the free public library will be held in the Maryland Theatre on Thursday evening, March 2nd. The money realized will be used with which to purchase books for the library. In addition to the regular moving picture show, a fine musical program will also be rendered. Give this worthy object your encouragement.

To be supervisors of elections for a term of two years from the first Monday in May, 1916.

D. M. Mason, to represent the Democratic party, vice Jerry Stanton; term expired.

Jeremiah M. Stanton, vice George D. Browning, term expired.

George D. Browning, to represent the Republican party, vice D. E. Bolden, term expired.

To be a school commissioner for a term of six years from the first Monday in May, 1916:

Thomas J. Johnson, vice Peter H. Yost; term expired.

The appointment of Senator Browning and Mr. J. M. Stanton, the former as Fish Commissioner and the latter as a member of the Board of Election Supervisors are personal selections made by the Governor and their respective friends are highly gratified with the action of the chief executive in recognizing them.

Senator Speicher's bill, appropriating $65,000 for the purpose of building a road to connect with the proposed new system of roads being built by West Virginia, said road to lead out of Oakland on the west and to connect at the State line near Hutton, was introduced on Friday and referred to the Finance Committee of the Senate.

Tuesday was Garrett county day in the Senate. It was a field day for Senator Speicher. He succeeded in putting through the Senate five Garrett county House bills and advanced a Senate bill to the third reading.

The bills passed will go to the Governor for his approval and of his approval there is no doubt. The bills passed were: 1. Prohibiting the killing of deer until 1922; 2. Amending the game law, providing for a bounty of one dollar for fox scalps; 3. Making it unlawful to manufacture liquor in Garrett county after June, 1917. There is some question about the constitutionality of this bill. Senator Speicher made a record on this bill in securing its passage in such a short time. The bill went to the Senate from the House on February 16th and reached its final passage on the 22d of February, just five days after its appearance in the Senate. It was very appropriate that this bill should pass on the birthday of George Washington; 4. Releasing the farm of Fred Gortner from the boundaries of Loch Lynn Heights; 5. Making the term of service of the clerk of the County Commissioners, after 1917, four years.

The Senator had passed to the third reading his bill sanctioning the sale of ground in Deer Park to the Mayor and Council.

THE WRONG MEDICINE

A community is no better than the men and women who live in it. If you and I do ill our community suffers. But it is useless to look far away for the remedy. The real remedy is near at hand. It is we who are able to kill or cure. The wrong medicine kills—the medicine that bears the out-of-town label. But the tonic that cures is practice of "trade-at home." Let us all—each one of us—from this day on practice and preach "buy in Garrett county."

MONEY AT HOME

The fad for "imported" goods in this country for practically all times past has been discovered as a genuine fallacy. The European war has practically cut off the supply of these supposed superior goods and has thrown the proper light upon the merits of the domestic products. Already the fad has changed and today the popular article is the one "Made in U. S. A."

This means that millions of dollars heretofore going out of this country annually because of a mere fad will now remain in the United States and that there will be just that much more money at home and within reach of everybody. It means that many thousands of men will receive employment here making the articles which have heretofore been made in the foreign country.

During the past few years a fad has developed among the people throughout this country to do their shopping with the mail order houses. It is a fad much less warranted than that of buying the "imported" goods and has deprived the local communities of more than did the other fad deprive this great country in the way of money and home prosperity.

Through the influence of this fad the mail order houses have been reaping a great harvest. The popularity of the fad has enabled them to fleece the people in a manner which is truly shameful They have made gross misrepresentations in their catalogues and have employed many deceptive means to sell their goods to the unthinking public.

It is estima ed that several hundred thousand dollars annually is being sent fromtGarrett county and its trading district to these mail order houses. This means that just that amount of cash is being sent away never to return and the business men who have no interest whatever in this community and who do not pay one cent of taxes here profits to just that extent.

The local business people are your greatest assistance in building your community. They are your friends on all occasions and the people who will appreciate your co-operation in the effort to build a greater business community.

When misfortune befalls anyone of the community the business men are the first to be appealed to for assistance. When money must be raised for the bringing of an industry the same men are looked to for it. He is called upon to support the band, the ball team, the volunteer fire department and the many other institutions and causes for the protection, pleasure and convenience of all the people. An appeal to a mail order house for a donation in any one of these events or for any cause would be completely ignored.

This "fad" is proving a real detriment to every community throughout the country. The patrons of the mail order houses are not only receiving an inferior article in their purchases but the financial drain is retarding local development.

Community Building Is Our Aim.

We are here to serve the public and help make Kitzmiller and community a better place to live. We want to co-operate with everybody to this end.

THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 24, 1916

THERE are times in the work of a newspaperman when he must be controlled by his sympathies for the innocent ones in the publication of news. This paper bows to the inevitable in such cases and is willing to accept the criticism of some if good is accomplished and aching hearts are saved further pain.

THE young man with limited means, who has a few hundred dollars to begin life with, or perhaps has nothing but a pair of strong and willing hands, we would say to all such young men that the farm is the best place in the world. Do not be afraid of toil, but set an example to the weak and lazy loiterer about town by putting your hand to the plow.

THERE is nothing that makes a man feel more like making the air look blue than to go home feeling himself the most abused person on God's footstool and ready to give his family a curtain lecture and find that there is company at home. Then he nas to put on a pleasant face and pretend he is the happiest man in the world. B-r-r-r! It's a terrible feeling.

ONE of the best and brightest things we can give is kind words. They have well been likened to the bright flowers of earth's existence. Use them everywhere, but especially around the fireside; they will make a paradise out of a hovel. Nothing can heal a wounded heart, or cheer a crushed spirit like kind words. Let us not be so careful how we use them, for they are the greatest blessing earth can give.

A NEWSPAPER is in no sense a child of charity. It earns twice over every dollar it receives, and it is second to no enterprise in contributing to the upbuilding of a community. Its patrons reap far more benefits from its pages than its publishers, and in calling for the support of the community in which it is published, it asks for no more than in all fairness belongs to it, though generally it receives less.

No "pipe dream" about this. You may put it in your pipe and smoke it: The real goblin that will get you if you don't watch out is the great big Mail Order goblin. This goblin has got the bulk of the business in many communities. Do not let it ruin our community. It is the greatest detriment and in the end will be the means of lowering property value. If you are loyal to your home town you will patronize your home merchant.

A POINTER ON ADVERTISING.

Some retail businessmen do not advertise and yet the best information of what is "on the market" is gained by the nonadvertising merchant through the advertising of his wholesaler or jobber. Would it not occur to the unbeliever, would this concrete example not prove to him, that if the wholesaler can increase his business by reaching him, the retailer could increase his sales by adopting the same method?

Ten leading newspapers printed 92,868,700 lines of advertising in 1915. The price received was $27,860,610. This amount was not spent with a view to helping the newspapers. No charitable motive was the incentive; it was an investment for profit, as all advertising is. Successful business men, one and all, unhesitatingly acknowledge that their success was built upon advertising. Their names and their fortunes are monuments to their business acumen—to the value of printer's ink in commercial enterprise.

What strange line of reasoning leads the man who fails to advertise his own business to advocate advertising for other purposes? How often does he—having been made a member of some church entertainment committee or a participator in a benefit performance, or chairman of a charitable or a civic movement—how very frequently does he, following his first thought, say "put it in the paper, advertise it well, let everybody know and it will be a success; we'll make money."

If advertising is profitable to other business men; if it is the greatest medium for attracting the populace; if civic measures and charitable purposes are made successful thereby where is the argument, where is the reason why the non-advertiser sould not hadvertise?

PROHIBITION IN WEST VIRGINIA

J. C. Kepler, A Traveling Man, Addressed The Hardware Association.

J. C. Kepler, of the Logan-Gregg Hardware Company, who will be remembered by our readers as a contributor under the non-de-plume of "Jason Kep," delivered the following address before the West Virginia Hardware Merchants Association at Clarksburg recently.

Mr. Kepler has made an exhaustive study of his subject, having called on bankers, merchants and other people all over his territory. He has also interviewed city and county officials, and was so well posted on his subject that there seemed no desire to contradict his statements. "Law," he said, "is an agreement of or by the people that certain rules shall govern their conduct, and the aim is the greatest good for the greatest number of people. The prohibition amendment was an agreement by the people of West Virginia that certain rules shall govern their conduct on the liquor question. It was carried over by 91,000 majority. I will not go into the moral phase of the question, but will speak strictly from a business standpoint. Whiskey is a beverage that will cause a father to sell his baby's shoes or a rabbitt to spit in the face of a bulldog, and it has no moral standing in a civilized community. About 85 per cent. of our people are laboring people. You know without my telling you that when the head of these families spends a large part of his income for booze, the family must curtail expenditures in legitimate lines of trade. The great curse of the saloons in West Virginia has been that we could not regulate them. We tried to, but our experience was a joke, and a mighty cruel one. On pay days in our factories our saloon keepers loaded up with money ready to cash the checks of the men. In comes Tom to get his check cashed and, of course, he buys a drink. Then Jerry drops in for the same purpose, and he and Tom must buy one for each other. Then Mike and John appear to get their checks cashed, and they all have one together. After five or six rounds, time and money slip away and the consequences are forgotten, as are store bills and the imperative needs of the family. This condition is one that State laws have never regulated, and never will as long as the open saloon exists.

"I have talked with hardware men and other merchants through thirteen counties which I travel, and with one accord they state that the situation is vastly improved, and in former strong saloon districts the improvement is most marked. Many men who were considered impossible from a credit standpoint have become good paying customers, and many who could in the old days supply themselves with but the bare necessities of life are in good condition, in good circumstances, and are better citizens. The natural tendencies of the laboring men of West Virginia are asserting themselves, and with booze out of their systems they are building homes. There is a very noticeable improvement in the territory I travel, and particularly so in the great number of small houses being built. You know that isn't doing the hardware business any harm.

"I have talked with mine owners, and they report that before the amendment it required a great many more men to keep the mines going full time than it does now. This was because of a certain percentage of men who were laying off, either acquiring a drunk or getting over one. These men are working more regular today, are earning more money, and their families are getting a good share of it. This mine superintendent showed me his books, and particularly some pages on the time sheets of drinking men, and these men, are earning all the way from 15 to 120 per cent more than they earned before prohibition amendment came into effect.

"The public service and troiley people report that Saturday night in the old days required their putting on extra guards and officers to take care of the drunks who persisted in fighting on the street cars. These guards and officers are not used to-day. Saturday night was always a big night for the street car people. The spenders were out; but these same people report to-day that their business is better than ever on Saturday nights, and the passengers are made up of great numbers of women and children, who come downtown with their men folks to take in a picture show.

"Shortly after the State went dry, I met a collector for one of the large installment houses in this city. He said he was feeling a little blue, and I asked him what his grievance was. He said: 'You know it has always been hard to make collections. People have offered all sorts of excuses. That's why they sent me out to get the slow pay accounts. I have called on forty-three people today, and every one of them had the money waiting ready to pay me. Some wanted to pay in full. It this keeps up I will be out of a job.'

"There has been a decrease in the criminal court work in the State, a decrease in the number of people sent to insane asylums, jails, penitentiaries and hospitals; there has been a raised standard of living, and I say without fear of contradiction, a healthier, brighter, happier lot for the wives and children of the laboring classes of the State. It has made West Virginia a better place in which to live and raise a family. While there is more or less trouble along our wet borders, and not quite all the boot-leggers have discovered that such a law is being enforced, yet we live in hopes, and we know that as the hardware business is so closely interwoven with all the other interests of the State, that we shall participate fully in the benefits that have come to West Virginia since the State became dry."

BLOOMINGTON

Born, unto Mr. and Mrs. Hubert Beavers, last Monday, Feb., 14, a daughter.

Rev. A. R. Snedegar, pastor of the Bloomington M. E. church, is out of town this week on business.

Mr. George Warnick, of Bloomington, county commissioner, spent yesterday with Mr. S. S. Bender and other parties of Kitzmiller, looking over a route for a county road connecting Chaffee and Kitzmiller.

Miss Jennie Kight, of Cross, was a guest at the home of Dr. and Mrs. H. M. Kemp on Tuesday evening. She left with Mrs. Kemp on Wednesday morning to spend a week with the latter's daughter, Mrs. F. E. Rathbun, at Oakland.

Mr. John C. Durham, of Barnum, Civil War veteran, celebrated his 80th birthday on last Sunday. The anniversary fell on Saturday, Feb. 12, but was celebrated on Sunday, that day being more convenient for a number of relatives from a distance to attend.

The new railroad from Luke to Bloomington is now being built. Thirty or forty men are cutting away the hills and grading along the river bank near Luke. This road, with the concrete county road, parallel to it, will be completed by early spring. Then for the first time will Bloomington have a good and safe road to the Tri-Towns.

One of the surprises in the Aarons Run community was the marriage on Feb. 20th, of William Wilkinson and Miss Rebeca Ellen Duckworth. Since the death of her father, Aden C. Duckworth, Miss Rebeca has lived alone at the old homestead. She is a most industrious and economical woman, not only making a living but able each year to deposit a nice little sum in the bank. She is also a devoted member of the Aarons Chapel M. E. church, always present at the services and a liberal contributor to pastor's salary and all interests of the church. Her many friends wish her a most pleasant life in her new home. Mr. Wilkinson was born in England coming to this country when a boy. He is a man of excellent traits of character, and a local preacher on the Bloomington M. E. charge and the pastor, Rev. A. R. Snedegar, who performed the ceremony with the entire church join in well wishes for the happy couple.

The Bloomington lodge 162, the I. O. O. F., had a treat on Tuesday night, 22nd, when the Grand officers paid a special visit. The Grand Master Wm. F. Bofsteter, Jr., never appeared to a better advantage than on this occasion, delighting the entire lodge. After lodge adjournment refreshments were served at Mr. Charles Brandlen's by the following ladies, Mrs. Charles Brandlen, Mrs. H. M. Kemp, Mrs. James Spence and Miss Bessie Coffman. The Grand Officers left for Baltimore on No. 4.

Bloomington teachers are to be congratulated on the splendid work being done in the school. The principal has fine control of his room and Miss Ellen Kerns seems to be a real specialist in the primary work. Following is the program which was rendered on Washington's Birthday: Opening Song, "America"; Six Years Old, Edward Harris; Washington, Bertha Ball; Hatchet Drill, Ten Small Boys; Like Washington, Martha Price; Color Drill, Six little girls; Recitation, Victoria Raley; Reading, Bessie Johnson; George Washington, Edith Miller; Our Flag, Three girls; Like George Washington, Clyde Brandle; Address, Rev. Snedegar; Song, Maryland My Maryland; Washington's Birthday, Samuel Harshbarger; George Washington, Leona Price; Remarks by the principal; Closing Song; Columbia the Gem of the Ocean.

Mr. John W. Young, a most active member of Centre Street M. E. church, will be the speaker in the Bloomington M. E. church on February 27th at eight o'clock. The public should hear this popular speaker.

The Late Governor Francis Thomas

BY CHARLES M. MILLER

This is the third of a series of several articles relative to an illustrious but unfortunate Governor of Maryland who is remembered by many.

In the tranfer to General Anderson of an estate that was, in truth a principality, the subject of these notes, reserved, as has been stated, four hundred and ten acres called "Mont Alto" near Frankville. In addition to this home place, he obtained a Land Office grant to an unknown quantity under the title of "Alexander" intended to cover possible vacancies between several large tracts that were supposed to connect in that vicinity and east of the railroad. On the wide and graceful formation of the high mountain slope, constituting the Mont Alto homestead, commanding for five or more miles an inspiring view of the B. & O. R. R., hugging the meanderings of the Savage Mountain range, a large square clearing was made within the lines of the Mont Alto reservation. Near the center of this clearing a location was chosen, superb in the grandeur of its extended and varied scenes, as the site of the future residence. In contrast with the country homes of that day, this residence crowning so lofty a height stood out as a stately pile. Circled by wide verandas and tastefully finished under gables, passengers on the trains laboring up the steep grade through the long sweep of view, looked with admiration upon the imposing structure. Such was the creation of a home built by this strange genuis for the solitude he sought, and where he could indulge his love of books or, undisturbed, watch the majestic mountains and valleys alternating under a play of lights and shadows.

His State Warrant for the mentioned tract "Alexander" struck me as obscure in purpose and vague as to location apt to become a bone of contention. The Governor was insistent that a joint survey, be agreed upon between us, beginning at a given point, would disabuse my mind of an impression that the location of Alexander must clash with the lines and over-lap the belongings of Gen'l. Anderson.

This little cloud, thrugh not so large as a man's hand in the sky of our amity, was disturbing. While the facts seemed too substantial to be dissolved in argument, it was futile for me to attempt their support in a discussion with one so resistless in equipments at every point of debate. He was learned in the law, experienced in locations and, perhaps, without a superior in familiarity with the requirements and rulings of the Land Office; and for a stripling to contend with such an authority upon a vital point would be wanting in both judgment and respect. My hope was to avoid the survey so long as polite conduct could sanction or a reasonable excuse could be found, trusting to time for an adjustment more salutary and less apt to terminate in a rupture.

Following a brief interval a letter was received requesting a conference on a specified day at Frankville to consider the advisability of moving the railroad station, less than a mile, down the grade near the present location of the Crabtree siding. The suggestion was a free conveyance from me, as agent, to the R. R. Company of the ground requsite for the proposed station, switch and yard. Apparent benefits to every interest involved taken with a desire to accommodate him, made it a pleasure on my part to accede to this proposition.

After a quick concurrence in the design for an improved and more accessible depot, we were walking down the west side railroad track when he stopped with deliberation, waiting for me to end what was being related; then pointing down a precipitous fall of rough ground in a distance of seventy-five or more feet from the railroad limit to Savage river, stated in carefully measured terms: "Right here, sir, your men,"—he knew of my having been a soldier in the Confederate army—"plotted for my death."

Such an imagination on his part was distressing to me, but to my earnest protestation, he replied; "hearing that I was on a coming train, they turned the rails to precipitate the engine with its coaches down this fearful cliff for my destruction." My declaration that no motive could have existed for so heinous an act against him, and the wanton cruelty in the death and injury to so many innocent persons, only elicited the answer, "the reason is unknown, but their purpose was sure."

No train was wrecked there, and the belief grew in his suspicious mind from a disordered condition of repairs he chanced to see without understanding—a foreman of the road explained that to me.

But how strange! Can it be that to us short sighted mortals, coming events sometimes cast their shadows before?

Close to where we were standing this dark thought deeply rooted in the mind of Governor Thomas, just upon the opposite side of the railroad bed, in less than one year, his life went in an accident of, perhaps, far less duration than it would have gone by the imaginary plot in the days of war.

Before the completion and occupancy of the above noted well appointed home, on that part of the improved area not facing the railroad but on the equally steep side slanting to Savage river, stood an ordinary old cabin in which for a time, the Governor lived with his aged negro man servant. This respected old man died there and was taken by the kind master to Frederick county, Maryland, for burial among the graves of his ancestors and while the statesman and the serving attendant lived in this plain old building, a party of newspaper representatives came up from New York fishing for mountain trout in the clear and cold streams gushing through the fastness of that part then, of Allegany county, Maryland. Their sport brought them in the community of the noted hermit. Hearing no little of one whose peculiarities justly traced would adorn the columns of any Journal, they decided to indulge attempting to see the man of whose eccentricities so much had been heard. To better understand the man they were planning to approach, it was deemed prudent to consult a near by neighbor, who assured them that the Governor was a gentleman and would meet them as gentlemen if they met him in a similar civility; but he added, it will not do to fool with him, you must be gentlemen, insisted the correctly informed mountaineer.

Armed with these advisements, they were ascending the difficult path from the river to the cabin, when a bend in the way brought them face to face with one who agreed too fully with descriptions to admit of mistake. One of the party moved forward with the salutation: "We assume that it is our honor to meet Governor Thomas," a courteous bow preceeded an all-round introduction. Then the peculiar master of a peculiar home, expressed regrets at having no lady to provide such an entertainment as he would be pleased to offer; but if they could be contented with such as was limited to him, the old man servant would give them fried chicken equal to any, where ever served. This unexpected treat was gladly accepted by the hungry fishermen.

The generous host excused himself to return a short while to the house for instructions as to dinner. In this absence every pencil was busy writing descriptions of the lion in his lair, humorous characters and objectionable drawings.

While absorbed in such writing and drawings, a loose leaf was drifted, unobserved from other notes, by the wind some distance up the path. The Governor returning, stooped and picked the strayed leaf; catching at a glance the disparaging meaning, the lion broke from the lair in fury. The startled knights of the quill saw trouble brewing. Walking calmly forward the Governor said: "When I extended to you the hospitality of my home, it was presumed from your appearance and address that you were gentlemen; I now hold in my hand evidence to the contrary and order you immediately from my presence." They were full of apologies; but he declared no apology could be entertained and as men unworthy of the presence of a gentleman, "I turn my back upon you and order you at once from my premises."

Recalling the injunction of the mountaineer, they saw the time was at hand to go, and they stood not upon the order of the going, but shuffled down the hill in the confusion of a stampede.

HUTTON

In the sweetest repose the lily and rose
Rests side by side in the gloom—
Whilst the storm king whirls with many a swirl;
The death-white pall o'er the tomb.

With many a moan and, many a groan;
Poor Nature fills the air—
With an intensegrief as she oft repeats,
"My treasures lie buried there."

At various intervals I have through the excellent medium of this valuable paper briefly and roughly sketched the magnificence of Nature's phenomina at the three most beautiful stages of her progress which are chiefly classified as Spring, Summer and Autum. And so at this period, or season, I am going to ask is winter bereft of all charms?

This morning, as I gazed for a moment on the boundless area of sleeping Nature I was so forcibly imbued with admiration that I take this occasion to depict for your pleasure that fleeting vision of loveliness that to me was a privilege of extreme happiness upon being accorded the pleasure of witnessing the splendor of this mid-winter scene.

Toward the south-western part of the village lies great stretches of unbroken woodlands, save for the deep gorge of a winding riverlet the setting of this picture of landscape would indeed assume a weird appearance.

Whilst for the inevitable back ground, there looms up in grandeur the now apparent snow-capped peaks of the majestic hills of West Virginia, whose towering heights form the distant horizon. Skirting the river's front comprises the reguant feature of this scene, the figure of a group of clustering pines, adorned by a silvery-sheen of snowy whiteness betraying the veritable blue of the fibers beneath, and as I gazed enraptured at the craftiness of the handiwork of nature, there appeared from behind the dull leadening-gray clouds that obscured the February's sky, a bright gleam of golden sun-shine, that rested for a brief second on the minute particle like crystal, emblazon them with a sparkle and brilliancy of a thousand diamonds, then vanishing as quickly into the gathering gloom. A gentle breeze seemed to whisper, through the branches of the swaying pines as it symmetrically tossed the boughs to and fro obliterateing in its wake the beautiful device producing a miniature like snow fall and leaving slumbering nature more dreary and more desolate than before: This is only one of the many handsome winter scenes that old mother nature frequently presents to view and truly one may say, winter has its charms and enchantments.

TWENTY YEARS' TORTURE ENDS IN HAPPINESS

Hagerstown Lady Made Happy. Whole Family Now Rejoice.

"If you had suffered for twenty years like I had, from indigestion, sour stomach, nervousness, spitting up food and couldn't sleep nights, I believe you'd look around like I did for something to relieve you." Said Mrs. Sarah B. Lum, wife of the popular lounge maker, Henry E. Lum, who resides at 235 Alexander street, Hagerstown, Md., and is a valued employee in the Hagerstown Lounge Factory.

"I had almost despaired of ever getting relief, and didn't have much faith in remedies, but when I saw Tanlac advertised in the papers, and learned that so many people afflicted just like I was had been entirely relieved by it, I decided to try it.

"Well, were I to talk to you for a week," she said to the Tanlac man, when she called at Rudy & Meredith's drug store, for another bottle of Tanlac "I could not tell the half of what it has done for me. I don't have any more sour stomach. I just sleep like a baby and my appetite is so good that all I now fear is the grocery bill; and my daughter too, who suffered for years from catarrh has been wonderfully benefitted by this Tanlac also. Both of us pin our faith to it, and shall continue taking it, until we are entirely cured, which we firmly believe will be the result, and we have only taken one bottle of it, and I want another. "In fact no other remedy I have ever taken has had such remarkable effect as this Tanlac, I'd just like for my friends and every one else afflicted as I was, to try it, as I'm confident they will get the same good results that I did. It is the greatest medicine I ever heard of."

Tanlac is sold exclusively in Oakland at the popular pharmacy of T. Gonder, where all drugs and remedies dispensed are pure and fresh and compounded by scientific and skillful methods. Advertisement.

Miss Marguerite Roth and Miss Oda Gnegy attended the literary at Sunnyside Saturday night and reported a delightful time. They were the guests of Mrs. Harry Moon over Sunday.

We wish to correct the mistake published last week in reference to the debate and play entitled: "A Kiss in the Dark," to be given on next Saturday, Feb. 26, instead of Feb. 29, as was formelly stated last week. The question for discussion will be: "Resolved, The Doctors are more useful than Lawyers." The speakers are: Affirmative, Messrs. Marshall Wolf, Geo. Wolf and Wm. Gnegy. Negative, Messrs. Ernest Perrick, Clyde C. Gnegy and Thurston Cosner.

We are sorry to learn of the sad accident of the three year old boy of Mr. Tom Parks, whose death was caused by falling in a tub of hot water, head foremost. It was buried at Texas, Feb. 21. The sympathizers with them in their great bereavement are many.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Arnhalt visited at the home of her parents Mr. and Mrs. Robert Lathrum last Sunday.

Mr. Adrian Glotfelty has returned to his home, after an absence of about two months, spent in Akron, O.

Mr. Joseph Martin is now employed at Dobbin, W. Va.

Mr. and Mrs. Ira Miller and son, were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Artis Sunday.

Misses Oda, Vernie and Bessie Gnegy were calling on Mrs. Charles Winters Friday last.

Quite a number of our young folks attended the debate at Horse Shoe Run Friday night. The question under discussion was: "Resolved that Pres. Wilson's National Preparedness for War is Justified." The affirmative won the decision. It was a hot debate, and very interesting and enlightening, being the most popular subject of the day.

Home Merchant vs. M. O. Houses

THE SUCCESS OF ALL COMMUNITY BUILDING

One Way, And The Best, Is to Keep Every Dollar at Home.

The success of community building depends very largely upon the completeness of a local business organization. Like any other organization it must be well balanced and every feature given careful consideration. If we should have too many dry goods stores and not good hardware establishment many citizens would have to go out of the community to buy their hardware. This would result in the dry goods merchants loosing much business because many people would do all their shopping where they could get a hardware service. On the other hand a complete hardware establishment, such as is conducted by J. M. Davis & Son's brings many shoppers to Oakland who patronize the business houses generally.

It must be said that Oakland has a very complete business organization, every line of trade being well represented. With his immense stock of dry goods, notions, groceries and furniture D. E. Bolden is an important factor in the business affairs of Garrett county and has done much toward making Oakland a popular shopping place. His stock is very large in every department and has been well selected for the people of this community. Mr. Bolden has seen to it that there is real merit in every article sold by him. This establishment reflects great credit upon the community and is of great service to all the people.

H. C. SINCELL.

The dry goods and furnishings store of Mr. H. C. Sincell has long been one of the most attractive business houses in this section. This establishment has long been the means of bringing much general trade to Oakland, because it has been in advance of every other shopping center in this section of the country in the way of handling high class dry goods, notions, ready-to-wear clothing and furnishings for every member of the family.

This store is the pride of all Oakland and vicinity, not only for the very attractive manner in which it is arranged but for the fine service which it affords the people. No matter how particular the man or woman may be as to their wearing apparel they can supply their wants here in a most satisfactory man-

HE BANKS OF THE COUNTY.

Oakland and Garrett county has a real advantage in respect to its banking facilities. The two large and substantial institutions in Oakland and the banks at Kitzmiller, Friendsville and Grantsville, are not only managed with such a degree of care as to gain the confidence of all the people but in every instance these institutions are doing their full share toward community building. Fortunately they are free from fractional strife and are working in harmony to the one end—to make Garrett county a more prosperous community.

W. H. HINEBAUGH.

Through the store and workshop of W. H. Hinebaugh the harness, saddle and general horse supply business is well taken care of in Oakland. The high standard of goods carried by him is well known to all the people and those who have tried both sources of supply are well aware of the fact that there is so much difference in the goods that there should be no comparison in prices between he and the mail order houses.

Mr. Hinebaugh carries everything in the way of leather goods, including harness, saddles, whips and every kind of horse goods. There is also a fine line of trunks, suit cases and hand bags.

ARTHUR TOWNSHEND.

Practically ever since Oakland has been the chief trading center of this end of the state the general mercantile establishment of Davis & Townshend and latter that of Arthur Townshend has been among the leading mercantile establishments. During that time this store has served nothing but the highest class of goods, has given a fine mercantile establishment to all the people of the community and has afforded a market for the products of the farmers who have brought their goods to Mr. Townshend. These are but a few of the benefits which all the people here have derived from the presence of this pioneer mercantile establishment. In addition to the great sum of money paid out by Mr. Townshend in the way of taxes for the up keep of the public institutions he has contributed to every move toward public improvement and community building. He has been interested in the welfare of Garrett county all this time and has assisted materially in the building of this fine community.

Mr. Townshend carries a fine assortment of dependable goods and is giving a mercantile serviceworthy of the support of the community. In addition to his stock of dry goods, notions, groceries and shoes he has the agency for the Royal Tailoring company by which he is furnishing the best custom made clothing for men and young men at very popular prices.

OAKLAND BAKERY.

Oakland is far in advance of the average city of its size in respect to a bakery. The service which is given here by Mr. Henry Lauer, proprietor of the Oakland Model Bakery, is equal to that enjoyed by any city in the country. Here is a demonstration of the benefits to be derived from support to the local business house. By getting practically all the bread and pastry business of the local people Mr. Lauer has been able to build and maintain this very creditable as well as serviceable bakery.

Mr. Lauer is one of Oakland's best citizens and is a citizen of unusual worth to the community. So far as is possible he uses local products in his business and in his personal affairs gives the local business houses the full benefit of his patronage.

MR. H. CREUTZBURG.

The big mercantile establishment of Herman Creutzburg has long been one of the leading shopping centers in this community. Those who have made a careful study of mercantile values and the prices which should be paid are loud in their praise of this store. Mr. Creutzburg is a buyer of unusual ability and in selecting this fine stock of goods has seen to it that he has received genuine values in every instance. He gives his patrons the benefit of this advantage.

During his many years in business here Mr. Creutzburg has been of great assistance in the building of this community. He has not only paid his full share in the way of taxes but has contributed in many others toward the building of the business center and social improvement.

W. E. SHIRER.

For forty years the name Shirer has been identified with the business interests of Oakland and Garrett county and today a representative of the second generation is making the name even more prominent in the local business affairs. Without such an establishment as that conducted by Mr. W. E. Shirer the business organization of Oakland would be far less complete and the people of this community would feel the need of this important place of business.

The tin roofing and special sheet metal business of this establishment extends all over this section of the country and is the means of bringing much money to the community. This great business in tin work, plumbing and gas fitting has been built upon the merits of the work done and the goods sold. The motto "Prompt service" has prevailed for years and this with the high standard of products coupled with fair dealing with everybody, has been the secret of the success of the enterprise. In addition to this business Mr. Shirer carries a fine line of gas and coal stoves and ranges which have been found well worth the prices asked and very reliable in every instance.

THOMAS LITTLE.

Thomas Little has been serving the people of Oakland and vicinity with high class merchandise for more than twenty years. During that time he has not only been giving the people here full value for their money but has been assisting to a great extent in the building of this city and great community. In addition to giving the people a fine shopping place he has made a market where the products of the farmers are taken in exchange for both trade and cash.

Mr. Little has a fine line of dry goods, notions, groceries and queensware and it can well be depended upon that there is real values in every article handled by him. Mr. Little also takes orders for tailor made clothing, representing one of the best tailoring concerns in the country.

The appreciation of his worth as a citizen and the best evidence of the confidence of the people in him is demonstrated in the fact that he is now treasurer of the town of Oakland.

THE DIFFERENCE IN PLUMBING.

We are all familiar with the fate of the man who saved money by defending himself in court—he is in the penitentiary. And the man who economized by being his own doctor—he is dead. Few have attempted to sidestep the plumber but many have purchased their fixtures from the mail order house—they have been stung.

About five years ago a Richwood, W. Va., citizen asked his local plumber the price of his new bathroom fixtures. He found them fifteen dollars higher than that asked by the mail order house for equipment which looked just as good and the order was placed in a Chicago house. When the fixtures arrived the purchaser applied to W. A. Hamilton, the plumber, to install the outfit. Mr. Hamilton refused to have anything to do with it because of his former experience with like fixtures from the same house. On account of the misfits and inferiority of the fixtures the cost of installation had been very expensive and the work could not be made satisfactory, always leaving a reflection on the man who did the work.

Another Richwood plumber accepted the job, but with the understanding that he was not to be held responsible for the work one day after the installation. The plumber who did the installation work wrestled with the job for three years but with no satisfactory results. Mr. Hamilton was called in two years ago and gave the job his best effort. During the past two years the repair bill on this bath room has long past the two hundred dollar mark. In all this man that "saved" money by sending to Chicago has many times paid the price asked by the local plumber.

S. L. Harmon, one of Richwood's leading business men, purchased his fixtures from Mr. Hamilton when he built his new home ten years ago. The repair bill on this bathroom in ten years has been less than twenty dollars and a portion of that has been the result of freezing, there being no fault laid to the material or workmanship.

These are but two of many like causes in Richwood as well as every town and city throughout the country. It is safe to say that if the prospective purchasers of like material will investigate the cases where the outfits have come from the mail order house they will be only too glad to patronize the local plumber.

In all lines of trade there are none in which there is a keener competition than that which exists between the manufacturer and dealers in plumbing supplies. The price for the same grade of goods are practically the same and when the mail order house quotes prices below these the difference comes in the quality. In selling you an outfit the local plumber sees to it that the fixtures fit and are free from defects. He must give you reliable goods because he is there to answer for any faults that come to light.

The local plumbers patronize the local stores, the local banks, and helps to consume the products of the local farmers. He pays taxes, contributes to the support of the churches and assists in the charity work and helps in many ways to make the home community a better place in which to live. Without a first class plumbing establishment in your community you would find it a very inconvenient place to live. Good plumbers locate and remain where they get the patronage of the people.

WHO ARE YOU BOOSTING?

In discussing the mail order business this question arises: Are you boosting your own town or are you boosting for New York and Chicago? It is safe to say that every man living in this city is giving "moral support" to this city and community. They are interested in the welfare of the schools, the churches and a large per cent of them are advocates of good roads. They want to see the community prosper and progress yet a great many of them are taking the real substance out of the community and placing it in the hands of the capitalists who are operating the mail order houses in two metropolitan cities.

In each of these cities stand great monuments to the folly of the people of the smaller cities and communities throughout the country. They are in the shapes of great business blocks which cover many acres of ground and the palatial mansions of the capitalists who reap the great profits from this unscrupulous manner of doing business.

The two cities and great states in which they are located receive the tax benefits from these big institutions. The patronage of these houses means assistance in the building of great highways, libraries and parks for the convenience and comfort of those people who already have so much more than we have here at home.

This "moral support" which is given the home community is of no interest to the great capitalists of the far away cities. We are welcome to that so far as they are concerned so long as we furnish them the hard earned cash. They are satisfied to let this community have the hot air.

HOME MERCHANT SAVE THE HOME

A Garrett county farmer, owning and living on a small piece of land near Oakland became a generous patron of the mail order houses. He not only made his purchases there but solicited orders from his neighbors. A few months ago he found himself out of cash, having sent it all to Chicago. A note for three hundred dollars came due and in his desperation he asked an Oakland merchant to endorse for him in order to save his farm. The merchant instructed the farmer to send the note to the mail order house where he had been making his purchases. Not realizing the absurdity of the thing the farmer sent the note to his mail order house with a request that it be endorsed by them. It is needless to say that it came back unsigned. The farmer went back to the local merchant, who, after giving the mail order victim a just "talking to" signed the note and saved the farmer's home.

GRANTSVILLE.

Captain R. R. Sanner, despite his 74 years, is out bright and early each morning and after a brisk walk and breakfast is ready for school routine; nor has he been prevented from teaching at any time this winter on account of illness, although most of his pupils have succumbed to grippe and whooping cough for a few days at a time since the holidays. The midwinter examinations however, show splendid work by all the pupils, in spite of illness and the absence of a few. Those standing highest in their examinations were:

Tenth grade—Edna Bender first, Allen Bender second.

Ninth grade—Margaret Getty first, Lee Custer second.

Eighth grade—Everett Miller first Albert Miller second.

One of the prettiest social affairs of the season and the most successful, was a Valentine Leap Year dance given by the Grantsville girls on Monday evening in the Broadwater hall. The hall was beautifully decorated with hearts and cupids and the programmes were decorated with likenesses of the roguish little love god. Punch was served by the ladies, and a most delicious luncheon was served by two little girls—Grace Hershberger and Margaret Getty—with Mrs. Fred Livengood as caterer.

Michael Durst, a veteran of the Civil War, living several miles west of Grantsville, died the fore part of this week, of paralysis. He was about 84 years of age. Funeral at Grantsville on Wednesday.

In the third grade, primary room, the following four pupils made almost equally high marks: Viola Swauger, Clarence Gingerich, Harry Durst and Floyd Miller.

A Card of Thanks.

We desire to extend through this medium to the neighbors who so faithfully and kindly aided and assisted us in sympathy kindness and helpful acts during our sickness and loss of one.

MANY DEFECTS IN STATE SCHOOLS

ke Education Out of Politics, Expert Advice to Maryland.

TEACHERS BADLY TRAINED.

General Eucational Board of New York, After Inspection of Every County In the State, Points to Need of More Superintendents, Higher Salaries and Changes In Existing Laws.

Baltimore, Md., Feb. 6.—The Legislature of Maryland in 1914 authorized the appointment o a Commission to procure a survey of education in Maryland and appropriated $5,000 for its expenses. The Governor appointed as members of this Commission B. Howell Griswold, Jr., of Baltimore; Col. Albert W. Sisk, of Preston and Dr. J. McPherson Scott, of Hagerstown.

At the request of the Commission, the General Education Board of New York undertook to make the survey, agreeing to bear any expense incurred in excess of the state appropriation. The results of the survey are made public to-day.

The Report is the work of Abraham Flexner and Frank P. Bachman. The former is the author of "The American College" and several years ago conducted for the Carnegie Foundation investigations of medical schools in the United States and Europe; Dr. Bachman, formerly Assistant Superintendent of Schools of Cleveland, was a professional [illegible] of the Hanus Commission which investigated the New York schools and is the author of important educational studies.

Every County Inspected.

Every county in Maryland was visited, typical schools of all kinds were [illegible] throughout the state; the records of the state and county departments were carefully examined; and much new material was gathered. The material is set forth in a comprehensive volume dealing with each detail of the situation.

"Public education in Maryland is on a whole soundly organized," says the Report of the General Education Board. Further, the state deals generously with its public schools in the matter of money.

We do not propose therefore any fundamental changes in the general structure of the public school system of Maryland nor do we suggest that the State increase at all its appropriations to the schools.

"But there are other aspects which will cause grave concern. A few counties possess good and steadily improving schools; a good school may be found here and there in other counties. But the large majority of the schools are poor; teachers are, for the most part, poorly trained; instruction is ineffective and obsolete; children attend school with disastrous irregularity; school buildings are far too often in unsatisfactory condition, school grounds, neglected and untidy.

Need of More Superintendents.

"The County Superintendency is in even more unsatisfactory condition. In the first place, the law does not even require the County Superintendent to be a trained or experienced school man; in the second place, adequate provision for skilled assistance exists in only one or two counties.

"In most counties, therefore, an untrained official without expert aid, certificates teachers, arranges courses of study, supervises instruction, and examines for promotion pupils who attend school regularly or not, as they or their parents please.

"Finally, the state's large school fund is not distributed so as to accomplish the greatest possible good. For it is distributed almost unconditionally. The counties get their quota whether they do their educational duty or not, with the result that the backward counties sometimes do much less than they ought and some well-to-do counties do much less than they should.

"The state fund thus becomes a source of positive demoralization. It can be converted into a real help and stimulus only if payment by the State is conditioned upon the performance of [illegible] duty.

"In view of these conditions, it is [illegible] enough to understand why a fundamentally correct type of organization produces unsatisfactory educational results in Maryland. But, as a matter of fact, the state does not even fare as well with its present organization as it might: why not?

Education Is "In Politics."

"A few words suffice to explain. Public education in Maryland is 'in politics.' Politics are apt to prevent the State Board from acting with vigor to determine the composition of the County Boards; to affect the choice of the County Superintendents; even to enter into the selecton of the one-room rural school teachers. Of course, there are exceptions. In the county boards are excellent; schools are entirely free from political taint. But in general personal considerations independence, thoroughness of the school system does not begin to realize the ideals of the political influence it does."

The survey says that:

"[illegible] must be singled out for especial commendation. The County Superintendent is a man of experience and modern training; and he is aided by a corps of supervisors, including an assistant superintendent, a primary supervisor with an assistant, a grammar grade supervisor with an assistant, a manual training supervisor, a domestic science supervisor, and, finally, a supervisor of rural schools.

"But every county in Maryland could, up to the limits of its financial ability, do the kind of thing that Baltimore County does. At bottom it depends on the competency of the County Superintendent."

Training of Teachers.

In discussing the weaknesses of the school situation in most of the counties, the Report points out that the teaching force of the state is in a high degree miscellaneous. On this fundamental point the Report states:

"Regarding the training of these teachers, no general statement can be made at all. There are the widest possible variations in the training of teachers doing the same grade of work—inconceivable confusion and lack of sequence and order in their preparation.

"Of over 3,000 white elementary teachers in the state outside of Baltimore, 391 (12.7 per cent.) have had only an elementary school education; 634 (20.7 per cent.) have spent one or two years in a high school; 1,031 (33.7 per cent.) have completed a four-year high school course; only 148—less than 5 per cent. of the whole—have received a standard normal school training.

One-third of Teachers Untrained.

"Of the rest, some have spent a little while in normal school; some have received an irregular normal schooling; a few have been to college and still fewer through college. Grouping together standard normal school, part college and college graduates, about 10 per cent. of the elementary teachers of Maryland—not more—may be called well trained; not over one-third could on a stretch be called fairly well trained; at least two-thirds are practically untrained. The body as a whole is thus heterogeneous to the last degree."

Of the high-school teachers, it is declared that not over two-fifths are adequately trained.

A revision of the law dealing with the certification of teachers is therefore recommended as the first step toward realizing improved conditions.

Teachers' Salaries Too Small.

Salaries are too low to obtain well-trained teachers; they range "from an average of $271 a year in St. Mary's, to $692 a year in Baltimore County. Three counties pay an average of less than $300; four less than $350; seven less than $400; seven less than $450; and only two, Allegany and Baltimore, pay in excess of $474."

School Attendance.

The attendance of school children is so irregular and uncertain that even good teachers could of teach successfully. As the state is without an effective compulsory attendance law, many children remain away from school altogether—large numbers begin to go to school too late or attend irregularly. The precise extent of this evil cannot be stated, for there is no correct school census.

It is recommended, therefore, that the state enact a state-wide compulsory education law, including proper provisions for attendance officers and whatever else is required to make it effective.

Organization.

The schools of Maryland are supported in part by county, in part by state taxation. Some of the counties, notably Baltimore, Allegany, Queen Anne, and Worcester, support their schools liberally; the rest do less and some of the most prosperous do much less than they can and should.

Help Those Who Help Themselves.

It is recommended by the Report, therefore, that the state contribution should in future be paid to no county which does not levy for educational purposes a minimum tax fixed by the Legislature. The more progressive counties will, of course, continue to levy more as they now do.

* * * * * * *

Again, the state and county organizations exist in skeleton or outline only. The State Department of Education, which should guide, study and report upon the educational activities of the entire state, consists of a superintendent, his assistant and a clerk.

"Nothing is simpler," says the Report, "than to authorize or require the State Superintendent to 'supervise', 'inspect', 'examine' or 'pass upon'. But neither inspection, supervision, nor examination can avail, unless an adequate trained organization is provided through which he can work. The force now at the Superintendent's disposal is utterly insufficient. He has a single assistant appointed with the approval of the State Board at a salary of $2,000 and one clerk at a salary not to exceed $1,200. In addition to his own salary, he has an expense allowance of five hundred dollars, and one thousand dollars more for furniture, supplies and printing. Three persons thus constitute the entire staff at the disposal of the Superintendent of Public Education in Maryland.

"It goes without saying that the functions which we have enumerated simply cannot be effectively discharged by this organization."

Would Increase Number of Officials.

The Report therefore recommends an increase in the staff in the office of the State Department of Education, said staff to be paid, not by additional legislative appropriation, but out of the present school fund, before this fund is distributed to the counties.

Equally defective is the county organization. At present, the County Superintendent is not only the main, but in most counties practically the only county educational officer. Baltimore County alone has a really adequate county organization, with the result that the schools of Baltimore County are the best in the state. Not only is the County Superintendent usually unaided—he is not even always a trained educator.

"Three County Superintendents," says the Report, "have had less than a high school education and four of them never went beyond the high school. Only one of the seven has added to his initial preparation, and he only to the extent of six weeks at a summer school. Of those remaining, one is a normal school graduate with a summer term of professional work. Though fifteen hold college and university degrees, yet not more than six of the fifteen have made special and professional preparation for their work."

Salaries are indeed frequently so low that trained men cannot possibly be obtained for this highly important post. "Of twenty-three county superintendents, one receives $5,000 a year, one $3,000, one $2,250. Of the remaining twenty, one receives $800 a year, six receive from $1,200 to $1,500 and thirteen from $1,600 to $2,000. In addition, there is an allowance of from $100 to $500 for expenses incurred in visiting schools, though Garrett County makes no allowance, and Hartford and St. Mary's only $25. One cannot be surprised, therefore, to find that these positions have not attracted trained men."

Competent Assistants Lacking.

"Conditions are aggravated," the Report continues, "by the almost universal lack of competent assistants. The law, while permitting the county boards to expend thousands annually in their discretion, forbids the employment of even a clerk to assist the Superintendent, unless the number of teachers in the county exceeds 85; an assistant superintendent may not be employed unless the number of teachers exceeds 175.

"Hence, five counties depend almost entirely upon the County Superintendent alone, employing only occasional and temporary clerical assistance. Six out of the twenty-three have assistant superintendents, and supervisors are found in four.

"In only three counties—Baltimore, Frederick and Allegany—are the offices ample and well equipped; elsewhere space is often meagre and equipment usually limited. One-fourth of the County Superintendents have but one room, often a small one at that, which serves alike as a store-house for school supplies, as a meeting-place for the County Board, and as general office."

* * * * * * *

How can an untrained and unaided County Superintendent organize schools, certificate teachers and examine children efficiently? Furthermore, it is manifestly impossible to secure good results under these circumstances.

Would Specify Qualifications.

The Report recommends that the law define the qualifications of the County Superintendents; requiring that he devote himself exclusively to his office, and that every superintendent be given such aid as is indispensable to the proper performance of his duties.

It is recommended, further, that one-half the additional expense of the county school organization be paid out of the general school fund, provided the several counties pay the other half.

* * * * * * *

Where Politics Disturb.

The Report points out that it is in the selection of county superintendents that the next session's instance of political influence is exhibited. On this subject the Report says:

"The County Superintendents are elected by the politically constituted County Boards. The politicians view the County Superintendency as 'spoils,' and in most counties the indifference of the people permits them to dispose of it on that basis. A general election, bringing about a change in party control, is scarcely over before political candidates are brought forth and 'groomed' for this important office.

"In the four years during which the Republicans were in power—1908-1912—new County Superintendents were chosen in 19 out of the 23 counties of the state, 11 of them in the very year when the County School Boards became Republican. In the first year of the new Democratic administration of 1900, 16 new County Superintendents were appointed, whereas during the ensuing 11 years, aside from removals by death, there was a total of only 11 changes.

"Similarly, the first three years of the present Republican control witnessed the election of 12 new superintendents. Some of these changes were indeed for the better; but as long as a political upset is the inciting cause, there can be no certainty that changes will be based upon public advantage. Luckily, these deplorable conditions are not universal.

"In a few—a very few—counties, politics play no part in either the selection or retention of the County Superintendents. While a dozen Superintendents have served three years or less, three have been in office for fourteen years."

THE GENERAL CONCLUSION OF THE REPORT IS THAT, UNLESS EDUCATION IS TAKEN OUT OF POLITICS, EVEN THE IMPROVEMENTS RECOMMENDED IN THE REPORT WILL BE OF LITTLE AVAIL.

Complete copies of the Report will be placed in the hands of the members of the State Legislature, and additional copies can be obtained by addressing the State Department of Education, Baltimore.

The church can't overcome the enemy because she doesn't know how to use "The sword of the spirits." She is not expert in the use of her weapons.

The devil can't be fought successfully with experiences or pet theories, or ideas.

He cares not for these things. We must know how to use the sword of the spirit. It cuts deeper than anything else.

In the selection of the beasts in Daniel's first night vision of chap. 7 to represent the world powers which domineer the age in the Gentile times, Jehovah shows us their moral character, which is beastly. The lion devours; the bear crushes; the leopard springs on its prey, but the fourth and last world power is so beastly that no beast on earth was found to describe its true character. The nations of christendom, which will be found in ths future revival of the Roman empire into ten kingdom aspect, testify to their devouring beastly character and ferocious nature. Their standing armies and increasing navies tell us that some day in the near future the dogs of war will be let loose and the beasts will do their dreadful work to the utmost.

We may well ask if this is not no true? We may well wonder if the outcome of the European carnage will not witness the revival of the old Empi.

As an instance of the fury and diabolical character of the actions of the of these nations, and a professedly christian nation at that we may cite the the action of the Russian nation bore the beginning of this war.

is spreading over Asia and Africa, giving alarm in the missionary world.

Paganism, that we used to think was confined to the far east, is now casting its shadows on the shores of the west.

Josiah Strong, the noted sociologist says: "Long since it became apparent that those who are not Christians are on the increase in the world."

The Secretary of the World's Missionary Conference in London in 1888, said: "The increase of the heathen is numerically, more than seventy times greater than that of the converts during the century of christian missions."

Bishop McDowell, doubts if India can everbe won by the present scale of operations. "Mohammedans increase faster than Christians today."

But a better time is coming for Israel and the church. Though these are days of tears and sorrows. Yet God's true children sing redemptions song. We are waiting for that morning when we shall be seated on thrones, clothed in white and crowned. Better things are in store for this earth. The rightful king will come to reign in righteousness when the things now witnessed on earth will be impossible. Lasting peace can only come with His reign of righteousness. Then will be fulfilled the prophecy of Psalm 96:10-13.

JOHANNES.

This Farmer Takes A Broad View of Matters Affecting The "Buy At Home" Policy.

To the Editor of The Republican:

Recently we have heard a good deal about sending money out of the county to buy articles that are no better or cheaper than articles sold right at our door. We all realize that it is a mistake to do this, and it would be the part of wisdom to first look around and see what you can do at home, before hearkening to the call of the flashing advertisements of the mail order houses. For as a truth, in many instances, they prove to be a snare and delusion. However, there is another phase of this question that I think has been overlooked, and that is the money that leaves our county every year for registered animals. Thousands of dollars have been expended and sent out of the county and state by our people for registered cattle of all breeds, hogs and fowls, and no one who knows enough to ... will question the ... end.

purchase an inferiorgrade at a distance. These home-grown animals are just as well bred as any foreign importations, and will serve our purpose much better, as they are acclimated and will thrive better than those brought from a distance. We have in this county young male cattle of the Angus, short horn, Herford, or of other strains, as well bred as the same animals in any part of the country. Then why send away for them, and pay more money than you can buy them for at your own door?

I admit that the home breeders are partly responsible for this, for they have the animals, but fail to let it be known. The writer knows several of our farmers who are at this time considering sending away for registered cattle, male and female, and of course will pay six prices for them. Keep this money at home. Let the breeder who has registered stock for sale advertise the fact in our local papers and let those who are contemplating improving their herds look nearer home for their supply, and thus not only save money but produce animals that will serve their purposes better.

EXPLOSION KILLS FIFTEEN MINERS AT KEMPTON

Two Others In Davis Hospital Expected to Die.

Within twelve hours after the explosion that wrecked one heading in the Kempton mine of the Davis Coal and Coke Company at Kempton, Garrett county, early Tuesday morning, when 72 miners were trapped, the rescuing party succeded in removing every miner from the working, the last being brought to the surface at six o'clock Tuesday night. Of the seventy-two traped fifteen of that number are dead, while five were injured. Two of the injured men were sent to the hospital at Davis while the others were made comfortable at their respective homes at Kempton. It is believed that the two men sent to the hospital are seriously injured and they may die.

It is impossible to get the names of those who were killed as all were foreigners and working by number.

Work at the mines will not be resumed until the investigation to ascertain what caused the explosion, now being made, is completed, and until the funeral of those who met their death in the explosion, have been held.

Maryland State Mine Inspector William Walters, of Frostburg, left there on a special train Tuesday afternoon, to conduct an investigation. President Calloway also went to the scene on a special train. The rescue party, which did heroic work, was organized under R. F. Maloney, general superintendent. A special train from Thomas, W. Va., carried physicians and a rescuing party.

Director Manning, of the United States Bureau of Mines, on hearing of the explosion, immediately ordered two rescue cars to Kempton. Car No. 6, located at Pittsburgh, reached the scene at 10 o'clock Tuesday night, and the men, under Chief Mine Safety Inspector H. W. Wolfiin, will probably assist in the investigation.

"After a thorough investigation into the cause of the explosion in this mine and from all evidence in the affected part where the loss of life was the greatest, it is the conclusion of myself and the expert investigators that the trouble was caused by a blowout shot in room 11, on the first left off first dip.

"The mine was found to be free from any noxious or dangerous gas.

"WILLIAM WALTERS,
State Mine inspector."

The above is the finding of the state mine inspector as the cause of the accident. This notice has been posted at the office of the company near the mine. The mine was but slightly damaged. Work, however, will not be resumed until the dead have been buried.

FOUND DEAD IN SHOPS

Michael Flynn, a Bloomington Miner, Died Suddenly Thursday Night.

Mr. Michael Flynn, a miner, aged 43 years, son of Mr. Michael Flynn, of Bloomington, was found dead in the old shops at Beryl early last Thursday morning. The hearing held in the afternoon before Squire J. F. Harrison brought out the facts that Flynn and a party of four others, Wm. Schell, of Beryl; Jas. Flynn, a brother; Thomas Thompson, of Chicago, and Charles Miller, of Blaine, had been dissipating for a week and had been loafing about the shops playing cards, etc. The jury brought in a verdict that the cause of the death was unknown. It was supposed to have been from alcoholism however. The four men were sentenced to pay a fine of $5 and costs and to serve 15 days in jail. The jail sentence of James Flynn, however, was rescinded.

JACKSON PICKS FRANCE

G. O. P. Leader Will Support Cecil Countain for Senate.

Former Senator William P. Jackson, generally regarded as the strongest individual in the Republican party in this State and looked upon as the State leader by many people, has determined to support Dr. Joseph Irwin France, of Cecil county and Baltimore, for his party's nomination for the United States Senate, according to reliable information received yesterday. He is expected to make public a statement within a day or two.

This means that Dr. France will have the support of substantially the same element which backed Roads Chairman O. E. Weller for the nomination for Governor in last summer's primary, and which won an overwhelming victory. These were the Jackson, Stone, Heintzeman and Mudd elements. And, of course, that means that former Governor Goldsborough and Edward C. Carrington, the other candidates for the Senatorial nomination, face heavy odds.

Sleighing Party.

A party composing nine young people from the vicinity of Wilsonia, were driven to Oakland Tuesday evening by Mr. Frank H. Harvey where they spent several hours visiting the moving pictures and basket ball games, returning home later. Those composing the party were: Misses Hazel Jack, Maude Baer, Minnie Gilbert, Elsie Whitfield, Pearl Blamble; Messrs. James, Charles and Wesley Harvey and Ward McCloy.

Bitter Winter Weather.

More suffering was experienced Sunday and Sunday night from the cold weather than at any time this winter. Though the thermometer did not register so low a mark as on other days the keen wind from the northwest carried a bitter sting that was felt by every one who dared venture out. The gas supply remained at normal, however, and the homes about the city did not suffer. Snow fell to a depth of twelve inches.

MILLER DISTILLERY BILL VETOED BY THE GOVERNOR

Measure Was Held To Be Class Legislation and Therefore Unconstitutional.

STATE HOUSE, ANNAPOLIS, March 1.—[Special]—Governor Harrington last night vetoed the Shartzer Bill prohibiting the manufacture of intoxicating liquors in Garrett county, and aimed particularly at the Miller Distillery at Accident. The bill was returned to the House during the debate on the Statewide Prohibition Bill and was not announced until the session today. The Governor states as his reason for withholding his sigature that the bill is class legislation and, therefore, uncontitutional. No effort will be made to override the Governor's veto.

Two years ago, on advice of expert legal authorities, Senator Speicher purposely omitted the provisions contained in the distillery bill from his Local Option measure for Garsett County, in order that the Local Option Law might not be affected by an unconstitutional provision, and when this "distillery bill" came up in the Senate after having passed the House Senator Norris, of the First Legislative District of Baltimore City, stated that the bill was unconstitutional, but allowed it to go through, and now the Attorney General of the State, to whom the question was submitted by Governor Harrington, has sustained the position of both Senator Speicher two years ago, and of Senator Norris, more recently.

Messrs. William and John Miller have been in Annapolis all week.

Baltimore lost in the first skirmish in both Houses late tonight on the prohibition bill. The proposition voted on was the exemption of the city from the provision of the bill. If the amendment had prevailed there would be no vote in the city on the question whether saloons shall or shall not be licensed. In the Senate the vote was, for exemption, 7; against exemption 20. HY THE QUESTION SHOULD BE SUBMITTED.

The proponents of this measure are not asking the members of the Legislature to pass upon this most important question, to the extent of saying that the liquor traffic shall be abolished or continued. But it is apparent to any one who has kept track of the progress of the age, that public opinion on this question has undergone revolutionary changes within recent years. From the dawn of history it has been held without question that the abuse of intoxicating liquors was necessarily harmful to the individual and to the community, but that the use of alcoholic beverages in moderate quantities was not harmful to the individual and in some instances might prove of actual benefit; that this view is no longer held by the most modern scientific public opinion is evident to every one who has studied the question.

It is now generally maintained by those best qualified to pass judgment that the moderate use of intoxicating liquor is never productive of good and is very often the cause of physical and mental decay and degeneracy; that used in even moderate quantities, has been tested by laboratory experiments, and universally it has been found that the mental alertness of the subject has slowed down when alcohol was taken in moderate quantities; and the skill and effectiveness of men who do muscular tasks have been found to fall off when alcohol has been administered. Not only is this true, but the old conception of the value of alcohol medicinally administered has undergone a revolutionary change, and where it was used by the gallon in hospitals in other days it is now used by the gill, and the larger number of the most skillful physicians and surgeons of the world have abandoned its use altogether.

In harmony with this modern knowledge of the injurious effects of alcohol, its use has been barred on the railroads and in most of the large manufacturing institutions of the nation.

Inasmuch as it is generally conceded that alcohol is always harmful and never beneficial, it is perfectly proper that the people of the state should be permitted to abolish its manufacture, transportation and sale for beverage purposes if they so desire.

THE PEOPLE HAVE THE RIGHT CONSTITUTIONALLY

That the state has a right to do this we think no one can question. The Supreme Court of the United States has frequently sustained this contention. As far back as 1845, in the decision upon the license cases in which Rufus Choate and Daniel Webster represented the liquor traffic, Chief Justice Taney said:

"If any state deems the retail and internal traffic in ardent spirits injurious to its citizens and calculated to produce idleness, vice or debauchery, I see nothing in the Constitution of the United States to prevent it from regulating and restraining the traffic, or from prohibiting it altogether, if it thinks proper."

In the decisions rendered in the same cases, Justice McLean said:

"The acknowledged police power of a state extends often to the destruction of property. A nuisance may be abated. Everything prejudicial to the health or morals of a city may be removed. Merchandise from a port where a contagious disease prevails, being liable to communicate the disease, may be excluded; and, in extreme cases, may be thrown into the sea. This comes in dire conflict with the regulation of commerce, and yet no one doubts the local power. It is a power, essential to self-preservation, and exists, necessarily, in every organized community. It is, indeed, the law of nature, and is possessed by man in his individual capacity. He may resist that which does him harm, whether he be assisted by an assassin or approached by poison. And it is the settled construction of every regulation of commerce, that, under the sanction of its general laws, no person can introduce into a community malignant diseases, or anything which contaminates its morals or endangers its safety. And this is an acknowledged principle applicable to all general regulations. Individuals in the enjoyment of their own rights must be careful not to injure the rights of others."

In harmony with these early decisions have been the decisions of this great court continuously down unto this day. Perhaps as strong an utterance as has ever been given upon this question is that made by Justice Field in 1890, in rendering the decision of the Supreme Court in the case of Crowley vs. Christensen, in which he said:

"The police power of the state is fully competent to regulate the business, to mitigate its evils, or to suppress it entirely. There is no inherent right in a citizen to sell intoxicating liquors by retail. It is not a privilege of a citizen of the state or of a citizen of the United States. As it is a business attended with danger to the community, it may, as already said, be entirely prohibited, or be permitted under such conditions as will limit to the utmost its evils."

In rendering the opinion in the case of Stone vs. Mississippi, the Court said:

"No legislature can bargain away the public health or the public morals. The people themselves cannot do it, much less their servants."

The burden of all these decisions show that the public welfare is the supreme law, and anything which touches the public well-being of the people of the whole state is certainly subject matter to be passed upon by the people of the whole state.

NOT A LOCAL QUESTION.

Again Mr. President, it is apparent to every student of this question that it is not a local question. It stands on all fours with contagions and infectious diseases. That the state has an absolute right to quarantine against such disease no one can question. In the interest of the people of the whole state it can take such measures as it deems necessary to prevent the ingress or egress of people from a city or a section where such diseases exist. It can go to the extent of seizing and, if necessary, destroying goods or property that carries the infection. There is no limit to the length that the state may go in order to protect the interests of the whole people in such matters. The effects of the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquors cannot be confined to any one locality as long as free intercourse between the different localities of the state in maintained. People coming from other sections are brought into contact with and subjected to the temptation of the sale of intoxicants in the communities where they are allowed.

BALTIMORE CITY.

Of course, this applies to Baltimore, the great city of the state. The city and state are intra-dependent. The people of the state are justly proud of their great metropolis, and its streets teem with the citizens of other sections, who come there to trade and to enjoy the social advantages of the great city. From the state it draws a large percentage of its population. It is dependent upon the state for its prosperity, for from the farms, villages and cities throughout the state it draws trade in vast quantities. Its educational institutions are recruited from the sons and daughters of the residents of farms, villages and other cities. Consequently, the citizens of the state are very much concerned about the conditions which exist in the metropolis. Fathers, whose sons and daughters are to become residents of the city are concerned and have a right to have some say as to the conditions under which they shall live. Parents whose children are in the educational institutions of the city supported by the state have a right to know that the environment is wholesome and clean. Therefore, it seems that in passing upon this matter it is eminently proper that the whole state should have a voice.

VIOLATION OF PRECEDENT.

The attempt to exempt a part of the state from the provisions of the law which is to the best interests of the entire state is contrary to all precedent. In no instance has this ever been done. In Colorado, where Denver, its metropolis, occupies very much the same relationship to the whole state as does Baltimore to Maryland, the prohibition of the liquor traffic is state-wide. The same is true in Oregon, where Portland has about the same relationship to the state as Baltimore to Maryland; and in Washington, with Seattle in the same relation.

THE SIGNS OF THE TIMES.

That public opinion has undergone a revolutionary change in regard to the liquor traffic of late years is at once apparent if we but once take into consideration the rapidly growing list of states that have prohibited the manufacture, sale and transportation of alcoholic liquors for beverage purposes. At the present time the following states have adopted state-wide prohibition of the liquor traffic: Alabama, Arizona, Arkansas, Colorado, Georgia, Idaho, Iowa, Kansas, Maine, Mississippi, North Carolina, North Dakota, Oklahoma, Oregon, South Carolina, Tennessee, Virginia, Washington and West Virginia. The question of state-wide prohibition will be passed upon next November by the following states by a vote of the qualified voters of such states at the general election: Michigan, Montana, Nebraska, South Dakota; Vermont votes March 7, 1916.

Mr. President, we have heard discussed to considerable length upon this floor both senatorial courtesy and courtesy due the coordinate branch of this Legislature on account of its part in the enactment of laws; and this courtesy, extended to the body across the hall, dictates that we shall pay great deference to its decision and messages; but I now desire to call attention to a third coordinate legislative branch in this State—the citizenship thereof, which has unquestioned authority to initiate legislation and of itself to pass thereupon, and that is the exact status of the bill now before the Senate—it has had its origin in the citizenship of Maryland and it is prayed that the entire citizenship of the State be permitted next November at the polls to pass thereupon, either making its provisions the law of our State or rejecting its enactment; we, as a Legislature, therefore, are but as a committee to pass thereupon without recommendation, especially so since the bill has come from the most sacred and powerful origin in our land—the citizenship of Maryland which makes and unmakes representatives at its will. Keeping this fact well in mind, we detect at a flash that so far as we are concerned as members of this Senate, this bill does not present a moral question, with which many members hesitate to deal, but it becomes strictly a bill that involves the sacred courtesy that is due from the Senate or Legislature of Maryland to the highest legislative body of Maryland—the citizenship thereof. It may be shown with equal conclusiveness that it is not a party measure, for both of the great parties of this land have been committed by pledges with the people to the furtherance of the referendum, of which doctrine this bill is a concrete example and presents an admirable opportunity for every Senator in this body to measure up in the highest degree possible to the confidence and trust reposed in him by the electorate of Maryland. Continuing farther along this same line of thought, I heard a Senator, only a few days ago, in voting upon a certain measure before this body state that the principle of home rule was strong within him, and he cast his vote accordingly. Now, I desire to state this bill now before the same Senate involves the same principle of home rule. To explain: As our intellectual powers heighten and the mental vision enlarges accordingly, we do not see our environment to be as large as we had been accustomed to view them when our intellectual powers were low and our mental vision accordingly narrowed. To illustrate this abstract statement by a concrete example, I desire, with due apology thereof, to recite an experience of my own. It is this: When I am in Garrett county and am asked where my home is, I reply, "In Accident." But last summer, when traveling in the far west, upon the Pacific coast, if asked where my home was, I replied, "In Maryland," and could barely keep from replying, "in the East," such an answer having been prompted by the great distance we had traversed across this continent, which had accordingly lengthened the measuring rod that had been used during the narrow days of youth. So, to a broadened intellect, Maryland is home, and this bill contemplates the blessed home-rule to which the Senator the other day committed himself.

AN OBJECTION TO THE BILL.

We shall pass over many of the objections to the present bill, feeling confident that the friends of the measure will be fully able to explode them as they later are brought forth by the opponents of the bill. There is one, however, that I do desire to anticipate and that is the one which I shall prove is far-fetched and without foundation in fact, and it is stated as follows: Prohibition does not prohibit. Aside from the fact that the present bill is opposed by the liquor interests, which, if the statement were true that prohibition does not prohibit, would not be in opposition to the ultimate end to which they fear the bill might lead, the abolition of the liquor traffic in Maryland, for if prohibition does not prohibit, then there would not be the opposition from that quarter that now exists, for the sale of liquor, if that statement were true, would be as large after as it was before the electorate of Maryland wrote the contemplated law upon the statute books of Maryland; the coffers of the liquor dealer, if prohibition does not prohibit, would be as well-filled after as before its enactment, and if that were true, the present opposition would be wholly dissipated and the present bill would pass without a dissenting vote. Aside from the point just made, I repeat, that the financial returns of the liquor interests would be as great after as before Maryland went dry, if it were true that prohibition does not prohibit, and that that fact would remove the present opposition to this bill, I desire to call the attention of the Senators to a far greater menace that prohibition does not prohibit, and that threatens us as Senatore of this State; and that is, by admitting the truthfulness of that slogan of the liquor interests, we place ourselves in the embarrassing and humiliating position of confessing that the acts to which this Senate is a part are null and void and without effect and that the lawless element of Maryland overrides the executive officials of this State, many of whom derive their authority from this body directly, indirectly or through confirmation. Shame upon us. I say, if we as members of this great commonwealth proclaim that prohibition does prohibit, for in so proclaiming we concurrently admit our inability to provide our State with executive officials who are sufficiently armed to carry out the mandates of its citizenship. No one here admits that, for each of us is inspired in our endeavors that each act of this body shall be charged with enough electricity to make it a means of control over those whom it concerns.

A RETROSPECT.

It is not our intention to thumb the pages of the history of our State and nation to find all the parallel incidents that have marked our progress up to the present time. But there are two or three historical facts that serve as fountains to every student of Maryland and national history, which, when drunk from, serve as great sources of patriotism and love for both our State and nation. And those who participated in those dreams were inspired to do that which they did do on account of their abiding faith in the truthfullness of and validity in the prerogatives of the people to be their own authority, which form of authority was aptly phrased by Lincoln upon the battlefield of Gettysburg when he said: "It is rather for us to be here dedicated to the great task remaining before us—that from these honored dead we take increased devotion to that cause for which they gave the last full measure of devotion—that we here highly resolve that these dead shall not have died in vain—that this nation, under God, shall have a new birth of freedom and that government of the people, by the people, for the people, shall not perish from the earth." And the bill now before the Senate of Maryland, through which the people of this State desire to exercise in the highest type of example the authority bequeathed to them by the immortal Lincoln, is but an outgrowth of the principle of government thoroughly imbued in their hearts and minds. Let us not ignore its presence or try to set it at naught. The same spirit that prompted the burning of Peggy Stewart near this city and that dictated this sentence in the Declaration of Independence, that "Governments are instituted among men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed," the same religious belief upon the part of the citizenship of Maryland, with a more advanced method, I repeat, knocks today upon the doors of the Legislature of Maryland, demanding the rights conferred in the bill now before this Senate. Let us not play the part of King George III of England, imbecile as history tells us that he was.

A FORECAST.

There are members of this body who look forward to political advancement and public preference which must come from the electorate. In this connection, I desire to point out that those of us who disregard and trample under foot the fundamental principles of government by the people to which I have been calling attention. Those who do these things, I state, shall go on record as disregarding and ignoring the covenants made with our constituencies, who shall later demand explanation and with all our explaining shall never be explained away. And with the highly advanced educational equipment of our people back home, who know well their own rights under our system of government, the inability to explain away our inconsistencies shall only be more highly intensified and they shall serve as boomerangs that will cause our political downfall. Every avenue of escape is open to the Senator who votes in favor of this measure, but the door of public esteem will be closed in the face of him who opposes it, for the electorate of Maryland will suspicion that we as members of this body have deprived them of a certain privilege, and every member, like the wife of Caesar, should be above suspicion. Furthermore, by voting in favor of this measure, we vitalize again the principle set forth in the Declaration of Independence quoted awhile ago, that "Governments are instituted among men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed," and by defeating this bill we are ourselves as members of this body usurping powers without the consent of the governed; for, if we were not, we would have no hesitation whatever in permitting this bill to go at once before the electorate of Maryland. But some will oppose it for fear that the results would not be in harmony with their own desires, when this in fact has no bearing upon the present question before this Senate, yet that reason only intensifies the point I have just made—that we are usurping powers that are not ours in even trying to block this measure in its very beginning. Let the Senator who comes from a wet county or district vote in favor of the bill, thus showing him to be a man of such heightened mental horizon that Maryland is home, and that home rule is strong within him, and that the Legislature of Maryland stands primarily for the government of the entire State, and that it derives its just powers only from the consent of the governed. Let the Senator who comes from a county or district that is evenly divided upon this question of wet or dry, vote in favor of the present bill, for his escape lies in permitting the electorate to decide the question for themselves, with which decision only will the electorate be content. Let the Senator who comes from a county or district that is indifferent or quiescent upon the liquor problem vote in its favor, for in so doing he shall become a recognized leader, crystallizing thought, as well as obeying and vitalizing the fundamental laws of government by the people, to which we have previously called attention. Let the Senator who does not know just how to vote, vote for the measure, thus honoring the traditions of our State and nation as well as obeying his clean conscience and all the teachings of his early manhood.

In conclusion I wish to say that it is only natural that people should differ on this all-important question, and we expect it. Some of you are, of course, expected by perhaps a majority of your constituents, to vote against this bill, and they should not criticise you if you voted for it, as you are only placing the matter in their hands where it rightfully belongs, to decide this all-important question. Why should Baltimore city protest against the passae of this bill, giving the entire State the right to vote on this matter, when one-half of the population of the State of Maryland lives in the City of Baltimore and have back of them the combined force of the liquor interests of the state to defeat this bill when it comes up before the people next November? I firmly believe if we give the people of the State this referendum we can all in later years point with pride to the fact that we were members of the General Assembly of Maryland at the session of 1916 that gave to the people of this grand old State of ours the first state-wide local option bill that was ever passed by the General Assembly of Maryland.

I have trailed across the continent from New York to the Pacific Coast. I have crossed the Dominion of Canada, and have traveled through England, France, Belgium, Holland and Germany, and I have always been a close observer and nave not, in all my travels found any locality or community that has ever been benefitted by the saloon.

Can any of you point to a single instance where the sale of intoxicants of any kind, has ever been a benefit morally, physically, socially, financially or any other way?

I say, No! But one may look around and about you and point to thousands that have been sent down to eternal ruin by the effects of alcoholic drinks.

I have heard the eloquent speeches on the Woman Suffrage Amendment, and the argument produced. Why not give it to them and let the people settle it once. If we do not give it to them this time, they will be back next session for it. You are always willing to refer the Budget System to the people. Then why not be consistent and refer the liquor question to the people and let them decide whether or not this Bill shall become a law?

Were I a member of Congress, I would introduce an amendment to the Federal Constitution of the United States, which would give to the whole people of this continent the right to vote on this proposition, and I predict that within the next ten years not a State in the Union will be selling or manufacturing liquor.

These words of the Immortal Lincoln are as applicable today as they were on the day when he made his most memorable address at Gettysburg:

"The world will little note, nor long remember what we say here, but it can never forget what they did here. It is for us, the living, rather, to be dedicated here to the unfinished work which they who fought here have thus far so nobly advanced. It is rather for us to be here dedicated to the great task remaining before us that from these honored dead we take increased devotion to that cause for which they gave the cast full measure of devotion."

ELDER HILL.

We have been having an interesting school here, but there has been a lot of sickness in the community and the school has been rather small. Miss Ruth Riley, of Selbysport, is our teacher and has been sick for the last week and her brother Dale Riley is teaching in her place. We had a small program last Friday afternoon and Mr. John Ferguson, of Friendsville High school, was here and made an interesting speech.

Mr. William McClintock had an attack of grip but is well again.

Mr. M. W. Lytle also had a severe attack of grip, but is convalescing.

There have been a good many cases of grip but the people seem to be improving nicely.

Mrs. Asa Friend and daughters, Mrs. Hallie Custer, Miss Grace Friend also Mrs. Alven DeWitt and son Paul, of Hoyes, were visiting Mr. William McClintock and family.

Mr. Willis Camp, who has been living on Mr. S. F. Cuppetts farm, has occupied his own farm which he bought of Mr. Burgess.

Mr. S. F. Cuppett, wife and grandson, Karl, were calling on Mr. M. W. Lytle and family a few hours last Sunday evening.

Mr. Silas Sterling and family, of Friendsville, were visiting Mrs. Sterling a few days.

Mr. Hayes Ferguson and Mr. M. W. Lytle caught a wild cat in a trap last Friday.

Miss Cecelia Leichter, of near this place, fell on the ice while skating and it is thought she has broken her nose.

Flossie and John Sterling have been sick and unable to attend school for week.

Victor Frazee, of Hoyes, was calling on Miss Jessie Lowdermilk last Saturday evening.

Mrs. Lowdermilk and Miss Koontz have been very ill with the grip but are able to be around again.

There has been a heavy snow and the roads are drifted shut and people are opening them. If farmers have no work in winter, opening roads will be a good job.

Mrs. Florence Hoye and little daughter were visiting Mrs. Susan Lyth a few days.

Mr. Thomas Bishoff, near here, lost a pig the result of a rat bite. The rat ate the pig's ear off close to the head. When the master of the house went out at noon to feed the pig, it was dead.

Snares.

Long ago a very great man praved "Keep me from the snares which they have laid for me and the grip of the workers of iniquity."

These snares are carefully and secretly laid for us, but often they catch the ones who laid them. The gallows erected by Hannan for the hated Mordicai was used to stretch his own neck. The snares laid for us by our enemies often are the instruments of their own destruction.

Our journey through life is ever a way full of pitfalls and we are in danger of being taken in them unless we have an experienced guide. But we may have such a one if we so desire. Satan has divised many evils for the destruction of youth and we can't shut our eyes nor close our ears to the many homes turned into darkness, joy changed to grief, and countless children swept from parents, into the great mad storm of vice, and entangled in the meshes of the devil's snares, lost to home, society and the church. I would make a plea for the youth, for if we can save them we save the world but if they are polluted and lost, then farewell to the church and when it is gone the world is ready for the final conflagration.

The snares of the day are popular, they must be so to succeed. Demagogues monopolize politics and government, but indifferent christians delegate to the svecial care of the ministry, the poor who he must look after. He must visit the sick comfort the sorrowing and help the needy.

But he has an interest in the affairs e local government as well. Now en you will find one who wants to ne whole thing, from the Governor n, and dictate the policy of all rties even though he has only been a tizen for six weeks.

He ought to be a good leader against all ruin traps, that are set for unwary feet of our youth.

Then there are the gambling snares. These are designed for the feminine portion especially and are set in our homes They are attractive looking snares, and usually the victims think there is no danger for them, but thousands of girls and women are falling into them, while myriads of boys and men are hopelessly entangled every year.

Against these and the houses of vice a ceaseless war should be waged.

Of course there must be common sense used in fighting these things as in everything else. Cranks will shout their objections and hurl their anathemas against any who dare oppose these things, but these are among the unreasonable and wicked men from whom Paul prays to be delivered.

The way to treat such is to thrust them aside.

Who should be better able to lead against these and kindred evils than the minister and if he is true to his convictions and his trust he cannot refuse to do so. As an educator of public taste and good morals and religion he is bound to expose current evils however incipient they may appear at first, or however popular they may become.

They may be advocated and supported by generous people, yet that does not make them right or proper, but it only increases this danger and makes it more necessary to expose these carefully concealed snares.

With the desire to help all and to worn the thoughtless and unwary let me speak of the snares laid especially for the young. Let us begin at the home. Here is where the first and lasting impressions are made, where the foundation of character is laid, and what these shall be depends upon the parents.

An atmosphere of cheerfulness has a salutary influence, but fault finding, pettishness, rough speech, harsh words, and coarse expressions are soon followed by evil results. The child looks upon the parent as infallible and so what they do is right in their eyes, hence we often hear them say, My father does that, or mother allows me to do this, therefore it is just right with them.

This will enforce the necessity of imparting right thoughts, desires and motives in the child, for as the twig is bent the tree is inclined. Bad thoughts are like bees, where there is one there are usually many. They go in swarms and if one gets in it will have a large following.

They may enter so stealthily that we can scarcely perceive their entrance yet they flock in from all sides, and as the locusts of Egypt darkened the atmosphere, so these filthy brood of evil thoughts darken the understanding, fill reason's ears with their hum, extinguish the danger signals and then the victims rapidly lose their sense of purity and virtue, vile thoughts and suggestions find ready lodgement in the minds of youth and when they have established themselves, then farewell innocency. Let the mind become familiar with corrupt stories and criminal deeds, then self respect soon disappears. Keep the young innocent by all means and as long as you can. Solomon knew what he was talking about when he said, "Evil communications corrupt good manners." Loche says, "That of all men we meet with, nine parts out of ten are what they are, good or evil, useful or not, by their education."

What a responsibility rests on parents. It is their's to shape the future of an immortal mind, while the direction it shall take depends largely upon the care and faithfulness of the natural instructor.

Parents who are as vacillating as a weather vane, whose principles are not established on a firm basis but who sacrifice conviction to expediency, whose self interest controls instead of right, whose sense of honor is blunted, cannot expect their children to be any better than themselves. They need not be surprised if they do not make moral heroes.

You can't expect the stream to rise higher than the fountain and you might as well expect flowers to come to perfection in a dark cellar as children to become moral heroes under such influences. Proper education developes and enlarges our capacity for enjoyment.

The vivacious child, of lively disposition, nervous temperament and lively imagination is more readily drawn aside and is more easily influenced by those about them. Such is the effect of companionship. See then that it is right in every respect.

SHORT RUN

As we have not seen any news from Short Run for quite a while we will pen a few of the latest happenings.

This snow is one of the greatest and most agreeable surprises we have had for a while. The farmers who have hauling to do are getting busy. Monday was a busy day. Every one was hustling around breaking roads and shoveling snow.

Our school continues under the skilful management of Miss Orpah McKinzie. Mr. Harry Poleman, of Meyersdale, Pa., visited the school one day last week and seemed very much pleased with Miss McKenzies method of instructing. Mr. Poleman made a brief address on Educational Possibilities in Rural districts, which was greatly enjoyed by the pupils.

Mr. George Wilson, who cut his knee very badly some six weeks ago, is still a patient at the Western Maryland Hospital and the doctors there found it necessary to perform a surgical operation which proved successful and he is reported to be convalescing nicely, and will probably be brought to his home here this week.

Mr. Albert M. Enlow and Master Kepler, of Kitzmiller, spent a recent Saturday visiting at J. H. Wilson's.

Mr. and Mrs. Claude Harvey and two little sons of this place are spending a few days visiting friends at Paradise.

Mrs. Scott Harvey spent last week visiting her parents at Kitzmiller.

Missess Ruth Wilson and Virgie Moore are spending a few days visiting friends in Kitzmiller.

Success to The Republican.

HARVESTER.

STEIDING

Mr. H. G. Hamill is on the sick list at the present time. We hope for his speedy recovery.

Mr. G. W. Smith, of Elk Garden, spent a few days last week with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Smith.

Quite a number of our people have been attending the "Pentecostal" revival which is being held at the Paradise school house.

Mr. T. E. Upole, of Jennings, spent Sunday with his family at this place.

The people in this section are busy opening the roads so as to make them passable, there being so many drifts made by the snow storm which recently passed through our section.

Quite a number of our people attended the entertainment held in Deer Park on last Tuesday night. They report a fine entertainment as was also the one held at Wilson school house.

Mrs. George Reckner has been very ill for a few days but is improving some now.

Mrs. Guy Coyell is spending a few days in Grafton.

Miss Bertha Spoerline and Dewey Upole spent last Saturday and Sunday at the formers home at Accident.

Revs. DeWitt and Smearman spent last Sunday evening at John Smith's.

In Loving Memory.

Of Mrs. Sarah Ellen Hook, who died March 2, 1915.

NOT FORGOTTEN.

We loved her, yes we loved her,
But her Saviour loved her more;
So the angels sweetly called her
To that bright and happy shore.
We miss her, yes, we miss her;
We miss her everywhere.
Home is not what it used to be
Since dear mother is not there,
It was hard to part with mother
Oh! so sad to see her die,
But we will try to meet her
Some sweet day, bye and bye.

HUSBAND AND CHILDREN.

GIFFORD PINCHOT.

Sees a New Danger to Conservation in Shields Bill Now Pending in Congress.

Gifford Pinchot, the pioneer of National Conservation, sees a new danger to water power of the country in a measure now pending before Congress and he is calling loudly to the people through the press of the country for a united effort to secure its defeat. In a letter to The Republican Mr Pinchot says:

I write to ask your help to defeat a most serious attack on our public resources. Since the fight over the Alaska resources was won there has not been so pressing a threat against the Conservation policy as the present effort in Congress to give our public water powers for nothing into monopolistic control.

The Shields Bill, now before the Senate, gives to the power interests without compensation the use of water power on navigable streams. The amount of water power these streams will supply is larger by far than all the power of every kind now in use in the United States. It pretends to, but does not, enable the people to take back their own property at the end of fifty years, for in order to do so under the bill, the Government would have to pay the unearned increment, and to take over whole lighting systems of cities and whole manufacturing plants. Private corporations are authorized to seize upon any land, private or public, they choose to condemn.

Bills which gave away public water powers without due compensation were vetoed by President Roosevelt and President Taft. The Shields Bill would do precisely the same thing today.

Another water power bill, the Ferris Bill, relating to the public lands and National Forests, was in the main a good bill as it passed the House. As reported to the Senate, it encourages monopoly by permitting a corporation to take as many public water power sites as it may please. Under it the corporations could not even be kept from fastening upon the Grand Canyon, the greatest natural wonder on this continent. This bill takes the care of water powers on National Forests from the experienced and competent Forest Service, and gives it to the Interior Department, thus entailing duplication and needless expense.

In my opinion, there is undue carelessness as to the disposal of public resources at present in Washington. The water power legislation now before the Senate is too favorable to the men who, as Secretary Houston's admirable recent report shows, control through 18 corporations more than one-half of the total water power used in public service throughout the United States The water power men charge that Conservation hampers development. The Houston report shows, on the contrary, that the most rapid development is in the National Forests, where conservation is best inforced. On the other hand, 120 public service corporations own and are holding undeveloped and out of use an amount of water power equal to four-fifths of all there is developed and in use by all the public service corporations in the whole United States.

As I said in an open letter of January 29 to the President:

"Natural resources lie at the foundation of all preparedness, whether for peace or war. No plan for national defense can be effective unless it provides for adequate public control of all the raw materials out of which the defensive strength of a nation is made. Of these raw materials water power is the most essential, because without electricity generated from water power we can not manufacture nitrates, and nitrates are the basis of gunpowder. There are no great natural deposits of nitrates in the United States as there are in Chilli. It would be folly to allow the public water power, which can supply this indispensable basis of national defense, to pass out of effective public controll.

A concerted movement is on foot to break down the Conservation policy. Feeble resistance or none at all is being made by official Washington. Unless the press and the people come to the rescue, the power interests are likely to win. This is a public matter wholly removed from political partizanship. Your help is needed, and that of your paper. For nearly ten years this fight for the public water power has gone on. We ought not to lose it now.

Sincerely yours,

GIFFORD PINCHOT.

GRANTSVILLE.

William E. Gnagey, a native of Garrett county, a son of Jonas E. Gnagey, who for the past ten years or more had been in San Francisco, Cal., and returned here recently to visit relatives, surprised his many friends last week by purchasing the farm of Samuel C. Loechel, this county near the Mason and Dixon line, for a future home. Mr. and Mrs. Loechel will hold sale some time during March and contemplates buying a home in Salisbury. Mr. Gnagey, who is unmarried, will take possession April 1st, and will have as housekeeper Mrs. Anna Beachy, widow of the late Jonas Beachy of Bittinger, Md. Mrs. Beachy has been a warm friend of the family for years and is realy a sort of foster mother to Mr. Gnagey, having taken care of him from the age of 8 to 16 years before he left for the West. Recently Mrs. Beachy has been visiting relatives, and having no permanent home, has consented to act as housekeeper to the boy whose interests she has so much at heart. She has one child, an adopted daughter. Mr. Gnagey is very enthusiastic over his purchase amd proud to be back again upon his native heath and owner of one of the finest farms in the country. He is a young man of excellent character and attractive personality and the people of this locality are pleased to have him settle down among them.

Mr. and Mrs. John Zehner have had their basement repaired and partly rebuilt since the fire a few weeks since which did considerable damage to the interior of the basement, burning away the partition between the kitchen and cellar, damaging the ceiling to a great extent and burning some of the furniture and a lot of clothing. The insurance company promptly sent a claim adjuster who settled the damages and Messrs. Miller and Klotz, carpenters, and Forest Beachy painter, have worked a complete metamorphosis in the charred, blackened kitchen and dining-room combined, and transformed it into a bright, cheery appartment once more. The fire had reached the head of the basement stairs leading into the upper regions, but was checked, fortunately, before the door was burned through.

Miss Winona Fern Durst and John Milton Horchler were married on Sunday, Feb. 20th, at the home of the bride's parents, at 6 o'clock in the evening. The ceremony was performed by Rev. E. E. Oney, the groom's pastor. The bride is the pretty daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Christian Durst of Meadow Mountain. She wore a dainty gown of white silk. Mr. Horchler is a son of Louis Horchler of near Grantsville. The young people will reside at the groom's home for the next few months until they begin housekeeping.

A most enjoyable entertainment was given at the Grantsville school house on Tuesday afternoon in honor of George Washington, all of the little people taking part in the exercises with the keenest enjoyment. There were recitations, some pretty drills, a graceful minuet by Gertrude and [illegible] Washington; another [illegible] person Martha Washington and [illegible] songs. Prof. Sanner, the [illegible] ers were justly proud of their [illegible] pupils displayed, and [illegible] ents and friends [illegible] event.

BANK AT HOME.

Only a few people realize what an important and essential factor a bank in a community. It is the silent sentinel that stands guard over your money by day and by night and protects you against loss by theft or fire and pays you for the privilege of doing it; it warns and protects you against fakirs and fraudulent wild-cat schemes; it comes to the rescue of the business man who is obliged to have money to save, or to enlarge his business; it enables the worthy man to embark in business; it has come to the rescue and saved many a business and home from being sold under the hammer; it has furnished the money to erect many a home and build many a business block; it finances, fosters and encourages many a new enterprise which affords employment to many people, and it has sent many men on the high road to success and prosperity by inducing them to start a savings account. Indeed, there wouldn't be very many mines, mills, stores and factories, if it was not for the banks. But there would be a lot of people out of work. The bank is a community builder. No community can get along without a bank.

THE OPEN ROAD

...ich An...ort Will Be Made to Wand...r on His Way Up Hill.

BY LE... RASCHE.

...the m... disagreeable things sar..., and most any one o... ...er say misuse it, for ... ...se of English. The ...ole of so many better ...hat it may well be said ...strictly a misuse of it. ...s get on the nerves of every one within earshot of them, and sometimes they make you want to do a first class job of choaking. But they are generally always sprung at a time when you must listen to them without a word and sit like a lamb when you're really the goat.

The other evening I had the pleasure (?) of attending a little dinner party. Both host and hostess were all smiles and as gracious as far farmed Southern hospitality could warrant. They were gracious to the point of gushing and they gushed. But something must have happened between the reception room and the dining room, one of those little domestic clashes that come up occasionally as suddenly as a Jack in the box, for at the table the gush had gone and there began one of those pleasant (?) little battles of wits. You know what they are Cornelius, those little battles where hubby gets back in a gentle (?) way every time wifey makes what she figures out as a cute witicism, and then wifey comes back again, when hubby calculates he's put a good one over, with a quiet little lady-like slam and then bows smiling to the guests, offering some more of the eats. That's when the gush is gone and the guest is the goat. You have to sit quiet and choke down an insane desire to kick over the table, break up the party and make your get-away. That's d—— decarum. But you've been squeezed in between one or two of these quiet little storms, Cornelius, and you know how it is. I thought of Oliver Wendell Holmes, the "Autocrat of the Breakfast Table," and could not help here mentally recalling his sage philosophy:

"Don't flatter yourself that friendship authorizes you to say disagreeable things to your intimates. On the contrary, the nearer you come into a relation with a person, the more necessary do tact and courtesy become. Except in cases of necessity, which are rare, leave your friend to learn unpleasant truths from his enemies; they are ready enough to tell them."

A whole library could contain no sounder truths than the brief bit of philosophy from Holmes. And if it could just be remembered whenever you feel those little remarks coming on that cut like a knife blade, Cornelius, it would make the way much more pleasant along the open road. No remarks once said can ever be unsaid. There is something in the world, an empty form they call apology. But remember that the word once spoken cannot be recalled for the reason that no amount of apology can erase it from the mind. The spoken word sets up a vibration and every vibration has a certain effect. Vibration carries the word to the drum of the ear and into the brain. Rememberance locks it there. Lots of bitterness is caused along the way of words. Lots could be avoided if a seal could sometimes be placed on the lips. Cutting remarks and saracasm form one of the unnecessary cups of bitterness.

THE DEATH RECORD.

ANDREW DELAWDER.

A telegram was received in Oakland last Friday announcing the death of Mr. Andrew Delawder, uncle of Mr. James A. Delawder, of Oakland, and brother of Mr. David Delawder, of near Hutton. The deceased was aged 84 years and is survived by his widow, four sons and five daughters. He was a resident of Oakland immediately following the Civil War where he was engaged in the blacksmithing business, and left here more than forty years ago when he returned to his old home in Howard county, Md., where he continued to reside until his death. He was a close personal friend of former Governor Edwin Warfield in whose employ three of his sons now are.

EDWARD MARGROFF.

Mr. Edward Margroff, a life long resident of the Accident District, died at his home near Accident Tuesday, his death following a stroke of appoplexy. The deceased was well known in all portions of Garrett county and counted his friends legion. Mr. Margroff was for a number of years tax collector for the county, served one term as County Commissioner and for the past fourteen years has been vice president of the Farmer's Fire Insurance Company of this county. He was a Union veteran, serving his country throughout the war of the Sixties with credit and honor. He is survived by his widow and a number of children, all of whom are grown. His funeral will occur today with interment at Accident.

DAVID MORGAN MASON.

This vicinity was called upon to witness the passing of another of its old and respected citizens last Saturday evening about 9:30 o'clock, at which time Mr. D. M. Mason succumbed from heart trouble, at his home on Third street.

While it was known that he had been in failing health for some time past, his death was a shock to the community, it being sudden and unexpected. Early in the evening he seemed better than usual and in fine spirits.

Mr. Mason was born in Preston county, West Virginia, on June 22, 1843, and was a son of William D. and Rebecca Mason. At the outbreak of the Civil War he cast his lot with the fortunes of theSouth joining in September, 1862, Company F, 33rd, Virginia Volunters, which later became a part of the famous Stonewall Brigade. He served in the Confederate army until the close of the war in 1865, and during his army career was captured and made to serve fourteen months in a Federal prison.

Mr. Mason came to Oakland in the year 1871, and about the year 1888 entered the service of the Baltimore & Ohio R. R. Co., at the station here, and served in various capacities until about 1900, when he was appointed agent of the company in Oakland. He held this position until December, 1903, when he resigned to enter the milling business with Mr. J. H. Painter, under the firm name of Mason & Painter. He later sold the business and has since been engaged in various official capacities.

Always a prominent Democrat, he took an active part in the politics of the state, town and county, and has held different positions of trust, having been mayor, a member of the Board of Election Supervisors for Garrett county several years ago, and served several terms as tax and water collector for the city of Oakland, which position he held at the time of his death. He was an appointee to the Election Board under the present Democratic administration of the state, and would have been a member of the new board had he lived.

Mr. Mason was united in marriage to Miss Sarah Chisholm, of Oakland, on February 21, 1889. No children were born of this union. He is survived by his wife, Mr. George M. Mason, a brother, and Mrs. Mary Susan Chisholm and Miss Martha Ellen Mason, sisters.

The funeral took place from the Garrett Memorial church Tuesday afternoon, after services conducted by Rev. Dr. J. C. Ely, the pastor.

The local lodge of the Knights of Pythias, of which the deceased was a member, attended in a body.

We join with the many friends of the bereaved wife and relatives in extending heartfelt sympathy in their sad loss.

The Late Governor Francis Thomas

BY CHARLES M. MILLER

This is the fourth of a series of several articles relative to an illustrious but unfortunate Governor of Maryland who is remembered by many.

In political ambition the star of Governor Thomas was in a steady and clear ascendancy until, after the meridian of life, it entered the eclipse—the divorce decree, and in the wake of that deplorable step, no little of the closing years "was bound in miseries and in shallows."

With a fearless independence he filled most every position of exalted trust in the domain of the commonwealth. His terms in the Federal Congress aggregated nearly a quarter of a century. It was in debates as a candidate before the people and on the floor of representatives, that were emitted so many escaping sparks, telling of the deep fire glowing in the mental engine.

One of these occasions was vividly reproduced for my hearing, by the late Judge George A. Pearre, himself a lawyer of admitted forensic qualities in a period of distinguished competitors, and subsequently elevated to the bench of the 4th Judicial Circuit of Maryland, handing down opinions respected for their ability. In fact, Judge Pearre, in his graphic, vigorous style, pointed out two of these instances. One was a nominating convention in the lower end of the district at the wind up of a heated and bitterly waged contest for Congressional leadership. If memory correctly serves me, an aspirant named Hoover, measured blades with the Governor in the closely fought battle. The storm center was in the lower extremity of the Congressional district, and the Governor regarded his strenth too safe in the house of his friends in the upper section of the district to require diversion from the main conflict. The watchful adversary caught the chance for a skillful move and, by a quick manipulation captured the precinct; but, it was explained, got rather a rag-tag delegation. The loss of support from a strong-hold relied upon as his own, made the old War Horse champ the bit and paw the ground. But a popular expression gave the honor to Maryland's favorite son. That evening the recipient of the nomination was called out by a serenade to speak from the balcony of a hotel; and in racy vituperation paid warm respects to the delegates filched from his friends, saying in part: "All came down to this nominating convention dressed up in borrowed clothes that they might wear the semblance of gentlemen. Early inthe morning, following the night of their arrival, the proprietor of the hotel tried to press open his front door, but close from the outside against it was a weight as that of a hog. He went round some other way and found one of these delegates asleep inhis drunk and filthy in the swill from his mouth. The proprietor wished the door opened, and to save his hand from such a touch, shook him under the pressure of his foot; and all the hog could grunt was: I am for Hoover! Hoover!! Hoover!!!

And, continued Judge Pearre, in the same locality on another occasion, this champion of the husting was pitted in debate against an applicant for office, who had previously filled an important official position but during his administration a moneyed shortage had been whispered, leaving a suspicion delicate to probe. This candidate rashly held the Governor up to ridicule as an aristocrat perpetually pleading for political preferment, and that he had lived among people, a farmer boy all day between the handles of a plow, working hard for his bread. In rejoinder the practiced campaigner delivered a glowing tribute to any boy with the spirit and determination to rise through his own efforts to positions of public usefulness, he merits confidence and admiration. "But," said the withering critic, "if the history of my State is correct, and I assume it is, this boastful boy has permitted his plow to cut rather too deep in the financial soil of Maryland either for the safety of his reputation or the interest of the people." And from that he broke the vials of denunciation over the victim's head in retorts too burning to be remembered. For cutting invective his tongue was a lash with scorpion's sting.

In rambles through the mountains a man old enough to be my father, was asked if he knew Gov. Thomas, replied "I knew him better than I will ever know you." Then he was asked to tell me something of him; and answered: "O, Mr. Miller, I do not know what to tell you; my work was with him many years on surveys and in other work as he would need." "Did you ever hear him make a public speech?" "Oh, yes, Sir, more than once." "Where did you last hear him?" The reply was Grantsville. "Now please tell me what you remember of that address; how did it impress you?" "Well, the Governor was running for Congress, and the candidate opposing him spoke at Grantsville only the day before and he said hard things about the Governor; that he held himself as a gentleman above those about him; had blue blood in his veins, soft white hands; wore fine clothes and when soliciting votes was polite and cringing, but after the election his head was up and his intimacy vanished—all he wanted, declared the opponent, was your votes. This orator left that night, and the next day when the Governor came he had liberal explanations of the charges lodged against him. Too many people poured in to hear the Governor for the size of any hall in Grantsville, so the meeting was held under the shade of the trees in the open. The former life and spirit of the hearers appeared to be strangely lacking at the beginning; not much clapping of hands and stamping of feet when the familiar form of the old charmer stepped upon the stand. The Governor proceeded in a quiet manner with a thoughtfully constructed and skillfully elaborated speech, warming up with the march of his mind until many stirring passages had fallen flat and, seemingly, unaccepted by the large audience. Soon the temper of the assemblage was caught, with the memory of the arraignment made the day before by his rival, and then he rose in the full statute of his powers: with flashing eyes over a face of frowns, he moved to the edge of the platform and vehemently declared: "I believe the day will yet dawn in the history of these people, when they will become so superstitious that they will believe no man, unless it is proven to their satisfaction he was born in the dark of the moon, cradled in a sugar trough and christened in stump water!"

GRANTSVILLE'S GRAND OLD SCHOOL TEACHER

Captain R. R. Sanner Doing As Good Work Now as Half a Century Ago.

Grantsville, Md., has the unique distinction of having the same principal of schools that it had fifty years ago, and despite the fact that this grand old pedagogue is now 74 years of age, he appears to be as vigorous in mind and body and as proficient in imparting knowledge and teaching the young idea how to shoot as he was half a century ago, for during the present winter when youth and age have alike been sufferers from la grippe and other distempers, Capt. Sanner has not missed one hour from school on account of sickness, and all reports indicate that the Grantsville schools have never been under better discipline nor made better progress than during the present school year.

Ross R. Sanner is a native of Somerset County and a brother of Capt. Wm. H. Sanner, of Somerset, former County Superintendent of Schools and ex-Assemblyman and present County Sealer of Weights and Measures, who is two years his senior, W. H. being 79 and R. R. 74 years of age. The two brothers enlisted for the defense of the Union when mere youths and served with distinction throughout the Civil War, both attaining the rank of captain.

Capt. R. R. Sanner served in the same regiment and company as the late Norman B. Ream and carried the latter off the field of battle when seriously wounded. Mr. Reem recovered from his wounds and become one of the richest money magnates of the United States, while Capt. Sanner elected to follow the humble though none the less honorable vocation of a pedagogue and in worldly goods and chattles is accounted a poor man in his old age, though rich in honor and respect shown him by the many pupils who have been under his guidance. The multi-millionaire, Norman B. Ream, remained his steadfast friend until death, but did not remember him in his will.

At the close of the Civil War, Capt. Sanner became the village school-master at Grantsville, Md., and taught there several years. The writer (editor of The Republican) had the privilege of being one of his primary pupils in 1868 and among the readers of The Republican are many who received their first instructions from this grand old pedagogue and who have ever since held him in grateful memory and high esteem.

Besides teaching in the public schools of Allegany county, Md., in his younger years, Capt. Sanner also taught a number of normal terms and for about 15 years was an instructor in the Soldier's Orphans' School at Uniontown. Some years ago he emigrated to the Red River Valley, North Dakota, to engage in wheat farming, but soon returned East and resumed teaching. For several years past, he was principal of schools at Oakland, Md., and last fall after a lapse of half century since first going there to teach, he returned to the pleasant village of Grantsville as principal of the schools of that district.

He and his good wife, a native of Grantsville (nee Fuller) are domiciled in the Casselman Hotel, which was one of the old tavern stands in the halcyon days of the National Pike, and are happy in the sere and yellow period of their lives amidst the scenes of their youth.—Meyersdale Republican.

THE economy pledges made by the Democratic State administration prior to the election, seemingly are not being sustained, By a vote of 93 to 8 the House, after a lengthy discussion, added two men to its payroll, and the wiseacres believe this is evidence of the intention of the body to add to the number of its employes whenever the opportunity offers. It was all about the proofreader, and the debate ended in the House adopting a report of the committee of printed bills providing for the employment of two additional proofreaders at $5 a day each.

Mr. J. W. Keefe, who was until recently employed at Jennings, this county, where he had charge of the boarding house in connection with the mill at that point, has gone to Jennirgston, W. Va., where he is occupying a similar position with the milling company operating at that point.

ARMIES LOCKED AT DOUAUMONT AS FRENCH RUSH AID TO VERDUN; TERRIFIC DRIVE BENDS JOFFRE'S LINE

Position Held by Germans with Difficulty---500,000 in the Battle---Artillery Fire Makes Cote du Talou Untenable for Either Side---British Aid French

RUSSIAN GRAND DUKE ROUTS TURKS NEAR BITLIS

London.—The great battle centering around Verdun, in which half a million men are engaged, is still being fought at some points with the same fury as characterized it at the beginning ten days ago.

Utterly regardless of appalling losses, the German legions under personal command of the Kaiser and Crown Prince continued to assualt the heavily fortified French positions north and east of Verdun. After capturing by storm and sheer weight of numbers Fort de Douaumont, four miles north of Verdun and one of the permanent defenses of the great fortress itself, the Germans were driven northward by a counter attack, which again placed the French in some parts of Fort de Douaumont as well as respossession of considerable lost terrain beyond the fort.

To the west of fort de Douaumont, the Germans toog Champneuville and the Cote de Talou, advancing to Nave. To the east of the fort they stormed the extended fortified works of Haraumont.

In the official statement from Berlin, the German War Office announces that the Germans pressing forward to the west of Douaumont reached Nave, on the southern border of the wooded district northeast of Bras, raking Champneuville and Cote de Talou on the way.

The British line in France was extended an additional several miles in order that General Joffre might concentrate greater forces to meet the German onslaught upon Verdun.

KAISER SPURS ON LEGIONS.

London.—Inspired by the presence of their Emperor and Crown Prince Frederick William, the German troops are engaged in one of the greatest battles of the war on the front centering around the fortress of Verdun. Attack has succeeded attack against the French line after bombardments, incessant and terrific, continuing for several days.

Three hundred thousand picked men the flower of the German army, desperately pushed their great smash at the French fortress, the orders being to take the stronghold at any cost. For miles the battle area is a shambles, the losses being variously estimated at from 60,000 to 120,000 men on both sides. It is the biggest military operation since the Allied offensive of September 25, 1915.

While the Germans have not been able, despite the rain of shells and furious onslaughts by the infantry, to break the French line, nevertheless the French on their right and left wings have been compelled to withdraw their lines, respectively, to the south of Ornes and behind the town of Samogneux, six miles north of the fortress.

The Germans are now in positions from which their guns can easily reach the Verdun forts, and at the same time are within easy range of the French fortress' artillery.

The plan with which Field Marshal von Hindenburg succeeded in Russia is being followed by two hundred thousand men are massed on a narrow front. Advancing in close formation, twelve deep. They are mown down by machine guns, but others take up the advance again, their heavy artillery active all the time.

Germany and Austria are expected to declare war immediately upon Portugal as the result of the seizure by Portuguese naval authorities, in the harbor at Lisbon, of 36 German and Austrian steamships, some of them large vessels, interned in the River Tagus for the war. The seizures were made by Captain Leotte Rego, by official decree. The Portuguese fleet then saluted the captured craft with a naval salvo of 21 guns.

NO NAVY MILKSHIP TO GERMANY.

Daniels Refuses to Send Warships to Alleviate Babies' Woes.

New York.—The request of Dr. Edmund von Mach, executive chairman of the Citizens' Committee for Food Shipments that a United States warship be sent to Europe with a supply of milk for the babies for the babies of Germany and Austria has been denied by Secretary of the Navy Daniels. The secretary said he could send no naval vessel into the war zone without authorization by Congress.

BUTTER ONLY BY CARD, TOO.

Berlin Cuts Supply to Four Ounces to a Person Each Week.

Berlin.—The bread card, which has been a year in operation, will be supplemented henceforth in Greater Berlin by a similar regulation with respect to the butter supply. The executive authorities have decided to limit the sale of butter to a quarter of a pound for each person weekly, to be obtained on presentation of the bread card. Other cities are also effected.

Paris.—For the time being at least the great German offensive aimed at Verdun seems to be at a standstill.

Disregarding unfavorable weather conditions amid a heavy snowstorm, the Germans centered their offensive on the ridge of hills to the east of Champ Neuville, but although large numbers of effectives were used and the assault was unprecedented in violence no further gain was made.

General Joffre, commander of the French, arrived at Verdun to personally direct the defense of the fortress. Across the battle front the Kaiser, surrounded by his staff officers, and the Crown Prince are planning the blows being struck in the greatest German offensive since the defeat at the Marne.

Paris admits that the French lines were bent back several miles, and concedes the evacuation of three villages, but asserts the retirement was made with all lines unbroken, in good order, to avoid useless waste of human life. The Germans, attacking in massed formation, lost whole regiments, it was stated.

Six villages and 10,000 French prisoners have been captured in the German smash at Verdun, the Berlin War Office declared officially.

Men returning from the front give descriptions of terrible slaughter. One surgeon bringing back a trainload of wounded, said that he watched one German brigade advance against the French lines in close formation. When it came within range of the French batteries the entire brigade was mowed down.

The German losses during the first five days of the battle around Verdun are authoritatively estimated at 150,000.

The German offensive is recognized now as probably only the beginning of a determined effort to take the fortress, formerly the key to the French front, and compares in violence and losses to the battle of the Yser.

A report has been received here that the Turks have been heavily defeated by the Russians under Grand Duke Nicholas near Bitlis.

CROWN PRINCE LEADS ATTACK.

London.—The German army under Crown Prince Frederick William, having fought its way to within eight miles of the fortress of Verdun, was reported to be attempting to smash the French lines on a front of twenty-five miles, with the capture of the citadel in view.

By a series of heavy attacks the Germans penetrated the French positions north of Verdun two miles, on a front of ten miles.

Then the battle line was extended and the fighting increased rapidly in intensity until the conflict became the fiercest since the British lines were broken at Ypres last May.

The battle area reached from Malancourt on the west to Etain on the east, with Verdun in the centre only a few miles southward.

The French War Office admits an advance by the Germans, but says the gains were made at a great cost in killed and wounded.

The German preparations for the great offensive covered a period of three weeks, and the bombardment of the French positions with thousands of shells had been continuous. The French were not taken unawares, and had massed all their available guns to meet the onslaught.

PITH OF THE WAR NEWS

In a daring raid southeast of Friedrichstadt the Russians have captured several German posts, killing all the defenders with their bayonets and scoring an important success.

In the Caucasus region, in snow that is breast deep, the Russians continue their vigorous pursuit of the Turks, who are throwing away their guns in their flight.

Evacuation of Durazzo, the Albanian port, by the Italians, was officially confirmed from Rome. The Austrians hotly attacked the retreating brigade, which embarked under difficulties owing to a heavy sea.

The Albanian army under Essed Pasha and the Italian forces at Durazzo will not offer resistance to the Austrians and Bulgarians approaching that port.

British forces in Mesopotamia made an attack on the Turkish position at Felahie, below Kut-el-Amara, but were driven back with heavy losses.

The beginning of a French counter-offensive is indicated in the last Paris communique.

Telegrams from Russia report a violent resumption of offensive by the Russian army in Galicia and Poland under command of the Czar.

BERLIN UPHOLDS NEW U-BOAT WAR

Determined to Wage a Contest Against Britain to Decision

HOPEFUL OF SETTLEMENT

Berlin Government Willing, However, to Meet United States in Every Way Practical to Assure Protection of Citizens.

Berlin.—"Germany will stand by her guns in the announced submarine war against England. Let that be clearly understood. Germany will conduct a legal war with a legal naval arm of warfare, recognized as being a legal naval arm even by your Mr. Lansing. Let that also be clearly understood," said a German official to a correspondent of an American newspaper.

"The impression you say obtains in America that Germany is seeking to force the United States into a war is too ridiculous to call for an answer. We haven't reached that pinnacle of madness.

"Germany wants to and is going to prosecute a war against England to a decision in which our U-boats, a recognized legal arm, will be one of our means to that end.

"We ask nothing from the United States. We merely desire and hope that Americans will exercise that care of their own safety that they do in ordinary, normal, peaceful times—that is, that they travel by safer instead of more dangerous means, by neutral or American boats. In other words, to apply your own great maxim, 'safety first.'"

FAVOR ARMY OF 175,000.

Senate Military Committee Wants Bigger Force Than House.

Washington.—Both the Senate and House Military Committees are struggling with details of the army part of the preparedness program. The Senate Committee virtually completed its preliminary review of the measure to be drafted for the regular army, agreement being reached upon its main feature.

The bill will provide for a peace strength standing army of 175,000 men as against 135,000 proposed by the House bill under consideration. The war strength will be fixed at 225,000. A seven-year enlistment, three with the colors and four in the reserve, will be expected to provide the men to fill up the regiments for war service. Under this plan the soldier could be discharged into the reserve at the end of a year if found efficient and can optionally go into the reserve at the end of two years if he desires.

The Senate bill follows closely the plan of 1912 devised by the Army War College after an exhaustive study. The committee will begin at once devising its own plan for federalizing the National Guard.

Representative McKellar of Tennessee submitted to the House a favorable report on his bill to establish and maintain military training schools in the various states.

O. H. S. NOTES.

News From The Oakland Temple Of Learning.

On Tuesday of last week the Yorkist and Lancastrian Literary Societies combined in giving a very suitable programmes in commeration of Lincoln and Washington.

The programme in honor of Lincoln was held in the forenoon. In addition to the many selections rendered by the students, Rev. Arthur D. Appleton gave an instructive address on "Lincoln." Mrs. Gordon Mealy sang a very beautiful vocal selection in a most pleasing manner.

The programme in honor of Washington was held in the afternoon. In addition to the many appropriate selections given by the students, Rev. O. A. Bremer gave an interesting address on the "Character of Washington." Miss Bess Hinebaugh sang a very pretty vocal selection. Mr. Glenn Martin, accompanied by Mr. Dwight Townshend on the piano, incited much applause by some excellent violin music. Supt. F. E. Rathbun made a few remarks before the programme was completed.

Both programmes were greatly enjoyed by students and the visiting friends of the school.

Prentiss Porter, a commercial student, has withdrawn from school for the balance of the school year.

Mr. John W. Chambers, representative of the Ridath Lyceum Bureau, visited us on Monday and gave us some interesting remarks on the study of Lyceum work. He also incited much laughter and applause by his excellent, humorous reading. We sincerely hope a Lyceum course will be established here next year.

BRITISH LINER BLOWN UP

Maloja Hits Mine in Strait of Dover and Quickly Sinks

WOMEN AND CHILDREN DIE

Steamer Empress of Fort William, Attempting Rescues, Also Goes to Bottom — Thousands on Shore Witness Disasters.

London.—The Peninsular and Oriental line steamship Maloja, bound from Tilbury to Bombay with mails and 319 passengers and crew, struck a mine in the Strait of Dover at 10:30 o'clock a. m., and sank two miles off Dover. The dead are estimated at 147, of whom 117 are Lascars, members of the crew.

While attempting to rescue the survivors who dotted the water around the sinking Maloja the steamship Empress of Fort William, a 2,101-ton vessel, struck another mine and sank in less than half an hour. One man of her crew was killed.

The bodies of eighteen men, eleven women and four children were washed ashore or picked up in the waters near the spot where the Maloja went down. Surviving officers and passengers of the ship declare many women and children were blown to pieces when the explosion of the mine blew in the side of the second saloon and shook the ship from end to end. Among the dead is Mrs. McLeod, the wife of General McLeod of the British Army. Her body has been washed ashore.

The Maloja was sunk in what was supposed to have been the only absolutely safe passage in the waters surrounding the coast of England. She came in contact with the mine just after she had passed the Admiralty Pier, opposite Shakespeare Cliff, and was almost exactly in the centre of the path from Dover to the Continent through which British ships have been transported to the battlefields of France and Flanders.

Thousands of the people of Dover witnessed the rescue work from shore. A considerable number actually witnessed the blowing up of the ship, while almost the entire population reached the waterfront before the vessel went down.

Just before the Maloja sank those watching from the shore had another thrill when the Empress of Fort William sank under exactly similar conditions.

WILSON APPEALS TO COUNTRY.

To Warn Americans Off Armed Ships Would Be Humiliation.

Washington.—President Wilson has uttered a call to the country to support him against the effort that is being made in Congress to abridge the rights of Americans to travel the high seas.

The President declares that such a yielding as is now proposed by the leaders of the revolt in Congress will amount to conceding "the impotency" of this nation, and of surrendering the independent position of the United States among the governments of the world.

President Wilson set forth these remarkably strong sentiments in a letter to Senator Stone, chairman of the Senate foreign relations committee, which was made public.

This letter breathes a deep determination on the part of the President to stand unalterably for every right now possessed by an American citizen, and in its firmness surpasses even the most exaggerated accounts of the President's attitude as outlined by him to leaders of Congress at the recent White House reception.

At the same time the letter shows that the President is still hopeful of obtaining an amicable settlement of the submarine controversy, and that he is confident of his ability to keep the country out of the war.

The President declared that for the United States to yield the abridgment of the right of its citizens as regards armed merchantmen would be a "humiliation and would amount to an acquiescence in the violation of the rights of all mankind."

The President takes occasion in this letter to express for the first time his confidence in the good faith and fidelity of the German government in regard to the promises already made.

Washington's Birthday Observed.

The Bethlehem and Combination schools combined to observe Washington's birthday. The Combination pupils, with their teacher, Miss Stella Paugh, met at their school house at 8:30 and marched to the Bethlehem school, a distance of about two and a half miles, arriving there at 10 o'clock.

In the morning the regular classes were heard by the Bethlehem teacher, Mrs. Alma Clary, the scholars of both schools taking part.

At 11:30 school was dismissed and the pupils, fifty in number, marched to a saw mill near by. It was a very interesting lesson to all teachers and pupils, to see the mill in motion as only two or three of the number had ever seen a saw mill running. When the mill shut down at 12 o'clock they marched back to the school house and partook of a quick lunch and played various games 'till 1:30 when they assembled in the school house with a number of patrons of the school where an appropriate program was rendered, both schools participating in the exercises. The program consisted of patriotic songs, recitations, exercises by small pupils, reading, memory gems and questions and answers.

The afternoon was profitably spent and greatly enjoyed by all who were present.

Experiments Prove Use Of Fertilizers In The Spring Most Profitable.

NICKOLAS SCHMITZ,
Maryland Agricultural College
Extension Service.

The production of the average timothy meadow in Maryland is very far below what it can be made to yield profitably in both quality and yield per acre. The low yields and poor quality are not due so much to poor germination and poor stand in the spring after seeding as to the crowding out of the timothy by weeds. Where weeds are the determining factor the remedy is sowing the timothy, or timothy and clover, alone in the early fall, not with a grain crop, but after the grain crop has been harvested and a fine, firm seedbed prepared.

Where the stand of timothy is fair the yield can be profitably increased by the use of commercial fertilizers. Extensive tests at the Maryland Experiment Station with various kinds and combinations of fertilizers have shown beyond question that the best fertilizer for timothy is nitrate of soda or a combination of nitrate of soda and acid rock. The proper amount to apply depends of course upon the fertility of the soil, but ordinarily nitrate of soda should be applied at the rate of from 150 to 250 pounds per acre, and if a combination of acid rock and nitrate of soda is used, equal parts, the mixture should be applied at the rate of 200 to 450 pounds per acre. Such an application under ordinary conditions may be expected to give an increase in yield of from 1 to 1½ tons per acre.

The time of applying the fertilizer is very important. It should be applied as soon as the grass begins to green, which is usually the latter part of March or the first of April. The early application of the fertilizer is absolutely necessary for maximum returns, for the fertilizer can not be made use of by the plant until it has been dissolved and carried down into the soil. The early application makes use of the early rains.

Many farmers have been disappointed when using nitrate of soda because they have applied it too late or at a time when there was not sufficient moisture to dissolve it, so that the timothy would get full use of what was applied before maturing.

WHY NOT TRUE PREPAREDNESS IN RURAL EDUCATION?

"Preparedness" is the present cry. Well, genuine education is true preparation. Teach the youths how to become efficient and economical in their life work and the problem is readily solved.

Make the Corn Clubs, the Home making Clubs, the Poultry competitions, the Cooking and Sewing contests and all such activities a part of the school system. Let the work on the farm and in the home become a part of the school study. Let the rural school not only teach farm accounting, but have the pupils keep the accounts of their farms and homes.

Seed testing, soil examination, stock judging and selecting, garden planting, and working, household management and routine, canning fruit and vegetables, milk management, egg testing, incubating, brooding, balancing rations and feeding the rations, recording progress, and studying results, learning to reason on homely subjects and to solve personal problems, learning to think and to work efficiently—these are some of the items of real rural education—is this narrow educating? No! It is as broad as the life and the work of the world. Are we leaving out culture? No! The highest and best culture comes through studying intelligently the country, the life about us, nature, human nature, and the work of the world—this we cannot do without knowing something of the thoughts of our poets, our philosophers, our historians, and our writers as well as our scientists and our teachers of practical things. We should have all of the best that we have now, but so applied as to make the life we live brighter and more satisfying to our children. Educate to this end!

This flower will grow in any good garden soil that is well drained, provided it is in a sunny and open location. To secure early flowers and best results, spring sowing is generally used. In order to have the plants strong, they should be sown early. They should be sown just as soon as the ground can be worked. To determine when the ground is dry enough to work, take up some of the soil and form it into a ball with the hand. If it falls apart, the ground is dry enough to work. Some start the plants in paper pots or thumb pots in the hot bed, but especially good results are obtained by sowing outdoors.

Prepare the soil well by spading deeply. Adding well rotted manure will be a great benefit. Then make a shallow trench about 4 inches deep, in the bottom of this, plant the seed two inches apart. Where one uses poultry netting or brush, to serve as trellis, two rows may be sown 6 to 8 inches apart.

THE "FOUR-NINETY" has the following novel and superior features not found in any other car built:

(1) Shock-absorbing duplex front springs; (2) Self-lubricating clutch collar; (3) Hub construction with triple-size bearings, preventing "wabble" of wheels and wear on tires; (4) Compound spur steering gear attached to body—the simplest and safest ever invented; (5) Unit power plant carrying transmission on open brackets, which gives accessibility to clutch and allows removal of all transmission, if necessary, in twenty minutes. (Patents granted or applied for on the above.)

BESIDES THESE EXCLUSIVE FEATURES, THE "FOUR-NINETY" HAS

(1) Steamline front; (2) Crown fenders; (3) Cellular radiator; (4) Body with flush sides and concealed hinges; (5) Three-speed transmission; (6) Three-quarter floating axle; (7) The world-famous Zenith carburetor.

OTHER THINGS WORTH KNOWING

THE "FOUR-NINETY" does not have a single hinged joint to squeak or a spring shackle to rattle—and you will find only six grease cups on the entire car.

INCREASED HAY YIELDS FROM TOP DRESSING

Experiments Prove Use Of Fertilizers In The Spring Most Profitable.

NICKOLAS SCHMITZ,
Maryland Agricultural College
Extension Service.

The production of the average timothy meadow in Maryland is very far below what it can be made to yield profitably in both quality and yield per acre. The low yields and poor quality are not due so much to poor germination and poor stand in the spring after seeding as to the crowding out of the timothy by weeds. Where weeds are the determining factor the remedy is sowing the timothy, or timothy and clover, alone in the early fall, not with a grain crop, but after the grain crop has been harvested and a fine, firm seedbed prepared.

Where the stand of timothy is fair the yield can be profitably increased by the use of commercial fertilizers. Extensive tests at the Maryland Experiment Station with various kinds and combinations of fertilizers have shown beyond question that the best fertilizer for timothy is nitrate of soda or a combination of nitrate of soda and acid rock. The proper amount to apply depends of course upon the fertility of the soil, but ordinarily nitrate of soda should be applied at the rate of from 150 to 250 pounds per acre, and if a combination of acid rock and nitrate of soda is used, equal parts, the mixture should be applied at the rate of 200 to 450 pounds per acre. THE REPUBLICAN.

VOLUME 41. OAKLAND, MARYLAND THURSDAY, MARCH 9, 1916. NUMBER 2

THE WEEK'S DOINGS AT THE STATE CAPITAL

Status of Local Legislation for Garrett County—Two Bills Killed.

STATE HOUSE, ANNAPOLIS, MARCH 8.—Evidently the Democratic leaders are about to attempt to appropriate Republican reform measures to carry out some of their campaign promises to the people, and which the Republican leader in the Senate has forced them to "make good." Early in the session Senator Zihlman, of Allegany county, introduced a Bill amending the State Election Laws, cutting out all the loopholes that have permitted the Democratic "strategists" to perpetrate "trick" ballots to confuse the voters in certain counties—the remnant of the notorious "Wilson Ballot Law," which the Democratic party enacted at Gov. John Walter Smith's extraordinary session f the Legislature of 1901, immediately ollowing the Republican administration of the late Gov. Lowndes, and which became so disgusting to the better element of the Democratic party themselves that public sentiment compelled them to modify each succeeding Legislature until these practices are continued in only a few sections of the State. The demands for a uniform ballot law became so strong that the Democratic party, along with other numerous promises to be good in the last campaign, pledged themselves in the State platform to amend the refarious "trick" ballot law and give the people a ballot which voters of higher intelligence, at least, could mark properly and with some assurance of having it counted and not thrown out. The Republican party has consistently stood for a clean ballot and last year as theretofore, represented their platform promise for such a law. And one of the very first things Senator Zihlman did, as the leader of his party in the Senate, was to introduced his Bill to amend the unpopular Election Laws and provide for a simple and uniform ballot for every county in the State and in Baltimore city.

DEMOCRATS FORCED TO ACT.

That bill has been resting in the files of the Senate Committee on Elections ever since, and the Democratic majority neither offered to do anything themselves nor have they allowed the Republican made measure to make any progress. But Senator Zihlman determined that his Bill should not be "smothered" if it was to be killed he wanted the execution to take place in the open where the public might see and know how, and by whom, the killing was done. So he demanded a hearing on his Bill last week, and he appeared before the Elections Committee and laid down a few principles in "keeping faith with the people" which must have spurred the majority party into action; because it was given out on Friday last, just before the week-end adjournment, that the "Zihlman Elections Bill" would be reported out this week. Whether the report is to be favorable or unfavorable, the Chairman of the Elections Committee would not say, and will not now so much as give an intimation. In the light of subsequent vents, however the report of the Committee may be forecast with reasonable accuracy.

WILL INTRODUCE ONE IN THE HOUSE NOW.

Simultaneously with the announcement that the Senate Elections Committee will report the "Zihlman Bill" in a few days, came the rumor that Delegate Bryant, of Baltimore county, the Majority Floor Leader at that, will introduce "a Uniform Ballot Bill" in the House. Because of his position as the Democratic "whip" in the House, therefore, it is a safe bet that the Democratic organization leaders have decided that they cannot afford to let the Republicans walk off with the credit for this very popular reform measure, and in consequence they will introduce the same thing themselves. My information is that the Bryant Bill, which is already prepared, is a duplicate of the "Zihlman Bill." When asked concerning his Bill yesterday, Mr. Bryant told THE REPUBLICAN'S Annapolis correspondent that he has the Bill in his desk and may introduce it at this afternoon session of the House. It is quite evident, in these circumstances, that the plan is to have the Senate Elections Committee report the "Zihlman Bill" unfavorably, and then, having killed it, get behind the Bryant House Bill and railroad it through. It will be the "Zilhman Bill" in substance, but the Democratic party will appropriate the credit for giving a Uniform Ballot Law to the people of the State.

SENATOR ZIHLMAN WILL FIGHT.

And they will probably "get away with it;" but not without a bruising fight, if anyone should ask you. If the Senate Elections Committee reports the "Zihlman Bill" unfavorably, the Republican Floor Leader will move to have the Bill substituted for the unfavorable report, and upon that issue he will warm things up in the Senate to a degree not attained thus far in this session in the "calm, dignified and deliberative body." And there are few Democratic Senators there who are conservative and liberal enough to support Senator Zihlman's position if they see fit, as they have done more than once during the past sixty-five days, and with the Republican Senators solidly behind him there is a possibility, whatever the probability may be, that the plans of the Democratic bosses may be upset. But if the expected should happen, and the "Zihlman Bill" be killed and the "Bryant Bill be passed, the people of the State will have a thorough understanding of the situation when the smoke of the battle clears away. One thing all will be thankful for anyway will be that Maryland will have a Uniform Ballot Law at last.

CAPT. HAYDEN REIMBURSED.

Taking advantage of Capt. James A. Hayden's absence from Friday morning's session of the House, he having taken an early train for home to spend the week-end recess with his family in Garrett county, Delegate Bryant, Majority Floor Leader, offered an order to pay the Garrett county Delegate $25 to reimburse him for medical attendance following the accident when he slipped on the icy steps on the State House grounds early in January, sustaining injuries which confined him to his room in the Maryland Hotel for more than a week. Mr. Bryant explained how the accident occurred, said he felt that it was due to some negligence on the part of the State House employees, and moved the immediate adoption of the order. The motion was seconded by Minority Floor Leader Metzeroot, and the order was passed by a unanimous roll-call. Capt. Hayden had the distinguished honor of administering the oath of office upon Speaker Laird assuming his duties, and as the nestor of the House has been accorded uniform courtesy and respect by his colleagues in the lower branch of the Assembly on both sides of the chamber, by all of whom he is held in high personal regard.

Capt. Hayden returned from his home Monday night and was in his seat to answer roll-call when that body reconvened.

LOCH LYNN TWIN BILLS ADVANCED.

Delegate Hayden's Loch Lynn Twin Bills—one providing for a bond issue of $1,500 for sewers and other improvements; the other changing the date of the town election in order to permit of the bond issue being submitted to the voters in accordance with the referendum clause in the first bill, were Monday night favorably reported by the Garrett Delegation, to whom they had been referred, and were ordered to the third reading file. They will probably pass at today's session, and will go at once to the Senate.

NEW BILLS FOR GARRETT COUNTY.

Delegate Shartzer, of Garrett county, yesterday introduced two new bills. One is "An Act repealing Chapter 841 of the Acts of 1914, creating the State Tax Commission, insofar as the same relates to Garrett county. Mr. Shartzer early in the session introduced a bill legislating the State Tax Commission out of office, but the Judiciary Committee reported the bill unfavorably and the unfavorable report was adopted, killing the bill. Mr. Shartzer's bill introduced yesterday makes the law he tried to repeal inoperative in Garrett county and gives the State Tax Commission no jurisdiction whatever in that county.

His other bill appropriates $4,000 for two years, payable in quarterly installments of $500, "for the maintenance and support of a free bed in the Home Sanitorium located in the town of Oakland, Garrett county."

TWO OF SHARTZER'S BILLS KILLED.

Delegate Shartzer's bill repealing the Dog Tax Law for Garrett County, and another repealing the law passed in 1914 prohibiting ministers from feeing or tipping hack drivers, hotel porters, trainmen, etc., for bringing or sending to them couples to be married, were unfavorably reported in the Senate, and the unfavorable report was adopted killing the bills.

WILL REPORT BILLS UNFAVORABLY.

The Ways and Means Committee in the House will report unfavorably the bills appropriating $10,000 each for flood protection walls at Kitzmiller and another point in Garrett county, and providing for a commission at each place to see that the work was properly done.

Six new bills were introduced by the Garrett County Delegation today as follows:

By Delegate Hayden—Empowering the Community of Mt. Lake Park, Garrett County, to collect community taxes in the same manner as county and State taxes are collected.

By Delegate Fox—Requiring the B. & O. R. R. Co., to provide a ticket agent at Bloomington, Garrett County, and to stop the local freight train, known as the "way train," East and West, each day, to receive and transport freight to and from Bloomington.

Also for the better protection of fish in all the streams in Garrett County stocked by the State Fish Commission, and exempting the Youghiogheny river.

By Delegate Shartzer—Requiring the County Commissioners of Garrett County to have the necessary work done on the roads in that county before July 1st of each year.

Also, creating an auditor, to be appointed by the Governor, who shall audit the books of the County Treasurer, the Sheriff, the School Commissioners, County Commissioners and Board of Election Supervisors of Garrett County.

Also, providing for the awarding of the contract for public printing by the County Commissioners and Election Supervisors of Garrett County by competitive bids to the lowest bidder.

This bill was introduced by Mr. Shartzer in 1914, and it was killed by an unfavorable report by the committee.

Authorship of "Stonewall Jackson's Way."

Some years ago there was a good deal of controversy over the authorship of the famous war poem, "Stonewall Jackson's Way," but this was definitely settled later. It is somewhat surprising, that a Baltimore clergyman should recently have quoted this stirring war-time song as of unknown authorship.

The poem was written by Dr. John Williamson Palmer, who was born in Baltimore in 1825, was educated in Baltimore and studied medicine under Dr. Dunbar, of Baltimore. Dr. Palmer was for some time a physician in the British East Indian service and was at San Francisco during the gold fever. During the Civil War he was army correspondent for Southern papers. After the war he went to Baltimore and lived there for a short time, then he went to New York, devoting his time to literary work, writing a number of poems and contributing to magazines of the day. Later he returned to Baltimore and died there in 1906.

"In September, 1862, I found myself at the Glades Hotel, Oakland, Md. This mountain hostelry had long enjoyed a peculiar celebrity, dating from a time before the war, when its register was rich in names of tourists more or less distinguished, who came thither led by love of wild scenery or wilder sport. The house was as famous for a cosmopolitan company of guests as for versatility of experience and accomplishment and various charm of entertainment had not their like in any caravansary between the two oceans.

"Early on the 16th there was a roar of guns in the air and we knew that a great battle was on, yet carriages and saddle horses were waiting to take us all to an Arcadian picnic in the woods above the Cheat river. The hearts of the others were beating, but they went. I alone made excuse and remained in the deserted house, while the guns roared on, and my heart was full of the mystery of apprehension and longing. I knew that Stonewall was in it, whatever it might be; it was his way—'Stonewall Jackson's Way.' I had twice put that phrase in my war letters and other correspondents, finding it handy, had quoted it in theirs.

"I paced the piazza and whistled a song of Oregon lumbermen and loggers that I had learned from a California adventurer in Honolulu. The two thoughts were coupled and welded into one to make a song and as the words gathered to the call of the tune I wrote the ballad, 'Stonewall Jackson's Way,' with the roar of those guns in my ears. On the morrow I added the last stanza and the completed lines were first read by that boats, took a carriage at Hancock winsome rebel Miss Mary Dailey.

"On the 17th the wires brought us the story from Cumberland; Lee had joined battle with McClellan at Antietam Creek. Stonewall Jackson had captured Harper's Ferry on the 15th with its garrison of 12,000. Then he had started by one of those swaggering forced marches, which were his 'way,' to join Lee at Sharpsburg, where he came up in time to take command of the left wing for the bloody doings of the 17th.

"On one of the first days of October six gentlemen, including myself, and two ladies took leave of Oakland, went by train to a point opposite Hancock, crossed the Potomac there in small drove through Fairview to Hagerstown and thence south to Antietam creek and Sharpsburg. On the battlefield we traversed the 'Bloody Lane' and the ground that death had plowed when McClellan had hurled upon Stonewall's thin lines the legions of Hooker, Sumner and Mansfield. Then we took to the carriage again, to make our way to the railroad.

"As we labored over the stony road, torn in desperate ruts by the artillery and the baggage trains, the men in our party climbed out and in again and again to relieve the horses, and in one of these struggles I lost my copy of the song. I had thrust it carelessly into the breast pocket of my coat, where it protuded and finally worked out somewhere on the road. So the original draft of 'Stonewall Jackson's Way' was dropped in the midst of the graveyard he had helped to make, and was probably found by those who were prepared to appreciate its significance.

"In Baltimore I told the story of the song to my father, and, at his request, made immediately another copy of it. This was shown cautiously to certain members of the Maryland Club, and a trusty printer was found who struck off a dozen slips of it, principally for private distribution. That first printed copy of the song was headed "Found on a Rebel Sergeant of the Old Stonewall Brigade. Taken at Winchester.' The fabuluos legend was for the misleading of the Federal Provost Marshal, as were also the address and date: 'Martinsburg, September 15, 1862.' "

The suppression of the poem in the North, its entry into the South by way of the "underground railway," and its popularity there, together with the details of his own work and imprisonment in the South during these events, complete Dr. Palmer's interesting story of the birth and fortunes of the song, and suffice to dispose of any doubt as to its authorship.

"Stonewall Jackson's Way."

Come, stack arms, men! Pile on the rails;
Stir up the camp-fire bright;
No matter if the canteen fails,
We'll make a roaring night.
Here Shenandoah brawls along,
Here burly Blue Ridge echoes strong,
To swell the brigade's rousing song,
Of "Stonewall Jackson's way."

We see him now—the old slouch hat
Cocked o'er his eye askew—
The shrewd dry smile—the speech so pat.
So calm, so blunt, so true.
The "Blue Light Elder" knows 'em well:
Says he, "That's Banks; he's fond of shell!
Lord save his soul! we'll give him"—well
That's "Stonewall Jackson's way."

Silence! Ground arms! Kneel all! Caps off!
Old "Blue Light's" going to pray.
Strangle the fool that dares to scoff!
Attention! it's his way!
Appealing from his native sod
In forma pauperis to God,
"Lay bare thine arm! Stretch forth thy rod.
Amen!" That's Stonewall's way.

He's in the saddle now: Fall in!
Steady! The whole brigade!
Hill's at the ford, cut off; we'll win
His way out, ball and blade.
What matter if our shoes are worn?
What matter if our feet are torn?
Quick step! we're with him before dawn:
That's Stonewall Jackson's way!

The sun's bright lances rout the mists
Of morning—and, by George!
Here's Longstreet, struggling in the list,
Hemmed in an ugly gorge.
Pope and his Yankees, whipped before:
"Bayonets and grape!" hear Stonewall roar;
"Charge, Stuart! Pay off Ashby's score,
In Stonewall Jackson's way!

Ah, maiden! wait, and watch, and yearn,
For news of Stonewall's band!
Ah, Widow! read—with eyes that burn,
That ring upon thy hand!
Ah, wife! sew on, pray on, hope on;
Thy life shall not be all forlorn.
The foe had better ne'er been born,
That gets in Stonewall's way.

HENRY G. DAVIS FIRST MAN TO PROPOSE RUNNING TRAINS AT NIGHT

Human Interest Story of Great West Virginian Who is Alert as Ever At Ninety Three Years.

Nearly every reviewer of the biography of Lord Strathcona has laid most stress upon what that statesman accomplished after he had passed the customary age limit of activity. A wonder quite as great in its way is the daily spectacle of Henry Gassaway Davis, once Democratic candidate for Vice-President, mounting his horse for a spin over the country roads. The animal is sixteen and one-half hands high, bred of the best Kentucky stock, with all that means in spirit, in strength and self-will. Any of Mr. Davis's neighbors who has passed fifty-five, and not a few who are younger, would have to climb into the saddle—if they ventured to ride such a horse at all; but he, though well on the way to ninety three lifts his whole weight on his left leg, and swings his right into place with almost the agility of a college athlete.

Ninety-three next birthday, yet with all the faculties and most of the powers of his prime still in good working order! And this in spite of a youth devoted to the hard labor and constant exposure of an old-time railway brakeman, a middle manhood spent with nose to grindstone while transforming a rough mountain wilderness into a human beehive, and an advanced age passed largely in finishing projects set going long before. The secret of his preservation undoubtedly lies in his abstention from excess. On his physical side he has lived in moderation with an abundance of open-air exercise; and he has never allowed his mental operations to be thrown out of balance by excitement, either undue exhilaration or undue disappointment.

Comparing the life of this nonogenarian with that of a Strathcona or a Fabre, it seems insignificant, for Mr. Davis is neither a statesman nor a scientist. Nevertheless, his services to mankind have been by no means inconsiderable. They began while he was still in the railway business, for he is credited with having been the first man to propose running trains at night. Till then they had been laid over after dusk, wherever they might be, to await the dawn. He broached his views to the president of the Baltimore & Ohio system, and received permission to experiment with a train which should leave Cumberland for Baltimore at a certain hour one evening and take its chances of ever reaching its destination. The local fame he achieved by the success of this daredevil expedition enabled him to throw up his employment by the railway and settle down in West Virginia as a coaldealer. Here he bought a small mining property for himself and opened a savings bank for the convenience of the people drawn into the Piedmont district by the new industry. Every dollar he earned he put into coal lands till he had accumulated an acreage which made him practically a dictator in the trade of the region.

Before leaving the railway he had risen by gradual promotion to a conductorship and it chanced that a frequent traveler over his line was Henry Clay, who used to talk to him about national politics. So, when his neighbors decided to send him to the State Legislature and the Legislature in its turn elected him United States Senator, he was equipped with a useful knowledge of the issues in dispute between the parties. But, with all his intelligence, he has always lacked the gift of expressing himself on his feet. Whatever he has had time to write, he could put into direct and logical form; as soon, however, as he has attempted to make an extemporaneous speech, he has seemed to lose his facility.

One funny experience in the Senate illustrates the force of early association. The chamber was in the midst of a prolonged and dreary debate, and Davis, tired out with night sessions, fell into a doze. Suddenly Mr. Thurman, of Ohio, having made copious drafts on the Senate snuff-box, blew into his big bandanna handkerchief two short, quick toots. Instantly Davis was on his feet, with both hands grasping the sides of his desk, and struggling for dearlife to "down brakes" in response to the signal he had learned to obey automatically in his youth.

Stephen B. Elkins, his son-in-law, was for years obliged, as a Republican party leader, to oppose him in political campaigns. Davis, however, with the ever-vigilant foresight which distinguished him in business had taken pains to train his grandchildren in his own partisan faith; and it used to delight the neighbors when the little Elkins boys organized their playmates into torch-light processions, and paraded on summer nights past their father's house, hurrahing lustily for the Democratic candidates.

Family ties are very strong with Mr. Davis and he passed his winters in Washington with Mrs. Elkins and her household. He is there now and probably the Democratic campaign managers are already figuring on the size of his contributions for 1916. Will their expectations fare as Tom Taggart's did once when he came on a begging errand to the old gentleman, then far beyond the "alloted age"? Taggart began by complimenting him on his excellent health and strength.

"Oh, yes," assented Davis. "I'm doing pretty well for a man whom the almanac places at eighty-one."

"At eighty-one!" exclaimed Taggart, with a dramatic outburst of astonishment. "Why, Mr. Davis, you can't make me believe you are more than forty-five."

"Well," said Davis dryly, "let's come to business. How much do you want?"

"The other big men in the party," replied Taggart, "realizing that this is a mighty important fight, are assessing themselves at the rate or two thousand dollars for every year they have lived. That would let you in for, say, one hundred and sixty-two——"

"Hold on!" interrupted the patriarch. "Twice forty-five is only ninety. Stick to your own figures, Mr. Taggart—stick to your own figures!"

THE PEOPLE'S FORUM.

Snares.

The most intimate companions you can have are your thoughts. You can't get away from them. They are with you at all times and everywhere.

It has been said one cannot get away from a book. In a sense this is true. The impressions it makes are lasting and memory brings back the unconscious impressions, be they good or evil. The authors who from greed of gain, for love of sensation, or from the vicious desire of perverting taste, or corrupting the mind, or leading the young astray, deliberately publish works developed from their vitiated imaginations and depraved hearts have a fearful responsibility to answer for. They are on a level with the basest criminal, and deserve to be expelled from decent society. They are proper candidates for the pit and are the chosen instruments of the enemy of souls and the race.

He uses them as the willing instruments of setting his snares to allure the souls of men, and none are more in danger of being taken in his pit falls than the unguarded and unsuspecting youth. The country boy knows the variety of snares used to catch his game.

They differ in nature, form and manner of setting. He baits his snare with an apple when he is after the rabbit. He places the steel trap with its saw teeth jaws and covers it with loose earth to catch the fox. A piece of roast meat attached to the dead fall is very tempting for the rat. The devil has many devices to ensnare the youth and destroy their souls. Some of his plans are apparently harmless, some are demoralizing in the extreme and some crush soul and body.

One of his snares is set in many households. You may see it sometimes on the parlor table, by the big family bible. By the way it is seldom removed for use. It is closed from one year's end to the other. You may see it in the library in the hands of children. The cook becomes infatuated with it and neglects her duty; the housewife is engrossed with it; the child wastes precious hours and weeps over it until the eyes are red and swollen. The taste is perverted and the desire for study is lost. Such is the tendency and influence of light trashy literature, love stories and cheap fiction which captivates the fancy and perverts the imagination, thereby destroying the future man or woman.

These exaggerations of the unreal have nothing ennobling or purifying in them, but they weaken the intellect, warp the judgment, create false notions of truth and give incorrect ideas of life.

They convert a student into a senseless castle builder and make day dreamers of youth. They prevent the concentration of the mind on any useful subject, but at home, in school, at work, in church the mind revels in the unsubstantial and unreal, while despising what is of real importance he is captivated by pictures and scenes that cannot be realized. He has his ideals which cannot be attained. He cannot accomplish his object, for on all hands the realities of life disappoint him. His way is strewn with wrecks of fondly cherished hopes. He is disgusted, yet hungers for food that cannot fail to make a lot of mere sentimentalists. For the pure, good and noble they will be like the chimney bats instead of the singing skylarks.

History is too inspired for them, poetry will be odious, and science will be as Greek. The devil knows the best time to capture the mind, so he lays his snares at the threshold of life and baits them so adroitly and conceals them so skillfuly, that unless guided by the wisdom and counsel of wise and judicious parents or friends they will be taken.

Gradually he supplants the real with the fictitious and habits of study are destroyed by mental dissipation. I have heard parents wonder why the child's mind did not go out after nobler things and lament that they were listless and careless and had so little taste for study while they would devour story books but they little thought that the interesting book was the secret of the trouble. Lofty ambitions and noble aspirations are supplemented by vain imaginings, while the mind is filled with evil surroundings. The mind will not be inactive but the evil one is swaving his scepter and establishing his power by means of sensational books and serial story papers that flood the land. This common and popular snare of Satan has the sanction of fashion hence the tired mother finds it an easy way to quiet the restless little ones by reciting some thrilling story until their nervous system vibrates with excitement and they lie down to dream of what they have heard or to form the desire to initiate these creatures of a depraved imagination. Then the mind longs for something more exciting and the imagination like a canal is walled on both sides and thoughts like water pour down the groove until the mind is emptied of noble aspirations and high aims and worthy ambitions leaving the soul empty and a fit receptacle for all that is vile and polluting. When thus the mind is vitiated and bad and impure thoughts in solitary hours rush in upon the mind, then the weird, wild fancies rush onward with increasing force, as a river increases in power the farther it gets away from the fountain a child is quieted by a story. It devours the exciting, loves the marvelous, but needs to be checked at times and parents are the ones whom Providence has made responsible for deciding for their children in these matters.

The trashy or so called light literature of the day is one of the devil's pet snares for capturing the youth and preventing the proper development of the possibilities that are concealed in the child. He thereby robs the world of a high order of manhood and womanhood which would appear if the children were properly developed in intellect and morals. Though the literature be free from crime they have no morals, but are full of mean insinuations against justice, virtue and religion they place a premium on deceit and encourage lying.

Let the youth be taught to love right and hate wrong, to respect virtue and defend truth, to emulate heroic deeds and do good and right at all hazards but never allow themselves to be laughed into doing a base thing or sneered out of doing duty. For God and the right let them always be led onward and upward, loving the good, the true, and the beautiful, ever imitating Him who was the model child, the exemplary youth and the true and safe man—the God man. JOANNES.

Mr. James Campbell, of Allegany County, Deems Mr. Weinberg's Challenge to Senator Zihlman Unfair and Unnecessary.

To the Editor of The Republican.

The challenge of Mr. Weinberg, candidate for Congress from Allegany county, to Mr. Zihlman present State Senator and candidate for Congress from Allegany county, is so transparently unnecessary and unfair as to call in question any past, present or prospective claim Mr. Weinberg may have as a justification in asking the constituency of the Sixth Congressional District for further consideration as a candidate for this high and exalted position.

As Mr. Weinberg and Mr. Zihlman are from the same district, candidates for the same office and must stand for and advocate every plank in the National and State platforms, there can be no controversy between them and consequently nothing to debate. Mr. Weinberg knows this and while he has sufficient honor to deter him from making an open and unfair canvass while Senator Zihlman as usual is faithfully and ably caring for the interests of and upholding the principles of the Republican party as minority leader in the State Senate, every hour of his time being devoted to the interest of his constituency. Mr. Weinberg knows this; he knows that to make an open canvass of the District while Mr. Zihlman is tied up would bring down upon him the justifiable censure of all fairminded men. Hence his flimsy attempt in issuing a challenge to get before the people that he might gain influence and votes by his great eloquence and oratory, the only asset to the best of my knowledge that he possesses in asking the support from the Republican party of our District. If Mr. Weinberg is such an able orator, where was his eloquence when Mr. Zihlman was touring the Sixth District in 1914 and Mr. Weinberg could not find time to even raise his voice in the interest of the party and its standard bearer.

While Senator Zihlman has faithfully served his people, led the fight that resulted in such an unprecedented majority in his home county for Mr. Weller for Governor, what has Mr. Weinberg done to establish a claim from our people as a candidate for Congress.

While every citizen is privileged to aspire for any office within the gift of the people, we claim the battles fought by Mr. Zihlman for our party, for and in the interest of our people entitles him to the nomination to Congress without opposition. But with or without opposition I believe the people will nominate him, and I certainly hope that his own good judgment will guide him in declining Mr. Weinberg's challenge where he has nothing to gain. His reputation as a clean man of the people, an able and competent leader in the ranks of the Republican party is so well established that no man can truthfully assail it.

Very respectfully,
JAMES CAMPBELL,
Delegate from Allegany county.
Annapolis, March 6th, 1916.

CHOICE OF CREEDS.

There are many creeds in the world, many who claim creeds, and many of splendid practical creeds, who claim no creed at all. These latter are those who practice the great creed of conscientiousness. Some espouse creeds because they are natural born churchgoers. Some use them as political assets, some use them to build business upon, some use them as a cloak behind which to conceal much. There are those who claim a creed and have none. Others are church worshippers. That is, they love the four walls and the roof in which they have heard singing and psalms since childhood and they have grown naturally to love the old building of so many pleasant memories—grown even to the fondness of worship. They just love building as a pile of brick or stone with little thought of it as part of an institution, and with rarely a thought of what it realy represents. These honest souls think they are sincere. They are churchgoers—church worshippers—ready to give battle were another church, of the same denomination and standing for the same thing, to try to enroll some of the churche's members into its fold. Others there are who are the salt of the earth, earnest, conscientious, sincere "with malice toward none, with charity for all." These are true exponents of the great creed, the creed of human kindness, and built and resting upon love of men. And whether or not you claim a creed, whether you are of the faithful or faithless, if you follow the fair faith of love of men, if you make choice of that creed, Ralph, it is very unlikely that you will be lost in the shuffle in "the separation of the wheat from the chaff."

Much has been written of creeds, and there are many who think they are sincere, yet whose hearts hold hatred for those who disagree with them as to methods of acquiring wings. Those who are thus deceiving themselves, Ralph, whose minds are sanctified to their own entire satisfaction, yet whose hearts are malicious, are not to be condemned, but pitied. It would be great if they could see more clearly, if they could choose a creed built on love of men, if they could act upon Emerson's splendid advice:

"Go put your creed into your deed,
Nor speak with double tongue."

There's a world of good religion there, Ralph, in those dozen words from Emerson. There's religion enough there for all those whose creed is based on love of men. Did you ever read, Ralph, "Abou Ben Adhem?" If not you should do so, for there is religion, pure, unadulterated and sound. Religion should not consist so much in craving death and courting the unknown as in loving nature, loving men, and loving life. This is a great old life in a glorious old world and we only have it once. There are some who have the preposterous idea that all the beauty of nature, all the alluring things that make the world worth while, all the glory and glitter of the globe, were created by some long tailed chump who fires a furnace with a fork. These see smoke in a smile, lurid flames in love and laughter and evil in everything. These need no new religion, for we have enough real religion already here. But they need reconstructed religion; they should make a new choice of creed and adopt love of men and love of life as its fundamental principle. On our way up hill we ought to be closer together, because we work better doubly harnessed than singly hitched. If we make proper choice of creed there cannot be condemnation of each other if we build it on the base of brotherly love. Alice Cary puts it prettily thus:

"I hold that Christian grace abounds
Where charity is seen; that when
We climb to heaven 'tis on the rounds
Of love to men."

Basket Ball. Basket Ball. Basket Ball.

It was the second day of March, 1916,
The hill and vales were white with snow,
Not a green blade to be seen;
When over came bold Hollidaysburg
To play the OAKLAND TEAM.
The score at first was tit for tat,
They thought they were giving us a run,
But ere long they found it out
That Oakland had not yet begun.

Then came two fouls for Oakland;
When the score was yet a tie,
And SANNER made these two points good,
Which started the score on high;
Then came our mighty center
With his fairy and magic art,
And pitched one with his sure right hand,
That went through like Cupid's dart.

Then GIESSMAN like a wrought iron safe
That guards a mint of gold;
From counting up these most cherished points
His men to the floor did hold.
Like a western hurricane
Down came the fleety CHANCE,
From shooting they did sure retreat
Before his swift advance.

Riedler, like George Washington,
Calmly held his ground;
But when the ball came up the floor,
It went back like a frightened hound.
SINCELL, like an Arab's horse,
Who fears his masters doom,
Plunged through their strongest ranks,
And brought his prizes home.

When the whistle blew for time
It seemed so easy and so fine
For OAKLAND won the victory,
Sixteen to twenty-nine.
FRANTZ stood beyond the foul line
All ready for the fray,
But his good work wasn't needed
For the rest could gain the day.

KILDOW was the referee;
And treated both sides fair.
You say that ye have not cold feet
Then come up bold Keyser,
And meet this mighty team
On the Garrett county crest—
Here you'll meet your Waterloo,
Mid snow and pine trees green,
Because OAKLAND will trim you
Up fair but trim you clean.

Now teams of foreign cities
Bear this in mind players,
That when you come to Oakland
Here is the team you'll find
BOYLE, GIESSMAN, CHANCE and FRANTZ;
The swiftest to advance.
While REIDLER, SINCELL and SANNER,
With force defend their banner.

JOSEPH FOLEY.

LENTEN SERVICES BEGIN IN ST. MARK'S CHURCH

First of a Series of Mid-Week Sermons Delivered Last Night By Pastor Bremer.

Beginning last night the first of a series of mid-week sermons was delivered by the Rev. O. A. Bremer, pastor in St. Mark's Ev. Lutheran church to a congregation that was quite appreciative.

The intention is to have services throughout the Lenten season on Wednesday evening of each week.

The speaker used as his text the following: "Pray Without Ceasing," I Thess. 5:17.

Rev. Bremer, in his sermon, said:

"Paul tells us in this text that the soul of man should be in constant communication with God. We are told that we should pray without ceasing. We are told that "the effectual, fervent prayer of a righteous man availeth much." We must believe that. We should incorporate that in the minutes of our daily thoughts.

"Prayer is the most beautiful speech that can be uttered. It is the most important of all forms of speech. It is the most beautiful, because it is conversation with the Perfect Absolute Beauty, which is Almighty God. It is the most important, because it is communion of the soul with the soul's maker, God.

"When we pray to God we are having conversation with God. We are, as it were, having a quiet talk with him about ourselves. We speak to Him about the things we have done, about the things whereof we have need.

"Prayer is an essential link in the chain of love that binds us to a loving God. Prayer is a great and necessary part of worship. To pray without ceasing means that we ought to have a constant thought in the heart for God.

"Prayer satisfies a particular longing of the soul. We are told that men in discouragement and dispair ought to pray and not to faint. When the heart is heavy with discouragements and doubts hover over the soul as a great cloud hiding from us all the sunshine and cheer, it is then that the soul communes with God, its maker.

"Prayer has existed from the very beginning between the created creature man and his maker, God. We hear the patriarchs of old lifting their petitions and asking for blessings from God. We hear the kings, especially King David, in his wonderful prayers of thanksgiving and repentance. Most of the Psalms of David are prayers. We hear the prophets praying for their people, petitioning almighty God to lift the burden of punishment from them, interceeding in their behalf, as Christ shall interceed for us before the Judgment Throne of God.

We come to the New Testament, the New Dispensation, and God comes down to earth in the form of the creature man. He has taken upon Himself man's nature, but it does not make Him any less God.

"There are those who look upon Christ and they can see His divine nature coexisting with the human. The Son of Man, Jesus Christ is both human and divine, and thus in His double nature He supplied a great need. He fulfilled conditions and made it possible for man to come nearer his maker. For Christ in His human nature dwelt among men and in the purity of that human nature he gave a great example to man of pure living.

"In His divine nature He understood perfectly the Divine Will of the Father and God of all. Had Christ been only human He could not have perfectly known the Father's Will. Had Christ been only divine we could not have known Him so well, because between the finite and the infinite there is such a vast space of unknown that man unaided is unable to transcend the distance.

"The limited finite capacity of the human mind is not able to grasp the infinite mind of God. But Christ came to us, being perfectly human and wholly divine, and thus, as it were, in the person of Christ, we have had God brought nearer to us, and looking to God through the human nature of His Blessed Son we are more able to understand His commands concerning us.

"Instead of developing the nature of pride and selfishness and bigotry the Son of Man has taught us by precept and example to walk humbly before God and to deal with meekness, gentleness and equality with our fellowmen. He has taught us that it is foolish for man to be puffed up with vain pride, for in the sight of God all men are equal. The man who permits himself to be governed by pride, controlled by avarice and greed reveals to the world that he has but a poor conception of God, the Great Exemplar, who gave us a perfect example of christian living.

"Christ, as we have said, has taught us how to live, and as we see glimpses of His relations with the Father in Heaven, as it is given in the Gospels, we see Christ fulfill these words, "Pray without ceasing." ForH e communed often in words with God and there was a continual communion of His spirit with the Father.

"Finally the disciples, witnessing the fervor of His prayers and the joy that those prayers seemed to bring to the Master, come to the Master and say, "Lord, teach us to pray." They had the law of Moses as their guide, they were versed in the commands that God had given to Moses on Mt. Sinai, and yet we are led to believe that they did not know how to pray. It is thus that we account for the coldness, the haughtiness, of the Jews at this time. The Pharisees thought that when they had kept the letter of the Mosaic law they fulfilled the whole law of God concerning themselves.

"When the disciples miss in their own hearts and lives that which they see in the happiness of the Master as He speaks with God they long for that something which they have never known and one of them says, "Lord teach us to pray." Then Christ gives that beautiful petition, that perfect prayer, the Lord's Prayer. In that prayer, short and simple as it is, is the embodiment of every form of petition every request that the soul need make to God. And it is right for those who wish to pray well to develop their petitions on the basis of this perfect prayer.

"We find in the Gospel an example of proper and improper prayer. We see the Pharisee in all his pride and false dignity and egotism standing as a worshipper in the temple. A little way off we see the publican who realizes in his heart that he is a great sinner, who feels unworthy to come to God in prayer. Both, no doubt, believe that they are true worshippers. At least we are led to believe that the Pharisee feels so concerning his worship. We see him standing in all his self-righteousness before his Almighty Maker, condemning the sinfulness of a poor worshiping neighbor as he says, "Lord I thank Thee that I am not as other men are, even as this publican."

"In other words the Pharisee thanks God that his life is perfect, that he has kept the law; thanks his God that he is better than his fellowmen and that he can come before men as an example of right living.

"We see the other man, standing worshiping with a great passionate cry for mercy and with a declaration of his sinfulness.

"God be merciful to me a sinner." Christ tells us that this publican, acknowledging his sin, pleading for mercy, went out of the house of God justified, because there was in his heart true repentance. He does not say that the Pharisee in his pride and haughtiness was justified. That attitude was condemned by the Son of Man.

"And so the publican has given to the world an example of prayer, for he was a sinner, and all men are sinners.

"We find all through the New Testament that the followers of Christ lived in a constant condition of communion with God. It was necessary for them to do so to maintain a right relationship with Him.

"It is impossible for a child to know the wishes of its parents or to understand and appreciate their love unless that child remains in the presence of its parents.

"God has given us his commands in the law. He has given us His plan of Salvation, and has shown us His great love in the Gospel, but it is essential that we maintain an inner personal relation with Him by prayer. Somewhere in man's heart there should be an incessant, silent petition to God for guidance and direction in our daily living. Without that we will do many things that we have been forbidden to do. Without that we cannot enjoy that deeper satisfaction and happiness that is the reward of the true worshiper.

"There is so much that we should pray for. The great conflict between the forces of good and evil keep us in constant danger. When we remember that our natures are prone to follow the lusts of the flesh and the appetites of the passions, we see the necessity of a greater sustaining power. The man who tries to fight the battles of life alone, the man who faces the forces of evil without the help of Almighty God is fighting a losing fight. God permits man to be tempted of Satan and Satan is stronger than man. When man tries to outwit the devil, alone, he will soon find himself in a maze of compromise from which he is unable to extricate himself without loss of self respect and honor.

"But God has promised His aid to every one that will seek His aid when temptation and the forces of evil try to take him captive. And in this age of greed, of supreme activity, when man is called upon to decide great and important questions without notice, man needs some power that will steady and control him.

"What the church needs today more than anything else is less indifference and more sincerity in worship. Men know the Bible perhaps better than ever before, but there is a question whether the worship of man with all its pretention is yet as sincere. And the reason, as I see it, is that men have forgotten to pray. The home altar about which our parents gathered us when we were children, where we knelt before God, our Maker, in prayer, is absent from our homes today. We haven't time to talk to God these days because there is always some one who wants to talk to us, or we to them, about some business.

"The story of the excuses in the Bible is lived out in the lives of men today more than ever before.

"But the man who lives that life in which the richest joys are found will find it in the christian life. He will find it possible to live that life only through prayer with God. For prayer gives to man a mysterious something, a quietness, a satisfaction without which life is empty indeed.

"Pray without ceasing."

"Lord, what a change within us one brief hour spent in Thy presence can prevail to make—

What heavy burdens from our bosoms take,
What parched fields refresh as with a shower;
We kneel,—and all about us seems to lower;
We rise,—and all the distant and the near,
Stands forth in sunny outline, brave

We kneel, how weak; we rise, how full of power!
Why therefore should we do ourselves this wrong,
Or others, that we are not always strong.
That we are ever overborne with care,
That we should ever weak or heartless be,
Anxious or troubled when with us is prayer
And joy and strength and courage are with Thee."

PRAYER.

"Dear Father, Thou Eternal God, Thou Lover of the souls of men, Thou Infinite Embodiment of love and purity and truth, into Thy presence we have come, as Thy creatures, worshiping Thee.

"We have sung to Thee hymns of praise, dedicated to Thy pure and holy Name. We have read from Thy divine Word, given to men. We have received the message of that Word, and now we lift our hearts in prayer to Thee.

"Oh, God, draw near unto us that we may feel Thy loving presence. Encourage us that we may not be afraid of Thee. Only let us keep that filial love and fear that makes us dread to displease Thee.

"But, oh, God, we know we have done much to cause divine displeasure. We know we have not been pure and sinless in our thoughts and words and deeds. The heart which Thou hast cleansed to the whiteness of snow and the purity of wool is again defiled by evil thoughts and sinful emotions.

"With repentant and humble hearts we come to Thee and ask Thee to forgive. Thou alone art God and "Holy is Thy Name." All sin is against Thee. There is no sin against any creature that is not against Thee. If we curse men we have cursed Thy most perfect handiwork, for Thou hast made us in Thy image. If we destroy created things we have destroyed that which Thou hast made. Ever and anon we sin against Thee.

"Dear Blessed Father, wilt Thou forgive. Wilt Thou help us to be better children, more obedient to Thy commands.

"Bless those who worship in Thy sanctuary. Bless all who call upon Thy Holy Name.

"Bless all the churches of this community and throughout the land. Grant that men may willingly and joyfully labor in Thy vineyard for the laborers are few.

"Bless those who love us and are dear to our hearts and keep them steadfastly faithful to Thee in their journey through this life.

"Bless the homes of our land and grant that Thy word may not be forgotten there. May the babes in the arms hear the mother whispering messages of love that God has placed in the heart and may these little ones be led to love the God who made them.

"Teach us, Oh Lord, to pray without ceasing for the worship of this blessed season, and may we do only those things which are in accord with the spirit of these days.

"May we think often of the sufferings of the Saviour, and may we think of them with gratitude. May we maintain a study of His life and realize the meaning of His words when He said, "I am the Way, the Truth and the Life."

"Help us to lay up treasures in heaven that cannot be destroyed or taken away, and that shall be the joy of eternity. Make this the beginning of a richer joy and a true christian life. We ask it in Jesus' name. Amen.

BITTINGER.

Elias Orendorf, an aged resident of this village, sustained a slight stroke of paralysis early last week and is now confined to his bed, though somewhat improved under the care of Dr. R. C. Bowen, of Grantsville.

Daniel D. Brenneman, who is more than ninety years of age, and a life long resident of the Amish settlement, near here, is reported to be critically ill.

Daniel Orendorf, and family, of Mt. Lake Park, spent part of last week here with Mr. Orendorf's parents.

Mrs. David Miller and son, Master Irvin, of Deer Park, are spending some time with relatives here.

Farmers made use of the snow last week for hauling lime for use on their farms in the spring.

Miss Mary Brenneman, of Meadow Mountain, is employed in the home of Mrs. T. B. Wiley.

Earl Harvey, who recently suffered a serious attack of blood poisoning, has returned to work in F. M. Bittinger's coal mine.

GRANTSVILLE.

Quite a number of Grantsville people witnessed the production of the "Birth of a Nation" at Cumberland last week.

Miss Ethel Broadwater has been spending a week in Frostburg, the guest of Mrs. Sarah Frost.

A sleighing party composed of Miss Duggan and girl friend from Youngstown, Ohio, Jack Ryan and Oliver Wittig, of Frostburg, were guests at the National on Tuesday evening, enjoying a delicious chicken and waffle supper while there.

Charles Keller attended the leap year dance at Frostburg Monday night.

A party of young folks enjoyed a sleigh ride from this place to Salisbury on Tuesday night.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Livengood were in Frostburg Wednesday. Mrs. Livengood was enroute to Union Bridge, Md., to see her sister, Mrs. Eva Bevons, who is ill at that place.

HAUSER

Mr. Russell Roth had an accident Tuesday with an axe and cut his foot so badly that when Doctor Scherr arrived he found it necessary to put in five stitches. Part of one of the toes was amputated.

Mrs. E. W. Leary and sister Miss Nina Lathrum, are visiting at the home of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Lathrum.

We have been having some very remarkable winter weather here lately. It began storming here Friday evening and till Monday the roads were drifted shut. The mail was snowbound as was the Minister of our church on Sunday, it being the first Sunday this year that we have been unable to have services.

Mr. Lloyd Heckert attempted to make a business trip to Oakland Monday, but when he reached the State Road the drifts were so large he could not get through, and after having trouble in getting his horses extricated from them he sent his team home and walked the rest of the way in to his destination.

Mr. Robert Lathrum also made a business trip to Oakland on Tuesday, and reported the roads in a bad condition. We think that our Legislature men ought to devise some plans or means by which our roads could be opened and made passable during the winter.

The Gauer School Literary, Saturday night, was reported to have been a success, although because of the very stormy and disagreeable weather, the attendance was moderate. The program covered about two hours and the question for debate was: "Resolved that Doctors are more beneficial than Lawyers." The affirmative won the decision. The play entitled: "A Kiss in the Dark," held the audience spellbound throughout, while the comedy, entitled: "The Yankee still Ahead," played by, Messrs. Russell Roth, Kirk Lathrum and Harry Friend, appealed to the audience as being excruiatingly funny.

The Gauer Progressive Literary Society will have another debate on March 10. The question for discussion will be: "Resolved, That Luxury is a Vice." The speakers on the affirmative are: Messrs. Clyde Gnegy, Kirk Lathrum and Wm. Gnegy. Negative: Messrs. Page Gnegy, Harry Enlow and Thurston Cosner.

The pupils attendance to the Gauer school, this winter, has been remarkable, considering the weather, and is holding out very good.

Mr. Homer Gnegy has gone to Dobbin, W. Va., to work.

McHENRY

The snow drifts are quite deep at this writing.

The mail carrier failed to put in his appearance on Monday last, as the drifts were impassable.

The programe rendered at the school here on Washingtons Birthday was good, and was very well attended by patrons and friends.

The young ladies of this place and Hoyes tendered their gentlemen friends a leap year party on last Wednesday night at the home of Arthur Custer of Hoyes. Those present were Misses Margaret, Grace and Jessie Friend, Irene Mattingly, Auburn Smith, Mary Carr and Esther Hinebaugh; Messrs. Milton and Webster DeWitt, Orlando Welch, Wayne Smith, Carroll and Bliss Friend, and Clifford Enlow. Games and music were indulged in until a late hour when refreshments were served. All report a delightful time.

Our school is progressing very nicely under the able management of Mr. Charles Callis.

Miss Esther Hinebaugh was visiting Miss Hazel Thayer over Sunday.

SUNDAY SMASHES CROWD RECORDS

80,000 People Flock to Hear the Great Evangelist.

MODERN SCHOOLS SCOLDED

All Modern Schools Of Thought Opposed To Evangelist Idea Of Religion Were Scolded In the Best Of His Individual Diction.

Baltimore.—Eighty thousand struggling men, women and children were drawn to the Billy Sunday Tabernacle Sunday.

The audience at night was the largest Sunday has ever addressed at one time. Governor Harrington was in the crowd.

Only 60,000 gained entrance to the great structure to hear the famed evangelist deliver his morning, afternoon and evening sermons.

When 22,000 souls were squeezed between its walls in the afternoon, it was believed that the building could hold no more. Five thousand were then disappointed.

But at night the ushers, the policemen and the people themselves gave an extra push and succeeded in getting into the building about 23,000. More than half this number—at least 15,000—were left outside at the evening service, pounding the doors and trying every conceivable ruse to gain an entrance.

Sunday showed his appreciation of the turning out of the largest audience he has ever addressed. True, he was irritable, and twice threatened to stop speaking when there was coughing and moving around immediately after he began his sermon.

But he made the crowd soon forget this, for he preached by far the most effective sermon he has delivered in Baltimore so far. The serman itself was an effective answer to those critics of Sunday who claim that his slang and grotesqueness alone make his sermons appealing. Maybe it was Sunday's slang and eccentric and grotesque gestures that drew the immense throng to the tabernacle. But it was a fine sermon—a sermon against infidelity, a ringing defense of the Bible as the greatest of all books—that held the attention of that great audience and drew forth great salvos of handclapping and cheers.

Against those things which go to undermine the religion of Christ—infidelity, materialism, naturalism, isms and schisms—Sunday devoted his sermons throughout the day. But it was at night that he made his greatest effect, and it was on the greatest audience.

"Fools! Fools!"

He didn't plead for the Bible; he didn't plead for belief in God. He fired forth facts, and after he had thrown them to his audience he challenged them to a disbelief in the Infinite. "Fools! Fools!" he cried. "No God! No Heaven? No Hell? Oh, worst of fools!"

He harked back to the Old Testament, down on through the ages into modern times. Sunday was eloquent when he spoke of Constantine, and repeated the cry of the Roman Emperor: "Oh! Gallilean. Thou hast conquered."

It was at the end of his sermon, however, that the dynamic evangelist reached the highest of his eloquence. Standing erect before his pulpit stand, he pounded his finger at the great audience before him and paused until there was not a sound except the dull humming of the nosy crowd outside, which filtered in through the doors and windows.

"You, then, have one of five courses open to you," he shouted. "You have Mahammedanism, you have the faith of the Persians, you have the beliefs of the Hindu, you have the teachings of Buddhism, or you have Jesus Christ and the Holy Bible." For these last words Sunday's voice seemed to take on added strength and his audience leaned forward with eyes opened wide, with every nerve tense.

Then Sunday electrified them.

A Striking Climax.

With a flourishing sweep of his right arm, he grasped a Bible from his pulpit stand, jumped from the floor of the pulpit to a chair and from the chair to the top of the stand, and then, with the Bible held aloft, and in a striking and dramatic position, shouted:

"Give me, give me for God's sake, the Bible and Jesus Christ!"

Sunday's hand, grasping tight the Bible, was still held aloft; one foot was raised from the top of the stand as if to give him greater height; his eyes shone as they had not shone before during the local campaign, and he looked happy—happy. There was silence for a second. Then one of the greatest bursts of applause that Sunday has received so far greeted him.

Sunday grinned and remained on the top of the stand.

"Oh, men and women," the evangelist then cried, the smile disappearing from his face, and his features expressing all the earnestness that his words conveyed; "this is your truest friend. Don't be fools. Take the Bible; take Jesus Christ!"

After the sermon Sunday got down in the pit of his pulpit and grasped the hands of about 5,000 of his audience who passed before him.

The great attendance was divided as follows: About 15,000 at the morning session, 22,000 at the afternoon and 23,000 at night. In the afternoon 5,000 were turned away, and at the night service about 15,000.

Attacking the creeds of some modern faiths which he called humbugs, he paid a tribute to the masters of modern magic and sleight-of-hand. "When Kellar, Herrmann and Howard Thurston show you tricks, they admit they're going to humbug you," he said. "So ought these other fellows, and not take your money under false pretenses."

Billy Sunday drew his record crowd that far in the local campaign to the Tabernacle in the afternoon, a record which he broke at night. Twenty-two thousand persons crowded in through the doors and there received from the eccentric evangelist a denunciation such as the great majority of them had never before heard.

Practiced His Text.

Sunday used pleading, denunciation and invective to get beneath the skins of his hearers and bring home to them the meaning of his text—The People Had a Mind to Work. His methods of preaching invariably bring perspiration, but on this occasion they seemed to bring it in a double degree.

Sunday had been speaking for only a few minutes when he decided to throw his collar off. "I don't care," he told his audience. "This thing chokes me. You didn't come out here anyhow to see me on dress parade; you came to hear me preach. If you didn't you shouldn't have come out at all."

"Some of you fellows wear out 10 pairs of holdbacks to one pair of tugs," he cried; 'you're ridin' on the breechin' all the time instead of taking the bit for Jesus Christ!"

"Work! Work! Work!" he cried time and again, the perspiration pouring from him sprinkling over those in the press boxes on either side of the platform, the drops punctuating the notes of the scribes.

Get To Work.

At one point Sunday stopped for several seconds to wipe the perspiration from his face. He looked at his very wet handkerchief, and, as if inspired by its condition, cried: "You can't expect me to wear out my life in the cause of Jesus Christ here in Baltimore while you are loafing on the job. Get to work! For God's sake, get to work!" he shouted to the ministers' section. "The trouble with your churches is that they contain a whole bunch of frauds."

"Criticise if you must," exclaimed the Evangelist, "but criticise by creation. Sisters, if any of you down there think you can preach a better sermon than I can, come up here and do it. I'll gladly give you the platform. That's the way to criticise—don't do it by complaint. Any of those weak-kneed, white-livered cads who are always criticising me are welcome to this platform if they can bring the Word of God home to His people better than I can. Let him come up; I'll quit."

At the conclusion of his sermon Sunday made a plea for all those who wanted to help him save Baltimore for Christ to raise their hands. Thousands of hands went up and Billy looked immensely pleased.

SUNDAY SAYINGS

When it comes to the divorce question, I am a Roman Catholic from the top of my head to the soles of my feet.

The fellow who has been divorced may go to the cheesey-looking church around the corner, where the minister is anxious for a ten-spot, but when he comes to your Uncle Fuller, I say: "Get out, you lobster!"

There are some people who are so sensible that when a hungry tramp panhandles them for a flapjack they will offer him a tract on The Bread of Life.

Other people are so stingy that they talk through their noses to save their false teeth.

Some people don't care whether Baltimore goes to hell or not so long as they can walk the streets and sing "Jesus Paid It All."

God does not care whether you hoofed it up here or came in a limousine.

If you should decree that there should be no church within 25 miles of Baltimore, the real estate men of this city would not be worth 25 cents on a dollar.

If I was some men's wives I would refuse to clean their spittoons. Let every hog clean his own trough.

Let me tell you, sister, when I see you smoking a cigarette I don't want to know anything more about you. I've got your number.

You admire anybody who preaches the Word of God, though he shoots your old carcass full of holes.

I haven't any quarrel against the bed bug, but I don't like the way he makes his living.

Some fellows wouldn't be called men if they didn't wear whiskers and breeches.

People are afraid to launch out into the ocean of God. They stand on the borderland shivering, with religious goose pimples all over them.

There are men so hellish and rotten in this town that they should be disinfected with loyal, carbolic acid and formaldehyde for two years before they are allowed to touch the doorknob of a house where decency dwells.

It's not my plain preaching that shocks you. It's your rotten living.

THE CIVIC CLUB ENTERTAINMENT

Many Beautiful Scenes in Connection With Mrs. Jarley's Wax Works.

The opinion of everyone who saw the entertainment given by the Ladies Civic Club at the Maryland Theatre on Monday, March 6th, is the same, and the universal verdict is "the best amateur show we ever saw." As there was standing room only at the performance, the show was a financial success. It should have been called a musical comedy, and some of the talent could make good as professionals.

It would be hard to say just what part was the best, or to say which feature was the most enjoyable.

Before the entertainment proper Mr. Tatrow, representing the Morrison Music Company of Cumberland, and Mr. W. A. Sturgiss, of Oakland, gave an exhibition of the Aoelian Vocalion, the latest and best in the way of a graphophone. This wonderful instrument filled the whole theatre with its great volumn of tone, giving the impression that the band or orchestra that made the record was really playing, and yet the tone could be softened and reduced to the faintest volume of sound, and each note of a voice could be heard distinctly.

The program opened with the Dance of the Nations in which the smaller children took parts. The first dance, the Irish folk dance, with Fannabelle Offutt, Bernadette Stanton, Gilmore Hamill, and James Pollock. They wore the typical Irish costume of the land of Old Erin and gave the dance without a flaw.

The next was the Dutch dance by little Nell Offutt and Nelson Offutt. They both looked as if they had just come from Holland, wooden shoes and all. Miss Nell was seated at the window of her Dutch home, when her sweetheart comes along, invites her for a walk, and they dance the dance of their native Holland and into the hearts of the audience.

The next was the Japanese dance by Adeline Sincell, Thorton Deffinbaugh and Seymour Offutt. The costumes and customs in this, as in all the other scenes, was faithfully carried out, and the little Japs danced through their part easily and gracefully.

The Spanish dance was the only part the Dance of the Nations where the performer danced alone, and little Virginia Johnson, in the garb of sunny Spain, gave an exhibition that many of the Senoritas might have envied.

The darky cake walk, by Mary Jane Offutt and Henry McComas was an excellent exhibition, worthy of much older actors.

The Dance of the Nations ended with an exhibition of the modern American dances by Miss Douglas Sincell and Mr. Fossett, of Cumberland. They danced the foxtrot, hesitation and one-step, showing the grace and beauty of the American dance.

The little company of foreigners then came in with a large American flag, which called to mind the place the Stars and Stripes occupy at this stage of the world's crisis.

The second act opened with a beautiful tableau of Spring, with Miss Leah Sincell to represent this season. She summoned her "Spring Girls" with a trumpet call, and Nell McComas, Mary Sincell, Bessie Hendrickson, Bernadette Hart, Norine Ault and Mabel Falkenstein came in, with wreathes of blossoms, giving a graceful dance and drill, while dogwood blossoms were falling during the scene.

Miss Anna Gonder, as Summer, followed this scene, and after her came the "Poppy Girls," Lois Fraley, Celia Hart, Helen Hart, Mary West, Martha West, Martha McComas, Margaret Sincell and Regina Helbig. Their song and dance was one of unusual merit.

Next came the "Daisy Girls," Evelyn Cheuvront, Sarah Hayes, Rebecca Naylor, Mabel Forman, Mary Martin, Martin, Alice Welling, Mildred King and Margaret Selby. Their dance and drill was very good, and the costumes worn carried out the idea of the daisy to perfection.

They were followed by the "Rose Girls," Virginia Moore, Ruth Lawton, Ruth Davis, Dorothy Pritchard, Gladys Smithwick, Margaret Kahl, Rebecca White, Ara Peddicord, Lillian Sincell, Nellie Naylor, Virginia Duval, Helen Little, Ella Helbig and Audrey Tricket. The Roses gave a beautiful exhibition.

And then came the "Sweet Peas," Martha Hinebaugh, Gladys Gonder, Mary Gonder, Genevieve Gonder, Isabella West, Helen West, Amelia Lauer, Margaret Nally, Louise Coglan, Helen Hinebaugh, Elizabeth Dixon and Mildred Welling. What a dainty boquet the sweet peas were and their intricate drill was all that could be desired.

Then all the flowers, with Spring and Summer, came on together, making a tableau of beauty.

The next was a song, "Hello Frisco," by Mark White and Mary West, which was thoroughly enjoyed.

The last act was the famous Wax Works, with Mrs. Paul Naylor as Mrs. Jarley, and John Hart as her assistant. Mrs. Jarley was perfectly at home with her wooden headed figures, and caused much laughter by her introductions. The following statues took part in this exhibition.

Mason.....Mr. J. E. Harned
Sleeping Beauty and the Prince.....Josephine Browning, Walter Kahl
False Prophet.....Dr. Grant
Jesse Jamison.....Grover Stemple
Dude.....Milton Sincell
Two Headed Girl.....Mary West, Mrs. T. Gonder
Babes in the Wood.....D. E. Bolden, Gertrude Shirer
Doctor.....Jerry Stanton
Jack Sprat and Wife.....James Bell, Isabelle Hamill
Mrs. Winslow and Baby.....Miss Tower, Mrs. Hill
Vocalist.....Miss Turner

The ladies of the Civic Club deserve credit for the way in which this entertainment was prepared and the ladies in charge of the different parts showed ability that it is hoped will bear fruit at some future time.

We cannot close a description of the show, however, without making mention of the vocalist of the evening, Miss Turner, of Cumberland. She gave three selections, one of them in Italian, and all were thoroughly enjoyed.

The instrumental music was furnished by Dwight Townshend, Mrs. B. F. Selby, Mrs. Ethel Selby, Glen Martin.

All feel that the Ladies Civic Club is an institution that merits patronage, and one that is doing good for the town, and if they can give an entertainment of the kind produced on Tuesday last, all shall be glad to have a repetition at any time.

Is Thirteen Unlucky?

The superstition still lingers that thirteen is an unlucky number. Take a silver quarter from your pocket and look at it closely. The maidens head is surrounded by 13 stars and the word "Quarter Dollar" contains 13 letters. In one claw the eagle holds a branch containing 13 leaves, in the other he holds 13 arrows while from his beak he flaunts the insignia "E pluribus unum" containing 13 letters. On his breast reposes a shield containing 13 bars, while in the firmament above his head floats 13 resplendant stars. And yet who would say it is unlucky to own a quarter?

Mallets Expected Here.

The greater number of the forty-five new Mallet type locomotives that were recently purchased by the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Company from the Baldwin Locomotive Works, are expected to arrive at the South Cumberland shops during the week, and will be used on this division of the railroad, according to a Baltimore and Ohio official in an interview this morning. The official added that the locomotives are satisfactory and that they will prove invaluable on the 17 mile grade and other steep grades in heavy freight traffic. The old engines, which are being substituted by the new Mallets, will be used in yards and on level trackways of this and other divisions of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad company's lines.

The new Pacific type of engines recently purchased by the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Company for use through Oakland from Cumberland to Grafton, are now being delivered by the building corporation to the officials of the railroad at Cumberland and will be placed in service probably this week. The machines are the heaviest ever built and are equipped with every late device that tends to safety and the comfort of the men employed in operating them.

MONEY TO LOAN—On real estate. Renninger & Offutt, Attorneys at Law, Garrett National Bank building, Oakland, Md. Adv. 51 4t*

The Late Governor Francis Thomas

BY CHARLES M. MILLER

This is the last of a series of several articles relative to an illustrious but unfortunate Governor of Maryland who is remembered by many.

A bright day, the 28th of January, 1876, the year of the Philadelphia Centennial, now forty years ago; a day exceptionally mild, considering the high altitude in so rigorous a winter climate, a messenger hastened to me in the yard at Swanton and said excitedly: "Mr. Thomas had been killed by a railroad engine near his home." The horseback ride from Swanton to the Mont Alto residence below Frankville was over a rough route of between seven and eight miles, but a spirited horse bore me over it in a short while. At the front yard people had gathered in groups and were talking in whispered tones, some exhibiting unsurpressed grief. Intelligence had been wired to Cumberland and from that city acquaintances of the distinguished deceased had arrived on a special over the Baltimore and Ohio R. R.

Among these arrivals was an attorney, at that time in active practice at the Cumberland bar, who, apparently, had assumed direction of affairs. From the front room opening on the veranda, a room in which the body lay just as it had been brought from the railroad, came warm protestations from the widow in the family employed about the premises, weeping while she protested, against the freedom of the attorney in advance of such time as she believed should be reached for such action.

With the hope of procuring the fullest details surrounding the deplorable calamity, a visit was made to the scene of the happening on the railroad where observers were still lingering and discussing the one topic then first in all minds.

The recently printed account appearing in the columns of THE REPUBLICAN that Gov. Thomas was run over on the westbound track is a mistake, in fact, he was not run over at all. While he was walking down the eastbound track, close to his left a heavy freight train was laboring in the opposite direction up the steep grade, creating such a clatter as to deaden the less sound of the two engines, linked together, overtaking him on the down track. As these two helpers rounded the acute curve, the foremost engineer caught a view of Gov. Thomas directly in his front, with his hands clasped at the back and strolling forward as in the leisured indulgence of a morning walk. In the flash of the glance, the engineer saw the unsuspecting old gentleman lightly tripped by the scooping pilot and flirted in the air to the right, falling beyond the roadbed on a grass-plat close to where the ruins of a former lime furnace to day stands. Not a single cut was left in the flesh nor any indication of a hurt resulting from the impact, and the belief was not without reason that serious harm would not have occured to the light frame in the quick dash, but for the pile of bed bars on the grass-flat, in the fall the back of the head came in contact with the end of one of these iron rails, crushing in the skull at the base of the brain causing instant death.

Looking just across the double track from the spot on which the body fell, was the vividly remembered place, previously describe in these notes, where this old man, in his misleading conviction, stood pointing out to me how, as he so strangely believed, Confederate soldiers had conspired to kill him. As visionary and as groundless as was this suspicion it had become too deeply rooted by time even for his sound reason to loose its grip. Only a few yards from this place of which he had so gravely spoken and where he so firmly believed his doom was pending, as if by an irrevocable decree, in less time than the flicker of a sem-mote before the vision, the end came.

One more similar coincidence remained for disclosure in the chamber where, in an endless silence, the eccentric master now lay in his own house.

Reference has been made in this writing to an anxiety of Gov. Thomas for a joint survey with me to establish a contention entertained by him. Seeing the friction calculated to be brought out by such a survey for an adjustment of lines and clashing claims, my object was to postpone the location of bounds. In my belief no vacancy existed out side of the tracts duty required me to protect, liable to the location of his procured potent under the name of "Alexander." From a table in the room where the body was waiting removal, a letter was handed to me, sealed, stamped and bearing my address, evidently completed just before the Governor left that table for the ill-fated walk on the railroad below the Frankville station. Many letters have come to me from many directions but few, if any, have made the impression as was made by this particular letter, and not one has so defied the defacements of time or left its imprint so distinctly fixed in memory.

It was brief but brevity was not its dominant feature: "You are a very young man, and your life lies before you. I am a very old man, with my life behind me, and am admonished by age and increasing infirmities that all my worldly affairs should be speedily settled. Will you please come to Frankville for the proposed survey?" Reading this letter in the solemnity of such an occasion, but little at my disposal that would not then have been gladly relinquished to step backwards a few months in the past for a revision of intentions and a ready compliance with this earnest and often reiterated wish.

In all this wide world, under the hardest imposition of its exactions, we find not one place where man stands so stripped and helpless, as in the presence of the mystery of death. Here is the freshly penned and prophetic letter traced but a few hours ago; close by lies the author with the spirit fled and the hand still. While nature lavished her wealth upon him and fate oppressed him by blinding shadows, the harp of his melodies reached and stirred his fellow beings as but few could, raising their minds to loftier heights and opening their visions to fairer ranges. It was his gift to see in the mountains and in the valleys, in the storms and in the calm glories not revealed to the common eye. Such privileges born in genius and heightened by culture, enabled him to leave creations of speech as the refinement of language—creations of such utterances as, to some small extent, have been our mission in these letters to reproduce and that came in such faultless grace from lips here sealed up forever.

War Prices Prevailing.

Not since the close of the Civil War have goods in all lines advanced as they have during the past six months. This is especially true of numerous lines handeled by us. Nails, iron, stoves, ranges, paints, oils, varnishes, dynamite, powder, roofing, building material, household supplies, etc., have all advanced and on many articles from 50 to 200 per cent. and in some cases more.

The iron reports of March 2nd say:

"The most important and serious questions that is before the trade now is that of how much material or merchandise will be available in the last six months of this year for the consumers, though willing to pay the advances.

"It is estimated by large manufacturers that if things go on as they are now buyers may not be able to get more than one-fourth of the amount of material or goods they will need in the last half of the year."

In order to take care of our trade we have bought and put in stock a large line of goods as handled by us, and on most lines have made very little advance although realizing the goods cannot be replaced at present prices, and in giving our trade and customers the advantages of our buying it is absolutely necessary to demand the cash with order for our goods, otherwise we would have to advance goods to a profit beyond the market prices that would make many lines so high that they could not be sold.

Manufacturers, jobbers and supply houses are demanding the cash for their goods, adding the advanced prices. To meet conditions and prices we are compelled to demand cash for goods sold believing it will be the best and most advisable plan we can adopt with the present conditions.

Yours,
J. M. DAVIS & SONS.

HART'S

SPRING GOODS

OUR Spring Goods are now in—Wool Cloths as well as Wash Fabrics; also Laces, Embroideries and other Dress Trimmings.

These goods were bought last fall when it was possible to buy at right prices. If we were compelled to go into the market to buy these goods today we would on most things be forced to pay more than our present retail price. This applies to almost everything in the dry goods and notion lines.

We never believe in misrepresenting facts in advertising as well as in other things. Our advice is to anticipate your wants for spring before present stocks are exhausted you will save money. Old prices still prevail at

VERDUN FIERCEST BATTLE OF WAR

RAIDER MOEWE WITH $250,000 GOLD SLIPS BY BRITISH TO "HOME PORT"

German Artillery Heavily Bombarding from Argonne to the Woevre and with French Defense Heavily Countering All Assaults---Battle Line is Widening

RUSSIANS TAKE BY STORM BITLIS, TURKISH FORT

Berlin.—A sort of enthusiasm, such as has been equalled only in the case of the famous Emden, greeted an announcement by the Admiralty that the now equally famous Moewe, the German raider which since the beginning of the year has held mysterious sway on the high seas, notably in the mid Atlantic, had arrived "in a home port." She brought with her, according to the announcement, 1,000,000 marks in gold bars ($250,000), and 402 prisoners taken from a total number of 15 Allied vessels—with the exception of one French and one Belgian all British—aggregating a tonnage of nearly 60,000.

Of these 15 vessels, the majority were sunk, the Admiralty says, while "a small part were sent as prizes to neutral ports."

The Moewe, according to the statement, not only wrought havoc on Allied maritime commerce by sinking or capturing nearly everything that came into its path, but was also engaged on her "successful cruise lasting several months" in sowing mines along what is described as "the enemy coast." It was one of the Moewe's mines, the Admiralty avers, which caused the sinking on Jan. 9, last, of the British pre-dreadnought Edward VII., from which everyone of the 777 men aboard was saved by British rescue vessels.

The "home port" into which the German raider finally brought her prisoners and booty is not designated by the Admiralty, nor is it believed that that it will be made known. This leads to the belief here that other raiders are expected to return from sea-roving trips. Some here even believe the port in question may be the base for a number of similar enterprises.

The theory that the Moewe is a warship is dispelled by the official announcement through the fact that it is not designated as an "S. M. S.," but simply as "the Moewe." The commander is Count and Burggraf zup Dohna-Schledien, a Captain Lieutenant in the Imperial Navy.

In order to reach "a home port," the Moewe must have covered a distance on her home journey of between 1,500 and 2,000 miles.

BRITISH GAIN VICTORY.

London.—The British along the Ypres-Comines Canal have reversed the victory gained over them by the Germans February 14 by retaking the 800 yards of trenches the Germans captured at that time.

The German mine galleries in the trenches were destroyed and four officers and 176 men were taken prisoners.

French guns have destroyed a German work in the region of Beuvraignes, between the Somme and Oise Rivers.

On the western Russian front the Germans have bombarded with naval guns the villages of Laprenesh and Bigauntzen. German aeroplanes have shelled the Riga sector and have bombarde towns on the Dvina River.

Near Dvinsk the Russian lines have been bombarded with shells weighing 150 pounds.

In Galicia, on the middle Stripa front two attempts by the Germans to approach the Russian trenches were repulsed with big losses.

On the Caucasus front the Russian cavalry is closely pursuing the fleeing Turks southwest of Erzerum and increasing the number of prisoners and guns. In the direction of Bitlis the Turks are abandoning their supplies in their retreat. The Russians have occupied Kamalk and the Nekevand Covent, seven miles from Bitlis.

On the Austro-Italian front severe weather has failed to put an end to the fighting and in the Isonzo region the Italian patrols have attacked the Austrians in their trenches with rifles and grenades.

TWO DYE CARGOES FOR U. S.

Great Britain Permits $5,000,000 Shipment from Rotterdam.

Washington.—Great Britain will permit the shipment of two cargoes of dyestuffs valued at $5,000,000 from Rotterdam to the United States. Ambassador Page, at London, has advised the State Department, and officials here are hopeful that Germany will make an exception to its embargo by granting permission for exportation.

The dyes have been bought and paid for by Americans.

MALOJA DEATH LIST GROWS.

The Total Number of Persons Saved Was 301.

London.—The owners of the Peninsular and Oriental Line steamer Maloja which struck a mine and sank off Dover, announced that the total number of persons saved in the disaster was 301. Of these 72 were passengers, 92 members of the European crew and 137 men of the Lascar crew. The missing comprise 49 passengers, 20 members of the European crew and 86 La... al of 155.

Paris.—The Germans, in the great battle for Verdun, captured the village of Douaumont and extended their lines west and south but the French, in a series of counter-attacks, recovered part of their lost ground.

According to the latest dispatches, the fighting was increasing in intensity and the losses were becoming greater. The ground was reported to be covered with dead, over which the troops were rushing in their efforts to advance.

The French occupied the highest part of the mound on the slope of which the village is situated. The bombardment is violent along the entire front from the west of the Meuse to the Woevre region.

In the Verdun battle both the Germans and French are employing fresh troops. The artillery duel in the vicinity of Beaumont is terrific, and in the region of Malancourt the shelling is incessant.

The capture of Bitlis, in Turkish Armenia, about 110 miles southeast of Erzerum, by the Russians was officially announced. The city was taken by assault. The victory placed the Russians within 100 miles of the Bagdad Railroad. Bitlis has about 35,000 inhabitants and is capital of the villayet of the same name.

The army of Grand Duke Nicholas has thus covered within a little more than two weeks, more than one-fourth of the distance from Erzerum to Bagdad, which is about 500 miles.

With the capture of Bitlis the menace to the Mesopotamian capital becomes more than tangible and relief for the still surrounded main British army at Kut-el-Amara assumes the light of a possibility.

RENEW ATTACK AT VERDUN.

London.—With the announcement that the Kaiser had left the Verdun front and returned home comes the news that the Germans renewed their attacks on the great French stronghold.

In the attack on Douaumont the fort changed hands four times, until finally the Breton Corps was brought into action. They charged with irresistible clan through a storm of German shells, routed the Brandenburger Corps and drove the Germans back beyond the village of Douaumont, north of the fort.

Two thousands Brandenburgers remain in the fort, which is now well within the French lines. The French have placed a guard to wait until hunger brings the Germans out to surrender.

The sudden lull after almost two weeks of fighting is regarded by French military observers as indication that the Germans are preparing for a renewal of their assault in a gigantic scale at two distinct points—in the Meuse Heights and west of Pont-a-Mousson, in the Moselle River region, ten miles southwest of the German stronghold at Metz.

Many military experts in Paris express the opinion that the German offensive has broken down, and that the Germans were not able to advance when they got within range of the main forts around Verdun.

The French are rushing up reinforcements in a steady stream. The British are now fighting to the north of the Somme, having stretched their front between thirty and forty miles, from Lens down to the region of Amiens, to release French troops for operations against the Crown Prince's army.

PITH OF THE WAR NEWS

Shattered against the French defensive, the Kaiser's desperate drive against Verdun has been halted again.

The latest figures indicate that the futile attempt to force the Lorraine gateway which leads to Paris has cost the Germans at least 200,000 dead and wounded.

French artillery officers at Verdun estimate that in the first four days of the struggle the Germans discharged 2,000,000 shells. The French probably fired as many, making a total of 4,000,000 shells, or 1,000,000 a day.

The Russians captured at Bitlis six Turkish guns and many prisoners, among them 17 officers. The Turkish defending army is in full flight southward.

The French War Office admitted that the Teutons penetrated the French lines at Douaumont after suffering "cruel losses."

On the Russian front severe weather has caused a lull in the operations. At a few points the armies have come in contact in small engagements, but no gains or losses of any great importance have been reported.

CONGRESS ACTS ON RIGHT OF TRAVEL ON ARMED SHIPS

Forty-nine Democrats and Nineteen Republicans Vote to Table Resolution

VOTE IN SENATE 68 TO 14

Amendment Incorporated in House Measure Urging Wilson to Take No Drastic Step Before Submitting Facts to Congress.

Washington.—Resorting to the most direct legislative procedure available, the Senate by a vote of 68 to 14, removed from its calendar the Gore resolution warning Americans not to travel on armed ships of the belligerent powers.

The Foreign Affairs Committee of the House of Representatives, by a vote of 17 to 2, paved the way for the rejection of similar measures prevailing in that body.

On the third anniversary of his inauguration the President expressed complete satisfaction with the action of Congress.

By an overwhelming vote the Senate gave notice to the world that it is the sense of that body that Congress should not interfere with the Executive in the conduct of international affairs.

The two houses having thus sustained the President in his right to handle foreign affairs without interference by the law making department, Administration officials say that Mr. Wilson will be free to press his negotiations with Berlin without the fear of possible restraint by Congress.

Opinions vary as to the extent of the Administration victory in the Senate. It is agreed that as the vote was taken it did not afford opportunity for expression of sentiment on the merits of the questions as to whether Americans should be warned not to travel on armed ships.

Of the sixty-eight who thus killed the measure 49 were Democrats and 19 Republicans, in the 14 who favored the Gore resolution the Democrats were Senator O'Gorman of New York and Senator Chamberlain of Oregon. Senator Gore voted against his own motion with the view of having a chance to move for a reconsideration. Fourteen members did not vote—9 Democrats and 5 Republicans.

NEW U-BOAT WAR.

Two British Vessels Are the Victims on the Opening Day.

London.—The first day of the new Austro-German submarine war—the decree announcing destruction without warning of armed merchantmen—was ushered in by sinking of two British steamships, the Thornaby of 1,732 tons, and the Malvina, of 1,244 tons. All aboard the Thornaby are reported killed or drowned. It is believed that she was sunk in the Mediterranean. The Malvina is reported to have been torpedoed off the Kentish coast.

Neither is believed to have carried arms, even for defensive purposes.

The general opinion is that the actual campaign, as set forth in the recent German memorandum to neutrals, will not begin in any spectacular way, particularly in view of the still undetermined questions in the German-American controversy.

The Mediterranean, it is believed, will be the chief scene of the new U-boat operations, and attacks are also looked for in the Adriatic, where the Austrians, from their base, Pola, are expected to do all in their power to prevent traffic of supplies and munitions, as well as of transports between the Italian coast towns and Avlona, the next objective of the Austrian and Bulgarian invaders in Albania.

OFFICIAL REPORT ON MINE EXPLOSION AT KEMPTON

State Mine Inspector William Walters Issues Statement of Details.

Mine Inspector William Walters, of Allegany and Garrett Counties, after a most thorough and careful investigation of the cause of the terrible calamity in which fifteen miners lost their lives, has furnished the following report:

On February 29, 1916, at 6:40 a. m., an explosion occurred in Kempton Shaft, No. 42, located at Kempton, in Garrett county, along the Western Maryland railroad, operated by the Davis Coal and Coke Company, resulting in the death of fifteen persons. Of this number fourteen were killed outright and one died after being taken out of the mine, four others were injured, two being sent to the Davis Memorial Hospital seventy-one men were in the mine when the explosion occurred. The working and ventilation of this mine had been carefully planned having overcasts and regulators to give the required split for each section of the mine. Ventilation is produced by a large Robinson fan, capable of producing 150,000 cubic feet of air per minute against a three-inch water column. There never has been any gas detected in this mine, which is working the Lower Kittanning seam of coal. The coal runs from 4½ to 5½ feet thick.

The shaft is four hundred and twenty feet deep. The explosion occured in first left heading off dip heading and did not affect any other section of the mine.

Several men loaded their empty cars and did not know that anything had happened. There are twenty-one rooms in this heading, and judging from the conditions found after the explosion it was conclusive that it was caused by a shot. In room No. 11, the room was advancing and the last work done at face was firing a shot in the middle of the breast, the hole being against the roof 12 inches over solid and from all appearance this was the point of origin. Evidence shows force coming down the room, from the amount of coke and dust found on the inside of props and debris thrown into the middle of the road. Also the track in the top crosscut was disconnected from the force passing through. 9 sweater coat was found about 4 feet from face and in the pockets of same was found four No. 6 ditonators and two pieces of fuse 12 inches long. Jacob Zukolich's body was found nearby and was mutilated more than any found. He had been working alone in this room. There was no cut-through to No. 12 room the barrier being left solid for the benefit of drainage, which proved very lucky as no damage was done and no person hurt from No. 12 to No. 21 room.

Room No. 10 was just starting to filler adjacent barrier line. Two cars were standing in the cut-through to the left, eighteen feet apart. Some coal had been filled into the inside car and end-gates on both cars were forced in; also some coke on same. The force of the explosion evidently went through this cut-through to room No. 9. Two bodies were found in this room.

In room No. 9 was found a great deal of coke on the right side of the props, and moisture on the roof near top of the room. One body was found in this room.

In room No. 8 there were two cars in the cross-cut to the left at the top of the room. Front end of inside car was off the track. Coke in the right side of inside car; also coke on the right side of props, which was more noticable than opposite cross-cut from room No. 9. There was considerable moisture on the roof. Two bodies were found in this room.

In room No. 7 was found two cars, each off the track, with an accumulation of dust on the inside end, also a prop near the inside end of a car knocked out, showing the greater force to have come from the inside.

In room No. 5 coke was found on the right side of the props and cars. Two bodies were found at the top of this room.

In room No. 5 was found two cars near the top of room with end off the track. A large accumulation, of dust on the ends and side of the cars. The air was found somewhat foul at the face.

At the bottom of room No. 4 two dead bodies were found.

Four dead bodies were found on main, a heading, close to the bottom of the shaft.

There was no damage done in the mine except a few stoppings blown out along first left air course and heading from room No. 6 to room No. 12.

The rescue party, which done such heroic work, deserves credit for the splendid service rendered under the leadership of R. F. Maloney, general superintendent, and George Roberts, superintendent, in restoring ventilation conditions before the afterdamp reached the miners.

The mine officials took great pride in the development of this mine and were thoroughly satisfied that the same was operated under safe conditions, as the coal was properly mined, using permissable explosives for blasting and shots fired by electric batteries.

On being informed of the explosion the company's officials arranged for a special train to take me and a party to the scene, where we remained and conducted an investigation. I arrived at the scene at 4 p. m. and found that all the men were out safe and the bodies of the dead men were later taken out of the shaft and taken on a special train to Thomas, W. Va., to be prepared for burial. I immediately dispatched a telegram to Governor Harrington advising him of the disaster and that the rescue work was very satisfactory.

Cost to the Nation to Be $141,704,846 Annually

CALLS FOR 170,000 REGULARS

Provide That Number of Men for Use at Once—Figures from Bureau Hearings Disclose Equipment on Hand for From 400,000 to 500,000.

Washington.—The Administration Army Reorganization bill, providing the land defense part of the preparedness program, was reported to the House by Chairman Hay, of the Military Affairs Committee.

The report asserts that upon the passage of the measure there will be made available 1,324,790 men trained for military service. This force is made up as follows:

Regulars, peace time	140,000
Regular Army Reserve	60,000
National Guard	129,000
Trained men in country	995,790
Total	1,324,790

The bill provides for the increase of the regular army by 40,000 men and 7,439 officers, besides officers for training the militia and students in military schools.

Like the Senate measure, the House bill provides for the expansion and reorganization of the National Guard as a defense force. The cost of the House committee's plan when carried out is estimated at $141,704,846, an increase of approximately $46,000,000 of the regular army estimates for the fiscal year 1917. The estimated cost of the plan for the first year is $116,090,000 and at the end of the fifth year $137,000,000.

The House bill also provides for the following:

The doubling of the number of cadets at West Point; improved military training schools and colleges where army officers are detailed.

An officers' reserve corps.

Summer camps.

The authorization of a plant for the manufacture of nitrogen.

The mobilization of industries.

General Aleshire, Quartermaster-General of the army, says there is on hand now equipment enough to supply the regular army, the National Guard and 250,000 men in addition and that in ninety days there could easily be provided equipment for from 600,000 to 700,000 men.

PRESIDENT ENTERS DENIAL

Senator Gore's Statement Brings a Disclaimer from White House.

Washington.—These are the important developments in the submarine situation:

Senator Gore, of Oklahoma, one of the Democratic leaders, startled the Senate by charging that President Wilson had told Senators Stone and Kern that unless Germany backed down on the submarine issue he would sever diplomatic relations; that war probably would follow; and that this might not necessarily be an evil to the United States, as it would bring the European struggle to a conclusion by mid-summer, and render a great service to civilization.

Senator Gore challenged Sen. Stone, chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, and Senator Kern to deny that the President had made the extraordinary remarks attributed to him. Senator Stone entered a partial denial, and Senator Kern did not respond to the challenge.

The White House issued an unqualified denial of any utterance on the part of the President to which any such meaning could be attached as was set forth by the blind senator from Oklahoma.

From an authoritative source it was learned that the President, in this conference with members of Congress, had said that a diplomatic break with Grmany would follow the torpedoing of an armed merchant vessel with loss of American life, and that it had been represented to this Government that such a break would probably mean war.

WENDEL LEFT $12,000,000.

Estate of "Hermit of Fifth Avenue," Overrated, Appraiser Says.

White Plains, N. Y.—State Transfer Tax Appraiser William C. Clark of Mount Vernon, said that the statements that the late John G. Wendel, who was called the "Millionaire Hermit of Fifth Avenue," Manhattan, left an estate of $50,000,000, were incorrect.

"Figures submitted to me show that Mr. Wendel owned about $12,000,000," said Mr. Clark.

UNITE FOR SUGAR REPEAL.

House Committee Is Unanimous for Retention of Duty.

Washington.—The unusual incident of Democratic and Republican members of the Ways and Means Committee joining in a unanimous report on a revenue bill occurred here. The committee unanimously reported the Democratic bill for the repeal of the free sugar clause of the Underwood tariff law. The bill, if enacted, will retain the present duty of about 1 cent a pound on sugar.

THE "FOUR-NINETY" is a real automobile. It has a quiet, powerful, VALVE-IN-HEAD Motor. It has looks—it has style—it is beautifully finished and rides like a cradel.

THE "FOUR-NINETY" has the following novel and superior features not found in any other car built:

(1) Shock-absorbing duplex front springs; (2) Self-lubricating clutch collar; (3) Hub construction with triple-size bearings, preventing "wabble" of wheels and wear on tires; (4) Compound spur steering gear attached to body—the simplest and safest ever invented; (5) Unit power plant carrying transmission on open brackets, which gives accessibility to clutch and allows removal of all transmission, if necessary, in twenty minutes. (Patents granted or applied for on the above.)

BESIDES THESE EXCLUSIVE FEATURES, THE "FOUR-NINETY" HAS

(1) Steamline front; (2) Crown fenders; (3) Cellular radiator; (4) Body with flush sides and concealed hinges; (5) Three-speed transmission; (6) Three-quarter floating axle; (7) The world-famous Zenith carburetor.

OTHER THINGS WORTH KNOWING

THE "FOUR-NINETY" does not have a single hinged joint to squeak or a spring shackle to rattle—and you will find only six grease cups on the entire car.

THE REPUBLICAN.

VOLUME 41. OAKLAND, MARYLAND THURSDAY, MARCH 16, 1916. NUMBER 3

GOVERNOR GOLDSBOROUGH IN THE SENATORIAL RACE

Started His Campaign This Week and Will Be Kept Busy.

Former Governor Phillips Lee Goldsborough, candidate for the Republican nomination for United States Senator, started this week on his campaign that will bring him in personal contact with nearly every Republican voter in Maryland. He has planned a long speaking tour that will take him to all sections of the State between now and the primary election on May 1.

With each passing day, the candidacy of Mr. Goldsborough gains momentum. Answering the requests from members of the Republican party from e ery part of the State, including many who were formerly allied with the Progressive Party, that he become a Senatorial candidate, he has received so many assurances of support that he feels that his candidacy not only meets with the approval of a large majority of the Republicans of the State, but there is a general demand for the nomination of Mr. Goldsborough from the rank and file of the party.

"I have been in touch personally and by letter," said Mr. Goldsborough, "with representative citizens of every county in the State, as well as the City of Baltimore, and I am greatly gratified over the encouraging offers of help I received on all sides.

"It will be my purpose to make a vigorous and active campaign throughout the State, and with the help of my friends and those interested in the future of the Republican Party, present to every Republican voter of every shade of opinion, what the issues involved in the primary are.

"To my mind the vast body of voters will recognize the duty of participating in the primary election. The fundamental reason for the direct primary is to be found, in that the people themselves have the say as to whom will be their candidate for public office."

Irrespective of party affiliation, the record of Mr. Goldsborough as Governor has been endorsed on all sides. Men in every walk of life and of every political creed, commend the Goldsborough administration through a firm belief that while in office Mr. Goldsborough labored earnestly and conscientiously for the welfare of the people and advocated all measures that tended to promote the general welfare of the State.

The Goldsborough administration, combined with the personal makeup of the man himself, have caused leading Democrats to intimate that Mr. Goldsborough would be the strongest nominee to oppose their candidate in the general election. In fact it is conceded on all sides that Mr. Goldsborough is the strongest candidate that can be produced for the nomination of Senator by the Republicans, particularly at this time.

His record as Governor of Maryland has probably never been equalled. In this connection, The Baltimore News, in an editorial on January 12 last, said:

"Governor Goldsborough leaves office with the best wishes of the people of Maryland. He has been a kindly Governor, a man who disliked to hurt even his opponents. He has made few enemies, those within his own party being due to factional rather than personal reasons. The State can find in his record much to congratulate itself upon.

"He co-operated in whatever endeavors were made to give the State progressive government. He stood in the way of few good laws, and applied himself diligently to the work alloted to him. His choice of men who have to do with the enforcement of the election laws has never been instigated by desire to win partisan advantage. Few men have left office with higher personal regard of the public which intrusted them with office, and we are sure there are few who supported Mr. Goldsborough four years ago who regret their action."

REV. D. HARRISON FRIEND DIED LAST THURSDAY

One of Garrett County's Oldest and Best Known Residents, Answered Final Call.

Rev. D. Harrison Friend, of Sang Run, died at his home there on last Thursday, March 9th, after a life of nearly a century spent on the spot where he was born.

Mr. Friend was born on March 27th, 1825, and was the son of John Friend, one of the early settlers of Garrett county, who first resided at Friendsville, arriving there about the year 1798, later going up the river to Sang Run, where he settled and raised his family.

Mr. Friend was united in marriage to Mary Ann Riley on January 11th, 1855, whom he survived nineteen years. To them seven children were born, those surviving being Mrs. D. S. Custer, of Friendsville, Mrs. A. R. Fearer, of Terra Alta, W. Va., and Mr. J. Alvin Friend, of Sang Run, with whom the deceased made his home for the past number of years. He is also survived by seven grandchildren. For more than two-thirds of a century Mr. Friend was a local preacher of the M. E. Church and by both precept and example he led the way of right living and true obedience to the moral as well as civil law. He was a kind and devoted father; sympathizing, helpful and encouraging to those in adversity.

His funeral took place at Sang Run Sunday afternoon and was largely attended by relatives and friends from every section of the county.

On Thursday of last week the boys' basket ball team of Keyser came to Oakland to play the O. G. S. Team. While in town they visited our high school.

Last Friday Miss Breyfogle gave us an interesting talk on "Household Bacteriology." The following is the essence of her talk: The smallest and simplest of plants are the bacteria. They are so small that they cannot be seen without the aid of a powerful microscope. They live in the soil, air, water and foodstuffs. Some of these bacteria are of great value to man, while others are a great source of danger to man and animals. Bacteria are divided into two classes, the harmful and useful. The useful consist of the yeasts, and the germs that enable us to make butter and cheese out of cream and milk. The harmful are the disease germs, which we should be careful to subdue. She also gave us some valuable pointers as to how to prevent the spread of these disease germs.

Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Harned entertained the Senior class Tuesday evening.

Donald Sincell is absent from school on account of the mumps.

HENRY G. DAVIS DEAD

Former Senator Expires In Washington; Was 93.

Former United States Senator Henry Gassaway Davis, of West Virginia, Vice-Presidential candidate on the Parker Democratic ticket in 1904, died at Washington at 1:45 A. M. Saturday, after a brief illness. He was 93 years old.

Mr. Davis was stricken with grip about a fortnight ago while on a visit to his daughter, Mrs. Stephen B. Elkins, and was unable to withstand the attack.

Interment was made at Elkins, W. Va., home of the former Senator.

Henry Gassaway Davis' career was a remarkable and distinguished one. When he ran for the Vice-Presidency he was the oldest candidate ever known for that office. If Mr. Davis had been elected, the end of his term would have found him strong mentally and physically, and, indeed a second and even a third term of office would have passed with his mind and body still undanted.

Mr. Davis was born at Woodstock, Md., November 16, 1823, and received a meager education in public schools.

He saved his money and became a merchant and coal-land operator. His many ventures prospered exceedingly. His coal lands rose to almost fabulous value.

He was also successful as a railroad builder. Two of his lines were the West Virginia Central and Pittsburgh Railway, which was sold to the Wabash in 1902, and the Coal and Coke Railway of West Virginia.

A large section of West Virginia was almost created by the hand of Senator Davis. He built two towns, one of which, Davis, bears his own name, and the other Elkins, that of his son-in-law. His philanthropies were numerous.

Mr. Davis in 1853 married Miss Kate A. Bantz, daughter of Judge Gideon Bantz of Frederick, Md. His home was in Elkins. He leaves three children—Mrs. Stephen B. Elkins, widow of the late Senator Elkins of West Virginia, and Mrs. Arthur Lee, both of Washington, and John T. Davis, who lives in Elkins.

Senator Henry Gassaway Davis witnessed and participated in the great political epoch of American progress for more than three-quarters of a century. He was the "old fashioned gentleman" in the Senate. His utterances were those of the old Jeffersonian days.

"Liberty and free government have always been secured at the cost of great sacrifices," he said on one occasion. "But history teaches us that both can be easily lost without the knowledge of the people."

It is significant that he was born in the same year, 1823, that the Monroe Doctrine became a fundamental principle in American politics. During his distinguished career he sought to maintain it. He later represented the United States at two Pan-American conferences at which by his personality and speeches he strove to strengthen the bonds of friendship between North and South America.

Senator Davis' active political career began the year after the Civil War. He was elected a member of the House of Delegates of the new State of West Virginia, and next served as State Senator.

West Virginia sent him to the United States Senate as its first Democratic representative in 1871. He served two terms with distinction. He ceaselessly urged Congress to help the farmers by establishing an agricultural department. His own bills failed in passing, but he lived to see the day when his farsightedness was recognized.

A familiar figure in Presidential conventions, Senator Davis led his delegates from West Virginia to the nomination hall on seven occasions, probably a record for such services.

A year after he had retired voluntarily from the Senate he was urged to become candidate for Vice-President on the ticket with Grover Cleveland. He declined. He accepted the nomination, however, as running mate with Alton B. Parker.

The venerable Senator was not only a Democrat in politics, but he was a democrat in nature. He was the champion of liberty.

"Imperialism is hurtful and abhorrent in a free Government," he declared when accepting the nomination for Vice-President in the St. Louis Convention of 1904. "The policy of imperialism is always dangerous to liberty."

The great wealth of Senator Davis, estimated at $30,000,000, was acquired by his farsightedness and his ability to take advantage of opportunities. He was the eldest of five children, and at an early age, on his father's death, became the breadwinner of the family. At 19 years of age he was a farm hand on a Maryland plantation, having relinquished opportunities for an education in favor of the younger children.

His great business career began when he became brakeman on a freight train. His rise was rapid. At that time railroad trains did not run at night—it was too dangerous. At the approach of dusk they made for the nearest stations and waited for sunrise.

"It is a waste of time," insisted young Davis, who was then master of transportation.

He startled the veteran operators by sending out the first night train between Baltimore and Cumberland. It marked a new epoch in railroading.

At the close of the Civil War, the foundations of his fortune were rapidly and securely established. In 1867, Davis & Brothers purchased several thousand acres of land in Garrett county, Maryland. Timber for ties, bridges, and other purposes was supplied to the railroad company. Mr. Davis laid out on this tract the mountain resort of Deer Park, and constructed an elegant summer residence, where simple hospitality was extended all visitors.

The Deer Park investment having furnished him with sufficient funds, Mr. Davis began obtaining extensive tracts of land in the Cheat River and Upper Potomac regions and increased his wealth and fame rapidly. As a merchant, he made a small fortune. Then as a landholder in West Virginia, he came into possessions of coal lands which were destined to make him a prince of wealth.

No man surpassed Mr. Davis in amiability. His clear brown eyes were always laughing. He was invariably pleasant and approachable. His voice, ordinarily keyed to a low, soft, musical pitch, when occasion required took on the most surprising force and volume. The vehemence of these infrequent utterances belied the surface indications of under-strength. He was never garrulous, but always conversational.

One of the curious phases of his political life in West Virginia was his family connection with the late Stephen G. Elkins, who married his daughter. Both were rich, but Elkins was a Republican ruler of iron just as Davis was a Democrat. Each man was wont to boast that he had never been defeated when he ran for office in the State.

West Virginia went Republican when Senator Elkins ran for office. It went Democratic when Senator Davis ran for office. The two men lived in adjoining mansions—show houses of the South. They owned the same coal lands, the same lumber fields and were united in every interest.

It is said down in West Virginia that for a quarter of a century politics was never argued between them.

Mr. Davis was a very frequent visitor to Baltimore. When he was especially active in business he was interested in financial matters with a number of Baltimoreans and his personal and social relations with the people there were always close. He liked to consider himself a Marylander and not a stranger to this State. Two of his most intimate friends were the late William Pinkney Whyte and the late Arthur P. Gorman. At times Governor Whyte and Senator Gorman were far apart politically and worked in opposite directions, but the relations of the former West Virginia Senator remained cordial with both of them.

Senator Davis always remained "young" and adapted himself to the environment he found. He liked young people, they liked him and they were always congenial together. The acquirement of great wealth did not change the democratic nature of Mr. Davis and he was as plain as the proverbial old shoe and entirely lacking in ostenation. His early life had been full of struggles and he was always in sympathy with and ready to lend a helping hand to young men ambitious to make their way in the world.

Senator Davis and his brother, the late Col. "Tom" Davis, who was a bachelor, were very devoted to each other. "'Tom,'" the Senator used to say, "is the sport of the family." Colonel "Tom" was an enthusiastic lover of horses and of racing and he never missed a Pimlico spring or fall meet unless for some most excellent reason.

THE PEOPLE'S FORUM.

Snares.

Another of Satan's snares is gambling, but as I touched on this subject sometime ago I shall not discuss it at length now. It is one of his most popular and dangerous snares. He sets it in the home and many a short sighted mother introduces cards in her parlor ostensibly to keep the boys at home. She finds out her mistake when they become expert gamblers visiting the iniquitous dens, and her daughter marries a professional gambler who breaks her heart. Of course not all marry professionals but they turn their home into a gambling den and start their own as well as their friend's children off in the wrong direction. The end of such a life is full of sorrow—even death. It is well for us to remember that it was God who said, as you sow you will reap, and if you sow the wind you will certainly reap the whirlwind. When once entangled in a snare you will not get out without difficulty and very probably some scars and bruises. To say the least you endanger your soul and may lose both body and soul for your folly. There is something better to live for than the gratification of self or pleasure. We are living for the future. This is not our home. We are preparing for eternity. Where and what shall it be? This is seed time. Harvest comes bye and bye. If we sow good seed we may expect to reap a glorious reward. Though many things we engage in may not hurt us, yet for the sake of others who will be injured by them, we should give them up. The magnanimiity of self denial should prompt us to this course. If we are imbued with the spirit of Christ we will not hesitate to do this.

The chief aim and object of this life should be to seek and serve Christ, to be prepared for judgment and eternity. So long as we refuse to do this we are not fulfilling the mission for which our Creator designed us.

There are great possibilities in every one and if they are not destroyed or turned in a wrong direction, you may be benefactors of the world. What is the use of living to do those things which in after life we will regret and that we shall then see were of no benefit to us or the world. God intends us to be blessings to the world, then let us live as those who must give account. We hold life as a gift, but presently we must give it back. We may be called suddenly. We too may be called at our work or on the street. The Lord has spoken to us quite often.

We say how sad to be taken without a moments preparation, as if a few moments at the end of life, when the body is wrecked with pain and the mind is distracted and sudden fear has seized upon us, were enough to give to the proper preparation to meet our God. Nay, nay, a lifetime is given us, in which to prepare and if we waste our opportunities, disregard our warnings and reject the invitations of love and despise the Saviour's offers of mercy our doom will be fixed, our guilt will be great and it will rest upon ourselves. We alone are at fault and must bear the guilt. As the old adage puts it, "if we make our own beds we must sleep in them." We may be called to go without a moment in which to lift up a prayer for mercy, or we may be called after long and painful illness. No matter which, but if we are prepared, then sudden death is a blessing, for it means sudden glory. You are making an investment. Your deeds are laid up for the future as money is in a bank. You expect your money back with interest. Our lives are investments for the future. Each day and hour we are adding to the original sum, through our thoughts, words and deeds, but on the day of final account we shall receive again what we have deposited in the eternal treasury with interest. We may gain a hundred fold for the life to come. This ought to stir every soul. Consider how greatly we may sin against ourselves by continuing in rejection of Christ.

You are not laying up treasures in heaven, but on the contrary you are storing up treasures of wrath. You have committed many sins that have passed from your memory, but taking only those which you remember, how can you meet them at the judgment, If the Son of God is your advocate, you will be forgiven, and His blood will wipe out the record of past guilt. Blotted out! that is, as if it had never been. Every hour of delay diminishes your time for laying up treasures in heaven. Every hour you remain impenitent diminishes the amount you might have had.

What shall our investment be, my friend?

Every sin committed, and every good done for the Master, adds to your investment.—Either good or bad.

Every act of kindness, or self-denial for others, will appear in beautiful form. It will be a profitable investment. Your works shall follow you. Let it be our aim to increase the good deeds of life that they and the joys they bring may be multiplied in the world to come.

"Rouse to some work of high and holy love,
And thou an angel's happiness shall know,
Shall bless the earth, while in the world above;
The good begun by thee shall onward flow
In many a branching stream, and wider grow;
The seed that in these few and fleeting hours,
Thy hands unsparing and unwearied sow,
Shall deck thy grave with amaranthin flowers,
And yield thee fruit divine in heaven's immortal bowers.

The Liquor Question, The Legislature and the Whiskey Influence in Maryland.

(The following communication was written and forwarded to the Baltimore Sun by a prominent business man of Oakland while the Prohibition Amendment was being considered by the Maryland Legislature, but it failed to appear in the columns of that paper and has been handed The Republican with the request that it be printed in these columns—Editor Republican.)

Editor of The Sun:

It is apparent to all that the liquor interests of this State dominate the press of Baltimore City, but the question arises have said interests of the State of Maryland by the throat? This question is suggested by the report published in the Sun of the proceedings in the Maryland Legislature in regard to submitting to the people of the State as a whole, the question whether or not intoxicating liquors shall be manufactured and sold within its borders. As we understand it, in a democratic form of government, the right of the people to pass upon all important questions affecting their welfare, has never been denied, and when the majority of the people so expressed themselves, i became the supreme law: vox populi vox Dei. This right is accorded to the people on all other important questions and why should it be denied them when it comes to the liquor question? The proposition to submit this question to the people is now made in the Maryland Legislature, and the proposition is met by representatives of the liquor traffic, notwithstanding said traffic is represented by a minority of members, with a refusal to allow the people to express their views by popular vote on this very important question. If the liquor interests have the power to do this, how long will it be before they will say that the people cannot pass upon any important question? Where is this arrogancy to stop and is government by the will of the people to be abolished? We are told in a boasting and defiant manner by one of said interest's shining light in a speech opposing this measure in the Maryland Legislature the other day, that if this question was submitted to the people, and a majority of the voters of the State adopted it as the law of the State, that the liquor interests in Baltimore City would nullify this law; that its Grand Juries would not indict violaters of it; that the Petit Juries would not convict; that officers of the law, whose sworn duty it is to enforce the same, would violate their oath of office and refuse to discharge their duty. Can this be true, and if true, is it because the liquor interests have the city by the throat? We have heard rumors that such is the case, but this is the first time that we have ever heard it boast of the fact. Then again we notice that while its advocates are in the minority in the Legislature, it boasts that it has the power to block all legislation and bring the wheels of the State Government to a standstill, and threatens so to do, unless the people of the State bow down to this dragon. If these reports, as published, are true, it is about time for the people of the State to sit up and take notice. And if this monster can control the juries of the city and the officers of the law and block all much-needed legislation by the Maryland Legislature, then we must conclude that this arrogant boasting demon has its claws firmly fixed in the vitals of a part of the State at least, and should be destroyed before it throttles the entire commonwealth.

SUNDAY DRAWS MIGHTY CROWDS

Big Day of Campaign For Trail-Hitters.

MANY WOMEN CONVERTS

Mr. Sunday Hands Out Some Plain Truths, In Unvarnished Language, During His Famous Sermon, "When Chickens Come Home To Roost."

TOTAL ATTENDANCE SO FAR 435,000.

Fifty-six thousand people, 41,000 being men and youths, attended the three services at the tabernacle Sunday, bringing the total attendance for the campaign to 435,000.

Thirty-five hundred women attended a special service conducted in the afternoon in the Lyric by Mrs. Sunday and about 1,000 were at an overflow meeting in Associate Congregational Church. Seven hundred men, women and children attended a meeting in Abbott Memorial Presbyterian Church at night addressed by the Rev. Dr. James E. Walker, Billy Sunday's assistant.

The day's total of trail-hitters was 1,131, a record for the campaign, divided as follows: At the tabernacle, 1,067; at the Lyric, 40; at Abbott Memorial Church, 24. These made the total number of trail-hitters to date 2,797.

Baltimore.—Forty-one thousand men and youths attended Sunday afternoon and evening services at the great tabernacle, the largest two gatherings composed solely of members of the male sex ever housed in one building in Baltimore. The afternoon attendance was 20,000; the evening throng went 1,000 better. Between 8,000 and 10,000 men were turned away from the meetings, being unable to get in. Fifteen thousand men and women and children attended the forenoon service, bringing the day's congregations up to a total of 56,000.

Trail Record Also Broken.

As the size of all these congregations broke a record for Baltimore in attendance at religious services, so did the day's total of trail-hitters establish a new mark for the Sunday campaign here.

Eleven hundred and thirty-one persons hit the trail. At the morning tabernacle service the number who grasped Sunday's hand as he stood in his platform pit was 311, about half men, the balance being women and children; 406 men, youths and boys hit the trail at the tabernacle in the afternoon, and at night the number, all men, youths and boys, was 350, a total for the tabernacle of 1,067.

Big Day Of Campaign.

It was the "big day" of the campaign in all respects, so far as results were concerned, and Sunday made acknowledgment of the fact when, in concluding the evening service at the tabernacle, he gave thanks to God for "this memorable day in the history of Baltimore."

He preached on "Chickens Come Home to Roost," a sermon based on a text from the one hundred and fourth Psalm, "Let the sinner be consumed out of the earth and let the wicked be no more." Its keynote was an amplification of the Decalogue provision: "For the sins of the father shall be visited upon the children unto the third and fourth generation."

It was the sermon he had delivered in the afternoon, but his congregation was made up of other men than those who had packed the building for the service that started at 1.15 o'clock, 45 minutes ahead of schedule.

There was nothing sensational at either meeting in the trail-hitting. Men walked forward to the platform, shook Mr. Sunday's hands, then took their seats on the benches reserved for converts, and were held until the after meeting by the secretaries. Most of them appeared somewhat ill at ease, the faces of most of them showed awakened earnestness and a few of them wept.

"Chickens Come Home to Roost" was a sermon dealing with facts and figures, religious, moral, hereditary and pathological in a way that was frank to the point of brutality. Sunday hurled at his hearers statements that made some of them wince and others to show by their faces a distaste for such plain speaking. He flayed, of course, the saloon, the disorderly house, gambling, carelessness of conduct generally, and particularly "cussing."

"Men," he cried at night, "in God's name, even if you're not men enough to become Christians, if you're not decent enough to give your lives to Jesus, for God's sake stop that cussing."

Flays the Liquor Dealer.

He anathematized the liquor dealer, but particularly the man who would give liquor to boys.

"God," he cried, in a very paroxysm of rage, "you kill that old devil and take him out of the world, if he's got to give liquor to boys."

He cited statistics to show how the effect of alcohol was suffered by the sons and daughters of drinkers "unto the third and fourth generation;" read a poem by Ella Wheeler Wilcox to prove his point, and hammered in his moral by repeating: "Yes, they'll come home to roost, whether they are vultures or birds of paradise."

Spurred on by the applause that met a random shot at the liquor interests, he whirled around, pointed his finger at first one section of the congregation and then at another, and shouted:

"Yes, and I've got something to say about the things that rotten, dirty gang have done in Baltimore to defame my character. I'll cram it down your dirty throats, if you're here.

"If an emetic were thrown into the pit of hell the last imp thrown out would be an archangel compared to some of the hell-spawn of that dirty, God-forsaken gang right here in Baltimore."

When, concluding his sermon, he asked all those present who believed it to be right and manly to be Christrians to stand up, the great throng rose in a body.

Wins the Little Folks.

At the children's afternoon meeting the Tabernacle was packed by thousands, and the children had as much to do with preaching Rev. Billy Sunday's sermon as did the evangelist himself. And the vim they put into the meeting struck a new note in the campaign in Baltimore, while it revealed Mr. Sunday in an entirely new light, the light of a gentle adviser, a courteous and sympathetic teacher, a man with a keen insight into child psychology.

Grown-ups who heard him then, who saw the way he stirred the little ones without frightening them; saw them expand, saw their eyes light up with interest, and who heard him again at night when he flayed a great audience, denouncing as fools all those who would not accept Christ, marveled at the difference in the methods of preaching. The children he won with a smile; the men and women be belabored with barbed anathemas.

Both Sermons Bear Fruit.

But both sermons bore immediate fruit. At night men and women and youths and girls hit the trail to the number of 103. In the afternoon there was no formal trail-hitting, but 1,566 boys and girls, averaging around ten years of age, were enrolled as those who wished to put their feet upon the road of Christianity.

Two novel features made distinctive the boys and the girls' meeting. One of them was the showing, one by one, of flags of nearly all the Christian and a few of the non-Christian nations and the calling out of the names of those countries by the children. The other was the breaking of six highly decorated vases, of different designs, by the evangelist to illustrate the manner in which a small boy broke as many of God's Commandments on Sabbath morning.

Behind In Trail-Hitters.

It is intefesting to contrast the progress of the Baltimore campaign with that of Trenton for the same period of their progress.

Sunday was the thirteenth day on which Tabernacle meetings were held here, and the outstanding figures were: Attendance for the day, 56,000; trail-hitters for the day (at the Tabernacle and the two outside services), 1,131; total attendance to date, 435,000, and total of trail-hitters, 2,797.

Trenton's statistics for the first 13 days of meetings were: Attendance for the day, 39,000; total to date, 243,000; trail-hitters for the day, 741; total to date, 2,045; collections for the day, $2,221.74; total $13,708.08.

Baltimore's collections for the 11 days of Tabernacle meetings was $15,010.96.

Wants Live Christians.

"You can't double-cross God with that sort of bunk," Billy Sunday warned thousands at the tabernacle.

"I want to strike the death blow to the belief that a Christian has to hide like a sick pup in a garret, that he has to be a weak, namby-pamby, spineless, sissified effiminate, all-around hothouse proposition. God expects you to be as much of a man outside the church as you are in.

"The average man," he went on, "thinks he can gratify his senses all week and then beat it to church and sit with a glum look on his mug and get the notion in his noodle that he is fooling God. He thinks that God is not wise that he's been leading a rotten life six days of the week." And later, "some fellow asked me if I believed in a literal hell. I told him: 'Do I look like a fool?' By the time I dust out of Baltimore, you'll know that I believe in hell all right."

Mr. Sunday In Baltimore Society.

Several pages torn at random from the Blue Rock of Baltimore were at the home of Mrs. John Gill, 929 North Charles street, when Billy and Ma, two choristers and two other workers edged their way into the crowded hallway leading to the drawing room. Sunday dramatically told the thrilling story of Hermos.

BLUNDERS OF THE ADMINISTRATION

Wilson Has Failed In Foreign and Domestic Policies.

ROOT SHOWS HIS ERRORS.

Address as Temporary Chairman of New York Republican Convention Points Out Sins of Democratic Commission and Omission—"We Have Lost Influence Because We Have Been Brave In Words and Irresolute In Action."

In his address as temporary chairman of the New York state Republican convention, delivered in Carnegie Hall, New York, the Hon. Elihu Root said:

We are entering upon a contest for the election of a president and the control of government under conditions essentially new in the experience of our party and of our country. The forms and methods which we are about to follow are old and familiar, but the grounds for action, the demand of great events for decision upon national conduct, the moral forces urging to a solution of vaguely outlined questions, the tremendous consequences of wisdom or folly in national policy, all these are new to the great mass of American voters now living. Never since 1864 has an election been fraught with consequences so vital to national life. All the ordinary considerations which play so great a part in our presidential campaigns are and ought to be dwarfed into insignificance.

Democratic Party to the Bar.

For the first time in twenty years we enter the field as the party of opposition, and indeed it is a much longer time, for in 1896, in all respects save the tariff, the real opposition to the sturdy and patriotic course of President Cleveland was to be found in the party that followed Mr. Bryan. It is our duty as the opposition to bring the Democratic party to the bar of public judgment, to put it upon its defense so far as we see just and substantial grounds to criticise its conduct and to ask the voters of the country to decide whether that party, organized as it is, represented as it has been since it came into power, has shown itself competent to govern the country as it should be governed and whether its spirit, its policies, and its performance are the best that the American people can do in the way of popular self government.

In the field of domestic affairs some facts relevant to these questions had already been ascertained when in August, 1914, the great European war began. During the year and a half of Democratic control of government in a period of profound peace there had been a steady decrease in American production, in exports and in revenues and a steady increase in imports and expenditures. Enterprise had halted. The Democratic tariff had been framed upon an avowed repudiation of all protection, however moderate and reasonable, and because all protection was repudiated practically all information from competent witnesses as to the effect new provisions would have upon business was rejected. It was with just cause that the enterprise of the country halted, timid and irresolute because it felt and feared the hostility of government.

Foreign Competition After War.

The great war has not changed the lesson which we had already learned when it began. It has but obscured further demonstration. It has caused an enormous demand for some things which the United States is able to produce in large quantities, and in these lines of production, while other industries still languish, there have been extensive employment of labor, great exports and a great influx of money. But this is temporary. It must soon cease, and when the factories have stopped and their laborers are no longer employed we must deal with a situation for which wise forethought should make provision. More important still, the war has paralyzed the peaceful industries of all Europe and has stopped that competitive foreign production which in July, 1914, had already entered American markets to supersede American products under the tariff law of 1913. The war has thus given to American products an immunity from competition far more effective than any possible protective tariff. But that is temporary, and when the war is over, when foreign production begins again, the American market compared with impoverished Europe will be more than ever before the object of desire and effort, and we shall become the dumping ground of the world to the destruction of our own industries unless that is prevented by a wise and competent government.

How Can We Defend Ourselves?

But it is not from domestic questions that the most difficult problems of this day arise. The events of the last few years have taught us many lessons. We have learned that civilization is but a veneer thinly covering the savage nature of man. How can this nation, which loves peace and intends justice, avoid the curse of militarism and at the same time preserve its independence, defend its territory, protect the lives and liberty and property of its citizens? How can we prevent the same principles of action, the same policies of conduct, the same forces of military power which are exhibited in Europe from laying hold upon the vast territory and practically undefended wealth of the new world?

Have we still national ideals? Will anybody live for them? Would anybody die for them? Or are we all for ease and comfort and wealth at any price? Confronted by such questions as these and the practical situations which give rise to them, is the country satisfied to trust itself again in the hands of the Democratic party?

Impotent Inteference In Mexico.

The United States had rights and duties in Mexico. More than 40,000 of our citizens had sought their fortunes and made their homes there. A thousand millions of American capital had been invested in that productive country. But revolution had come, and factional warfare was rife. Americans had been murdered, American property had been wantonly destroyed, the lives and property of all Americans in Mexico were in danger. That was the situation when Mr. Wilson became president in March, 1913. His duty then was plain. It was, first, to use his powers as president to secure protection for the lives and property of Americans in Mexico and to require that rules of law and stipulations of treaties should be observed by Mexico toward the United States and its citizens. His duty was, second, as the head of a foreign power to respect the independence of Mexico, to refrain from all interference with her internal affairs, from all attempt at domination except as he was justified by the law of nations for the protection of American rights. The president of the United States failed to observe either of those duties. He deliberately abandoned them both and followed an entirely different and inconsistent purpose. He intervened in Mexico to aid one faction in civil strife against another. He undertook to pull down Huerta and set Carranza up in his place. Arms and munitions of war were freely furnished to the northern forces and withheld from Huerta. Finally the president sent our army and navy to invade Mexico and capture its great seaport, Vera Cruz, and hold it and throttle Mexican commerce until Huerta fell.

Americans Outraged In Mexico.

The government of the United States intervened in Mexico to control the internal affairs of that independent country and to enforce the will of the American president in those affairs by threat, by economic pressure and by force of arms. Upon what claim of right did this intervention proceed? Not to secure respect for American rights, not to protect the lives or property of our citizens, not to assert the laws of nations, not to compel observance of the law of humanity. On the contrary, Huerta's was the only power in Mexico to which appeal could be made for protection of life or property. That was the only power which, in fact, did protect either American or European or Mexican. It was only within the territory where Huerta ruled that comparative peace and order prevailed. The territory over which the armed power of Carranza and Villa and their associates extended was the theater of the most appalling crimes. Bands of robbers roved the country with unbridled license. Americans and Mexicans alike were at their mercy, and American men were murdered and American women were outraged with impunity. Thousands were reduced to poverty by the wanton destruction of the industries through which they lived. Yet the government of the United States ignored, condoned, the murder of American men and the rape of American women and destruction of American property and insult to American officers and defilement of the American flag and joined itself to the men who were guilty of all these things to pull down the power of Huerta. Why? The president himself has told us. It was because he adjudged Huerta to be a usurper, because he deemed that the common people of Mexico ought to have greater participation in government and share in the land, and he believed that Carranza and Villa would give them these things. We must all sympathize with these sentiments, but there is nothing more dangerous than misplaced sentiment.

When our army landed at Vera Cruz Carranza himself, who was to be the chief beneficiary of the act, publicly protested against it. So strong was the resentment that he could not have kept his followers otherwise. When Huerta had fallen the new government which for the day had succeeded to his place peremptorily demanded the withdrawal of the American troops. The universal sentiment of Mexicans required the peremptory demand, and the troops were withdrawn. Still worse than that, the taking of Vera Cruz destroyed confidence in the sincerity of the American government in Mexico, because every intelligent man in Mexico believed that the avowed reason for the act was not the real reason. The avowed purpose was to compel a salute to the American flag. Three hundred Mexicans were reported killed; seventeen United States marines were killed and many were wounded. At that very time Mr. Bryan, with the president's approval, was signing treaties with half the world agreeing that if any controversy should arise it should be submitted to a joint commission and no action should be taken until after a full year had elapsed. This controversy, slight as it was, arose on the 9th of April, and on the 21st of the same month Vera Cruz was taken. With the occupation of Vera Cruz the moral power of the United States in Mexico ended. We were then and we are now hated for what we did to Mexico, and we were then and we are now despised for our feeble and irresolute failure to protect the lives and rights of our citizens. No flag is so dishonored and no citizenship so little worth the claiming in Mexico as ours. And that is why we have failed in Mexico.

Policy of "Watchful Waiting."

Incredible as it seems, Huerta had been turned out by the assistance of the American government without any guaranties from the men who were to be set up in his place, and so the murdering and burning and ravishing have gone on to this day. After Huerta had fallen and the Vera Cruz expedition had been withdrawn President Wilson announced that no one was entitled to interfere in the affairs of Mexico; that she was entitled to settle them herself. He disclaims all responsibility for what happens in Mexico and contents himself with a policy of watchful waiting. And for the death and outrage, the suffering and ruin of our own brethren, the hatred and contempt for our country and the dishonor of our name in that land the administration at Washington shares responsibility with the inhuman brutes with whom it made common cause.

When we turn to the administration's conduct of foreign affairs incident to the great war in Europe we cannot fail to perceive that there is much dissatisfaction among Americans. Dissatisfaction is not in itself ground for condemnation. The situation created by the war has been difficult and trying. Much of the correspondence of the state department, especially since Mr. Lansing took charge, has been characterized by accurate learning and skillful statement of specific American rights.

Three Errors In European Policy.

A study of the administration's policy toward Europe since July, 1914, reveals three fundamental errors: First, the lack of foresight to make timely provision for backing up American diplomacy by actual or assured military and naval force; second, the forfeiture of the world's respect for our assertion of rights by pursuing the policy of making threats and failing to make them good; third, a loss of the moral forces of the civilized world through failure to truly interpret to the world the spirit of the American democracy in its attitude toward the terrible events which accompanied the early stages of the war.

First, as to power:

When the war in Europe began, free peaceable little Switzerland instantly mobilized upon her frontier a great army of trained citizen soldiers. Sturdy little Holland did the same, and both have kept their territory and their independence inviolate.

Great, peaceable America was farther removed from the conflict, but her trade and her citizens traveled on every sea. Ordinary knowledge of European affairs made it plain that the war was begun not by accident, but with purpose which would not soon be relinquished. Ordinary knowledge of military events made it plain from the moment when the tide of German invasion turned from the battle of the Marne that the conflict was certain to be long and desperate. Ordinary knowledge of history—of our own history during the Napoleonic wars—made it plain that in that conflict neutral rights would be worthless unless powerfully maintained.

The Democratic government at Washington did not see it. Others saw it, and their opinions found voice. Mr. Gardner urged it, Mr. Lodge urged it, Mr. Stimson urged it, Mr. Roosevelt urged it, but their argument and urgency were ascribed to political motives, and the president described them with a sneer as nervous and excited.

Wilson Has Shifted Ground.

But the warning voices would not be stilled. The opinion that we ought no longer to remain defenseless became public opinion. Its expression grew more general and insistent, and finally the president, not leading, but following, has shifted his ground, has reversed his position and asks the country to prepare against war. God grant that he be not too late. But the Democratic party has not shifted its ground. A large part of its members in congress are endeavoring now to sidetrack the movement for national preparedness, to muddle it by amendment and turn it into channels which will produce the least possible result in the increase of national power of defense. What sense of effectiveness in this effort can we gather from the presence of Josephus Daniels at the most critical post of all—the head of the navy department—when we see that where preparation has been possible it has not been made, when we see that construction of warships already authorized has not been pressed and in some cases after long delay has not even been begun?

If an increase of our country's power to defend itself against aggression is authorized by the present congress it must be largely through Republican votes, because all the traditions and convictions of that party are for national power and duty and honor.

As to the policy of threatening words without deeds:

When Germany gave notice of her purpose to sink merchant vessels on the high seas without safeguarding the lives of innocent passengers our government on the 10th of February one year ago informed Germany in unmistakable terms that in attacking and sinking vessels of the United States and in destroying the lives of American citizens lawfully traveling upon merchant vessels of other countries she would act at her peril. They pledged the power and courage of America, with her hundred million people and her vast wealth, to the protection of her citizens, as during all her history through the days of her youth and weakness she had protected them.

On the 28th of March the passenger steamer Falaba was torpedoed by a German submarine and an American citizen was killed, but nothing was done. On the 28th of April the American vessel Cushing was attacked and crippled by a German aeroplane. On the 1st of May the American vessel Gulflight was torpedoed and sunk by a German submarine and more than 100 Americans and 1,100 other noncombatants were drowned. The very thing which our government had warned Germany she must not do, Germany did of set purpose and in the most contemptuous and shocking way. Then, when all America was stirred to the depths, our government addressed another note to Germany. It repeated its assertion of American rights and renewed its bold declaration of purpose. It declared again that the American government "must hold the imperial German government to a strict accountability for any infringement of those rights, intentional or incidental," and it declared that it would not "omit any word or any act necessary to the performance of its sacred duty of maintaining the rights of the United States and its citizens and of safeguarding their free exercise and enjoyment."

Still nothing was done and a long and technical correspondence ensued, haggling over petty questions of detail, every American note growing less and less strong and peremptory until the Arabic was torpedoed and sunk and more American lives were destroyed, and still nothing was done, and the correspondence continued until the allied defense against German submarine warfare made it unprofitable and led to its abandonment, and the correspondence is apparently approaching its end without securing even that partial protection for the future which might be found in an admission that the destruction of the Lusitania was forbidden by law. The later correspondence has been conducted by our state department with dignity, but it has been futile. An admission of liability for damages has been secured, but the time for real protection to American rights has long since passed.

The brave words with which we began the controversy had produced no effect, because they were read in the light of two extraordinary events. One was the report of the Austrian ambassador, Mr. Dumba, to his government that when the American note of Feb. 10 was received he asked the secretary of state, Mr. Bryan, whether it meant business and received an answer which satisfied him that it did not, but was intended for effect at home in America.

"Too Proud to Fight."

The other event was the strange and unfortunate declaration of the president in a public speech in Philadelphia the fourth day after the sinking of the Lusitania that "a man may be too proud to fight." Whatever the Austrian ambassador was in fact told by the secretary of state, the impression which he reported was supported by the events which followed. Whatever the president did mean, his declaration, made in public at that solemn time, amid the horror and mourning of all our people over the murder of their children, was accepted the world over as presenting the attitude of the American government toward the protection of the life and liberty of American citizens in the exercise of their just rights, and throughout the world the phrase "too proud to fight" became a byword of derision and contempt for the government of the United States.

Later, in another theater of war—the Mediterranean—Austria, and perhaps Turkey also, resumed the practice. The Ancona and then the Persia were destroyed, and more Americans were killed. Why should they not resume the practice? They had learned to believe that, no matter how shocked the American government might be, its resolution would expend itself in words. They had learned to believe that it was safe to kill Americans, and the world believed with them.

Shaking Fist and Finger.

No man should draw a pistol who dares not shoot. The government that shakes its fist first and its finger afterward falls into contempt. Our diplomacy has lost its authority and influence because we have been brave in words and irresolute in action. Men may say that the words of our diplomatic notes were justified; men may say that our inaction was justified, but no man can say that both were wise and creditable.

I have said that this government lost the moral forces of the world by not truly interpreting the spirit of the American democracy.

The American democracy stands for something more than beef and cotton and grain and manufactures; stands for something that cannot be measured by rates of exchange and does not rise or fall with the balance of trade. The American people, informed by their own experience that is confirmed by their observation of international life, have come to see that the independence of nations, the liberty of their peoples, justice and humanity cannot be maintained upon the complaisance, the good nature, the kindly feeling of the strong toward the weak; that real independence, real liberty, cannot rest upon sufferance; that peace and liberty can be preserved only by the authority and observance of rules of national conduct founded upon the principles of justice and humanity; only by the establishment of law among nations, responsive to the enlightened public opinion of mankind. To them liberty means not liberty for themselves alone, but for all who are oppressed. Justice means not justice for themselves alone, but a shield for all who are weak against the aggression of the strong.

To this people the invasion of Belgium brought a shock of amazement and horror. If the public opinion of the world was to remain silent upon that, neutral upon that, then all talk about peace and justice and international law and the rights of man, the progress of humanity and the spread of liberty is idle patter, mere weak sentimentality; then opinion is powerless and brute force rules and will rule the world. If no difference is recognized between right and wrong then there are no moral standards. There come times in the lives of nations as of men when to treat wrong as if it were right is treason to the right.

The Wrong Done to Belgium.

The American people were entitled not merely to feel, but to speak concerning the wrong done to Belgium. It was not like interference in the internal affairs of Mexico or any other nation, for this was an international wrong. The law protecting Belgium which was violated was our law and the law of every other civilized country. That law was the protection of our peace and security. It was our safeguard against the necessity of maintaining great armaments and wasting our substance in continual readiness for war. Moreover, that law was written into a solemn and formal convention, signed and ratified by Germany and Belgium and France and the United States in which those other countries agreed with us that the law should be observed.

There was no question here of interfering in the quarrels of Europe. We had a right to be neutral, and we were neutral as to the quarrel between Germany and France, but when as an incident to the prosecution of that quarrel Germany broke the law which we were entitled to have preserved and which she had agreed with us to preserve we were entitled to be heard in the assertion of our own national right.

Neutral Between Right and Wrong!

Yet the American government acquiesced in the treatment of Belgium and the destruction of the law of nations. Without one word of objection or dissent to the repudiation of law or the breach of our treaty or the violation of justice and humanity in the treatment of Belgium our government enjoined upon the people of the United States an undiscriminating and all embracing neutrality, and the president admonished the people that they must be neutral in all respects in act and word and thought and sentiment. We were to be not merely neutral as to the quarrels of Europe, but neutral as to the treatment of Belgium, neutral between right and wrong, neutral between justice and injustice, neutral between humanity and cruelty, neutral between liberty and oppression. Our government did more than acquiesce, for in the first Lusitania note, with the unspeakable horrors of the conquest of Belgium still fresh in our minds, on the very day after the report of the Bryce commission on Belgian atrocities, it wrote these words to the government of Germany:

> Recalling the humane and enlightened attitude hitherto assumed by the imperial German government in matters of international right and particularly with regard to the freedom of the seas, having learned to recognize the German views and the German influence in the field of international obligation as always engaged upon the side of justice and humanity, etc.

And so the government of the United States appeared as approving the treatment of Belgium. It misrepresented the people of the United States in that acquiescence and apparent approval. It was not necessary that the United States should go to war in defense of the violated law. A single official expression by the government of the United States, a single sentence denying assent and recording disapproval of what Germany did in Belgium, would have given to the people of America that leadership to which they were entitled in their earnest groping for the light. It would have ranged behind American leadership the conscience and morality of the neutral world.

It was not to be. The American government failed to rise to the demands of the great occasion. Gone were the old love of justice, the old passion for liberty, the old sympathy with the oppressed, the old ideals of an America helping the world toward a better future, and there remained in the eyes of mankind only solicitude for trade and profit and prosperity.

Shrank From the Truth.

The American government could not really have approved the treatment of Belgium, but under a mistaken policy it shrank from speaking the truth.

Such policies as I have described are doubly dangerous in their effect upon foreign nations and in their effect at home. It is a matter of universal experience that a weak and apprehensive treatment of foreign affairs invites encroachments upon rights and leads to situations in which it is difficult to prevent war, while a firm and frank policy at the outset prevents difficult situations from arising and tends most strongly to preserve peace. On the other hand, if a government is to be strong in its diplomacy its own people must be ranged in its support by leadership of opinion in a national cause worthy to awaken their patriotism and devotion.

We have not been following the path of peace. We have been blindly stumbling along the road that continued will lead to inevitable war.

When our government failed to tell the truth about Belgium it lost the opportunity for leadership of the moral sense of the American people and it lost the power which a knowledge of that leadership and a sympathetic response from the moral sense of the world would have given to our diplomacy. When our government failed to make any provision whatever for defending its rights in case they should be trampled upon it lost the power which a belief in its readiness and will to maintain its rights would have given to its diplomatic representations. When our government gave notice to Germany that it would destroy American lives and American ships at its peril our words, which would have been potent if sustained by adequate preparation to make them good and by the prestige and authority of the moral leadership of a great people in a great cause, were treated with a contempt which should have been foreseen, and when our government failed to make those words good its diplomacy was bankrupt.

Upon the record of performance which I have tried to describe will the American people say that the Democratic party is entitled to be continued in power?

The defects of the present administration arise from two distinct causes. The first is the temperament and training of the president. The second is the incapacity of the Democratic party as it is represented in Washington both in the legislative and in the executive departments either to originate wise policies or to follow them when proposed by others or to administer them effectively if they are established. The Democrats in congress are never controlled except with a club, and government with a club is always spasmodic and defective.

We must not deceive ourselves by assuming that the critical period arising from the great war has passed. The real dangers and the real tests of the strength of our institutions lie before us. The most exacting demands upon the wisdom, the spirit and the courage of our country are still to be made. In this great conflict all forms of government are on trial, democracy with the rest. The principles of national morality are on trial. We must play our part in the universal trial whether we will or no, for upon the result depends directly the question whether our republic can endure.

What Are People to Expect?

But what are the people to expect if the Republican party is restored to power?

This much we can say now:

They may expect, with confidence, that their government will meet the economic situation with which we must deal immediately upon the close of the war, with a policy of moderate but adequate protection to American industry.

They may expect that the government will be administered with the honesty and efficiency which have marked Republican administrations in the past.

They may expect that the best possible course for the preservation of peace will be followed by a foreign policy which, with courtesy and friendliness to all nations, is frank and fearless and honest in its assertion of American rights.

They may expect that their government will stand for full and adequate preparation by the American people for their own defense. The Republican party loves peace and hates war; it abhors and will never submit to military domination; but it is composed of men who love our country and who deem that the independence, the liberty, the honor and the opportunity of the American democracy are not merely to be talked about with weak and flabby sentiment, but are to be maintained and safeguarded by the practical power of a virile and patriotic people. It is clearsighted enough to see that preparation for defense must have due relation to the possibilities of attack; that under the conditions of modern warfare much preparation must be made before a possible attack or all preparation will be impossible after the attack. The Republican party stands for a citizenship made competent by training to perform the freeman's duty of defense for his country. It stands for a regular army no larger than is necessary, but as large as is necessary to serve as a first line, a nucleus, a source of instruction and of administration for the army of American citizens who may be called upon to defend their country. And the Republican party stands for the gospel of patriotic service to our country by every citizen, according to his ability in peace and in war. It stands for a reawakening of American patriotism. It is not content that while the people of other lands are rendering the last full measure of devotion in sacrifice and suffering and dying for their countries America shall remain alone dull to the call of country and satisfied in the comforts and pleasures of prosperity.

Our Power For Peace.

They may expect that assured readiness for defense will give power to our diplomacy in the maintenance of peace.

They may expect that the power and will of a united people to defend their country will prevent the application to our peaceful and prosperous land of the hateful doctrine that among nations might makes right regardless of the rules of justice and humanity.

They may expect that the manifest, potential strength and competency of the nation will maintain the effectiveness and reality of that great policy of national safety which in the declaration of President Monroe forbade the destruction of our security by the establishment of hostile military powers in our neighborhood.

They may expect that their government will not forget, but will ever maintain, the principles of American freedom, the duties of America to the peace and progress of the world and those ideals of liberty and justice for all mankind which above all else make the true greatness of the American democracy.

THE WEEK'S DOINGS AT THE STATE CAPITAL

Status of Local Legislation for Garrett County.

STATE HOUSE ANNAPOLIS, MARCH 15.—If Baltimore City gets Annexation through this session, there will have to be a decided change in the situation. The first skirmish was scheduled to take place in the Senate last night, and if it amounted to anything one way or the other, it was favorable to the anti-Annexationists. There is considerable jealousy mixed up in the Annexation fight, and this very thing may kill the whole proposition. Senator Ogden, of Baltimore City, has a bill, and then there is the "Furst-Field" Bill. The latter is identified as the Bill most kindly regarded as the Baltimore Administration Bill, that being Mayor Preston, and believed to be the Bill which has been drawn just as the Mayor wanted it. It was drawn by City Solicitor Field, Mayor Preston's "Attorney General," and he has been here for the past week every day lining up the Baltimore City Delegates and as many of the others as he finds tractable. Frank Furst, of Baltimore, whose "power" in the primary for Harrington and later in the election was said to have been "some" power, is here to take charge of the City's interests in the Annexation matter. He is regarded as a man of exceptional influence in matters of this kind and he is credited with having had the Goodnow Commission idea accepted by the State Caucus.

WILL HAVE TO AGREE ON ONE BILL.

One of the very first things Mr. Furst must do will be to get the Baltimore City Senators and Members of the House to concentrate upon one or the other bills. There are said to be three in the Senate, but there seems to be only two "live" ones. Senator Ogden is a bit sentimental about the matter and has concluded that his name as a "Home Rule" statesman can be handed down to posterity best through an Annexation Bill bearing his name; hence, he is for the "Ogden Bill" first, last and all the time. The Preston-Furst people like the other bill because it was built by their own architect who drew the plans and specifications to suit the Mayor, and Senator Campbell, President of the Senate, introduced it and of course he, too, wants to see the "Ogden Bill" sidetracked. But there isn't any use at all for them to hope for Annexation until after they have decided upon one bill and throw all their reserves behind it, because the Members of the House outside Baltimore City will not interfere one way or the other until the Baltimore City people have determined upon their own bill. Members of the House—some of them, find objectionable features in both bills in the Senate, and some may favor one and some the other; and it will be difficult to live them up behind any Annexation Bill to be entirely frank and truthful about it.

ANOTHER CONGRESSIONAL CANDIDATE.

Annapolis just now—the State House particularly—is the political clearing house for candidates and booms. The candidates for the United States Senate of both political parties come here often; Mr. Bruce and Mr. Lewis are here frequently, but rarely on the same day, and Mr. France and Mr. Goldsborough drop in semi-occasionally "to look things over." The candidates for Congress, too, have made frequent pilgrimages to the City on the Severn and either Mr. Blair or Mr. Weinberg are here almost continuously, while Senator Zihlman, of course, remains here in the performance of his duties as State Senator for Allegany County and Republican Floor Leader in the upper branch. It must be said for Senator Zihlman, however, that he has been paying more attention to his public duties than he has to his campaign for the congressional nomination in the Sixth District, and this fact of itself has done him a great deal of good, because the people who come here see that he is industrious, watchful and a resourceful leader, and that he is conscientiously serving the people of his State while his alleged opponents are playing politics.

A factor that will have considerable bearing upon the contest for the Sixth District Republican nomination for Congressman has just been put to work, and that is the declared candidacy of Hon. George L. Kauffman, State Senator from Frederick County, who yesterday declared himself a candidate for the Congressional nomination. Senator Kauffman, coming from Mr. Weinberg's county, would seem to improve the situation for Senator Zihlman, but one can never tell these days just how one or another candidate is going to affect the prospects of others in the field. Senator Kauffman says he is not in the fight so much to defeat either of the other two aspirants as he is to secure the nomination himself. He stated yesterday to The Republican's Annapolis correspondent in declaring his candidacy, that he intends to make a thorough and vigorous canvas of the Sixth District and expects to meet most of the voters in the larger towns at least. Senator Kauffman stated that Mr. Weinberg is not an acceptable candidate to the rank and file of the Republican party, and that he (Kauffman) expects to represent that large element of Republican voters.

BOUND TO WEAKEN WEINBERG.

Nevertheless, Senator Kauffman's candidacy, however much the Weinberg managers try to belittle and ridicule it will have a considerable bearing upon Mr. Weinberg's future standing, and will to a greater or less extent weaken his chances. Senator Kauffman will divide the vote in Frederick County, and what he receives undoubtedly would go to Weinberg. But the most serious feature is that with a contest in his own county Mr. Weinberg will now be in the position of being an unwise selection as a candidate in the interest of a united party in the election, as it is always desirable to have a candidate who is the unanimous choice of his own county.

SENATOR ZIHLMAN ANSWERS WEINBERG.

Senator Zihlman, of Allegany county, candidate for the Republican congressional nomination in the Sixth District, yesterday sent the following letter to Mr. Weinberg at Frederick.

"Annapolis, March 13th, 1916.

"Hon. Leo Weinberg,
"Frederick, Maryland.

"My dear Mr. Weinberg:—

"I have received your letter of the 2nd instant, in which you request me to join you in a joint debate in order that the people of the Sixth Congressional District may be informed as to our respective fitness to represent them in Congress.

"In reply, would say that this challenge came as a complete surprise to me, as we are both Republicans, and, in the event of either of us being nominated, we will, of course, be bound by the provisions of the Republican Platform to be adopted at Chicago, in June.

"This being true, I can see no question open between us for discussion, as to enter into a joint debate suggests a difference of principles between the parties to that discussion, and so far as I am informed, it would be an anomaly for two men to debate and both take the same side of the question.

"Since, then, there are no public questions open for debate, there would be nothing left for discussion but our own personal merits or demerits, and, I am sure, it would not be in good taste or enlightening to the public, or conductive to party harmony at the November election, for us each to proclaim in pretended debate, our own merits or indulge in detraction of each other.

"You also suggest that the cost of this advertising plan be equally divided between us. The legitimate and necessary expenses of the campaign I am ready to discharge as a candidate, but being, as you probably know, a man of very moderate means (having been a working man up until a few years ago), I do not feel called upon to bear the large expense necessary to provide halls, music, etc., for the entertainment of the voters, which you seem so anxious to provide.

"I am, at present, confined to Annapolis on account of my duties both as the State Senator from Allegany and as the Republican Floor Leader (an honor which my colleagues kindly conferred upon me), hence, I will be in no way free until well along in April, or only a matter of days before the Primary Election takes place, and, therefore, I am forced to decline your invitation to a joint discussion, and will occupy the limited time left me after the legislative session is over, in personally meeting the voters of the Sixth District.

"In the meantime, it is natural that you should desire to get out and meet the people, and so far as I am concerned, you are entirely free to begin your campaign at once.

"Trusting you are well, and with kindest regards, I beg to remain.

"Very sincerely yours,
[Signed] "F. N. ZIHLMAN."

GARRETT COUNTY LEGISLATION.

Delegate Haydens "Twin Bills," Nos. 451 and 452, one providing for a bond issue of $1,500 for Loch Lynn Heights, Garrett county, and the other changing the date of the municipal election of Loch Lynn in order that the voters may pass upon the bond issue, passed the House and will have passed the Senate by the time this appears before your readers.

Senator Speicher's Bill No. 111, authorizing the Mayor and Common Council of Deer Park, Garrett county, to receive as a gift or purchase a tract of land not to exceed two acres to be used for a public park, passed the House and will be signed by the Governor this week. This is a bill to validate the title to a tract of land heretofore purchased by the authorities of Deer Park.

TWO BILLS KILLED.

Delegate Shartzer's Bill repealing the $500 personal property tax exemption law of 1914, was reported unfavorably by the House Ways and Means Committee and the report was adopted, killing the bill.

Delegate Fox's Bill repealing the law making it necessary for prospective voters to declare their intention to become citizens of Maryland one year before they can be registered, insofar as it applies to Garrett county, was reported unfavorably by the House Committee on Elections, and the unfavorable report was adopted, killing the bill.

TO SELL LAKE BROWN.

Senator Speicher before last week's adjournment, introduced a bill, "by request," authorizing the State Board of Public Works to sell the State's interest in 17 acres of ground at Lake Brown, near Oakland, Garrett county, which was referred to the Committee on Finance.

ANTI-SHIPPING BILL MAY BE KILLED.

Senator Speicher's Anti-Shipping Bill, introduced early in the session, and which passed the Senate some time ago, will be reported unfavorably by the House Temperance Committee, probably today. Delegate Shartzer says he intends to make an effort to have the bill substituted for the unfavorable report and save the bill if possible. It is doubtful if he will be able to do this, as the anti-Prohibition element in the House, will kill all such measures that now make their appearance, and Baltimore City Delegations particularly will oppose the Garrett county measure.

RESTRICTING POOL AND BILLIARD PARLORS.

Delegate Fox Monday night introduced a Bill regulating Pool and Billiard Parlors in Garrett county. The Bill provides for the closing of these places between 11 p. m. and 6 a. m., except on Saturday nights, and forbids boys under 16 years of age from playing and from loafing or loitering about the premises of Pool and Billiard Rooms. The Bill is fashioned after the Allegany county Bill, and a similar Bill which has been introduced by the Washington Delegation.

STATE HOUSE PERSONALS.

Mayor Charles H. Ashby, of Deer Park, has been spending several days in Annapolis and about the State House, looking after some legislation in which he is interested.

STATE HOUSE, ANNAPOLIS, MARCH 14.—Governor Harrington is receiving full credit for settling the Prohibition muddle, and so evident has been the Governor's influence that Dr. Hare, the superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League in Maryland, who led the fight for the Statewide Bill and lost, has dubbed the bill that has finally been passed "An Administration Measure," and gives the Chief Executive of the State full credit for bringing the factions together on the compromise bill and thus getting rid of a situation that threatened to tie up all further legislation at this session of the General Assembly. No one but Governor Harrington, it is admitted, could have accomplished this in the manner in which it was done—no one but Governor Harrington could have brought around those Senators and members of the House who were standing out for a "Statewide vote or nothing," and induced them to support the compromise effected by the McIntosh and Norris amendments.

NEITHER SIDE GOT WHAT IT WANTED.

Neither the "wets" nor the "drys" got the sort of bill they wanted, but each side accomplished something of the purposes it had been advocating. Baltimore City did not want to vote on the question at all, and the other side wanted both wet and dry sections to vote and make the "wet" spots wet or dry according to the majority as a whole, without affecting the dry portions one way or the other. Now Baltimore City must vote, and all other "wet" sections must vote, but the "dry" sections must keep out, and one section will not be affected by the vote in another. No matter how Allegany county votes, for instance, it can in no way affect Baltimore City, nor can the majority of Baltimore City one way or the other, affect Allegany county or any of the other units that are designated to vote in the bill, while the "dry spots" have no say-so in the election. Practically it is a Local Option Bill for Baltimore City, Baltimore County, Allegany, Frederick, Washington, and Prince George's Counties, with parts of Anne Arundel, Harford and Carroll Counties. These designated localities vote on the same day, but they decide the question of wet or dry only for their own section.

MANUFACTURING STILL TO GO ON.

Neither does it matter how any one or more of these designated "dry spots" vote so far as the manufacturers are concerned, the Norris amendment to the bill providing that breweries and distilleries that are at that time in operation anywhere, may continue in business, but provides that they shall not ship for sale any of their product into dry territory, or territory made dry by the vote provided for in the bill. This amendment was offered to protect the breweries and distilleries in Baltimore County and Baltimore City, where enormous sums are invested in those enterprises, Baltimore County alone claiming to have $15,000,000 invested in the manufacture of whiskey and beer. Of course, the protection thus afforded will avail in every other section of the State where breweries or distilleries exist, whether those sections go dry or not. Many of the "dry" members of the House and Senators in explaining why they voted for this bill, stated that it seemed to be the best they could get, and that "half a loaf is better than no bread at all."

SMITH AND SPEICHER "STAND PAT."

Senator Speicher, of Garrett county, and Delegate Smith, of Allegany, who introduced the Statewide Prohibition Bills in the Senate and House respectively, fought to the last against all compromises. The Garrett Senator was one of nine to vote against the bill after the Norris amendment had been put on in the Senate and Delegate Smith was one of the fifteen who voted against it in the House. Delegate Campbell, of Allegany, also voted on the last rollcall as he had voted on the first—for Statewide Prohibition vote or no vote at all. He, indeed, was alone in the Delegation in voting against the bill with the McIntosh amendment, Delegate Smith accepting the bill with that amendment as a compromise and in the belief that no other changes would be attempted.

The Governor will sign the bill passed last Faiday.

And so the fight is over—for two years more.

THE DEATH RECORD.

MRS. CARRIE BENDER.

Mrs. Carrie Bender, wife of Mr. Jacob J. Bender, merchant of Grantsville, died at her home last Friday night. The funeral services were conducted at the residence and at the M. E. church Sunday afternoon at two o'clock. Interment was made in the Grantsville cemetery.

Mrs. Bender is survived by her husband, one daughter and five sons, the youngest being about three years old. She was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Adam Fogle, of Salisbury, Pa., who are still living.

Mrs. Bender was afflicted with tuberculosis for nearly two years, and at times suffering most intensely. Her husband did all that a true husband could possibly do for his life-companion. He placed her under the care of expert physicians at the hospital of Johns Hopkins University and at the State Sanatorium. But both places failed to restore her to her former health. After failing to receive any help for Mrs. Bender away from home, he had built for her a sun-parlor adjoining the home residence. Here Mrs. Bender spent most of her days during the last year of life in this world, under the constant care of a well-trained nurse and skilful physicians who did everything possible to alleviate her suffering.

Mrs. Bender was a true Christian, a member of the M. E. church, always taking an active part in the affairs of her church, and a loving, devoted wife and mother. All who knew her feel confident that she has been translated from this life of tribulation into that spiritual life in the spirit world where she is free from pain and sorrow.

The brothers and many friends sympathize deeply with the surviving father and children in their sad hour of bereavement.

A FRIEND.

CLAUDE SHROCK.

On Thursday evening, Feb. 17, 1916, Claude Shrock, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Shrock, quietly passed away, after an illness of just one month. He was aged twenty years. It is, indeed, with much sorrow that we write of the death of one so young, and one whose afflictions seemed to make him nearer to us all. He bore his afflictions with much fortitude and patience. Life is a mystery and there is much that we cannot comprehend, but we know that God doeth all things well. He leaves to morn his sad taking away, a father, one brother and seven sisters, other relatives and a host of friends. The funeral was held at Fairview, by Rev. Frank Harvey. Interment in the Fairview cemetery.

A FRIEND.

WM. M. O. DAWSON.

Former Governor William Meekins Owens Dawson, of West Virginia, died at his residence in Charleston, W. Va., last Sunday morning after an illness of short duration, and was buried at Kingwood, W. Va., Tuesday to which point his body was conveyed by a special train. Governor Dawson was born in Bloomington in the year 1853. As a man he made and retained friends in every walk of life; as a leader in his party he was without equal and as a friend, as the editor of The Republican can testify, he was true and loyal, for he had evidence of this friendship over a quarter of a century. Mr. Dawson was a self-made man, struggling against odds from the lower walks of life until he finally filled with honor and distinction the Gubernatorial chair of his adopted State. He will be missed not only in West Virginia but among his Maryland friends as well.

WILLIAM G. BROWN.

Congressman William Gay Brown, of Kingwood, died at his Washington residence on last Thursday morning after an illness of a few hours of appoplexy, and was buried at Kingwood, his home, on Saturday afternoon. Mr. Brown's remains were taken through Oakland on a special train of five Pullmans Saturday morning and was accompanied by his family and a delegation of United States Senators and Congressmen. Mr. Brown is survived by his widow and two daughters, the youngest being but two months old.

Who would have thought that the tin can is a menace to the public health? The expert malaria investigators of the U. S. Public Health Service have found however that discarded tin cans containing rain water are breeding places for the mosquito which is the sole agent in spreading malaria. A hole in the bottom of the can might have resulted in the saving of a human life. Certainly it would have assisted in preventing a debilitating illness. Empty tin cans have no business about the premises anyway, but if we must so decorate our back yards, let's see to it that the can has a hole in the bottom.

War Prices Prevailing.

Not since the close of the Civil War have goods in all lines advanced as they have during the past six months. This is especially true of numerous lines handeled by us. Nails, iron, stoves, ranges, paints, oils, varnishes, dynamite, powder, roofing, building material, household supplies, etc., have all advanced and on many articles from 50 to 200 per cent. and in some cases more.

The iron reports of March 2nd say:

"The most important and serious questions that is before the trade now is that of how much material or merchandise will be available in the last six months of this year for the consumers, though willing to pay the advances.

"It is estimated by large manufacturers that if things go on as they are now buyers may not be able to get more than one-fourth of the amount of material or goods they will need in the last half of the year."

In order to take care of our trade we have bought and put in stock a large line of goods as handled by us, and on most lines have made very little advance although realizing the goods cannot be replaced at present prices, and in giving our trade and customers the advantages of our buying it is absolutely necessary to demand the cash with order for our goods, otherwise we would have to advance goods to a profit beyond the market prices that would make many lines so high that they could not be sold.

Manufacturers, jobbers and supply houses are demanding the cash for their goods, adding the advanced prices. To meet conditions and prices we are compelled to demand cash for goods sold believing it will be the best and most advisable plan we can adopt with the present conditions.

Yours,

J. M. DAVIS & SONS.

SENATE AND HOUSE BACK UP WILSON

Whether Villa Pursuit Leads to War or Not Congress Will Stand By President

INTERVENTION CONSIDERED

"Uphold the Hand of the President in This Emergency," Urges Rep. Kitchin, Democrat—"He Did the Only Thing," Says Mann.

Washington.—Both in the Senate and in the House of Representatives, President Wilson's determination to take decisive action in Mexico was hailed with general approval.

With the purpose of the punitive expedition, whether it leads to war or not, no fault was found either by Democrats or Republicans. Under the overshadowing possibilities of the border turbulence there was no disposition to press any objections to the course followed by the President.

The foremost consideration, which apparently actuated members of both houses, was to put a stop to the Mexican atrocities, whatever the cost. So long as the Administration is moving toward that end it will be given a free hand.

Representative Cooper, ranking Republican member of the House Foreign Affairs committee, brought up the question of the right of the President to send troops beyond the territorial limits of the United States without the consent of Congress when the Committee met to hear what the President had done and to discuss the situation. He showed no inclination to press this question.

In the House, Representative Mann, the minority leader, and Representative Kitchin, the leader of the majority, found themselves in accord.

"The President did exactly the right thing," said Mr. Mann.

"He will get the support, united from all sides. He did the only thing, the proper thing, that could be done. It is not war."

"I am willing to let the Administration catch Villa," said Mr. Kitchin. "I favor any authorizations by Congress necessary and proper to uphold the hand of the President in the emergency.

INTERVENTION LIKELY—TAFT.

U. S. Justified in Chasing Villa, Says Ex-President.

Boston.—Ex-President Taft, speaking before the Unitarian Club, asserted that the United States was justified in chasing Villa into Mexico.

"If we are forced to intervene," he said, "it will be justified, because we have a right to object to a condition of anarchy in a country immediately adjoining ours so long continued as to become an international nuisance.

"I entirely acquit the present Administration of any desire to involve us in war with Mexico.

"I am glad to hear that a sufficient force is being sent after him. We should hope that we may not have to enter upon a general intervention, because that will be a serious matter and involve consequences the scope of which we cannot measure. But that there is ground for thinking it probable none can deny."

VILLA FINANCED IN U. S.—LIND

Interests Eager for Intervention Inspired Invasion, He Says.

Minneapolis.—That Villa's incursion and the Columbus killings were inspired and financed by interests on this side of the border was charged by ex-Gov. John Lind, recently confidential representative of President Wilson in Mexico. He intimated that they were trying to force intervention.

Mr. Lind made the suggestion that the two Governments agree on a neutral zone along the border, to be policed by armies of both countries in order to suppress Vila and his bandits.

"Villa undoubtedly was inspired and financed by interests on this side," said Mr. Lind. "But if there had been a neutral zone, with adequate police protection cooperating from both sides, even his incursion could have been prevented."

Washington Backs Up Slocum.

Washington.—Washington stands squarely behind Colonel Slocum in sending his cavalrymen into Mexico in pursuit of Francisco Villa and his band of outlaws who raided Columbus, New Mexico, murdering American soldiers and citizens and firing the town.

Secretary Lansing informed the de facto Government of Mexico, through Eliseo Arredondo, its Ambassador designate here, that he trusted no objection would be made to the action of the American troops.

IRISH SHIP SERVICE SUSPENDED.

Strike of Crews Cuts Off Belfast and Fleetwood.

Belfast.—Owing to a strike of the crews of steamships plying between Belfast and Fleetwood and Heysham, England, the service was suspended and there is no probability that it will be resumed soon.

Belfast is already congested with merchandise and the stoppage will seriously augment the block.

STATE CAVALRY FOR BORDER

President Considers Asking for Five National Guard Regiments

GREAT NEED OF HORSES

Infantry of Texas, New Mexico and Arizona Likely to Be Used—Hay Act Permits National Guard to Enlist in Volunteer Army.

Washington.—President Wilson acted on the calling out five regiments of National Guard cavalry to go to the border to do patrol duty there in place of the regular soldiers who are being sent into Mexico in pursuit of Villa.

In case the President calls on the National Guard, cavalry regiments from New York, Pennsylvania, Michigan, Ohio and Illinois, all regarded as "crack" regiments, will be chosen for patrol duty at the beginning.

Infantry regiments in Texas, New Mexico and Arizona will also probably be called on. Each of these States has a complete regiment of infantry ready for service. Texas in addition to the regiment of infantry has available three troops of cavalry. There are approximately sixty-five men in each troop.

Should the National Guard regiments be sent to the border their service will be confined to American soil unless a general war with all factions in Mexico results.

Terms of the Hay Act.

In that event, under the terms of the Hay act, which was passed at the time of the taking of Vera Cruz two years ago, the National Guard regiments will have an opportunity to enlist as a body in the volunteer army. Should war ensue and should they enlist the regiments which are being sent to the border are most likely to see service in Mexico earlier than other militia or volunteer organizations.

"The President is said to want five regiments of cavalry," said one officer, "but the National Guard cannot furnish these regiments at present fully equipped to take the field. I fear it will be difficult to get sufficient horses of the proper kind. This country has been depleted of its best army horses and mules during the last eighteen months."

'DARK HORSE' MAY WIN G. O. P. RACE

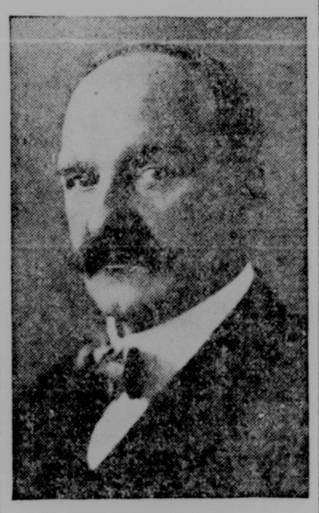
REPUBLICAN LEADERS LOOK FOR PRACTICAL BUSINESS MAN TO HEAD TICKET.

COLEMAN DU PONT NAMED AS LIKELY CANDIDATE

Delaware Man Has Splendid Reputation as a Self-Made Leader in Constructive Business.

With the Republican convention only a scant twelve weeks away, the most popular topic of conversation in political circles these days concerns the G. O. P.'s choice of a candidate to run against Wilson.

The Republicans will probably go back to old principles and look for a candidate who will command the support of the same army of voters who elected McKinley, when a wave of patriotic common sense swept the country, and business men by the hundreds of thousands marched the streets demanding a practical government. It is interesting to note that the name of General Coleman du Pont, of Delaware, has been repeatedly mentioned recently as the man eminently qualified for the nomination. To those who look upon the government as a big business concern demanding the supervision of a trained business man, the name of General du Pont carries a strong appeal, for there is no man more qualified to handle the big problems of today than this same self-made leader in constructive business. Moreover, both the public and private record of General du Pont will stand up well under the searchlight of political opposition.



GENERAL COLEMAN DU PONT.

Coleman du Pont was born in Kentucky and started his working life in the mines of the Blue Grass State. He stands today as one of the few successful men who have acquired their positions by methods that will stand scrutiny. He has been a producer—not a stock jobber. He has never antagonized any class of people. Capital and Labor alike admire him.

Without self-advertisement he does more charity than do most men. He is an ardent advocate of good roads and believes that a really perfect system of highways will enhance the farmer's income and reduce the cost of living to the cities. He has built roads and given them to his state, always with a sound business scheme to perpetuate them and save them from being a burden to the taxpayers.

He comes from a family more American than most—a family identified with the building of the nation since the Revolution. His grandfather was Thomas Jefferson's most valued personal friend and advisor in the time of great need during the dark days of the Republic.

The great Powder Company with which he was formerly identified has supplied our government with all its powder at a price always named by our government officials themselves and never by the company.

Because of his great executive ability and high standing in the business world, some of the shrewdest political minds in the country consider him as being one of the most likely "dark horses" for the Republican nomination. They point to the fact that his success in life would eliminate any need for a friendly Colonel House, or any other financial influence standing ever behind the presidential chair. Nor would he be compelled to take orders from any man or group of men.

Another factor that the supporters of General du Pont are pointing to is his knowledge of military affairs. For sixteen years he has been identified with the soldiery of his state and is thoroughly alive to the necessity for preparedness. He has also had practical training in politics, having been a delegate to a number of State and National conventions, and serving as a member of the Republican National committee for many years.

It is the splendid business training of General du Pont that is pointing the way for him to the nomination. For it is conceded on all sides that the biggest problems of this country at the close of the European war will be business problems, and there are few men among those mentioned, who have had his experience in coping with such huge problems. As a manager of constructive business and as a reorganizer, Coleman du Pont stands in a class by himself.

THE POLITICAL POT

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Republican success at the polls next November, in the opinion of Senator Weeks, of Massachusetts, depends largely upon the work done in Congress this session by the Republican leaders and the large number of new members who came into office last December.

"With the opening of the present Congress, the Republicans found themselves restored almost to a majority," Senator Weeks recently said; "and whether we shall be restored to an actual majority, with a Republican in the White House, in the coming elections depends very largely upon our conduct during the remainder of the session. The country is looking to the Republican party as it has seldom looked to any party before. It looks to us to voice its protests against the hardships and humiliations that have been brought down upon it during the past few years. It is the exact opportunity that the party needs, and I feel assured that we will take the fullest advantage of the opportunity. If we do our duty, the country will do the rest."

How about a Vice-President? We haven't heard very much about that, as yet, except that some of the friends of United States Senator Wesley L. Jones, of the State of Washington, have suggested that he is just the man for the place. Senator Jones, during the period when his State elected a Democratic governor, three Republican and two Bull Moose Congressmen, remained a sturdy Republican of progressive character, and was re-elected to the Senate by an overwhelming majority. The Pacific Coast has long had an ambition to figure in the party's national ticket, but realizing that the time is not yet ripe for them to capture the Presidency, they have their eye upon the Vice-Presidency, and that is why Senator Jones is being put forward as a man who would be a material addition to the ticket.

This is a busy time for the "Movie" men at the national capital. The city is so full of Presidential possibilities that it requires the constant presence of a battery of "movie" operators in the vicinity of the Capitol to get these distinguished men onto the films which are sent broadcast throughout the country.

"It's an easy way to travel," said Senator Weeks, recently, after going through the paces before a moving picture machine: "That picture will travel all around the country, while I can stay here and attend to business."

Congressman Martin Madden, of Illinois, has discovered a happy illustration of the exact relation of the Republican tariff to the country at large. He says:

"The Republican party looks upon tariff as it would upon a peddler's license. If a peddler comes into a town and sells goods, he must first go to the City Hall and secure a license. For this license he must pay a sum fixed by the town authorities or he cannot sell his goods. Why is this precaution taken? Because the peddler is there to sell in competition with local merchants who pay rent, pay taxes, maintain lights, pay the police, provide fire protection, employ citizens of the town, spend their money in the town, paving the streets and keeping them clean, while the peddler sells his goods, leaves the town and takes away his money with him. When he pays the license he is forced to leave something to help to maintain the Government."

The intimate friends of Senator Weeks call him "Captain," because that is probably what he would have been by this time if he had remained in the United States Navy. He served three years on the high seas under the Stars and Stripes, learning to be an officer, and then when he had completed this training there were more officers than ships, and together with several score of his classmates, he was mustered out of service. If he becomes Captain of the Ship of State next November, he will feel repaid for the disappointment of his youth.

SENATOR HENRY CABOT LODGE
Of Massachusetts.

Senator Lodge, of Massachusetts, who is one of the country's great authorities on foreign affairs, began his service in Congress twenty-seven years ago. He has recently issued a strong endorsement of the candidacy of his colleague, Senator John W. Weeks, of Massachusetts, for the Presidency. He said, in part:

"As to presidential candidates, Massachusetts will be for Senator Weeks. Personally, I shall do all in my power for him. I have the highest regard for him, as well as the greatest confidence in his ability, his character, and his strength of purpose, which is accompanied by sanity of judgment and thorough good sense."

FRENCH GUNS STOP INFANTRY ATTACKS IN VERDUN BATTLE CHARGES NET GERMAN GAINS

German Advance Ended With Capture of Small Trench Near Eix---Russians Make New Gains---Take Positions in Galicia---Seize Persian Town

RUSSIANS MENACE TREBIZOND ON THE BLACK SEA

London.—The tremendous bombardment of the German lines in the region of Verdun by the French has prevented infantry attacks by the Crown Prince's army since the Teutons fought their way into a small French trench just north of Eix.

The Russians have increased their offensive in the Dniester district of East Galicia and have captured trenches from the Germans.

The Czar's army in Persia has made rapid progress in the campaign against the Turks and has taken the town of Kirind, the direction of Bagdad.

The Italians have renewed their attack on Gorizia, on the Isonzo front, and their artillery for the last forty-eight hours without interruption has been dropping shells on the southern part of the town. The bombardment is regarded as preliminary to an infantry attack in force.

In the fighting around Verdun an artillery duel of great intensity is under way on both sides of the Meuse from northwest of the city along the entire front to the southeast of the fortress. The expenditure of ammunition is as great as at any stage of the battle.

The Germans say they have captured in the twenty-one-day conflict 26,472 unwounded French officers and men and 189 guns and 232 machine guns.

To the south of the Somme River, in the Argonne forest and in the Bande-Sapt sector of the Vosges, the French guns have heavily bombarded German intrenchments.

Paris reports that eighteen aerial battles have been fought in the region of Etain, in which the Germans were put to flight.

Artillery battles of great intensity have been fought on the whole Belgian front. A bomb encounter took place south of the "Ferryman's House."

The Russians admit the sinking of a Russian torpedo boat destroyer by a submarine of the Central Powers in the Black Sea off the Bulgarian port of Varna. Part of the crew of the destroyer was rescued.

The British fleet auxiliary Fauvette, a vessel of 2,640 tons, has been lost, together with fourteen members of her crew, by striking a mine off the east coast of England.

ENORMOUS GERMAN LOSSES

Paris.—Enormous losses were sustained by the Germans in their continued assaults in mass formation on the French positions, northwest and north of Verdun. The Paris official report said that the French "curtain of fire" from artillery and rifles completely checked these attacks.

Particularly violent have been the attacks of the Germans to the north of Verdun, around Douaumont, the village of Vaux, Fort Vaux, but, according to Paris, they went for naught.

The Germans were thrown in solid formation against trenches of the French bordering the foot of the slopes of the ridge dominating Fort Vaux, which the latest German official report said the Germans had capture, but the French brought their curtain of flame into play and drove back the attacking forces.

To the west of the Meuse, midway between Bethincourt and the river the French have continued on the offensive against the Germans in the Corbeaux wood and are officially reported to have driven the Germans from almost all of that important salient.

Hill 265, to the southeast, and a portion of Corbeaux Wood, directly south of Forges, have been occupied by them through strong infantry attacks which were preceded by extremely heavy bombardments. The town of Fresnes in the Woevre also was captured.

DIED CHEERING FOR FRANCE

Troops on Lost Provence Returned Commander's Last Salute.

Paris.—"Commandant Vesco of the Provence, remaining on the bridge to the last second, dominated the tumult by his voice crying: 'Adieu, my boys.' The men massed in groups on the forward deck replied with enthusiastic cries of 'Vive la France.'"

Thus writes Maurice Bokanowski, a member of the Chamber of Deputies to President Poincare regarding the sinking of the French cruiser.

LOTTERY BONDS FOR BRITISH

Proposals for Next War Credit Find General Favor.

London.—The market pages of the leading morning newspapers are featured by a discussion of the new proposals for an issue of premium bonds, or lottery bonds as they have been less politely called, the holders of which would share at frequent intervals in the distribution by drawings of large bonuses or prizes.

The Times, Morning Post and Daily Mail all favor the proposals.

GERMAN ENVELOPING MOVE.

London.—Intensifying the great German enveloping movement which is designed to squeeze the French out of the fortress of Verdun, the Crown Prince drove his armies two miles farther into the French front, northwest of the stronghold, occupying seven square miles of territory in the late gain, taking two villages, two woods, 4,046 more French prisoners and 10 guns.

Berlin claimed new successes on both wings of the German armies about Verdun, the capture of the villages of Forges and Regneville and the Raben and Cumieres woods.

Through a vigorous French counter attack in the Bois de Corbeaux which, except for a fringe, Paris asserts has been retaken, the German offensive west of the Meuse has apparently been slowed down. The French also claim the repulse of violent attacks on Bethincourt, the most advanced point of their line, although east of the Meuse the loss of the Hardaumont redoubt is admitted.

In Alsace the French recovered in hand grenade attacks some of the trench positions taken by the Germans in the Seppois sector on February 12.

On the Caucasus front the Russian cavalry is closely pursuing the fleeing Turks southwest of Erzerum and increasing the number of prisoners and guns. In the direction of Bitlis the Turks are abandoning their supplies in their retreat. The Russians have occupied Kamalk and the Nekevand Covent, seven miles from Bitlis.

Rome.—Dispatches from the American Embassy at Constantinoule to the State Department say that the American Consul at Trebizond has taken over the Archives of the German Consulate there. The nearness of the advancing Russian forces caused the departure of the German Consul. The fall of the city is imminent.

The harbor of the captured Turkish town of Rizeh, on the Black Sea, will be used by the Russians as a naval base for operations against Trebizond, 38 miles to the west.

Turkish and Persian troops, under German officers, are evacuating the Persian city of Ispahan before the Russian advance.

Ispahan lies 210 miles south of Teheran and formerly was the metropolis of Persia, boasting nearly 1,000,000 inhabitants. Its present population is less than 100,000.

Turkish troops who had been concentrated along the Danube, with headquarters at Rustchuk, destined to aid the Bulgarians in the case of a Russian invasion, were withdrawn immediately after the Russian successes in the Caucasus and rushed to Turkey, where they followed German troops, especially artillery, for defending the Bulgarian Black Sea and Aegean coasts, declared Petrograd.

The Germans on the upper Stripa region of the Russian front are said by Petrograd to have suffered heavy losses in a counter-attack made on a position captured by the Russians.

An official communication issued in London says the British force which was attempting to relieve the siege of Kut-el-Amara and which had reached Essinn, seven miles east of the beleaguered town, has been forced, because of lack of water, to fall back to the Tigris River.

The Turks assert the British retired after their ejection from a Turkish trench they had captured and that they left behind them 2,000 dead.

PITH OF THE WAR NEWS

According to confidential statements made by the French Minister of War, General Gallieni, at the military conference, the French casualties up to March 1 amounted to 600,000 dead and 1,400,000 wounded. Among the latter, the dispatch adds 400,000 were severely wounded.

Two German aeroplanes were shot down, Paris stated; one falling in flames near the French lines close to Thiaucourt, and one within the Allies' front in the Argonne.

Rumania has seized 50,000 wagonloads of cereals which had been sold to Germany.

The Germans in a series of infantry attacks recaptured part of the Corbeaux Wood to the northwest of Verdun Wood to the northwest of previously driven them. . .Their losses were extremely heavy.

East of the Meuse River, while clearing the French from Corbeaux forest and the position at Bethincourt, the Germans captured 6 officers, 681 men and 11 cannon, says the Berlin statement.

Portugal's Legation in Paris announced that "a state of war exists between the Portuguese Republic and the German Empire."

GRANTSVILLE.

A housekeeping shower was tendered William Gnagey on Tuesday night at the home of his sister, Mrs. Clarence Loechel. His three sisters, Mrs. J. U. Stanton, Mrs. C. C. Beachy and Mrs. Loechel were hostesses, providing most delicious icecream, cake and coffee for the occasion. Games provided amusements during the evening. Mr. Gnagey received some very handsoms and useful presents, including linens, cutlery, china, glassware and kitchen utensils, and was a very surprised young man when his neighbors appeared upon the scene, but gracefully and feelingly acknowledged the favors conferred upon him. The guests included Misses Carrie Diefenbach, Lota Stanton, Winifred Bonig, Clara and Minnie Miller, Maud Bevans, Ruth Keller, Angela Getty, Blanche Miller, Gertie Hone, and Lulu Warnick; Mesdames John Zehner and son Roy, Joel H. Miller, Irene Hayes, Albert Swauger, Susan Durst, Ida Hershberger, H. C. Bonig and C. B. Getty; Messrs. Henry Baker, Benton Callas, Charles Keller, Frank Stanton, U. O. Blocher, W. E. Stanton, Frank Younkin, John Younkin and John Livengood; Dr. and Mrs. G. C. Keller, Dr. and Mrs. J. A. Carney, Mr. and Mrs. Mark Twain Bender, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Younkin, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Zeller, Mr. and Mrs. J. U. Stanton, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Loechel, Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Beachy. The husbands of the hostesses obligingly brought the guests to and from the party in their sleds and every one enjoyed the occasion immensely. Mr. Gnagey, who is unmarried, recently bought the S. C. Loechel farm and will take possesion April 1st, with Mrs. Jonas Beachy, his foster mother, as his housekeeper until he tires of single blessedness and takes as his bride one of Maryland's fair daughters.

On Tuesday evening a sleighing party from Frostburg partook of a chicken and waffle supper at the National Hotel returning before midnight.

On Wednesday night a sleighing party from Salisbury, stopped at the same hotel for refreshments, the party being made up of the Boy Scouts and Camp Fire Girls, chaperoned by Misses Florence Maust and Mima Harding.

On Tuesday night a party of girls and boys from this place chaperoned by Miss Dorothy Younkin and Miss Evelyn Beachy, drove to Salisbury in Wm. Winterberg's sled. This crowd included the intermediate grades and a few of the eighth and ninth grades. Refreshments and moving pictures afforded the diversion.

On Friday evening a crowd of thirty-two from Frostburg were guests for a chicken and waffle supper at the Victoria Hotel, Miss Marshall acting as chaprone. The crowd came up in several sleds and were senior high school girls.

The basketball season has been active the past week. The Grantsville boys played the Oakland Collegians on Tuesday and were defeated by that team, but enjoyed the evening and the trip to Oakland very much. The Jolly Boys from Salisbury played the Boy Scouts at this place on Thursday evening, the score being in favor of Grantsville.

On Friday night the Salisbury Boy Scouts and Grantsville Scouts played here, victory again being Grantsville's, by a score of 13-10. The trip over was made in sleds each night, the game being held in Broadwater hall.

A surprise party was given to Miss Althea Engle at the Engle apartments, West Main street, on Thursday night. About two dozen boys and girls, each armed with a package of "eats," turkey-trotted up to her home and proceeded in their usual thorough manner to have a good time until a late hour when refreshments were in order and they dispersed.

Dan Hershberger entertained a few of his friends on Wednesday night at his home, games being the diversion. About eight guests were present. Dainty refreshments were served.

Menno J. Miller, the popular garage manager of this place, has sold his business interests to Daniel Klotz of Bittinger, who will take possession in the early spring. Mr. Miller has not as yet decided where he will locate but has several good openings in view. Grantsville will lose in his removal one of her best citizens—loyal, warm-hearted and zealous—and both he and his pretty, hospitable wife will be greatly missed socially in the community. Mr. Klotz comes well recommended as an alert business man of sterling quality.

STEYER

Our village has not been represented in your columns for some time, have decided to write some of the brief occurances.

Farmers around here are anticipating a good sugar season this year. Those not having tapped yet are busily preparing to do so as soon as weather conditions are favorable.

Several families have moved to our town recently most of whom are employees of the Miller Lumber Co., at Wallman, Md. The mill runs every day and the work is progressing nicely in every respect.

C. E. Shillingburg has been quite busy hauling cross ties and pulp wood for the past three weeks.

James B. Shockey was visiting friends and relatives in Steyer one day this week.

The coal miners here are working every day. Some few days ago mining was slack on account of a scarcity of railroad cars. Mines are also being opened up on the property of W. T. Steyer.

JENNINGS

We are having some pretty even winter weather at present. The ice cutters are busily engaged at filling up the icehouses. The ice is not very thick but if they miss this, the probability is they will not get the icehouses full as usual.

This weather is good for sliding logs and makes log-hauling in general much easier.

Daniel Klotz purchased the garage of Menno Miller at Grantsville, Md., and took possession on the 6th inst. Daniel is a good blacksmith and general repair man and we believe he will make a very successful garage man.

REPUBLICANS

Why not nominate a candidate for United States Senator who will command the full party support, who will be accepted to the Progressives and who can win?

Isn't party victory at a time when the entire country is looking to Maryland to elect a Republican Senator more important than honor for any individual?

The situation demands the nomination of

Dr. JOSEPH IRWIN FRANCE

He Can Command the Full Republican Vote

Hon. W. P. Jackson.

National Committeeman

"I have thus slowly but inevitably come to the conclusion that our party should nominate Dr. France, and that I as one deeply interested in its welfare, should give him my outspokeu and vigorous support.—The Sun, March, 1st. 1916.

Hon. O. E. Weller

The man who received the greatest number of votes ever given a Republican in Maryland:

"He (Dr. France) is a man of force, of parts, of intellectual attainments, of ability, of attractive personality and with the courage of his convictions . . . . It is a pleasure, a privilege and a party duty to me to give him my hearty support.—The Sun, February, 28th 1916.

Hon. Charles H. Heintzeman

Last Republican candidate for Mayor and prominent anti-Stone leader in Baltimore City:

"I will support Dr. Joseph I. France for the nomination for the United States Senate in the primaries because I think he is the logical candidate for the Republican Party . . . . When I was a candidate for the nomination for Mayor last spring, former Collector of Port William F. Stone and some of his friends, supported my opponent in the primary, John Philip Hill. These things do not matter to me now.—The Sun, March, 9th 1916.

Col. Harry Wilcox

President of the First National Bank of Baltimore, business man, and and leading Republican.

"He (Dr. France) is a candidate to whose support every element of the party could and should rally, a gentleman highly equipped to fill this most important office, an advocate on whom the people could confidently rely for a careful attention to the safeguarding of their rights and privileges, an official with no entangling alliances, and a business man with a close touch on financial affairs.—Baltimore American, Saturday, March, 4 1916.

Hon. John H. Cunningham

Prominent Republican and candidate for comptroller on the ticket with Ex-Governor Goldsborough:

"Being without factional complications, his (Dr. France's) nomination will cement the two wings of the party . . . . enthuse the voters and almost certainly assure Republican victory."—Baltimore American, March, 7, 1916.

These are some representative indorsements. Hundreds of other earnest Republicans whose names are to numerous too mention have also indorsed him and prove that

Dr. France is the Choice of Rank and File.

He Will Be Acceptable to the Progressives

Hon. Charles J. Bonaparte

"If Governor Goldsborough shall be the Republican candidate, I think it probable there will be a Progressive candidate; if Doctor France is nominated, I think it probable there will not . . . —The News, March 7th, 1916.

Isn't it the duty of loyal Republicans to nominate a candidate whose selection will show the nation that Maryland Republicans and Progressives are ready to meet the Democratic opposition together, and particularly when that candidate is acceptable to all the elements of his own party?

Published by the authority of A. W. W. WOODCOCK, Treasurer

The recent cold weather has produced the best ice we have had this winter. Mr. Echard has filled our large ice house and has shipped several carloads to the B. & O. The wind was so sharp during the cutting of the ice that several of the men had their faces frosted, and Wade Harris took a plunge through the ice and went clear under, but fortunately he came up at the same place he went down and was helped out by persons nearby.

Our campmeeting announcement is already out.

Miss Gertrude Enlow is visiting her brother Earl at Cumberland.

FREE PUBLIC LIBRARY NOTES.

What is the Answer?

When a man wishes to take his family into a different community for the purpose of making a permanent home, three questions present themselves to him, and often the answer helps him to decide. The questions are as follows:

1. How about the church? Can my family have the privilege of attending church and receiving good religious instruction?

2. Have they good schools in that town? or, if I locate there, must I send my children away from home to get an elementary education?

3. Is there a good FREE PUBLIC LIBRARY in the town so that the members of my family may be able to obtain good, healthy, moral literature without the necessity of my paying out all my savings to get it?

Think about the above questions, dear reader, and then ask yourself: Have I contributed to the Library Fund? If you have not, see the librarian at once, so the work need not lag for the want of your support. Remember that no public enterprise can be carried along and be successful without money. While books have been donated and loaned very generously, there are some that need to be purchased in order that we may be able to meet the demands of the reading public, besides we must have money for the payment of room rent, librarian's services, etc.

The foregoing is merely a reminder. Please give it your earnest consideration and help to build up this monument to your memory.

As this is a library for Garrett county, and was started as a county library, you are all kindly requested to give your support, either in books or money, or perchance, both. Books can be sent via parcel post to Free Public Library, Oakland, Md., and money may be sent to Miss Cora Weimer, Librarian and Treasurer, Mt. Lake Park, Md.

What is the answer? Will the library live and grow? Will you help to keep it in a prosperous condition? Will our boys and girls be given an opportunity to read only good literature? Will the library be YOUR monument?

The following have contributed towards the library during the past week: Harry Weimer, Arthur Townshend, Jr., Homer Speicher, James Stemple, H. A. Rasche, Mrs. Louis Littman.

Yours sincerely,
H. A. LORADITCH, Pres.

THE REPUBLICAN.

VOLUME 41. OAKLAND, MARYLAND THURSDAY, MARCH 23, 1916. NUMBER 4

SENATOR ZIHLMAN'S CAMPAIGN

Spent The Week-End In Washington and Montgomery Counties.

State Senator, F. N. Zihlman, spent the week-end in Washington and Montgomery counties, fixing up his fences for the Congressional primaries. He has already filed his papers with the various Election Supervisors throughout the Sixth Congressional District and claims to have had assurance from a great many of his friends in Washington county that the county would be for him.

Saturday, he conferred with a number of prominent Republicans in Montgomery county and says he has assurance of support from active party men in nearly every District in that county.

Invitations have been sent out for a meeting to be held in Rockville on the 28th instant, at which time Mr. Zihlman will be formally endorsed. He states he will wage an active fight in Montgomery county and is confident of carrying the county at the primary election.

Birthday Party.

On the 17th of March, the Ladies Aid Society of Mt. Lake Park, met at the home of Mrs. F. P. Arnold, it being her birthday. After a truly sociable talk they were called to the dining room, which was tastefully decorated in green, where a delicious lunch was served consisting of sandwitches, salad, cake, peaches and tea. There were about thirty-five present. Among those present were her neices Mrs. Gilderoy and Winona Whorton from Oakland.

A very enjoyable time was had by all.

Late in the evening the ladies returned to their homes after wishing Mrs. Arnold many more happy birthdays.

Mrs. Veich is remembered by many residents as a remarkably beautiful and charming woman of splendid attainments and charming personality. Her funeral occured on the 7th inst. with interment at Mt. GAP RUN

The Ground-hog weather should have ended last week but it is still staying with us at this writing.

Our teacher, Wm. L. Thomas, spent last Sunday at his home at Asher Glade. Our school is progressing very nicely.

Some of our young people attended a surprise party at D. O. DeWitt's last Friday night.

Rev. A. L. Danachy was visiting Joseph Keller and family a couple of days last week.

Anyone wanting thoroughbred Plymouth Rock eggs for hatching, call on Mrs. T. E. Bishoff. She has them for sale.

The Bishoff School is preparing to have an entertainment on the night of April fifth.

A few weeks ago a unique photograph was taken on the steps of one of the buildings of the Johns Hopkins University. It was that of the class of 1891, and was taken by having those present at this 25th anniversary of their graduation in almost the identical spot each one occupied just twenty-five years ago. In the first picture 52 were present—in the second 31.

HIGH SCHOOL BUILDING UNROOFED IN YESTERDAY'S RAIN AND WIND STORM

Pupils Thrown Into a Panic When Walls Weaved Back and Forth.

What came near being a dreadful tragedy was only averted by the cessation of the terrific wind storm which passed over portions of Oakland yesterday afternoon about three o'clock, in which a number of buildings were more or less damaged, the most serious being the High School building, when a section of the roof twelve feet wide and running from the eaves to the comb of the building was picked up bodily by the wind and thrown to the ground with a terrific crash.

In the building at the time were a hundred or more young ladies and gentlemen diligently engaged in their studies. The suddenness of the crash attended by the high winds and the downpour of rain, added to their terror and it was only by tact displayed by the corps of teachers that a panic was averted which may have had serious results.

Adding to the terror of the pupils was the fact that the side wall facing the south, from which direction the storm came, weaved back and forth with each impact of the wind and it was feared that the wall would tumble over their heads, but fortunately this did not result and the pupils were allowed to leave the building as soon as it was thought safe for them to venture forth.

Immediately after the storm had ceased arrangements were made by the school authorities to have temporary repairs made so that classes would not be unduly interrupted. These repairs, it is thought, will be completed by Monday and the school will then convene.

The High School building was erected in the year 1877 and was Garrett county's old court house. As such it it was used until a few years ago and then turned over to the School Commissioners as a High School building. As a court house it was deemed unsafe by many who had occasion to maintain offices therein, but no evidence was ever produced until yesterday that would prove this contention.

Other buildings damaged by the storm were the Pythian structure on Third street, from which a portion of the roof was torn; the residence of Mr. J. M. Stanton, which suffered damages to the roof also, and the smoke house of Mr. Charles J. Newman, which was partially unroofed.

The new garage of Mr. Mark S. White, which he has been building at odd times for the past month, was completely demolished and the material entering into its construction was scattered over two or three town lots on Water street.

At Deer Park the storm was equally as bad as in Oakland. The machine shop of James W. Walters was unroofed and a portion of the roof on the barn of Mr. Edward Smouse was torn away.

A TRIBUTE TO THE LATE REV. D. HARRISON FRIEND

A Life-Long Acquaintance Writes Entertainingly of the Pioneer.

To the Editor of The Republican.

One by one the old pioneers go. On the 8th of this month Judge D. Harrison Friend died at his home at Sang Run in this county, in the house in which he was born March 27th, 1825, and in which his father, John Friend, had lived all his life.

Mr. John Friend settled on this beautiful tract of land, known as "Friend's Delight," about the year 1798, where he raised a family of eleven children, the Judge being the youngest.

Judge Friend was a remarkable man of his day and generation. He was above the average in intelligence and education and taught school when a young man, and for many years was engaged in the mercantile business and farming. He served as a County Commissioner in Allegany county during the Civil War and in 1873 and again in 1875 was elected Judge of the Orphan's Court for Garrett county, and at the time of his death was an ordained minister of the Methodist Episcopal church. He has left his impress upon the people of his day, and the verdict of those who knew him best will be that he was a high-toned honorable Christian gentleman and a model for all young men.

It is a well settled historical fact that the first white men who came to dwell in Garrett county were John Friend and his six sons, who arrived in 1760. They built a cabin somewhere along the Youghioghney River near where Friendsville now is. Two of the sons soon tired of wilderness life and enlisted in the British Army. Both were killed in battle during the French and Indian Wars.

John Friend, Jr., and his brother Charles moved up the river and established themselves at Sang Run where they found four other sturdy pioneer families who had preceded them to this place, namely: William W. Hove, Meshack Browning, Nathaniel Casteel and Jeremiah Enlow. These six families settled within a radius of three miles and reared seventy-two children, an average of twelve children to each family, all of whom grew to manhood and womanhood and that without a physician nearer than the town of Cumberland.

It is a sad reflection that the death of Judge Friend has severed the last link connecting these remarkable families, but let us all hope that when we are called to follow after them that they will be waiting to meet and greet us in that other and better land.

A FRIEND.

Rev. D. Harrison Friend, of Sang Run, Garrett county, Maryland, was born March 27th, 1825, and died in the triumphs of the Christian faith, March 9th, 1916, after a brief illness of about two weeks, aged 90 years, 11 months and 12 days.

He was a local preacher of the Methodist Episcopal church, and as such he did not preach very often, but when he did preach his sermons were clear, strong and logical.

As a neighbor he was kind and obliging; as a friend he was true and faithful. He was always courteous and polite and was always very percise in his language displaying a type of pure English far in advance of his time and surroundings.

He was elected as one of the first Judges of the Orphan's Court for Garrett county, in the year 1872, and served for four years as Chief Judge with honor and distinction. He was united in marriage to Mary Anne Riley, Jan. 11th, 1855. To this union were born seven children, three of whom are still living, Mrs. A. R. Fearer, of Terra Alta, W. Va., J. Alvin Friend, of Sang Run, Maryland, and Mrs. D. S. Custer, of Friendsville, who with seven grandchildren and a large circle of relatives and friends mourn their loss. The funeral was conducted by his pastor, the Rev. Dr. Henderson, of Cranesville, W. Va., in the presence of a large concourse of people, attesting the high esteem in which he was held.

A vacancy has been made in the church, the community and the home which we feel can never be filled. We miss him, we greatly miss him, but we bow in humble submission to Him who is too wise to err and too good to be unkind, and say "The Lord gave and the Lord hath taken away, blessed be the name of the Lord."

H. E. FRIEND.

SPIES ARE BEING USED

Congress Is Asked for $20,000 Fund—Permission to Transport Troops to Be Sought From Carranza—Secret Fund for Pershing.

Washington.—There were two important developments giving evidence of the way the War Department is whipping things up in its chase of "Pancho" Villa.

Major General Hugh L. Scott, Acting Secretary of War, sent in a request to Congress for $20,000 as a special fund to be used in employing spies and scouts in the search.

The question of asking General Carranza for permission to send not only military supplies, but troops as well over his railways has been reconsidered. It is now believed by army officers that such a request would be in keeping with the reciprocity agreement initiated by the First Chief. The United States has on several occasions permitted Carranza troops to use railways in this country to reach border points from which Carranza wished to drive the Villistas and it is being urged by officials here that the administration should now ask Carranza for same favor in the pursuit of Villa.

Thus far the State Department has refrained from asking permission to send troops for fear of meeting with a rebuff. It has asked only for permission to send supplies to the troops. A fund of several thousand dollars, which already is available, it is believed, to hire spies and scouts, will immediately be placed at the disposal of Brigadier General Pershing.

Meanwhile Villa was reported continuing his outrages upon Americans.

Villa was reported in the Babicora Lake region on the ranch of Mrs. Phoebe Hearst, which he has ravaged several times.

FREE SUGAR SHELVED.

Thirteen Democrats One Socialist Oppose the Repeal.

Washington.—By a vote of 346 to 14 the House shelved the free sugar provision of the Underwood tariff law as framed. The only members to raise their voices against the bill were 13 Democrats and a Socialist. The Republicans arrayed themselves solidly behind the repeal measure.

The thirteen Democrats were Bailey, Pennsylvania; Buchanan, Illinois; Callaway, Texas; Crosser, Ohio; Gordon, Ohio; Hilliard, Colorado; Howard, Georgia; Johnson, Kentucky; McAnders, Illinois; Thompson, Oklahoma; and Van Dyke, Minnesota. Meyer London of New York was the Socialist.

The Senate which has yet to pass on the repeal bill must complete its task before May 1, the date on which the free sugar clause is to go into effect if the bars are to be thrown down entirely to that commodity.

Administration officials will bend their energies to securing prompt action in the upper house to prevent the flooding of the market with free sugar and the consequent loss of revenue. By retaining the duty at one per cent. per pound it is hoped to save $45,000 a year in revenue.

The debate on the repeal bill revived the tariff controversy as a campaign issue.

PERSHING PLANS TO HEM IN VILLA

Cavalry Force Will Manoeuvre to Flank Mexican Marauders

FORCES MARCH AT NIGHT

Cavalry in Col. Dodd's Command Crossed Border Forty-Five Miles South of Hachita, N. M., to Envelop Outlaws From West.

El Paso, Texas.—General John J. Pershing and the United States army invading Mexico for the purpose of effecting the capture of Pancho Villa and his band of bandits, were reported between Janos and Ascencion, north of Casas Grandes, a little more than half way to Casas Grandes, from the American border at Columbus, N. M., where entry was made. They were marching parallel with the Janos river.

The report came to Gen. Gabriel Gavira, commander of the Juarez military garrison. Gen. Gavira also reported that Villa and his men were believed to be between Shleana and San Duena Ventura. The latter place is 48 miles southeast of Casas Grandes.

Gavira's report of the whereabouts of Pershing's column is generally credited, because an American who left Columbus with the Pershing command, and returned later to the border, was in El Paso and said when he left the American invaders they immediate expected to make the Boco Grande river for encampment. Leaving there they could have made Janos or Ascension by night, the total distance being 70 miles from Columbus.

General Funston announced that Col. G. A. Dodd's command, consisting of cavalry, crossed the border near Culberson's ranch 45 miles from Hachita, N. M., but he refused to say what its strength was. Dodd's command is hurrying to join Pershing's, but it will take three days to catch up.

Night marches will be made by Gen. Pershing's expeditionary forces in their search for Villa, it was indicated at Fort Sam Houston.

Night marches, it was pointed out, would help to puzzle Villa as to the movements of the American columns, and would keep the men and horses fresher. Days could be used for reconnoitring.

ARMY ENTERS MEXICO.

Caranza Troops Co-operate With United States Forces.

Washington.—Newton D. Baker, Secretary of War, made formal announcement that American troops had crossed the border into Mexico. After making it many questions were put to him regarding the expedition, but he begged to be excused from going into details.

Secretary Baker indicated that information reaching the War Department was to the effect that Carranzista military authorities generally in Chihuahua were apparently prepared to co-operate and were not putting obstacles in the path of the expedition.

The rigors of a press censorship were experienced here. Not even in the Spanish war was the suppression of news so marked. Only routine dispatches telling of the movement of regular troops to the Mexican boundary were given out at the War Department.

PERSHING AND DODD LEAD.

General's Column Goes From Columbus, Other From Near Hachita.

San Antonio, Tex.—Brig. Gen. John J. Pershing, with more than 4,000 troops, formally began the pursuit in Mexico of Francisco Villa, whose raid across the border caused President Wilson and his Cabinet to decide to use the United States Army to run him down.

General Pershing's report that he and his command had crossed the international boundary line just south of Columbus reached General Frederick Funston, in charge here of general operations.

Private of Seventh Infantry Captures His Assailant.

El Paso, Tex.—A private of the Seventh United States Infantry while on sentry duty in Camp Colton, which is close to the international line where it crosses the river, was fired upon by a Mexican who stood on his side of the line.

The Mexican tried to fire a second time, but his gun jammed and the American soldier went over to the Mexican side and captured him.

PREPAREDNESS IN FARM PRACTICE MOST NECESSARY

New Bulletin Offers Timely Suggestions In Farm Management.

During the month of March continue plowing. Harrow and reharrow until a perfect seed bed is secured. An ounce of preparation is worth a pound of cultivation. Apply lime to the corn land as the seed bed is prepared. Where grass lands have not had a sufficient amount of stable manure applied previously there should now be an application of commercial fertilizers. As the grass becomes green is the proper time to make the application.

Go over your drainage systems and see that they are working properly. Often earth from the sides is thrown into the bottom of open ditches by the freezing and thawing of winter. This may so choke up the ditch as to interfere with the outflow of water or the earth slide may cause the flow to cut into and undermine the opposite bank. Where there is under-drainage, see that the outlets are open. Examine the fields of winter wheat, rye and other winter grains and see if the crop has been killed, injured in spots by "heaving" or "spewing" or has been drowned out by water standing on the surface during the winter. If any such spots are found plan to give them better drainage.

Mend Your Fences.

The time will soon come for turning stock on pasture. Trouble may be saved if the fences are gone over at this time and loose wires tightened up and defective posts or rails replaced.

Continue hauling manure on the fields intended for corn. Fresh manure spread on the top of plowed land and worked in with the harrow will give better results than if spread before plowing at this season unless the manure be very coarse.

The too common practice of burning over old fields at this season preparatory to plowing is strongly to be reprobated. It is much better practice to go over such fields with the disk harrow once or twice to chop up the dry vegetable matter and mix it with the soil and then plow, rather than to burn the vegetable matter, which is the life of the soil.—From Maryland Agricultural College Bulletin, "Elementary Vocational Agriculture for Maryland Schools."

DISCING LAND BEFORE PLOWING DESIRABLE.

NICKOLAS SCHMITZ,
Maryland Agricultural College Extension Service.

Discing a sod before plowing makes the plowing easier and greatly facilitates the preparation of a good seedbed. It is as important to have the bottom of the seedbed finely pulverized as it is to have the surface well worked.

The easiest way to do this is to disc before plowing. It may seem that this is an extra operation, but land that is well disced before plowing will not need as much working after plowing in order to get it in first class condition, and there is no question of the bottom of the seedbed being as well worked as the surface.

It is also a good plan to disc rye or rye and clover before plowing under. This aids the complete turning under and at the same time helps to mix it with the soil, which is necessary in order to get the most rapid decomposition. It also insures against the difficulty of preventing the clover from being turned under in a mat, in which case it simply acts as a blanket in preventing the upward movement of moisture.

CANADA FIELD PEAS SHOULD BE SOWN EARLY.

Canada field peas are especially well adapted to the climate of Canada and the northern tier of states where there is sufficient moisture. In Maryland they will succeed much better in the northern and mountainous sections of the State than elsewhere.

Like the garden pea, they will not make much growth after hot, muggy weather sets in, along about harvest time or a little before, and for that reason should not be considered in the light of a grain crop with a mixture of oats as they are in the northern states and Canada.

Where oats is sown in the spring for soiling or for hay the feeding value may be greatly increased by mixing Canada field peas with the oats. The quantity of seed per acre varies from 1½ bushels of oats and 1½ bushels of peas to 2 bushels of each. It is very important that the crop should be sown in early spring, for the earlier the crop is planted the greater will be the likelihood of the maximum returns, as both oats and peas suffer in the hot days of late spring and early summer. Although some growers recommend that the peas be planted much deeper than the oats and a few days before planting the oats, there is, however, no good reason for this practice, as experiments have shown that even distribution and as large yields can be secured when the oats and peas are mixed together with the grain drill and seeded together.

Where land has never grown garden or field peas it is usually advisable to inoculate, otherwise the growth will not be sufficient to pay for the seed and the extra labor.

CHACE FOR VILLA TO BE LONG

Gen. Funston Says Bandit Has Fled to One of the Most Desolate Countries in World.

General Funston, commander-in-chief of American troops on the border, predicted Wednesday in an interview that the chace for Villa will be a hard and difficult campaign. He said General Pershing, commander in the field, has his orders, and will move when ready.

"I hope the American people appreciate," said Funstone, "that this is going to be a hard and very difficult campaign." It may be a long one, also.

"One of the best feature of the business is the fact that the troops are in splendid shape for the work. From a physical standpoint they could not be better. The time that most of them have had on the border has hardened and toughened them for just the character of campaign that they will have to undergo. But it is going to be a hard job.

"Villa has fled to one of the naturally most desolate countries in the world. What nature did not do for it in this respect the fighting factions in Mexico have done. Unless we go in there sufficiently supplied with food and fodder to take care of the problem of subsistence entirely, we would be defeated by nature long before we met Villa's forces.

"There is nothing left in all that vast and naked region for us to buy or take. Our prisoners, taken in the Columbus raid, tell us that Villa and his men are living off 'jerked' beef. They have no other food supply of consequence.

"I believe that our aeroplanes are going to be of great value to us in scouting work in this campaign. It will be the first time that we have ever used our planes under these conditions, and I have great hopes in their success.

"I hope the American people understand the reason for the apparent delay in crossing the border and starting after the chace. It would have been sheer folly for us to have continued the chace the day of the raid. We had but adout 250 men against Villa's 1,500 and possibly more. Our men had no supplies with them.

"They might have continued a running fight and killed more Villistas, but unless they could have actually captured Villa no particular military advantage would have been gained. The fact that Villa's forces so far out-numbered ours made pursuit dangerous. Had our troops been surrounded, as easily might have happened another Custer massacre would have resulted.

"From all I have learned, I believe that Villa made the raid one of his 'characteristic brainstorms.' These fits of blind, unreasoning anger of his are well known, and while in them he'll do anything.

"Back of all this was the hope, I presume, that intervention might result in swinging a tide of popular Mexican favor his way and bringing to him large bodies of Mexicans and so make him a serious factor in Mexican affairs again.

"It may be a hard chace and a long one before the end we seek to attain is secured, but we are ready for it and will attain it."

ASK any experienced grain man which method of planting insures the best crop yield and he will unfailingly answer "Drilling."

Broadcasting wastes a lot of seed—it can't help it—because the seed is only half covered and is subject to losses caused by wind, water, and birds.

"Empire, Jr."—drilled seed all sprouts at the same time and ripens at the same time. Any farmer knows that this sort of a field of grain will turn out the best yield.

PERSHING PLANS TO HEM IN VILLA

Cavalry Force Will Manoeuvre to Flank Mexican Marauders

FORCES MARCH AT NIGHT

Cavalry in Col. Dodd's Command Crossed Border Forty-Five Miles South of Hachita, N. M., to Envelop Outlaws From West.

El Paso, Texas.—General John J. Pershing and the United States army invading Mexico for the purpose of effecting the capture of Pancho Villa and his band of bandits, were reported between Janos and Ascencion, north of Casas Grandes, a little more than half way to Casas Grandes, from the American border at Columbus, N. M., where entry was made. They were marching parallel with the Janos river.

The report came to Gen. Gabriel Gavira, commander of the Juarez military garrison. Gen. Gavira also reported that Villa and his men were believed to be between Saleana and San Duena Ventura. The latter place is 48 miles southeast of Casas Grandes.

Gavira's report of the whereabouts of Pershing's column is generally credited, because an American who left Columbus with the Pershing command, and returned later to the border, was in El Paso and said when he left the American invaders they immediate expected to make the Boco Grande river for encampment. Leaving there they could have made Janos or Ascension by night, the total distance being 70 miles from Columbus.

General Funston announced that Col. G. A. Dodd's command consisting of cavalry, crossed the border near Culberson's ranch 45 miles from Hachita, N. M., but he refused to say what its strength was. Dodd's command is hurrying to join Pershing's, but it will take three days to catch up.

Night marches will be made by Gen. Pershing's expeditionary forces in their search for Villa, it was indicated at Fort Sam Houston.

Night marches, it was pointed out, would help to puzzle Villa as to the movements of the American columns, and would keep the men and horses fresher. Days could be used for reconnoitring.

ARMY ENTERS MEXICO.

Caranza Troops Co-operate With United States Forces.

Washington.—Newton D. Baker, Secretary of War, made formal announcement that American troops had crossed the border into Mexico. After making it many questions were put to him regarding the expedition, but he begged to be excused from going into details.

Secretary Baker indicated that information reaching the War Department was to the effect that Carranzista military authorities generally in Chihuahua were apparently prepared to co-operate and were not putting obstacles in the path of the expedition.

The rigors of a press censorship were experienced here. Not even in the Spanish war was the suppression of news so marked. Only routine dispatches telling of the movement of regular troops to the Mexican boundary were given out at the War Department.

PERSHING AND DODD LEAD.

General's Column Goes From Columbus, Other From Near Hachita.

San Antonio, Tex.—Brig. Gen. John J. Pershing, with more than 4,000 troops, formally began the pursuit in Mexico of Francisco Villa, whose raid across the border caused President Wilson and his Cabinet to decide to use the United States Army to run him down.

General Pershing's report that he and his command had crossed the international boundary line just south of Columbus reached General Frederick Funston, in charge here of general operations.

LONE INVADER GETS MEXICAN.

Private of Seventh Infantry Captures His Assailant.

El Paso, Tex.—A private of the Seventh United States Infantry while on sentry duty in Camp Colton, which is close to the international line where it crosses the river, was fired upon by a Mexican who stood on his side of the line.

The Mexican tried to fire a second time, but his gun jammed and the American soldier went over to the Mexican side and captured him.

PREPAREDNESS IN FARM PRACTICE MOST NECESSARY

New Bulletin Offers Timely Suggestions In Farm Management.

During the month of March continue plowing. Harrow and reharrow until a perfect seed bed is secured. An ounce of preparation is worth a pound of cultivation. Apply lime to the corn land as the seed bed is prepared. Where grass lands have not had a sufficient amount of stable manure applied previously there should now be an application of commercial fertilizers. As the grass becomes green is the proper time to make the application.

Go over your drainage systems and see that they are working properly. Often earth from the sides is thrown into the bottom of open ditches by the freezing and thawing of winter. This may so choke up the ditch as to interfere with the outflow of water or the earth slide may cause the flow to cut into and undermine the opposite bank. Where there is under-drainage, see that the outlets are open. Examine the fields of winter wheat, rye and other winter grains and see if the crop has been killed, injured in spots by "heaving" or "spewing" or has been drowned out by water standing on the surface during the winter. If any such spots are found plan to give them better drainage.

Mend Your Fences.

The time will soon come for turning stock on pasture. Trouble may be saved if the fences are gone over at this time and loose wires tightened up and defective posts or rails replaced.

Continue hauling manure on the fields intended for corn. Fresh manure spread on the top of plowed land and worked in with the harrow will give better results than if spread before plowing at this season unless the manure be very coarse.

The too common practice of burning over old fields at this season preparatory to plowing is strongly to be reprobated. It is much better practice to go over such fields with the disk harrow once or twice to chop up the dry vegetable matter and mix it with the soil and then plow, rather than to burn the vegetable matter, which is the life of the soil.—From Maryland Agricultural College Bulletin, "Elementary Vocational Agriculture for Maryland Schools."

DISCING LAND BEFORE PLOWING DESIRABLE.

NICKOLAS SCHMITZ,
Maryland Agricultural College Extension Service.

Discing a sod before plowing makes the plowing easier and greatly facilitates the preparation of a good seedbed. It is as important to have the bottom of the seedbed finely pulverized as it is to have the surface well worked.

The easiest way to do this is to disc before plowing. It may seem that this is an extra operation, but land that is well disced before plowing will not need as much working after plowing in order to get it in first class condition, and there is no question of the bottom of the seedbed being as well worked as the surface.

It is also a good plan to disc rye or rye and clover before plowing under. This aids the complete turning under and at the same time helps to mix it with the soil, which is necessary in order to get the most rapid decomposition. It also insures against the difficulty of preventing the clover from being turned under in a mat, in which case it simply acts as a blanket in preventing the upward movement of moisture.

CANADA FIELD PEAS SHOULD BE SOWN EARLY.

Canada field peas are especially well adapted to the climate of Canada and the northern tier of states where there is sufficient moisture. In Maryland they will succeed much better in the northern and mountainous sections of the State than elsewhere.

Like the garden pea, they will not make much growth after hot, muggy weather sets in, along about harvest time or a little before, and for that reason should not be considered in the light of a grain crop with a mixture of oats as they are in the northern states and Canada.

Where oats is sown in the spring for soiling or for hay the feeding value may be greatly increased by mixing Canada field peas with the oats. The quantity of seed per acre varies from 1½ bushels of oats and 1½ bushels of peas to 2 bushels of each. It is very important that the crop should be sown in early spring, for the earlier the crop is planted the greater will be the likelihood of the maximum returns, as both oats and peas suffer in the hot days of late spring and early summer. Although some growers recommend that the peas be planted much deeper than the oats and a few days before planting the oats, there is, however, no good reason for this practice, as experiments have shown that even distribution and as large yields can be secured when the oats and peas are mixed together with the grain drill and seeded together.

Where land has never grown garden or field peas it is usually advisable to inoculate, otherwise the growth will not be sufficient to pay for the seed and the extra labor.

CHACE FOR VILLA TO BE LONG

Gen. Funston Says Bandit Has Fled to One of the Most Desolate Countries in World.

General Funston, commander-in-chief of American troops on the border, predicted Wednesday in an interview that the chace for Villa will be a hard and difficult campaign. He said General Pershing, commander in the field, has his orders, and will move when ready.

"I hope the American people appreciate," said Funstone, "that this is going to be a hard and very difficult campaign." It may be a long one, also.

"One of the best feature of the business is the fact that the troops are in splendid shape for the work. From a physical standpoint they could not be better. The time that most of them have had on the border has hardened and toughened them for just the character of campaign that they will have to undergo. But it is going to be a hard job.

"Villa has fled to one of the naturally most desolate countries in the world. What nature did not do for it in this respect the fighting factions in Mexico have done. Unless we go in there sufficiently supplied with food and fodder to take care of the problem of subsistence entirely, we would be defeated by nature long before we met Villa's forces.

"There is nothing left in all that vast and naked region for us to buy or take. Our prisoners, taken in the Columbus raid, tell us that Villa and his men are living off 'jerked' beef. They have no other food supply of consequence.

"I believe that our aeroplanes are going to be of great value to us in scouting work in this campaign. It will be the first time that we have ever used our planes under these conditions, and I have great hopes in their success.

"I hope the American people understand the reason for the apparent delay in crossing the border and starting after the chace. It would have been sheer folly for us to have continued the chace the day of the raid. We had but adout 250 men against Villa's 1,500 and possibly more. Our men had no supplies with them.

"They might have continued a running fight and killed more Villistas, but unless they could have actually captured Villa no particular military advantage would have been gained. The fact that Villa's forces so far out-numbered ours made pursuit dangerous. Had our troops been surrounded, as easily might have happened another Custer massacre would have resulted.

"From all I have learned, I believe that Villa made the raid one of his 'characteristic brainstorms.' These fits of blind, unreasoning anger of his are well known, and while in them he'll do anything.

"Back of all this was the hope, I presume, that intervention might result in swinging a tide of popular Mexican favor his way and bringing to him large bodies of Mexicans and so make him a serious factor in Mexican affairs again.

"It may be a hard chace and a long one before the end we seek to attain is secured, but we are ready for it and will attain it."

ASK any experienced grain man which method of planting insures the best crop yield and he will unfailingly answer "Drilling."

Broadcasting wastes a lot of seed—it can't help it—because the seed is only half covered and is subject to losses caused by wind, water, and birds.

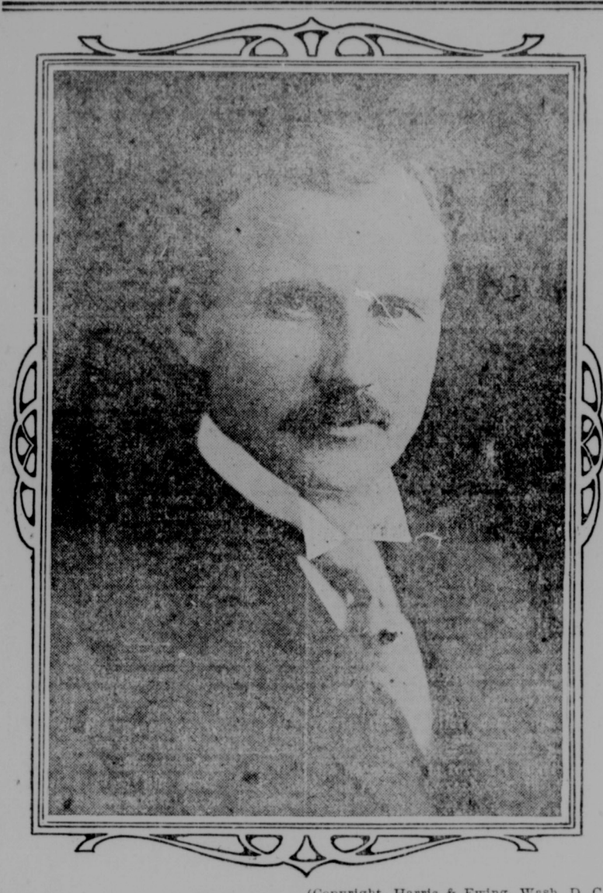
The Republican--Garrett Co.'s Paper.



(Copyright, Harris & Ewing, Wash. D. C.)

HON. RALPH H. CAMERON
Of Arizona.

Former Congressional Delegate Cameron, of Arizona, is Republican National Committeeman from his State, and a national political figure. Concerning the coming Presidential campaign, Mr. Cameron recently said: "When it comes to selecting a candidate for the Presidency, I believe the choice will fall upon Senator John W. Weeks, of Massachusetts. Senator Weeks has been in the West. He has met our people, and I can say with truth that he made the biggest impression of any of the men who are aspirants for the Presidency."

WASHINGTON, D. C.—The present Presidential campaign is unusual because of the fact that although there are no less than a score of "possibilities" in the field, no individual candidate has, as yet, made a definite announcement of his candidacy, and no campaign headquarters of the accepted variety have been opened for the furtherance of Presidential ambitions. This does not mean, of course, that the supporters of the various candidates have been idle; to the contrary, the literary line of attack was resorted to by most of them many months ago. But when it comes to the old-fashioned headquarters, with lots of red, white and blue bunting, barrels of badges, and other accepted campaign paraphernalia, they are conspicuously absent.

One of the most gratifying phrases of the present preconvention campaign, from the standpoint of those who are interested principally in Republican success this year, is the lack of mud-slinging between the various candidates. In the last campaign at this time, the Taft and Roosevelt supporters were issuing hourly statements denouncing each other, but so far as the campaign of 1916 is concerned, there appears to be a general agreement between the various candidates to let the other fellow alone, so that when the time comes to decide between them, everyone can get together and work for a Republican victory in the November elections.

National politics and politicians were given a lot of attention in the recent minstrel show conducted by the National Press Club, of Washington, such as the following gag, which made something of a hit:

"Mr. Bones," inquired the interlocutor, "how long will it be before the Republican party nominates a presidential candidate?"

"Oh, Weeks," was the reply.

The question of geographical location of presidential candidates has become a disappearing element in politics, now that the professional politicians have less to say in the selection of delegates to the conventions, and the voters can exert a more direct influence in the naming of their party's candidate. In the present campaign we find strong men mentioned for the Presidency who live so far apart as Massachusetts and Idaho, with Iowa thrown in between. "It's the man," the voters say, "and not the place he comes from, that counts." Which, of course, is disconcerting to the old-time "leaders."

"The Presidential campaign of 1916 will be fought out on many issues," says Congressman Charles F. Curry, of California, in "Prosperity," "but the paramount issue will be the tariff. The Underwood bill, as a revenue producer, has been a failure, and it has cheapened men, but it has not cheapened commodities to the consumer. The Democratic party has never been able to think straight and act right on the tariff question. Free trade, or a revenue for tariff only with incidental protection, which is the nearest possible approach to free trade in this country, is a fraud, a delusion and a snare, and can only be supported by fallacious reasoning."

Many strange things go into the creation of a Presidential "possibility," and some of the city newspapers are having a little fun with Senator John W. Weeks, of Massachusetts, just now, because of the persistence with which his supporters call attention to the fact that he originated the federal law protecting migratory birds. But with the country papers, it is different, for they know that the migratory insectivorous bird is the farmers' friend, and whoever protects the birds protects the farms. So that is why Senator Weeks' friends keep on talking about his work in behalf of the country's migratory bird population, and refuse to be disconcerted when some of the newspapers refer to it as a "piece of sentimentality."

AIR RAIDERS KILL 9 IN ENGLAND CROWN PRINCE HURLS PRUSSIAN GUARD AT VERDUN FORTIFICATION

Only Infantry Action on Entire Front From Vosges to Belgium---Vigorous Bombardments Near Douaumont ---Berlin Reports the Repulse of French

TURKS SAY THAT THE BRITISH ARE RETREATING

London.—Both Berlin and Paris reported a slackening of the fighting around Verdun, and Petrograd announced that the Russians had started a big offensive movement against the Germans.

Four German aeroplanes bombarded east Kent, England. The first pair appeared over Dover, flying at a height of between 5,000 to 6,000 feet. One machine dropped six bombs on the harbor and then went northwest, throwing bombs on the town. The other, after passing over Dover, appeared over Deal and dropped several bombs.

A second pair bombarded Ramsgate. One went west and the other north, pursued by a British aeroplane. One machine dropped bombs on Margate. A second appeared over Westgate, where British aeroplanes pursued it. No bombs were dropped.

The casualties reported were nine killed and 31 injured. In all, 488 bombs were dropped. One bomb fell on the Canadian Hospital at Ramsgate, causing damage but no casualties. Material damage was done to several houses.

Flight Commander Bono, in a single seater aeroplane, pursued one raider for 30 miles over the sea where, after an action lasting a quarter of an hour, the raider was forced to descend. The observer was killed.

A raid by 23 French aeroplanes on upper Alsace resulted in one of the greatest aerial battles of the war. Four French aeroplanes were driven to earth and three German machines. The raid which precipitated the battle was directed against Nualhausen and Habsheim.

FRENCH STEM GERMAN TIDE

London.—Repulse at the hands of the French again has been the net result of a German infantry attack launched with huge effectives after a heavy bombardment against French positions at Le Mort Homme, northwest of Verdun. The Germans, who attacked in serried masses, were driven eastward toward the Bois des Corbeaux, where the French guns inflicted heavy casualties on them.

The attack at Le Mort Homme constituted the only infantry maneuver along the entire French front, but from Belgium to the Vosges the artillery of both sides has been active at numerous points. Around Douaumont and the village of Vaux the big guns are operating with redoubled violence, while southward in the Woevre the artillery duels in the Meuse hills continue.

In the Argonne Forest the French guns are still shelling the German positions northwest of the road from Varennes and German batteries near Montfaucon.

The latest German official communication making reference to French attempts to "dispute our possession of the height of Le Mort Homme" has brought forth a statement from the French Embassy at Washington that the Germans have never gained a footing on the hill, which the French still hold.

If the Russians succeed in attaining Klanikin they will be in position to assail the rear of the Turkish Bagdad forces. Russia is also aiming to strike north of Bagdad for the purpose of severing the railway, thereby cutting off the Turks from their main source of supplies.

Artillery battles of great intensity continue along the whole western front.

The German army has received heavy reinforcements. The closing of the Swiss-German frontier is reported, and the order is supposed to have been given to cover the movement of great bodies of troops.

POLISH RELIEF HARD PROBLEM.

Britain, Fearing Confiscation by Germany, Still Undecided.

London.—The Cabinet considered the question of Polish relief. It was not decided whether or not to allow relief to be sent to the people of Poland. The problem has become one of the most troublesome before the Government. Against the wish to avert starvation among the Poles there is the fact that Germany has requisitioned all the cotton and woollen goods in Belgium.

SUEZ ATTACK ABANDONED.

Teutons Can't Cross Desert for Year at Least.

Rome.—Egypt and the Suez Canal are absolutely safe from a Turco-German attack for at least another year. February was the last month when the shifting desert sands east of the Suez Canal were firm enough to sustain marching columns. Movement of artillery or heavy supply wagons across the desert will be out of question for many months. Stories about desert railway building are untrue.

London.—Again the intensity of the fighting around Verdun has dwindled perceptibly. Only the artillery of the opposing sides are active. No infantry attacks or counter attacks are being engaged in.

Around Le Mort Homme, where furious battles have recently been fought, comparative quiet reigns. Even the bombardments here are only intermittent. There also has been a slackening in the fire of the big guns in the Wovre region to the southeast of Verdun.

Northwest of the fortress, however, around Douaumont and Damloup the Germans are hurling shells against the French positions, but the French are vigorously countering. North of Verdun, near the right bank of the Meuse, important German ammunition depots have been blown up by the French guns at Champneuville.

Only one infantry action has taken place along the entire line from Belgium to the Vosges; this was to the north of the Aisne, where a German attack against a small French post southeast of the Bois des Buttes was repulsed.

The Germans are now hurling the elite corps of the guard into the fiery furnace at Vaux and Douaumont, the key position at Verdun, and this, in the minds of French observers, represents the use of "the last cartridge."

The German offensive is said by the French military experts to have spent its force.

Constantinople reports that the British in Mesopotamia are in general retreat from the Felamie region, with the Turks vigorously in pursuit.

The hard fighting between the Italians and Austrians continues at various points, especially in the Isonzo region, but no important changes in positions have resulted. Little fighting of importance is taking place on the Russian front.

Petrograd reports the capture by the Russians of the town of Mamakhautan from the Turks. The town is some sixty miles west of Erzerum, on the Euphrates River.

CZAR'S TROOPS DRIVE ON.

London.—The French assumed the offensive in the Champaigne region of France, and in a series of infantry attacks with grenades and bayonets captured a German trench south of St. Souplet. The success was followed by preparations for further onslaughts.

In the immediate vicinity of Verdun infantry fighting has ceased for the present, but an artillery battle of great intensity is under way at various points along the line from Belgium to the Vosges Mountains.

Petrograd reported that the Russians have made most remarkable progress in co-operation with the British at Kut-el-Amara, where an army under General Townshend has been cooped up for several months.

The Czar's troops are said to be moving over difficult roads and in the face of considerable opposition toward the Mesopotamian frontier, where they say they will soon reach the relieving column near Kut under Generals Lake and Aylmer.

The Russians are reported to be within fifty miles of the last difficult pass, which will place them in the rear of the Turkish Bagdad army. Their object is to cut the railway to the north, thereby preventing the Turkish army from receiving supplies, and to join the British in a move against Bagdad.

PITH OF THE WAR NEWS

Rumanian military preparations are being hurried forward at Bucharest, officers of the Allies report.

Berlin reports the recapture of some ground from the British notheast of Vermelles, in the region of La Bassee, and the driving of the French from a position northeast of Badonvilliers, in the Vosges.

No trail can get too hot to follow.

FUNSTON seems to always be near a river in time of trouble.

FROM the looks of things, the ensuing presidential campaign will be a lively one at home and abroad.

A NEGRO 121 years old died in Kansas City the other day. One by one "the oldest man in the country" passes away.

WITHIN the past couple of weeks the Portuguese navy has increased in size, and that without the outlay of an escudo.

WE might as well move the whole family out of the Villa, renovate the place and readvertise for a sensible tenant.

"WHERE did you get that hat?" ought to be a spirited war song as the United States troops take after the Mexicans.

NOW in New Mexico they print the ballots for local elections in English and Spanish. Isn't it about time that nonsense ceased?

IF women's summer clothing is proportionally as scant as winter raiment has been—but why speculate on such a threadbare subject?

IT is a good thing that some of us can manage to survive without eating chile con carne, or pascli or any of those other dishes that grow in Mexico.

IT would seem to one unprejudiced that Carranza's request to send troops across the border into this country was entirely formal, because he has use at home for every gun toter he can muster.

NEARLY $500,000,000 in gold is corded away in the Denver mint. Well, if a foreign foe can fight his way to the front door of the plain looking building a mile high, it will have earned the money.

BOYHOOD RESPONSIBILITIES.

Recently a small boy in a Maryland town was asked by his schoolteacher to write down what he did after school hours, and the following was the result.

"I pick eggs, get in the wood, feed the chickens and get down hay for the horses and cows, and get in straw, and have to give the cats some milk, and water the chickens, and draw water for the kitchen, and bed down the cows, and set the table, and pick up chips and set things straight in the celler."

To most American men of middle age that list of chores has a very familiar sound. They are the tasks for which he was responsible every night after he left the schoolroom and often it was the penalty of the rod if he loitered after school to indulge in an hour of play with his comrades.

The modern city boy, however, has a far different program from this lad in a Maryland country town. The city home can furnish no chores and but few responsibilities. The greatest task its sons have after leaving school is to decide the momentous question of whether they will go skating, coasting or to the movies.

A man who can look back upon a boyhood of old-fashioned school days, supplemented with old-fashioned chores, will see how much must be added to the modern city school system before he can give his son the same chance to develop efficiency and character that he had.

FREDERICK N. ZIHLMAN OUT FOR CONGRESS

Appeals Directly to Rank and File of Republican Party in District.

Senator Frderick N. Zihlman of Allegany county, has made formal announcement of his candidacy for the Republican Sixth District Congressional nomination. The Senator has already filed his papers with the Boards of Election Supervisors throughout the district, and his friends have for several weeks been waging a quiet but effective campaign in his behalf. In his statement Senator Zihlman appeals directly to the rank and file and the individual Republicans of the district, who, he points out, are each and every one responsible for the nomination of their congressional standard bearer under the direct primaries.

He issues a strong appeal directly to the voters of his party throughout Western Maryland for their support on his record as the Senator from Allegany county during the legislative sessions of 1910, 1912, 1914, and during the present year. He refers to his stewardship as his party floor leader in the Senate during the sessions of 1912 and again during the current session. Likewise he points to his stand and work for constructive and humanitaran legislation introduced in the assembly during the last four sessions. A period when Maryland has brought herself to the front among the progressive states of the nation. Though he has definite views on the issues that will be involved in the approaching national campaign, the Allegany countian refers to the fact that the Sixth District Republican Congressional nominee, like the party's candidates for president and vice president, and for national offices throughout the country, will be bound to stand by the platform, which will be built and ratified by the Republicans assembled in national convention in June next.

That he will stand by these platform planks, together with the issues which will make for the progress, protection, prosperity and preparedness of the nation not only in war but in peace, the Senator gives as his guarantee his progressive record of the past. In concluding his appeal, Senator Zihlman says his duties at Annapolis will prevent him from making an extended canvass of the district, but that he proposes to devote the time between the adjournment of the General Assembly and the May primaries in an effort to meet personally as many of the voters of the district as possible. Senator Zihlman is already well known throughout the Sixth district, as he thoroughly canvassed that entire field in 1914, when he made a remarkable fight against the then strongly intrenched Congressman David J. Lewis. His personality left a lasting mark throughout the district and the Senator has already received many voluntary pledges from party people in all five counties of the district, men who believe Zihlman is the man to lead the party to victory in Western Maryland next November.

Alleged Bootleggers Caught.

Friday last was a very busy day in the court conducted by Squire L. A. Rudisill, a number of alleged bootleggers in and about Oakland being rounded up at that time. While there had been some little talk about the sale of liquor practically no one suspected what was coming and the accused parties seemed very much surprised when they were taken in by the sheriff. State's Attorney Jones had had a couple of detectives on the job and as a result of information which he received from them the warrants were sworn out. The accused parties were given a short hearing after which Squire Rudisill held them for the action of the June grand jury under heavy bond.

Groundhog's Regime Comes to End.

Everyone is greatly relieved because the reign of His Majesty, the Groundhog, is at an end. On Wednesday last the six week's period following February 2, during which he was supposed to rule with an icy hand, came to an end and you will notice that indications are that there is a break in the winter, though the crimp in winter's activities is encouraging and all are in hopes that it means some good weather at least.

TO SELL LAKE BROWN

Measure Has Been Introduced In Legislature With This in View.

In the Senate on last Thursday the bill authorizing the sale of Lake Brown, in Garrett county, was reported favorably by the finance committee and passed to its third reading. The measure was introduced by Senator Speicher and is as follows:

Be it enacted by the General Assembly of Maryland, That the Board of Public Works is hereby authorized and directed, whenever it shall determine it to be for the best interest of the State to sell the State's interest in and to a certain tract of land, known as Lake Brown, situate lying and being in Garrett county, Maryland, containing seventeen acres more or less, being the same lands and premises heretofore conveyed to the State of Maryland by deed from Richard T. Browning and Hattie C. Browning, his wife, bearing date the 27th day of June, 1894, duly of record in Liber E. Z. T., No. 24, folio 366, as by reference thereto will more fully and at large appear. In making such sale, the said Board of Public Works is hereby authorized and directed to proceed under the provision contained in Article 78-A of the Annotated Code of Maryland, title "Public Works—Board of," sub-title "Sale of State's Interest in Works of Internal Improvements or in Corporations."

POTATO GROWERS TO MEET AGAIN

Permanent Organization to Be Formed at Meeting Friday.

The Citizens National Bank of this city is preparing to entertain the potato growers of this section at a meeting to be held in the directors' room of the bank on Friday, March 23rd.

The purpose of the conference is to form a permanent organization of potato growers. A committee made up of C. Wesley Loar, of this place; Benjamin Green, Garrett county; James A. Morgan, Carlos; Robert Tennant, of Vale Summit, and John Blake, of Eckhart, are now preparing the by-laws for the organization.

The association, which will be incorporated, will have for its main objects the encouragement of better and more economical methods of potato culture, to secure better results in grading, packing, marketing and advertising Western Maryland seed potatoes, to develop the local market, and find new markets for seed potatoes of local culture. Another object will be to secure pure seed at as low a price as is consistent with the best quality.

The association will buy supplies for its members in a co-operative way and will rent, buy or build suitable buildings to store, and from which to distribute, supplies. These storage houses and packing places will be modern in every particular.

There will be one committee, made up of experienced men, to arrange for the transportation and handling of all potatoes raised here. This committee will also make a constant effort to awaken general interest in the production of seed potatoes throughout Allegany and Garrett counties.

The Citizens National Bank, which is back of the movement, will hold a number of conferences during the year with the potato growers and will offer substantial aid to the movement until the association becomes self-supporting.

Twenty one farmers attended the meeting last Friday, and these, with the additional number who will be present at the coming meeting, will constitute the charter membership of the new association.

The following were present at the last meeting: Cecil Michael, Wm. L. Atkinson, Thomas J. Johnson, C. A. Murphy, John F. Workman, Earl C. Michael, Frostburg; Robert Tennant, C. Wesley Loar, Vale Summit; David Hansel, James Dunn and P. L. Blake, Eckhart; Benjamin F. Green, Avilton; James D. Harvey, Mt. Lake Park; George W. Oss, Cumberland; P. E. McLenna, Gilmore; H. P. Miller, Grantsville; James Weir, Lonaconing, Cyrus M. Bird, Meyersdale, Pa.; Jas. Morgan, Carlos, and Simon Duckworth, Eckhart. —Frostburg Journal.

Married.

SPEICHER—BERKEY—Frederick G. Speicher and Miss Leottie P. Berkey, both of Jennings, Garrett county, were married at the parsonage of St. Paul's Lutheran church at Frostburg by Rev. H. H. Beidleman, Wednesday evening.

LEMAITRE—PAULIE—Saturday afternoon, March 18th, 1916, the marriage of Miss Alma Blanche Paulie to Mr. Edward Frare LeMaitre, of Hartford City, Ind., was solemnized at Fairmont, West Virginia. Rev. W. J. Eddy of the first Baptist church, was the officiating minister and the ring ceremony was used. The wedding took place at the parsonage of the church with a few intimate friends present. The bride, who is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Paulie, of Hutton, Md., has made a wide circle of friends during her stay in Fairmont. Mr. LeMaitre is a young man of unusually pleasing personality and ability and holds a lucrative position with the Fairmont Window Glass factory. Early in June Mr. and Mrs. LeMaitre will leave for Harford City, Ind., to reside.

THE WEEK'S DOINGS AT THE STATE CAPITAL

Many Measures of Local Interest Have Been Considered.

STATE HOUSE ANNAPOLIS, MARCH 22—Western Maryland members of both houses of the Assembly are manifesting considerable interest in the bill introduced by Delegate White of Baltimore city on Wednesday of last week, but which has just been placed upon their bill files in printed form, and which amends in every important manner the laws relating to the appointment of the mine inspector for Allegany and Garrett counties. The bill takes away from the Governor the appointment of this important officer and places this selection in the hands of the State Board of Labor and Statistics, subject to confirmation by the Senate. In addition to taking the appointing power from the Governor, the bill places also in the hands of this board the control of the inspector's salary.

Instead of his salary remaining at the flat rate of $1,500 as at present, the new law provides that the inspector shall receive such salary as the Board of Labor and Statistics shall with the appro al of the Governor, deem proper.

The bill which was recently introduced in the Legislature, to substitute electricity for hanging, came up in the House on Tuesday but failed to pass. The majority of delegates evidently being of the opinion that hanging was preferable to electrocution. Another bill has been introduced to provide a central place for execution, naming the Penitentiary or the Maryland House of Correction.

Monday night Senator Speicher's anti-shipping bill came up for the third reading. Delegate Fox offered an amendment at the suggestion of Senator Speicher, relating to liquors needed by druggists in their business. The amendment was adopted. Delegate Green, of Allegany county, introduced an amendment which would have converted it into a "gallon-a-month" act. He painted a touching picture of the weary Garrett county farmer returning to his home in the evening with parching tongue and throat and being deprived of anything to bring relief. Rattlesnakes abounded in Garrett county, he declared, and asks what would happen if there was no antidote for their poison. Republican Floor Leader Metzerott came to the rescue and opposed this amendment and asserted that Garrett county was entitled to the bill as now before the House, and the House endorsed his thought and passed the bill. It now goes to the Senate for approval of the amendment, then to the Governor for his signature,

At the session of Friday the House adopted the unfavorable report of the Hygiene Committee on House bill No. 113, by Mr. Shartzer, to prohibit the use of oleomargerine in hotels, restaurants or boarding houses, unless a card 6 x 12 inches is displayed, reading, "We serve oleomargarine." This is a statewide bill.

Mr. Shartzer Friday night offered two more bills, the first, "to further protect pheasants and partriges in Garrett county." Referred to the committee on Fish and Game.

The second, to amend the election law in Garrett county governing declaration of intentions. Referred to Committee on Elections.

Delegate Keedy, of Washington county, a son of Associate Judge Martin L. Keedy, yesterday introduced a bill providing a Constitutional Amendment creating an additional associate judge in the Fourth Judicial Circuit, comprising Allegany, Garrett and Washington counties. The bill provides that no two associate judges shall come from the same county in the circuit, virtually requiring the new judge, in the event of adoption of the amendment, to come from Garrett county. Two years ago a Constitutional Amendment was passed by the Legislature and subsequently ratified by the voters, creating an additional associate judge in the Sixth Circuit, composed of Harford and Baltimore counties.

Favorable reports were made on the following Garrett county bills on the 17th.

Delegate Hayden's enlarging the powers of the Mt. Lake Community and amending the charter.

Delegate Fox's new game bill for Garrett county similar to that of Allegany county.

Delegate Shartzer's, creating an auditor to audit the accounts of the Clerk of the Court, County Commissioners and Board of Election Supervisors of Garrett county and also his bill requiring all work on the roads of Garrett county to be completed prior to July 1st each year.

These bills were ordered to be printed for the third reading file.

Delegate Fox last Wednesday offered a bill in the house to incorporate the village of Accident. The boundary lines are: Beginning at the northeast corner of John Garringer's land, on the west side of the State road, thence South 27 degrees West, 4 perches South 66 degrees East, 100 perches to a stake, stone and pointers thence North 35 degrees East, 160 perches to 6 feet north-west of service tree, thence north 26½ degrees West, 161 perches to stake on West side of State road near a culvert, thence South 72½ degrees West, 96 perches to corner at stone fence, thence South 42½ degrees West, 113 perches to a locust tree, thence South 25 degrees East, to place of beginning.

The officers of the town are to be, for two years, Adam Richter, Robert A. Ravenscroft and Henry M. Speicher; for one year, Newton Gies, Floyd C. Diehl and Leonord Shartzer. Mayor, Frederick Burkhard, for a term of two years.

The Senate passed Delegate Hayden's bill giving to voters privilege of deciding for or against bond issue to construct sewerage system at Loch Lynn Heights, also his bill amending the charter of Loch Lynn Heights. These bills are now in the hands of the Governor for approval.

Unfavorable report by Temperance Committee on Senate bill 8, by Mr. Speicher, to prohibit the shipping of liquor into Garrett county, was made in the House. Mr. Shartzer's motion to substitute the bill for the report was carried, and the bill passed to the third reading.

Senator Speicher presented a bill Thursday authorizing the mayor and council af Grantsville to issue bonds, not to exceed $15,000, for constructing, erecting and maintaining water works and sewerage in the village. Grantsville is certainly, putting on "city airs." They are a wide-awake people and are keeping up with the times.

The legislature has only six more working days to complete a large amount of work. Night and day sessions will be in order and some bills will be rushed through which should have gone to the scrap heap.

In the Senate Monday night the Finance Committee reported favorable Senator Speicher's bill appropriating four thousand dollars a year for the next two years for the Garrett county schools and it was passed to its third reading. This bill was introduced by the Garrett county delegation earlier in the session and was reported unfavorably by the Ways and Means Committee, and was killed.

THE OPEN ROAD

Along Which An Effort Will Be Made to Assist the Wanderer on His Way Up Hill.

BY LEO J. RASCHE.

THE HOME TOWN.

Occasionally we hear perpetual pounders rapping the home town. We find them exhibiting some article of wearing apparel or something else that they purchased in an adjoining city, and we frequently find them asking for some particular make of shoes or something else that they know the home merchant doesn't handle. These are the boys who never have a word of encouragement for the home city or any enterprise therein and who seem to take a secret delight when the plans of the boosters occasionally seem set back. You never find them at the boom meetings, you never find them hoping with the optimists, but always pounding with the pessimists. They never hit a homer for Homerburg, they never bat high in the houghers league, they never have their enthusiasm warmed in the sunlight of good cheer. Chilly fellows, these, frigid fellows, and forever frowning. These hinder Homeburg. They are the knockers who put the knock in the machinery that propels the people on their way up hill.

What a relief it is to get away from these fellows and into the group that is filled with the fire of enthusiasm. You know the group, Jerome, the group that has faith in the future that feels certain that the long delayed era of new life will come. And with enough of boosters behind the hope for higher things, behind the hope for a bigger and better city, the hope is certain to be some day realized. Boosters build, and in so doing they help hope. Hope has to be helped.

Out in the mining regions of the West are many great cities of yesterday, sad remnants of the glory that has gone, of long since "petered out," and the mad rush has raced onward and elsewhere. But still there are the boosters, the faithful, sitting amidst the neglected and deserted buildings of the boom days, firm in their conviction that the boom will return, certain that the skeleton will revive its lusty life of yesterday. What a splendid lesson these faithful old pioneers present!

Not long ago I visited a city that increased but a single person between the years of 1900 and 1910. But that city has its boosters who believe that it should have exactly the population and the industries that Louisville, Ky., now has, and they feel firmly that one day Louisville will be on the Indiana side of the Ohio. That's spirit—the real booster spirit—the spirit that defies decline and hopes for the height of the hill for Hameburg.

There must be a strong manifestation of civic pride at home, Jerome, before there can be any strong magnet to attract an influx from without. Because a brass band makes loud and pleasing music it attracts a crowd always. And in the same manner folk flock to the city that makes the most noise, and the noise of thrift, of industry, of concerted action, is the noise. New York, for instance, is getting to be quite a town because it has always made quite a noise. So if you have something to say, say it for and not against the home town. If you have something to buy, buy it at home. If you have a hammer hide it, or hide yourself.

Mr. Wellington Crane, who has been with the Ruberoid Roofing Company for the past two or three years, is spending a vacation of some weeks in Oakland with relatives, the factory with which he is connected having been forced to close down owing to the lack of raw material and the salesmen taken off the road in consequence. Mr. Allen Justis, of Baltimore, is here also with Mr. Crane.

Mumps have been prevalent among the young people of Oakland during the past few weeks and a number have been extremely ill resulting from the attacks they have suffered. Among those who have had more or less serious cases are Messrs. Harry Weimer, Carroll Kelly and Donald Sincell, all of whom are now better but still confined to their rooms.

By posters printed at this office Sheriff Albert Ashby advertises at public auction at the building formerly occupied by the Independent Garage on Liberty street, a large lot of automobile accessories, office furniture, etc., taken under an execution issued by a local Justice to satisfy a number of creditors. The sale will occur on the premises Saturday, April 1st.

Fish Commissioner Wm. A. Smith, of Hoyes, spent Tuesday and vesterday in Oakland on business, going from here last night to Baltimore, after having made a delivery of young trout hatched at the State Fishery in Baltimore to a number of Garrett countians. The fish were received in excellent shape and immediately transported to the streams for which they were intended and emptied.

Mr. D. E. Bolden, who sold his general mercantile business to the firm of Shaffer & Bush, the latter taking charge about three weeks ago, is moving his stock of furniture from the Bolden & Brown building to rooms in the Manhattan Hotel building on Second street, where excellent quarters have been secured by Mr. Bolden and where the business will in future be carried on.

Mr. Ralph T. Thayer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred A. Thayer, of Oakland, is occupying a prominent as well as very responsible position in the Billy Sunday tabernacle at Baltimore, he having recently been placed in charge of the one hundred and fifty ushers on duty at the meetings held daily in the vast building and is held responsible for the comfort and well-being of the thousands who attend the services.

Many friends of the couple in Oakland are in receipt of invitations to attend the twenty-fifth anniversary celebration of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Miller, formerly of Oakland, which will be held at their home No. 1 Takoma Avenue, Takoma Park, D. C., on Saturday evening, April 1st, from eight until eleven o'clock. Mr. Miller has been a resident of Washington and Montgomery county, Md., for more than a quarter of a century, being nearly all of that time an employee of the Government in the Nation's printing office in the city. Prior to going to Washington he was an employee of The Republican.

County Commissioner George Warnick of Bloomington, is much in earnest concerning the road conditions of the county and is making a close study of ways and means to bring about better returns for the money invested by the county for the building and maintenance of these highways. In this he is being ably seconded by his fellow Commissioners, Messrs. Dixon and Smith, who have also been students of road improvement for the past several years and as a result of their work along this line the roads have been made better and the work of past years is now bearing fruit. Garrett county has an intelligent, hard-working Board of Commissioners who devote much of their time, while giving their private affairs their attention, looking to the welfare of the community at large.

BLOOMINGTON

One of the large transfers of oil property that have occurred in West Virginia, recently, took place at the Kenny House, Piedmont, a few evenings ago, when the New Martinsville Oil Company, whose works have been producing 150 to 200 barrels per day, transferred this valuable property to the Barnet Oil Company, of New York city for the sum of $308,000. A number of well-known local people who profited handsomely and moved over to the sunny side of easy street, are G. C. McFarland and Harry Kight, of Barnum; Dr. D. J. Long, of Piedmont; Dr. Johnson, of Keyser, Casper Kight, and George Kinkead, of Cross; Charles Simpson, C. K. Steiner and Dr. Hawkins, Cumberland.

Messrs. Shucilly & Janey, of Philadelphia, have secured the contract to widen the B. & O. bridge at Bloomington, to accommodate a third track, which, when completed, will connect the spur at W. Va. Junction with the one at Bond, the work commencing Monday. We understand the bridge will be 12 feet wider when finished, and the contractors expect to employ about 100 men, and it will take about six months to complete the work.

Mr. Casper Kight, of Sistersville, who has been spending a few days with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joshua Kight, near Cross, left for his home Monday morning.

Born, unto Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Cross, of Franklin, on Friday last, a boy, turning the scales at eleven pounds.

The members of Bloomington Lodge No. 162, I. O. F. turned out in goodly numbers on last Sunday afternoon and marched from their hall to the M. E. church where they attended divine services. Rev. Snedegar, pastor of the church and Grand Chaplain of the Grand Lodge of Maryland, has charge of the services and preached a most excellent sermon from the text, "Who is thy neighbor." Mr. Charles Brendlin, Noble Grand, was unable to be present at the ceremonies on account of being confined to his bed with a very serious attack of pneumonia.

A festival will be held on the evenings of March 23rd, 24th and 25 at this place, the proceeds of which will go to making up a deficiency in the salary of the pastor of the M. E. church. The public is cordially invited.

SHORT RUN

Cold weather still continues. Some of our farmers have their sugar camps opened but have had little else to do in that line. We hope for a change soon.

Mr. H. L. Warnick who has been ill for some time with pneumonia, is able to be out again.

Mr. Geo. D. Wilson, who has been a patient at the Western Maryland Hospital, Cumberland, for seven weeks, was brought to his home here Sunday, and we are glad to know that he is convalescing nicely.

Mrs. R. O. Rafter, son John, and daughter, Dorothy, of Cumberland, are visiting friends here.

Mrs. O. V. Fortney, of Kitzmiller, is paying an extended visit to her parents here. Mr. Fortney, who is employed at Bloomington, spent Sunday here.

Messrs Scott and Claude Harvey were business callers at Oakland Monday.

Mr. Milo Wilson spent Saturday of last week in Cumberland.

A number of our young men attended the spelling bee at Eagle Rock Friday night. They reported a nice time.

Mr. James Hoopengardner attended a dance at Dodson Saturday evening.

Luther Kepler, Hollis Wilson and Ray Harvey, of Kitzmiller, spent the week end visiting at Daniel Wilsons.

Mrs. V. E. Rafter, of Kitzmiller, was visiting relatives here last week.

Blanche, the little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Harvey, is quite ill with pneumonia at this writing.

Mr. G. W. Moon, of Eagle Rock, spent Sunday at J. H. Wilson's.

Success to the Republican.

HARVESTER.

NORTH GLADE

Solid winter continues. March and February seems to have exchanged weather conditions, but "its an ill wind that blows nobody good."

Our farmers have been busy getting lime and doing other hauling.

Mr. Charles Beckman and others have been slaying the foxes.

Mrs. J. L. McRobie has been at Cumberland for some time taking medical treatment.

H. C. Hershman has just received a telegram announcing the death of his father.

Considerable sickness prevails yet. There have been several cases of mumps hereabouts, but we hear of no new cases being developed.

Miss Lou Beckman has been visiting at Kitzmiller for a week or so.

Wm. Enlow has been a frequent visitor of Judge Harvey's. He and the Judge seems to be on intimate terms.

The Pentecostals are holding another meeting at Glendale. Our neighbors over there ought to get exceedingly good.

Our school is still progressing nicely: The school will close with a "spelling bee" and some recitations at night.

It has been decided to hold an Easter service at the Methodist church, to which all are cordially invited.

Baltimore. — "The Devil's Boomerang Up-to-Date, or Hot Cakes Off the Griddle," the sermon to hear which 30,000 men and youths sat through two services at the Billy Sunday tabernacle Sunday, 600 of that number hitting the sawdust trail, was too much for 18 members of the congregation, and these went to the hospital. Seven of them—three in the afternoon and four at night—were carried out feet first, having swooned.

Sunday had preached in the forenoon to a mixed audience of 15,000, when 317 persons trod the trail to shake his hand. His plea then was for religious activity; he delivered it with a quietness that was unusual, for his collar was dry when he concluded. He was saving up his energy for the men's meetings.

Picture Makes Them Wince.

In no preceding sermon here had the evangelist plumbed his vocabulary of sin-denouncing words to the extent that he did in that delivered to the men. In theme it was a flagellation of the social evil and its consequences; a series of word pictures of diseases and degradation flowing from vice which made thousands of men wince; an arraignment of the liquor traffic and of alcohol drinking couched in sentences that fairly seared.

"To hell with the saloon and all its infamy," he anathematized, and his audience cheered until the tabernacle was a-thunder; "the biggest fool on God's dirt is the man who drinks alcohol, and the biggest liar this side of hell is the man who tells him whiskey and beer are good for him."

But the sermon, even if it did make the audience of afternoon and evening wince, made an obvious impression and the trail-hitters seemed decidedly in earnest. Some of them wept openly.

Old men hit the trail, young men, little boys in knickerbockers and youths in their first long trousers. One Chinaman, with an inscrutable expression on his face, was piloted up the sawdust aisle by a man with white mutton-chop whiskers, and gravely shook the hand of Sunday. Then both the Oriental and his guide disappeared. A man who also appeared to be from the Orient, judging by his swarthy skin, coal-black eyes and general manner of being out of place in that gathering of Americans, brought his little boy to the platform. Both had hit the trail.

On the steps of the platform, to the right of the press box, stood a man with long white whiskers. A younger man hit the trail, went to him and wept on his shoulder.

"Hallelujah! Praised be the Lord!" shouted the aged man, his eyes streaming.

He Throws Himself About.

In delivering his sermon in the evening Sunday appeared more like the man as he is known best to the United States than he had since his first week in Baltimore. In contrast with his manner in the morning, he indulged in gestures of the most erratic kind, sprang upon his pulpit, threw himself once upon the platform to illustrate a baseball story, waved his arms, sprang about like a boxer and raised his voice again and again to a shout. Perspiration streamed from his face, his hair was disheveled and his collar a moist rag when he was halfway through.

He spoke in the language of the street, discussed diseases and vice in the vocabulary which the most uncultured could understand best, coined "Sundayesque" epigrams and hurled them like shrapnel into the bulk of his audience.

"There was a time in my life," he said, "when a man wouldn't have trusted me to hold a yellow dog 15 minutes, but that was nearly 29 years ago."

The audience laughed, but he checked the laughter to tell of the death of Commodore Vanderbilt.

"Don't worry if there are no pockets in your shrouds, you skinflints," he said, "your arms will be so stiff you couldn't reach into them anyway. You needn't bother about not being able to take silver and gold along with you; it would melt anyway."

No Double Standard.

The audience roared again. And again he checked its mirth, this time by preaching against different standards of morality for men and women. Later he plunged headlong into an excoriation of the liquor traffic and the men behind it.

"Men of Baltimore," he shouted, "I'll preach harder, preach longer, I'll reach up higher and reach down lower to save a man from hell than all that damnable, God-forsaken bunch put together."

The tabernacle broke into an ovation of applause and hats and handkerchiefs were waved, while the enemies of liquor shouted until their faces were red.

He approached the end of his sermon by recounting the story of his own conversion, following his decision one night on a Chicago street that the time had come for him to "live straight." At the time he was drunk, he said, and with him was a "sidekick" of the Old White Stockings team —Frank Flint. Then he told of Flint's continuance in a life of drunkenness and of the deathbed scene when the "umpire called him out."

Day One Of Results.

The day was one of results, and the total of trail-hitters was second only to last Sunday. Twenty-two converts were listed at a meeting for women held in the Lyric by Miss Frances Miller. At St. John's Emmanuel Methodist Episcopal Church South there were three trail-hitters when the Rev. Dr. James E. Walker spoke in the afternoon. Dr. Walker was the speaker at Roland Park Methodist Episcopal Church at night, where there were 12 reconsecrations, counted as trail-hitters, and at this church in the forenoon 25 new members were enrolled, four of them having previously hit the tabernacle trail. Five persons hit the trail at St. John's Methodist Protestant Church, where the speaker was the Rev. Alfred Sheldrick, manager of the tabernacle bookroom.

Grand Total 1,011.

Outside of the tabernacle meetings the largest number of trail-hitters were reported by Miss Alice Miriam Gamlin. At two union meetings, afternoon and evening, at Calvary Presbyterian Church, she prevailed upon 52 persons, 22 of them being children, to pledge their lives to Christianity. In the morning Miss Gamlin had conducted a meeting at the Mount Royal Avenue Methodist Protestant Church. She has charge of the boys' and girls' work of the Sunday organization.

This brought the grand total of trail-hitters for the day, in all services conducted by or under the auspices of the Sunday organization, to 1,011.

The throng which first heard the "Devil's Boomerang" sermon consisted of men and youths, who had arrived at the tabernacle by noon and waited patiently considerably more than an hour for the afternoon activities to begin.

This congregation was fully as much impressed by the testimony of Representative John T. Cooper, of Ohio, as by the sermon. He told how he had been converted by Sunday seven years ago, how he had thereafter risen from the humble position of locomotive engineer to become Congressman from Ohio, and who gave nearly all of the credit for his success to Sunday. It was the testimony of Representative Cooper which helped bring the 295 men to the platform up the sawdust trail.

HOT SHOTS FROM SUNDAY'S SERMONS

The mother knows God so much better than any one else; it is man who tries to measure God by the tape line of his puny understanding.

She has done her prayerful best, and when you have done that you can bank on it that God will not fail you.

If God Almighty struck dead those who haven't prayed today most of you would drop from your seats right into the sawdust on the floor of this tabernacle.

God always does things at the right time. Give God a chance; He may be a little slow at times, but He will always get around in time.

Fathers often give up. The old man often goes to boozing, becomes dissipated, takes a dose of poison and commits suicide; but the mother will stand by the home and keep the little band together if she has to manicure her finger nails over a washboard to keep the brood out of the poorhouse.

If you want to find greatness, don't go toward the throne; go to the cradle, and the nearer you get to the cradle the nearer to greatness.

When God sends us great men He wants to have them get the right kind of a start. So He sees to it that they get a good mother. Most any old stick will do for a daddy. God is particular about the mothers.

If every mother would rock her own baby the world would be much better. If every mother did as she should or as the Bible taught, the preachers and the police would have little to do.

Talk about greatness! Oh, you wait until you reach the mountains of eternity, then read the mothers' names in God's hall of fame, and see who they have been in this world.

How do you know but that the angels watch your work with as much interest as they watched Moses mother train that boy?

A STORY OF THE EARLY DAYS OF GARRETT COUNTY

Wherein the Rev. D. A. Friend Relates Some Interesting Episodes

The story I am about to tell was current from 50 to 100 years ago, and in those times was often told, at least in part, by many whose tongues have long been silent in the dust of the grave.

When I was a small boy the long and dreary winter evenings were often spent in telling historical stories of days and years gone by.

And I for one was always happy when such occasions came around; and this is one of the stories I used to hear them tell:

About the year 1750 when the early settlers began to flock to these parts, and the Friends, and Ratans, and Freys, and Smiths, from time to time, would chase the roving bands of Indians away, there might have been seen a log cabin nearby a good spring, not far from the summit of the river hill, and about one mile south of where the town of Friendsville now stands.

In this cabin lived a sturdy settler by the name of Grimm, with his wife and a number of children, the eldest of which was a very attractive young woman, and who was a crack shot with a rifle, and often accompanied her father on hunting excursions in the dense woods about them which at the time abounded in all kinds of wild game.

Maggie Grimm was also fond of fishing, and often with her father and younger brother would bring home loads of speckled beauties from the river which flowed at the foot of the hill, and which was literally squirming with the beautiful trout. Their cabin was situated in a secluded place well protected from storms, and surrounded by a deep forest and a full mile away from the old Indian trail, which crossed the river at the broad riffle north of the site of the town and nearby where Mr. Fred Kamp now lives. Their smoke by day, nor their light by night could not be seen from the trail, so they felt comparatively safe, and yet they were well prepared with good rifles and a liberal supply of powder and ball. They had but one cleared field and that was near the cabin. They kept cows and pigs, but sheep they could not keep on account of bears and panthers and wolves which infested the woods around them.

At the spring nearby they had a very temporary spring house where they kept their fresh meat, and milk, and butter and honey and the like. One autumn morning about daylight, the dogs kept barking and they heard a crash at the spring house, and Grimm on going hastily out with his rifle in hand discovered that a huge black bear had broken into the spring house, and was helping himself to a pot of honey that he had doubtless smelled as he was passing by. Grimm cautiously slipped upon him, and sent a bullet through the heart of the fat old fellow which afforded him a splendid skin for an overcoat, in addition to a good supply of fat bear meat for the use of the family.

Now about this time there was a stranger came to Grimm's cabin and saw Miss Maggie Grimm, and was strongly impressed by her pleasing manner, and her charmingly beautiful face.

This man's name was Lapinton. He was a trapper and fur buyer and he soon began to make very frequent visits to Grimm's cabin, and would often stay for several days at a time; all the while his heart burning with love for Miss Maggie, but she for the while holding him off. Her father seemed right well pleased with Lapinton, and would often take him fishing and hunting with them, and indeed he was inclined to think him a rather brave and clever fellow.

On one of those visits there came up an occasion for Lapinton to show that indeed he was a fearless and brave man. He had been there for several days trying to woo his darling Maggie, but with only a partial success. But one morning the dogs were barking most furiously about a chestnut tree that stood by a lower spring; both men sprang out of bed and Grimm seized his rifle and made for the scene; Lapinton slipped along behind him without his gun and upon nearing the spot, to their utter surprise they discovered a huge panther perched among the lower limbs of the chestnut tree. Grimm fired at once, and the panther fell or sprang wounded to the ground and started to run away, but was checked for the moment by the dogs, when Lapinton bounded forward and seized the ugly beast by the tail, and with Lapintou at the tail end, and the dogs at the head end, round and round the tree they went, and by this time the women were on the scene, and screamed to Lapinton to let go or the beast would tear him to ribbons; but he only tightened his hold, and gritted his teeth and held on as if his life depended upon it. In the meantime Grimm had hurriedly reloaded his gun, and carefully watching his chance, sent a bullet through the head of the beast which laid it low. It was indeed a monster, one of the largest of its kind. And now, that this exciting battle was ended all was joy and rejoicing as they together exulted over the great victory they had won. And as they returned to the cabin, Miss Maggie gave Lapinton the first really encouraging word that he had heard from her in all their former courtship when she said "she believed that Lapinton was the bravest man she had ever seen."

Lapinton was so encouraged by this saying of Miss Maggie that he really began to think of "popping the question." A few evenings after this as they were seated together in the shade of a tree near the cabin watching whippoorwills as they were sailing through the air above them, he ventured to ask her if she would consent to be his wife? "Your question," said she, "is a very serious one, Mr. Lapinton, and I must ask you to let me consider the matter until sometime tomorrow, and I will give you an answer." "O, why not now?" he said in a subdued voice. Just at that moment Maggie's mother came to the cabin door and called out in a cheerful voice "come in to supper, children," and the matter was left undecided at least for the day. While the supper was tempting and everything nicely prepared, yet it was noticed that Lapinton was nervous, and he tasted things very sparingly that night. "You are not sick, are you, Lapinton?" said Grimm, "How does it come you don't eat more than you do?" "O, no," he replied with a labored smile, "I am not sick, but somehow I am not very hungry tonight." Maggie went about everything in her usual way, all that evening and the following morning, but the conversation was not resumed until after dinner next day, when Lapinton proposed to Maggie that they take a little walk. Maggie consented, and they started off leisurely along together and neither of them spoke a word for several minutes, and the silence at length became almost painful. Finally Lapinton took hold of her hand and swinging it along in a playful manner as they walked, broke the silence by saying, "Well, Maggie, I suppose till this time you are ready to give an answer to my question?" "Yes," said she, "I am ready, and I will tell you as a friend that I have never seen a man that I love better than I love my daddy, and I have concluded to remain with him for a while yet." "You don't mean to say you will not be my wife, do you, Maggie?" "That's just what I mean to say, Mr. Lapinton." "Then you break my heart and I can never see another happy day." "O," said she, "I think you will soon get over it." "Never! I cannot live! I will not live! I'll end my life this day," and so saying he walked with quickened step back to the cabin, picked up his rifle and other effects and Maggie stood gazing upon him as he disappeared among the great forest trees that stood on the southern side of the cabin.

Maggie kept the secret to herself, and the great query was, what has become of Lapinton? Why did he leave so suddenly? Why didn't he at least tell us where he was going? He never as much as said gooby, and in this manner time passed for several days.

At length Maggie's conscience began to lash her so heavily that she was forced to let the secret out. "O, why didn't you tell us sooner?" said her father. "I did'nt like to; I thought he did'nt mean it, and that he would be back again." "Maggie," said her mother, "I never thought you were so hard hearted as that." "That man has killed himself," said Grimm, "and we may be held responsible for his death. I'll go at once and get some neighbors and we'll a make search for his dead body." That afternoon Grimm traveled long distances and gathered together a number of men.

The next morning they started out with their guns and their dogs. They had not gone far 'till they came to a point of the hill where there was abundance of whortleberries, and some one observed that there were signs that some human being had been there, and presently they found Lapinton standing upon the top of a very large rock. The summit of the rock was some 15 to 20 feet above the ground and was covered over with ferns and small wild shrubbery. Upon this rock he had built himself a booth, where he was entirely safe from wild animals and snakes, and all the while he had subsisted upon the whortleberries which were very plentiful all around him. At the request of the men he reluctantly consented to return with them to the cabin. But he seemed very despondent, and soon left them saying he would return to England again from whence he had come, and the Grimm family had no tidings from him from that day. The rock upon which Lapinton was found is a very prominent one, and the story as it has been told, has attracted many people to visit the place, and it is still known by many as "Lapinton's Rock."

The above is the story as it was often rehearsed in my presence when I was a child.

The old fisherman's path led near by that rock, and as we passed by that way the story was often rehearsed.

And now we pass to another story which is so closely related to this one that it really seems a part of the same. It is a real history, and for the truth of this latter story I pledge you my honor.

The Grimm home passed from hand to hand for some years without any legal title more than a squatter's right, until some years after the Revolutionary War when order began to be restored. Some one, who occupied the land at the time, laid a warrant on the same, and obtained a patent from the State of Maryland for a tract of land called "Grimm's Point" being on both sides of the Yough river, and containing some 300 acres of land.

About the year 1844, the Grimm's Point farm was owned by one Jacob Spicher, who at that time made a transfer of the same to Andrew and Joshua Friend, my grandfather and my father.

The land was at once divided into three farms, my father and my uncle Jonathan occupying the farms on the west side of the river, and Coleman Friend occupying the east side.

The old Grimm home fell to the portion of Joshua M. Friend who was a young married man with one child, my elder brother. And there in a log house which stood on the site of the old Grimm cabin, and by that same spring these eyes of mine first saw the light of day, on the morning of the 18th of March, 1847, and there I spent the years of my early life. Many a time I have picked the chestnuts that grew and ripened upon that same old chestnut tree that stood by the side of the "lower spring," and which was pointed out as the scene of Grimm's and Lapinton's scene with the huge panther.

And as, has been observed, "Truth is more wonderful than fictin," I now have a special treat for the reader and with this I will close.

In my boyhood days there were still to be found wolves and panthers, and bears in the dense woods around us, and about the years 1860-1863 there was a pair of big gray wolves that infested the cove, near where the lumber town of Kendall was afterward built, and in the winter time they were known to kill a great many sheep for different farmers in reach of the place and those animals were so cunning that they never could be caught. Now comes the interesting part of my story.

On the 3rd of May, 1863, when I was 15 years old, I was out with my gun in that part of the woods. It was Saturday afternoon of a beautiful sunlit day, when after a continuous barking of my dog, I came up to where he was, and found him on the sunny side of that very identical "Lapinton's Rock" gleefully barking over a nest of five young wolves which he and I succeeded in killing without one of them getting away. For this day's work I was rewarded by the State of Maryland with $100.00 which my father obtained in cash the following July. Would any body for a moment wonder that I for one will never forget the old Lapinton Rock?

D. A. FRIEND.

THE PEOPLE'S FORUM.

Man's Need of Revelation.

The question may arise in some minds, Does man need a revelation from God? We must answer yes, by all means, he does. But what do we mean by a Revelation? It is the communication of truth to the mind, that could not otherwise be discovered.

Rationalists—Those who get their religious opinions from reason or the understanding, as opposed to revelation. As a system it makes rational power the ultimate test of truth. Rationalists say no, we do not need a revelation for it is inconsistent with the nature of God and His revelation to the world, to suppose that He interferes by direct agency the in course of events.

God having created the world and endowed His creatures with attributes and properties has done all that is consistent with His nature. He does not intefere by any immediate agency in the producing of effeets. These they say belong to the efficiency of second causes. But they say, admit the metaphysical possibility of such intervention it is still morally impossible because that would imply imperfection in God. If his work needs supervision, or his interference, it must be imperfect, hence God is either deficient in wisdom or power.

This, however, is against the testimony of our moral nature. We are conscious of being related to God and that relation implies that we are constantly in the presence of a God who takes cognizance of our acts, orders our circumstances and interposes for our correction or protection. He is a God not far off but near by, in whom we live and move and have our being---who counts the very hairs of our head and who notes the fall of a sparrow. The common consciousness of men is opposed to the theory that nature is sufficient. This is evident from the fact that all nations—enlightened and barbarous—conceive of God as able to take notice of human affairs and to reveal Himself to his creatures.

The argumens from the scriptures, while it is of no weight to the Rationalists, is convincing to the Christian. The God of the Bible is everywhere present with His works and acts upon them when, where and as He pleases. But while the teachings of natural theology are trust worthy, they are not sufficient. They appeal to the imagination, exciting wonder, awe and reveal the being, wisdom and power of God, yet the knowledge derived from His works would not lead fallen men to salvation. The deductions of reason cannot reveal the fact that any sinner can be saved, nor the conditions on which such may be saved.

The Bible refers to the works of nature as manifestations of the perfection of God and assert it plainly at the same time—Psalm 10:1-4; 94:8-10; Acts 14:15-17. Paul asserts the clearness of this revelation in Romans 1:19 21. The unwritten revelation or the revelation of nature while it is trustworthy is not infallible. (1) The teaching of God through the structure of the human mind is faulty or imperfect by reason of depravity.

That is to say, sin has so darkened the intellect that there is no longer the clear perception of truth that characterizes the angels and which Adam possessed before the fall. Again, sin gives a bias to the will against the truth, so that where it is accurately perceived, there is an effort to get rid of it. That is, men know that God is holy, yet they do not like to retain this knowledge of Him in their minds, Romans 1:28.

Sin also weakens the powers of intentions; vice debilitates the spiritual and rational faculties by giving strength to the sensuous natures. It is a part of the punishment for sin that God withdraws, for a time, his common grace so that there is little or no intuitive perceptive of moral truth the mind is left to sin. Hence they are given up to uncleanness, Rom. 1:24, and to a reprobate mind Rom. 1:28.

An unwritten revelation is not infallible because of the limitations of the human mind. Natural religion is no more trustworthy than the human intellect, but the human intellect can't be infallible unless preserved from all error by the extraordinary exertion of Divine power.

Unwritten revelation is also inadequate to the needs of man as a sinner, because it does not include those truths which relate to redemption. It has nothing concerning mercy. It reveals only stern law, strict justice—Paul says that the wrath, not the compassion of God, is taught to men in the workings of conscience. This is the lack of all natural religions of mankind. Men like to talk about comparative religions. They say that Buddism and Confucianism are co-ordinate with christianity, because they teach the Golden Rule, and other principles of Ethics. That proves nothing. The distinguishing character of christianity is not that it teaches sound Ethics, but that it is the offer of mercy through a mediator, it is a radical change of human nature.

Christianity is gospel, pure and simple, not law, while Buddism and Confucianism so far as they teach truth, are law, not gospel.

Can they secure forgiveness for sins? There is no regeneration, no pardon in any religion save in christianity, hence we can never admit that it is merly one among several religions. It is an exclusive religion for man, because it is the only redemptive religion for him. It is evident then if man is to know how to obtain the forgiveness he so much needs he must have a revelation other then that in nature.

In our next, we shall consider the written revelation.

Yours truly,
JOHANNES.

Mail Reaches Oakland By Freight.

To the Editor of The Republican.

We often read of and hear of the constant coining of new words to meet new conditions which if compiled together would no doubt make quite a long list within a very short while and after hearing the term "freight mail" used upon our streets on numerous occasions we were very much surprised to find that to Oakland evidently belongs the distinction of adding a new phrase to the already lengthy list.

The explanation it seems is this: After the arrival of a mail train during the day time it has been the custom at the post office to close the windows until all of the mail received from that train has been distributed to the boxes but because our people find mail in their boxes at all hours of the day when they have visited them once or more times since the last regular mail train came in they have evidently come to the conclusion that the only way it could arrive is by freight therefore the expression "freight mail" or "mail by freight" which we hear jocularly used so frequently.

A PATRON

Jennings Lad was Married at Reading

Fay O. Yommer, of Jennings, Md., left for Reading, Pa., last Saturday, where he was married on Friday, March 17th, to Miss Esther Price, a charming young lady of that city. Mr. Yommer became acquainted with his bride through correspondence and their marriage is the culmination of a very interesting romance. He is a young man of excellent character and has been employed as woods foreman by F. L. Otto & Co., lumber-men of New Germany. Mr. and Mrs. Yommer will go on a honeymoon tour of two weeks to Washington, D. C., and other places of interest before returning to Jennings where they expect to make their home. Fay is giving his many friends a genuine surprise, but all will join in giving him and his bonny bride a royal welcome upon their return from their honeymoon trip.

Dr. JOSEPH IRWIN FRANCE

Some Reasons Why Republicans Almost Unanimously Have Declared for Dr. France.

He is the Candidate of no one faction of his party.

He is appealing directly to the rank and file.

He is acceptable to all Republicans.

He is acceptable to the Progressives.

He has the ability to represent the State fittingly in the Senate.

He has the support of the State Wide Press.

He believes the Republican Party should be the MAJORITY Party in Maryland.

His Candidacy, just as did Mr. Weller's, represents an effort to nominate proved men free from previous political alignments. Mr. Weller received the greatest number of votes ever given a Republican Candidate. It is the policy that will build up the party.

His candidacy represents the nation wide movement to nominate candidates upon whom all opponents of the Democratic Party can unite enthusiastically so that the breach of 1912 may be permanently healed.

His Headquarters are at 304 Maryland Trust Building, Baltimore, where he will be glad to meet or hear from all Republicans.

Miss Isabel Hamill, one of our sophomores, entertained a company of friends at her home on Oak street last Friday evening. The evening was spent in participating in contests and other games of St. Patrick's Day nature, prizes being awarded the winners. Green was carried out in a very appropriate way. At a seasonable hour delicious refreshments were served. Those present were Misses Lillian Helbig, Beulah Ralston, Cecelia Hart, Lois Fraley, Nell McComas, Helen Helbig, Helen Hart; and Messrs. Gerald Tanner, Glenn Martin, Robert Sliger, Clyde Dawson, Dudley King, Felix Robinson, Julius Littman and Ross Isenberg.

Mrs. J. C. Ely visited the high school last Wednesday afternoon and addressed us at the exercise period. She spoke of the importance of study and how essential it is to prepare one for his life work. She gave two striking illustrations; one for the boys, and another for the girls. She also impressed upon our minds the harmfulness of cigarettes. In short, it was an excellent talk and we thank Mrs. Ely for her interest in us and our high school.

Dr. Howard visited us Monday afternoon and gave us some introductory remarks pertaining to his lecture "The American Civil War" to be given at St. Paul's M. E. church in the evening. Many of the students attended the lecture and were pleased with the stereopticon views illustrating the striking scenes of the Civil War and benefitted by his instruction.

The Republican Voters of the Sixth Congressional District

On May 1st next the Republicans of the Sixth Congressional District of Maryland will nominate their candidate for Congress. The responsibility of choosing their standard-bearer is placed upon the individual Republicans of the District, and it is to them I am addressing this appeal for support.

I shall not at this time go thoroughly into the important issues confronting the people of our country or my individual ideas of what should be done to make for progress, protection, prosperity and preparedness; not only against war, but for peace and for commercial expansion and supremacy.

Individual ideas, no matter how strongly buttressed in times like these, must be put through the great melting pot of intelligent and serious conference. The Republicans of the nation will meet in convention at Chicago on June 7th next to nominate the party's standard-bearer for President and Vice President of the United States and to adopt the platform upon which they and, in fact, all the party's candidates must stand and seek the support of the States and the Nation.

My ideas are based upon conditions as I now see them. These conditions may change by the time our party's platform is built and our candidates placed before the people upon its planks—a platform which I believe will bring victory to our party and substantial and lasting prosperity to our people.

As to my subscribing to that platform and doing my utmost to carry out its pledges, if elected I point to and stand squarely upon my record in the Senate of Maryland during the sessions of 1910, 1912, 1914 and 1916, and to my stewardship as my party's floor leader in the Senate in 1914 and 1916, an honor which my colleagues bestowed upon me unanimously.

In the State Senate I have stood for all constructive and humanitarian legislation, irrespective of where such legislation originated. If nominated and elected to the Congress of the United States I shall stand then, as I have always stood, for the greatest good for the people of my District, our State and the Nation.

My duties at Annapolis will preclude my making a lengthy canvass, as the Assembly will not adjourn until less than a month before the primaries. In the brief time left me I shall endeavor to personally meet all the voters of the Sixth Maryland District. Meanwhile I am addressing myself to them and seeking their support for the Republican nomination for Congress from the District.

FREDERICK N. ZIHLMAN.

SENATOR ZIHLMAN'S RECORD

Served in the State Senate during the sessions of 1910-12-14-16 and executed the duties of Republican Senate Floor Leader during the sessions of 1914 and 1916, after having been elected unanimously by his colleagues both times.

During his four sessions Senator Zihlman has worked for and supported much constructive and humanitarian legislation, among which were the Public Utilities Act, Workman's Compensation Law, Ten-Hour Law for Women, Corrupt Practices Act, Uniform Election Laws, Direct Primaries, Penal Reform measures, Good Roads, Health laws, Child Labor Law, State Care of the Insane, Reduction of Legislative Expenses, the Miners' and Operators' Co-Operative Relief Law and many other equally important measures.

SAVE WASTE PAPER AND OLD RAGS

Says Uncle Sam Don't Burn Them—Supply of Paper-making Material Low.

Alarmed by the high prices of paper stock, the United States government, through Secretary of Commerce William C. Redfield, has issued the following statement, warning the public against the shortage of paper material and rags. Under the caption: "Save Your Paper Material, Your Waste Paper and Rags," it says:

"The attention of the Department of Commerce is called by the president of a large paper manufacturing company to the fact that there is a serious shortage of raw material for the manufacture of paper including rags and old papers. He urges that the department should make it known that the saving of rags and old paper would greatly help the existing condition for the American manufacturers. Something like 15,000 tons of different kinds of papers and paper board are manufacturer every day in the United States and a large proportion of this, after it has served its purpose, could be used over again in the same class of paper. A large part of it, however, is either burned or otherwise wasted. This, of course, has to be replaced by new materials. In the early history of the paper industry, publicity was given to the importance of saving rags. It is scarcely of less importance now.

The Department of Commerce is called to bring this matter to the attention of the public in the hope that practical results may follow from it. A little attention to the saving of rags and old papers will mean genuine relief for the paper industry and the diminishing drain upon our sources of supply for new material.

A list of dealers in paper stock can be obtained from the local Chamber of Commerce.

All kinds of paper has raised in price, especially print paper used for newspapers and periodicals. Card board and heavy paper used so extensively has made a heavy drain on card board stock.

Sources of pulp wood are fast disappearing and it is believed in a short while, some substitute must be found to prevent the mills from shutting down.

Trenton Beats Oakland.

The Trenton, N. J., basketball team defeated the Oakland Collegians here Thursday night in one of the most spectacular games seen here this season. The visitors were much larger and heavier than the locals, and displayed the finest system of pass-work ever seen on the local floor. The locals put up a nervy game against great odds, and were in hard luck shooting baskets, otherwise the score would have been closer. The final score was 29 to 17.

Shorter Route West.

Announcement was made Saturday that a State road through Meyersdale and Salisbury, Pa., to connect the Lincoln Highway with the National Pike will be built this summer by the Pennsylvania State Highway Department. The road will leave the Lincoln Highway at Stoyestown, Pa., and connect with the National Pike in the vicinity of Grantsville, Garrett county. This road will also give the people of Western Maryland a shorter route to Pittsburgh.

THE WEEK'S DOINGS AT THE STATE CAPITAL

Many Measures of Local Interest Have Been Considered.

STATE HOUSE ANNAPOLIS, MARCH 29—Last Wednesday in the Senate bills introduced by Senator Speicher authorizing the Board of Public Works to sell the State's interests at Lake Brown, and authorizing the Mayor and Council of Grantsville to issue bonds for water works and sewerge were reported favorably by the committees to which they had been referred.

Delegate Fox introduced a bill in the House amending the charter of the town of Friendsville.

Mr. Fox's bill to compel the Baltimore and Ohio R. R. Co to maintain an agent and stop certain trains at Bloomington was reported favorably by the Judiciary Committee of the House on Thursday last.

Mr. Fox introduced a bill at the night session Thursday, by request, to exempt Friendsville from the operation of the liquor law. This bill was referred to the Garrett delegation.

Mr. Hayden's bill amending the incorporation of Mt. Lake Park was reported favorably at the same session.

The bill proposing a constitutional amendment and the creating of an additional Associate Judge for the Fourth Judicial Circuit—Allegany, Garrett and Washington counties, introduced some time ago by Delegate Keedy, of Washington county, has been favorably reported, and is now on the third reading reading calendar. Under the provisions of this act the constitutional amendment will be submitted to the voters in next November, and if ratified at the polls, the election of the additional jndge will take place at the election in November, 1917. Inasmuch as, under the provisions of the bill, no two associate judges can come from the same county, the associate judge provided for will come from Garrett county, and Oakland will probably have a resident member of the circuit court.

$30,000 BOND ISSUE FOR GARRETT.

Captain James A. Hayden, of the Garrett Delegation, last Friday night introduced in the House a bill authorizing and directing the County Commissioners of Garrett county to issue bonds to the amount of $30,000, for the purpose of erecting and equipping a high school building at Oakland. The bond issue is officially endorsed by the County Commissioners and the School Board of Garrett county.

The measure was referred to the Garrett delegation, and it was yesterday reported favorably with an amendment referring the question of issuing bonds to the voters of the tax payers at the election to beheld in November of the present year. The bill contemplates the issuing of the $30,000 of bonds, $5,000 of which will be used to erect buildings at Kempton, and to repair buildings in other portions of the county. The measure was introduced to relieve the conditions now existing at Oakland where on last Wednesday a storm partially wrecked the high school building and has made it unsafe for school or other purposes, hence the authorities have declared a vacation of the high school pupils until the adjournment of the grammer school on April 7th, when the high school will be opened in the latter building and studies resumed.

Shortly before 5 o'clock this morning the Senate passed the Furst Field annexation bill by a vote of fourteen to nine, to its third reading, but the manner in which it was put over may seriously endanger not only the annexation bill itself but also numerous other bills which are backed by Baltimore City and their friends.

About 3:30 o'clock with Senator Zihlman of Allegany, who had been presiding since President Campbell had taken the floor on Monday night, in the chair, Senator Speicher began a speech which, from the size of his documents and length of his notes, would last for several hours. The annexation Senators left the chamber and held a hurried conference and upon their return, Senator Mudd, of Charles county, Republican, succeeded Senator Zihlman in the chair.

With Senator Speicher still speaking, Senator Mudd recognized Senator Holmear of Prince Georges county, who moved that the Senate go into executive session. Senator Speicher protested but the motion prevailed, and the Senate Chamber was cleared.

While in executive session cloture rules were adopted for the first time in the history of the Maryland Senate, preventing further speech making or further amendments or any filibustering or dilatory tactics. These cloture rules were adopted and although other Senators wanted to be heard on the "gag rule" motion Senator Mudd refused to recognize them. After adopting the cloture rules the Senate resumed open session and a motion to pass the annexation bill to its third reading file. There were four votes short, these having been paired, so the votes would have been 16 to 11, had the full membership been present.

Great excitement followed the passage of the bill to its third reading and the Senate at 4:55 this morning recessed until noon today. All day yesterday until noon today, the Senate has been working under Monday's date. The anti-annexationists are up in arms and there is trouble brewing unless something is done to modify the anti and their leaders at once—all sorts of threats are being made and whatever chance the annexation bill had of passing the house is now believed to have been dissipated.

Immediately the Senate convenes today and there are evidences of a break between Senators who have been personal and political friends for years and other Congressional candidates in the Sixth District may be the result. Numerous Baltimore politicians including "Sonny" Mahon and his lieutenants arrived on early trains this morning and it is believed the day will see some interesting happenings.

Delegete Hayden, of the Garrett delegation, has introduced a bill amending the charter of the town of Oakland. The bill provides for the election of a clerk, treasurer and tax collector for Oakland, and also makes provision for a new registration of voters. The clerk, treasurer and tax collector are now appointed by the mayor and council and the bill provides for their election, instead. In order to get the bill in, the time having expired for the introduction of bills, Delegate Hayden had to ask "unanimous consent," which was granted.

Under special order House bill 559, by Mr. Shartzer, to appropriate $4,000 for free beds in the Home Sanatorium, Oakland, Garrett county, came up on consideration of the unfavorable report. Mr. Shartzer moved to substitute and offered an amendment to cut the appropriation to $2,000. The motion to substitute was carried and the bill passed to its third reading.

New Locomotive in Service.

The mammoth new locomotives for freight service on the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad have been received and were placed in service over the mountoin division of the road this week. The machines are simply tremendous and their pulling power almost beyond comprehension. In descending the 17-mile grade Tuesday morning one of the new engines exceeded the speed limit over the bound track near Bond Junction and was thrown into the runaway switch up the mountain, but no damage ensued as a result except that it required about four hours' labor on the part of a train crew sent out for the purpose to pull the engine and thirteen cars to which it was attached back to the main track.

The high water of last Wednesday rose to such an extent as to carry away the footbridge built across Little Yough connecting the railway station with the Oakland hotel grounds. The bridge has been rebuilt by residents of Hungry Hollow who built it orignally for their convenience in reaching town.

COMMISSIONERS TO MAKE LEVY

Annual Appropriation Session of Board Will Be Held April 17th.

The Board of County Commissioners of Garrett county, will convene in session on Monday, April 17th, for the purpose of making the annual levy for the year 1916, at which time all expenses for the conduct of the public business such as roads, bridges, elections, salaries of officers, courts, etc., will be provided for.

While it is impossible to say with any degree of precision what the rate of taxation may be, it is confidently expected that the same will not exceed last year's rate unless some extraordinary expense will have to be provided for and this is at the present moment not anticipated by the Board.

To Farmers of Allegany and Garrett Counties.

The meeting of the Seed Potato Growers Association scheduled for March 24, at the Citizens National Bank has been postponed to April 5. This was necessary, due to the fact that the department of markets and organizations of the United States Government could not send a representative on March 24. However, the chief of the bureau has promised to send from his department a specialist on this subject who has had much practical experience in just this kind of work, who will undoubtedly be able to help the association along the right lines and on a firm basis.

Insane Patients to Hospital.

Sheriff and Mrs. Albert Ashby returned home Monday from Baltimore and Sykesville. To the latter place they took two insane patients, Mrs. Elizabeth Lavelle, a woman of eighty years, and a young girl named Biggs, where both will be treated and cared for by the state. Another county charge, Michael Lavelle, son of the insane Mrs. Lavelle, was accompanied to Baltimore by the sheriff and placed in University Hospital for treatment.

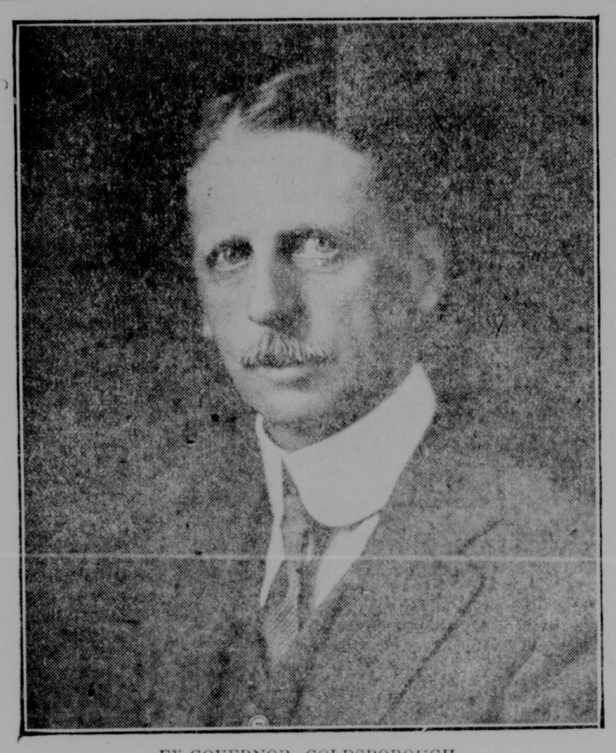
Men of Maryland Pay Goldsborough Tribute

Candidacy of Former Governor For U. S. Senate is Heartily Endorsed.



EX-GOVERNOR GOLDSBOROUGH.

BALTIMORE, Md., March 28—Every reader of American history is familiar with the fact that the name of Goldsborough is closely identified with the birth and development of the nation from the beginning. The present generation has contributed another chapter to that illustrious family history in the public life of Phillips Lee Goldsborough.

Mr. Goldsborough has just retired from the office of Governor of the state and is a candidate for the nomination of his party for United States Senator. His public life has been one of great credit to his family and to the state.

He was elected as State's Attorney in Dorchester county in 1891 and again in 1895. He was elected Comptroller of the Treasury of Maryland, in 1897. He was appointed Collector of Internal Revenue in 1902 and was twice reappointed to the same position by Presidents Roosevelt and Taft. In 1911 he was elected Governor of Maryland, the second Republican to achieve that high honor in half a century.

He administered the affairs of the state for four years surrounded with every political difficulty that could be invented by the opposition to his party; yet his administration was probably the object of the least attack and criticism of any governor in the history of the state, while the achievements of his term of office are admittedly as numerous and as important and as beneficial to the state as is accredited to any man who ever held that office.

Even with this extended experience in public affairs, Governor Goldsborough is still a young man. He was born August 6, 1865. It is quite possible for him to serve the country in the United States Senate for many years, and he is the kind of man whom the people usually keep in office when they have become familiar with his abilities and have learned to appreciate the fact that they are represented by a man who is the peer of any senator in the Capitol. He will become more valuable to the state and nation every year he is in the senate.

"The greatest political achievement of Governor Goldsborough has been the demonstration by his acts that the Republican party in Maryland can give a clean, honorable and able administration."

The above was part of a glowing tribute paid former Governor Philips Lee Goldsborough by one of the Baltimore newspapers recently. It continued:

"The verdict of the people of Maryland when Governor Philips Lee Goldsborough lays behind him his term of office will be that he has made good. This verdict will be based upon the broad mind, free of partisan bias, which he has brought to bear upon the discharge of his public duties and upon his consideration of all public questions; his untiring efforts to uplift humanity and to improve the conditions of the unfortunates; to bring cheer and happiness into the lives of those who struggle for existence; to advance the industrial and agricultural interests of the state; to exploit its unsurpassed resources and to instill confidence in the people in their own common-wealth."

The candidacy of Mr. Goldsborough is growing daily. Within a few days after his campaign was launched, letters began to pour into Goldsborough headquarters from all sections of the state, pledging support. Day by day the number increased until at present there is a steady stream of endorsements pouring hourly into the office.

"The Republicans of Maryland would do well in this campaign to take heed of the 'safety first' movement, and 'stop, look and think,' and then vote for former Governor Goldsborough in the primary," said Mr. John R. Ramsey, vice president of the Merchants-Mechanics National Bank of Baltimore, and one of the fore-most figures in the financial affairs of the state.

"Mr. Goldsborough," he continued, "gave Maryland one of the best administrations she ever had. He played an important part in providing the state with good government, good roads and good schools. His attitude during his entire term of office proved that he is a splendid statesman eminently fitted to represent the Republican party in the Senate of the United States. Mr. Goldsborough is the man who can lead the Republican party to victory in the general election in November."

When he took the oath as chief executive of the state, Governor Goldsborough pledged himself to conduct his office in the best interests of the state and commonwealth. How he succeeded is shown in an article in the Baltimore American of January 9th last. It reads in part:

"Long and honorable as is the record of achievements by Governor Goldsborough, his greatest triumph has been personal. When he became governor four years ago there were doubts if he could escape from his environment and develop into an executive of broad vision. He had been trained in the school of practical politics, a school where graduates are best fitted to give and take in politics, to deal in patronage. He laid aside his training and there emerged a man who was governor of the whole people, to whom office brokerage was subordinate to his activities in behalf of the state."

A close study of his administration caused A. De Russy Sappington, Master of Chancery of the Baltimore Supreme Bench, and one of the leading lawyers in the state, to say, "Mr. Goldsborough is safe, is the logical candidate for the nomination for Senator and will undoubtedly win in the fall election."

ENDORSED BY RICHMOND.

Benjamin Armstrong Richmond, of Cumberland, in endorsing the candidacy of former Governor Phillips Lee Goldsborough for the Republican nomination for the United States Senate said:

"I believe that Governor Goldsborough is the strongest candidate that the Republican party can produce to carry them to victory in the general election. I have known Mr. Goldsborough for many years and have found him a man of marked ability, of rare consciousness of sense of duty in carrying out the oath of offices which he has so admirably filled.

"To my mind, no Chief Executive of the state has served all of the people and promoted the welfare and the prosperity of the commonwealth better than Mr. Goldsborough. It is conceded by all fairminded men of whatever political faith that his administration was one of wise and judicious fulfillment and one of wh'ch Republicans can feel justly proud.

"The Republicans of Maryland will make no mistake in nominating Mr. Goldsborough for the United States Senate as his nomination will be equivalent to election.

"During Governor Goldsborough's administration, he labored with earnestness to bring about the welfare of all the people and his every act was one that teemed with equal and exact justice to all."

OPPOSITION TRIVIAL.

"Governor Goldsborough to my mind is the only Republican in Maryland who can carry us to victory in the general election" said former Sheriff of Baltimore City, Theodore P. Weis.

"The only persons I find leading the fight against Mr. Goldsborough are either ingrates who were given offices, or persons who were disappointed over not having been appointed to office while he was Governor. I have sounded a large number of Republicans in Baltimore regarding their sentiments toward Mr. Goldsborough, and with the exception of the "disappointed" and the ungrateful ones, find the loyal Republicans heartily in sympathy with the former Governor's candidacy.

"I will do all that lies within my power to help Governor Goldsborough receive the nomination because I feel certain that he is the only man within our ranks at this particular time who can defeat the Democratic nominee in the general election."

Endorsement of Senator John F. Mudd, of Charles county, interview given March 21, 1916.

MUDD FOR HIM.

"I will support former Governor Phillips Lee Goldsborough because I believe him to be the ablest man within the Republican ranks in the State of Maryland," said Senator Mudd.

"The record achieved by Governor Goldsborough as Chief Executive of the State, was one of which all Republicans can feel proud. He filled the oath of office with a consciousness toward his fellow man in such a marked degree that his candidacy should receive the support of all Republicans.

"I feel confident that Governor Goldsborough will receive the nomination and he will be successful in the general election as he will undoubtedly receive the support of the Independents.

"He is the man of the hour in the coming Senatorial primary and I feel that he is the one man that can carry us to victory in the fall election."

BLOOMINGTON

Martha, daughter of Mr. Herbert Price, is ill with typhoid fever.

Mr. John Cochran's little daughter, about 8 years of age, is very ill with typhoid fever.

Mr. Geo. Warnick, county commissioner, is spending this week in Oakland attending to duties of his office.

Rev. A. R. Snedegar will leave Monday to attend the conference of the M. E. church at Washington. He will stop enroute at Baltimore to hear Rev. "Billy" Sunday.

On Wednesday, of last week, Messrs. Jacob Stump and Edward Warnick went to Oakland in interest of appropriations for Bloomington and returned much pleased with their success. Watch for the new walk from post office to railroad and better streets.

Mr. Charles Brendlin, who has been very ill with pneumonia, is improving and his friends hope for his speedy recovery. Miss Head, graduate nurse of Cumberland, is in charge of the case. The members of the Epworth League recently remembered Mr. Brendlin by sending him a large bouquet of carnations.

The services at the M. E. church Sunday last were much enjoyed. Seventy-five were present at Sunday School and the night congregation was good. The pastor received into full church membership Miss Annie Wilkinson and on probation James Carter. This makes twenty recently received.

Monday evening, March 20, will be long remembered by the guests present in the home of Mrs. Mary Brown, of Beryl. The gathering was of a triple nature, first Mrs. Brown's daughter, Estelle Winifred Padfield, brought into the parlor their little son, James William Henry, and in the presence of a goodly company of friends and relatives he was baptized. After which the company repaired to the dining room where a sumptuous supper was served. While all were seated at the table Mrs. Brown's son Henry, was called into the room, this being his nineteenth birthday, when Rev. A. R. Snedegar in a few complimentary words presented him with a bank book and bank from his mother, this beginning an account with the Davis National Bank. Among those present from Bloomington were Dr. H. M. Kemp, Mr. and Mrs. James Spence; from Franklin, Mrs. James Wilson, Mrs. Geo. Whisner and family. After there was a general turnout of Henry's friends to congratulate him on his nineteenth birthday, all wishing many more such occasions.

SUNDAY STIRS MEN TO CHEERS

Unequaled Demonstration at the Tabernacle.

CLIMAX TO "BOOZE" SERMON

Rev. William Sunday Labored As Never Before—Denunciation Of Alcohol Brings Trail-Hitters By Hundreds.

TOTAL ATTENDANCE PASSES THE THREE-QUARTER MILLION.

Fifty-six thousand people attended the three tabernacle services Sunday, constituting the second largest total for any day in the Baltimore campaign. This brought the grand total to 767,500.

The number of trail-hitters for the tabernacle meetings was 790; at Brantly Baptist Church, where Ma Sunday spoke in the afternoon, 22 women professed conversion, and at the sectional meetings at night there were 49, making a total of 861. This brought the grand total to 10,643.

In the afternoon and evening Mr. Sunday delivered his much-talked-of sermon on "Booze," to men only, and when he asked who would pledge themselves to vote for prohibition at the next opportunity, his two audiences, of 19,000 and 20,000, respectively, arose as one man.

Baltimore.—Men and youths of Baltimore and vicinity, with a sprinkling of outsiders, composing two audiences that totaled a membership of 39,000 at the Sunday tabernacle, arose to their feet and pledged themselves to vote for prohibition at their very first opportunity.

This action was the most spectacular feature of the Sunday campaign, which Sunday reached its halfway point.

The inspiration for the demonstration was the preaching by the revivalist of his most noted and strongest sermon, "Booze; or, Get On the Water Wagon"—a sermon that swept its hearers from their feet, caused them to shout and clap, to sit in breathless silence, to go into rhapsodies of approval, and to hit the sawdust trail as they had in no other day of the campaign.

Does His Hardest Work.

Never had Mr. Sunday worked so hard or preached so long. The delivery of the sermon afternoon and evening consumed a total of more than three hours, and the revivalist managed to make every minute of that time fairly tingle. He preached until his voice was husky; until his collarless shirt was soaked with perspiration; until his coat itself was moist through; until his face was drawn with an almost overpowering weariness, his hair disheveled, his gestures forced to the point of painfulness.

But never a moment did he let his enthusiasm lag, never a moment did he lack a compelling "punch." His reward was the admiration of thousands and a day's total of 790 trail-hitters. These, with persons who had hit the trail at outside meetings, conducted by other members of the Sunday party, including 22 garnered at a meeting for women only, held at Brantly Baptist Church by Ma Sunday, brought the total to 861.

Sunday's "Booze" sermon came fully up to the expectation of most of those who heard it. It bristled with statistics, it was electric with startling assertions as to the damage wrought by the liquor traffic, it was an arraignment and trial of strong drink, and the sentence, in the words of the evangelist, was "eternal damnation in hell."

Hurls His Anathema.

"Any man in the church not against the traffic—damn him," he anathematized; "if he is a preacher, damn him; if he is a priest, damn him!"

He paused to let this sink in, then, when the applause had stopped, asked his hearers to "walk down the streets of Baltimore and see the palatial homes of your brewers and distillers, then see the hovels in which the men who drink their stuff live—and if you would see more, then go to the penitentiary." That brought another burst of applause.

"The man who votes for the saloon," he continued, "votes to help the devil drag his boy to a drunkard's grave. The person who does not believe in hell has never been in a drunkard's home."

Tears Off His Collar.

He interpolated some statistics anent the tremendous amount of money spent annually for strong drink, paused to tear off his collar and necktie, took a fresh hold on his pulpit and plunged in with renewed energy.

"I'll try to help some of you devils," he cried, "but I'm frank to tell you I have no sympathy for you while I'm on the job. You're so low down, you men who let money stand as an excuse for the liquor traffic against the untold human misery it produces, that the devil himself is disgusted with you."

Again he went back to his statistics, declared that money spent for drink in a year would girdle the world 10 times with ribbons of dimes, laid one to another; that in eight years the money would build a solid silver automobile road to the moon; that the saloon corrupted the nation, was allied with the disorderly house, with gambling and with boodle politics.

Sunday Waves Old Glory.

Rev. William Sunday stood on top of his pulpit, waved a great silken American flag, whipped alive the patriotic fervor of an audience of 22,000 people and, while the choir and the multitude sang, "My Country, 'Tis of Thee," he pleaded with emotion-choked voice for men and women to hit the trail and enlist in the army of Jesus Christ.

About 100 men and youths from a delegation of the Patriotic Order Sons of America, which had given him the flag, accepted his challenge, marched in a body down the sawdust aisle and grasped his right hand, pledging themselves to become followers of the Master.

The action of these men, each of whom wore an American flag in his buttonhole, caused the great audience to thunder its applause of approval.

Sunday in his sermon, the fourth he has preached here on the text, "He That Winneth Souls Is Wise," went back to his excoriating tactics, which he used so effectively at the beginning of his campaign here. He flayed without mercy those who stood out against religious influences, who refused to open the doors of their hearts to Christ's knocking; he declared scourged unbelievers with verbal whips, then pleaded with them until he had to stop for a moment, his chest heaving, his collar a wilted rag, his face streaming with perspiration.

Billy Pleads To Students.

"Come, Johns Hopkins."

For five minutes, from his pulpit, Billy Sunday pleaded, challenged, used all the force of his strenuous gesticulations, brought into play all the power of his scorn and invective, to draw down the sawdust trail the students of Johns Hopkins University, who attended in a delegation of about 150.

This of no avail, Sunday did something he has not done heretofore in Baltimore and has done few times since he has been campaigning.

Down from his pulpit into the sawdust pit he sprang crying, "If I come down to you, will you follow me into the Kingdom, will you let me lead your hearts to God?"

Down the trail Sunday went—he ran. Up he sprang and again he urged. He told of the students of Pennsylvania, Princeton, Syracuse, who hit the trail.

"Come. Be men. Give your hearts to God," he cried.

Out of the delegation of 150 of the students of the famed University five young men stepped and followed the evangelist down to the pit.

"Baltimore is the laziest, slowest town," Billy Sunday says that he has been in in eight years, in the matter of personal work.

The evangelist told this to his audience.

Baltimore, Sunday says, has been highly pleasing to him—more pleasing than the other towns, in fact—except in that one feature: Personal work.

"The Soul Winner."

Rev. William Sunday in his sermon on the soul-winner, gave him the chance he had coveted to score the lazy church members and to warn them against being charged with the sin of omission. He related many incidents where dormant church members had been aroused to a realization of their duty in winning souls for Christ, and had been the means of winning hundreds just after their determination to do personal work.

He gave one of the most unusual finishes to his sermon ever seen in Baltimore, and it elicited great applause. He had just given an illustration of what a consecrated society woman could do and the wonderful influence she wields among the others of her social standing. She was asked by one of her friends why it was she didn't attend their dances and their card parties. Her answer was the closing remarks of the evangelist, and as he repeated it he walked off the platform. These were the words: "I am too aristocratic to play cards." The ending was rather abrupt, but it served his purpose and left his audience with an indelible impression of the example one consecrated woman could exert.

SUNDAY HOT SHOT

If you do not accept Jesus Christ as your Saviour you will go to hell.

If all the preachers in the world, with high, stiff, white collars and coats buttoned up the front and back, said there was no hell, there would still be hell.

I believe in woman suffrage, because the opposition of the movement crawls out of the cellars of the breweries.

The walls of the breweries are shaking now and they know it.

Unless some of the trustees of some of the churches of today were converted again I would not trust them very far.

My evangelism is not modern. It is as old as the cross of Jesus.

To perdition with you and your opinions, and public opinion, if they differ from the ways of God.

I'm not afraid of being undignified.

I'm scared to death of being dignified.

If you want to see me look dignified come around to my funeral.

My object in this old world is to give you a vision of Christ, the same vision that I saw 28 years ago.

COLLEAGUES INDORSE ZIHLMAN'S CANDIDACY

Legislators Favor His Nomination for Congress in Sixth Distsict.

GIVEN A COMPLIMENTARY DINNER AT ANNAPOLIS

County Men Pledge Themselves to Work for Senator From Allegany.

"From the Baltimore Star of March 27th."

Annapolis, Md., March 27.—The candidacy of Senator Frederick N. Zihlman, of Allegany, for the Republican Sixth district congressional nomination was given much impetus by a dinner here several nights ago, with the Allegany House delegation as the hosts. The guests of honor were Senator Zihlman, his deskmate, Senator Speicher, of Garrett, and most of the House delegation of Garrett, Frederick and Washington counties.

Think Zihlman Will Win.

Despite the fact that Frederick has two candidates for the nomination and Montgomery one, the general prediction was that Senator Zihlman would win the nomination. The Allegany forces, who planned the dinner as a surprise, climaxed the evening by presenting to the chief guest a set of resolutions indorsing his candidacy for the nomination.

The resolutions were signed by Conrad J. Hernich, chairman of the delegation, and Samuel Brown, James Campbell, J. O. J. Green, Arthur F.

FREDERICK N. ZIHLMAN.

Smith and Thomas G. Fisher, the other members. Each member of the delegation spoke. The majority of the Washington, Garrett and Frederick people also spoke, and the representatives of the first two counties unhesitatingly pledged their primary support to Zihlman. The Frederick county people explained their position and the impropriety of indorsing a candidate of another county against their favorite sons, but each of these men indicated their pleasure, when, if Zihlman won the nomination, they would take off their coats for him in the general election.

Senator Zihlman responded to the tributes and assured his colleagues of the district that, if nominated and elected, he would work to serve and represent all the people of the district impartially in the halls of Congress.

Text of Resolution.

The resolutions of indorsement, a handsome copy of which was presented to Senator Zihlman, read as follows:

"Whereas, We have observed with pride, pleasure and assurance that Hon. Frederick N. Zihlman of Allegany county, has announced his candidacy for the Republican nomination for congressman from the Sixth district of Maryland in the primaries to be held on May 1, 1916; and,

"Whereas, As the state senator from Allegany county in the General Assembly of Maryland in its sessions of 1910, 1912, 1914 and 1916 he has demonstrated notable ability as a true and fearless advocate and representative of the masses in all matters of legislation affecting the interests of the people of the whole state, and particularly of the wage earners, and workingmen and women of Maryland; and,

"Whereas, In the sessions of the General Assembly of 1914 and 1916, as the minority floor leader in the Maryland Senate, he has manifested a loyalty and devotion to the principles of the Republican party and its policies, and an adherence to its tenets and pledges to the people in a manner that commands the indorsement and admiration of his constituents throughout the state; and.

"Whereas, As his party's representative in the Maryland Senate he has so conducted himself without offense even to the Democratic majority in that body who have conferred upon him exceptional honors and distinction and who hold him personally in the highest esteem; and,

Good Fight in 1914.

"Whereas, In the campaign of 1914 he conducted a remarkable canvass of the district as his party's candidate for Congress, and, although regarded as a hopeless task because of the peculiar local and general conditions and circumstances prevaling, at that time throughout the country, he was defeated by a very small majority; and,

"Whereas, under his matchless generalship and exceptional ability and unceasing efforts in the last state and county election in November, 1915, Allegany county elected the entire county Republican ticket from top to bottom for the first time in upwards of 15 years, and gave to the Republican state candidates an unprecedented majority in the county; in view of all these facts and of the great service he has rendered the people of the Republican party in the Sixth district and throughout the state, therefore, be it

Voluntary Indorsement.

"Resolved, that we, the representatives of the people of Allegany county in the House of Delegates of Maryland, in the Session of 1916, do hereby unequivocally and without reserve voluntarily indorse this candidacy of Hon. Frederick N. Zihlman, of Allegany county, and member of the State Senate of Maryland, for Congress, and do here and now pledge ourselves individually and collectively, to make every legitimate effort to bring about his nomination in the primaries on May 1, 1916, and to procure his triumphant election by an overwhelming majority in November; believeing as we do that he is thoroughly qualified and equipped by service, experience and inherent ability, to creditably and effectively represent the Republican party and the people of his district and state in the House of Representatives of the United States, Congress."—Political advertisement. THE PEOPLE'S FORUM.

Man's Need of Revelation.

Man needs a revelation from God and by this we mean a written revelation such as we have in the Bible which is the word of God. We need to keep in mind however, the distinction between Revelation and Inspiration. Inspiration is the supernatural influence on a person who is to be the organ or representation of the Divine mind. This is accomplished by the Holy Spirit and secures infallibility in teaching.

Revelation, however, communicates knowledge or new truth that is inaccessible to the ordinary mind.

The effect of Inspiration is that it preserves from error in teaching; but Revelation so far as its effects are concerned, renders the recipient wiser. Both of them may be enjoyed by the same person, at the same time, as was the case with the Psalmist, the prophets and apostles. Sometimes revelation was made at one time and afterwards committed to writing. Paul received the knowledge of the gospel by revelation from Jesus Christ and he communicated it from time to time in his discourses and epistles. Sometimes these gifts were separated.

A man might be inspired yet have no revelation, as was the case with the authors of the historical books of the Old Testament. Moses may have received his knowledge of the events recorded in Genesis from early documents or tradition or by direct revelation but he was inspired and what he has given us bears the stamp of "Divine Inspiration." Inspiration is more in the nature of superintendence. It so guides the writer that what he writes is an absolutely correct record. It is infallible.

Revelation is more of the nature of "Instruction and Information." Revelation is called a mystery, that is a truth or fact revealed without an explanation of it (E. 9) the Trinity. Under this head you may class the resurrection of the body, I Cor. 15:35, of the order of Events in the creation of the world and the conversion of the Jews after that of the Gentiles, Rom. 11:25. That the second coming of Christ to judgment will not be until after a great apostasy in Christendom, 2 Thess. 2:3, is a fact of revelation without an explanation. The vicarious atonement of Christ is a revelation. The doctrine of personal atonement, that is, that the transgressor must suffer is a truth of natualr religion, but that one will suffer for him, is a fact of revelation.

The soul that sinneth must die, is natural religion, Ezek. 18:4, but that Christ was made a curse for us, that He is our propitiation is a matter of revelation. Natural religion never discovered the truth of forgiveness of sins. It required a direct revelation from God, a written revelation which we have in His word to give us such a wonderful truth as this.

We see the necessity for this in the fact—first—That man feels the need of it because he is conscious that he is a sinner. There are questions concerning the origin, nature and destiny of man that he can never answer.

Questions too concerning sin and how it can be pardoned and overcome that we cannot answer, yet they must be answered. If they are unsolved man cannot be happy or good. He turns to the written revelation of God and there he finds the solution. Reason can't decide the fate of the soul after death. Can man, who is unable to make himself holy here secure his well being after death?

Every man, however great he is, knows that death is the entrance to the unknown, unless he has a supernatural revelation. It is a plunge into darkness without this revelation. We need an authorative answer to the question, "What must I do to be saved?" Man knows there is such a thing as sin. He knows there is misery as the result of sin. Hence, every man is convinced in his heart of the necessity of a Divine revelation. Suppose the philosophers could solve the question to their own satisfaction what would become of the mass of mankind?

Nature is a page that only the learned can decipher. Shall they be left to the darkness of despair?

Again the experience of the ages has has established the tact that the world by wisdom knows not God. Heathen nations, civilized and savage have failed by the light of nature to solve any of the great problems of humanity. This is the testimony of history which is confirmed by scripture.

Here is another wonderful fact that confirms the theory of the need of a revelation. Where the light of revelation is enjoyed, but rejected, men are led not only to contradictions, but to the adoption of false principles, in most cases, destruction to domestic virtue, social order, and individual worth and happiness. Reason, unassisted, has led the great body of those who follow its guidance into what has been called "The Hell of Panthism."

Revelation is the communication of truth to the mind. You can't communicate truth if there is no capacity to receive it. It can't be made to brutes or idiots. Truth to be received as the object of faith must be intelligently apprehended. If you attach no meaning to a proposition it cannot be an object of faith. If you say the soul is immortal, or God is a spirit, unless you know the meaning of the words nothing is communicated to the mind, and so the mind cannot affirm any thing on the subject. Knowledge is essential to faith.

In believing we affirm the truth of that which is believed. We can't affirm any thing of that of which we know nothing.

So the first and essential office of reason in matters of faith is intelligent apprehension of the truths propounded for our reception. Reason and science are no longer adequate guides to the things of God because man by sin fell into a state of darkness and confusion, Rom. 1:21-23.

The worldy wisdom knew not God. God then is revealed in Christ—in His wisdom, power, love and mercy, to the heart and conscience. The wayfaring man may read Christ. Suppose a traveler lands upon some unknown coast at twilight of morning mists veil the landscape and obscure the sky. Things nearby have unreal shapes, distant ones are still more shrouded in vagueness and uncertainty. He walks up the beach, looks around, thinks a town is nearby. That which he takes for a spire may be but a tree; what he thought was a church may be a hillock. As he goes on hoping, seeking, believeing, the sun burst forth, mists are cleared, uncertainty roll back her thick clouds of obscurity, and all the landscape brightens beneath his view in the full blaze of day.

Thus it is with the man who fondely seeks in nature's twilight to find out God, or understand Him to perfection. When the light of revelation dawns upon him, there is certanty and assurance.

The Bible gives us real knowledge. It teaches us what God realey is; what sin is; what law; what Christ is, and what the plan of salvation through Him is. It shows us what is to be the state of the soul after death. These are questions we want answered, and we can only have them correctly answered in the revelation God has given us in his word—our Bible.

Built for the Business Farmer

The Dort was built for the business farmer. For 29 years Dort had been building farm vehicles. He knew what the farmer wanted for vehicles and what he needed in an automobile.

If an automobile is going to be a business asset to the farmer he must be able to use it every day in the year; when the roads are deep with snow; when the temperature is far below zero; and again in the spring when the frost is coming out of the ground and the mud is so deep and thick that the average car will sink to the hubs and be hopelessly mired.

The Dort is built for these conditions. It is a real farmer's automobile. The price, $665, puts it within the reach of every business farmer. Its light weight insures low cost of operation.

From every standpoint of mechanical excellence and appearance the Dort merits a careful investigation of the Business Farmer.

EDISON is not alone in the belief that in time the Japanese will cause the United Siates a lot of trouble.

"GERMAN destroyers defeated by British, "British destroyers defeated by Germans," depending on the date line.

WILL the censor please let us know what song has been accepted as official by the soldiers who are now chasing Villa?

HOLDING a portofolio in a foreign cabinet requires a tremendous grip, for keeping a king pleased is no small boy's task.

WINTER is once more "lingering in the lap of spring." How often has that figure of speech served to fill a newspaper line?

THERE is grave danger that our troops will camp on some Mexican metropolis, contrary to orders, and never realize it until too late.

WILL the astronomers tell us whether those patches of green have yet appeared on Mars, indicating that spring has come in that planet?

MEXICANS are getting cartridges from smugglers on this side of the border, reports from the Southwest say. Patriotism is a minus quantity in the smuggler's make-up.

IT would gratify the world if a lot of this peace talk resolved itself into a little action, enough to encourage us in the belief that the belligerents would listen to reason.

PRETTY soon it will be fresh shad time, not the North Carolina shad, but the good, bony, sweet distinctive Potomac and Susquehanna shad. Properly prepared there is nothing more toothsome.

DURING the downpour of hail in Oakland last Wednesday afternoon while residents of Uniontown, Pa., driven from their homes by a flood were shivering in the extreme cold a lighted ball of yarn set the dry lawn grass afire in Nashville, Tennessee, and a large part of the city was burned down. Truly we have a variety in climate as well as in calamities in this little country that Villa is defying and Carranza is exacting promises from.

ITS PLAINT.

The Baltimore Sun, always in the forefront during a State campaign championing the election of a Democratic Legislature, promising the people reforms and better government if they will retain the dear old dilapidated party in power for another term, and just as regularly at or near the close of a legislative session, the same old Sunpaper comes out and points to the fact that the party pledges had not been kept and that the legislature had broken faith with the people. This plaint by the Sun has been going on for about a quarter of a century. It knows when it howls for the election of a Democratic legislature that the promises in the party's platform are made to catch the votes of the people and that they are made solely for that purpose, but that does not make much difference with the Sun or its policy during a campaign, and now at the close of the 1916 session of the Legislature it is out with its usual stereotyped criticism of the law makers and their shortcomings insofar as keeping the party's platform promises are concerned. Hear the dear old Sun paper:

"Unless the Legislature gets a hustle on itself, which is another way of saying that unless Governor Harrington steps to the bat and makes it hustle, there is a strong probability of the day of adjournment being reached with but few of the Democratic platform pledges redeemed. The session comes to an end two weeks from Monday night. So far the budget bill is the only important platform-promised measure that has passed both Houses and it is not yet safely out of the way.

Bills to redeem most of the other platform pledges have been introduced, but they are moving about as slow as an ox cart on a July day. No one seems to be prodding them and anyone who knows anything about the way legislation progresses knows that, like oxen, it takes a lot of prodding to keep it moving at all. Not only are the big bills dragging, but the failure, up to this time, to dispose of the bill abolishing continuing appropriations has necessitated the holding back of the omnibus appropriations bills which should have been introduced a week ago last Thursday.

HENRY GASSAWAY DAVIS AND HISTORY.

It makes this country seem very young when it is known that Henry Gassaway Davis, just dead, was born in the year that the Monroe Doctrine was announced, and that he was a friend and political ally of Henry Clay. The Monroe Doctrine has been a rather one-sided affair for three generations, but the time seems to be coming when we shall have to maintain it by showing a proper force behind it. That a man should have just died who voted for Henry Clay perhaps shows less the youth of the country than its extraordinary development.

Senator Davis began life under the most favorable auspices for developing good, strong character. At fourteen he was left the head of a family on a hard-scrabble farm. Nothing could have been more advantageous to a man determined to succeed. Most boys under such circumstances fail to accomplish anything because they have no desire to do so, but young Davis hitched his wagon to a star. As brakeman, country storekeeper, mine operator and capitalist he was from the beginning to the end of his career a kindly man. He believed in the gospel of hard work and there are many prosperous men who owe their success in life to his aid. He hated laziness and incompetence, but he was generous to those who actually needed help.

In his memoirs written thirty years ago Blaine speaks of Davis as in many respects the best equipped and the most admirable Senator of his time. He was shrewd, far-seeing, honorable and patriotic. He had no petty faults. Politics was not to him a game, but a duty which he owed his country. When he voluntarily retired there was as much regret on the Republican as on the Democratic side, and no one supposed that he would have a full generation of life ahead of him or that, when well past eighty, he would make a failing canvass for the Vice Presidency. Twelve years ago Davis was looked up to as too old for politics and yet he has survived many men who were at that time vigorous campaigners and ambitious of honors.

It was a typically American life which he led and career which he achieved. He would have made his mark under any circumstances, but he was always proud of his early struggles. No man had less pride or less esteem for rank and the furbelows of aristocracy. Yet a few years ago when his granddaughter was considering marriage with an Italian Prince, he offered her a fortune if that would add to her happiness. Senator Davis was a plain, blunt man, who was the soul of honor and who was as much the friend of his humblest employe as of the great captain of industry among whom he was numbered. Probably no man of such prominence ever went to his grave with such unanimous praise from those who knew him best.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

GIVING ARBOR DAY A PRACTICAL TURN.

Systematic Planting as a Substitute for Haphazard Work, Carelessly Done.

The annual proclamation of the Governor reminds us that Arbor Day falls on Friday, the 7th of April. It calls on people irrespective of age or sex to aid the efforts which the State itself is making to set Maryland well up among the other states for its attractive homes, fine trees and valuable forests.

Arbor Day, very unfortunately, is but one day in a year, and people have often remarked that if the enthusiasm and effort expended on that day toward the planting of trees and the conservation of forests might be distributed over the year as a whole, much good might be accomplished in a practical direction. Since obviously this is not, or cannot, be so, it remains to ascertain what steps may be taken to the end that the resultant benefits of one day's work may themselves be divided among this and many years, not failing in their effects through the cessation of enthusiasm and care too often prone to succeed the tree-planting of institutions and individuals on Arbor Day.

Since its formation in 1906, the State Board of Forestry of Maryland has been bending a good share of its energies toward inducing owners of waste land to reclaim them through a more profitable use. The State of Maryland is normally a fertile one, yet 11 per cent of its total land area, 674,955 acres, are classified as waste lands at the present time. This is unfortunate, but none the less a fact, and lands once good enough to grow good crops of timber, later showing profitable returns when used for agriculture, have so far deteriorated through the direct effects of forest removal, erosion, and poor use as hardly to be fit now for anything, certainly not for farms. Only one crop is still available; that is of trees. For two years land owners of the State have had the opportunity of buying standard, well-grown forest planting stock at cost. Many of them have, and a year ago about 80,000 trees were so disposed of. Pennsylvania grew and planted several million and though they are larger than we, the disproportion in size is infinitely less than that in planting. Other sections should not be more progressive than this, probably are not really, but something is needed to convert this subject of tree-planting from an admitted need to an accomplished fact.

Arbor Day affords an opportunity, and forest planting stock is still obtainable through the Board of Forestry at Baltimore. Such standard varieties as White Pine, Norway Spruce, Red Oak, Black and Honey Locust, White Ash and American Elm are for sale as little trees to persons, schools, and organizations at a low per-thousand charge, averaging rather less than one cent each. Large quantities and single trees are sold, and the forest plantation is one which thrives under a minimum of cultivation and care. Full directions for proper planting accompany each order filled, and when desired expert assistance from the Office of the State Forester, Johns Hopkins University, is also supplied to formulate plans or execute the work.

The planting season will commence on or before Arbor Day. Organizations or individuals who wish to give a practical trend to that day's work, combining attractiveness and utility, sentiment and business, cannot do better than by carrying it out in a systematic way that will later reflect their good judgment and prove an excellent investment. They should order trees at once.

THE DEATH RECORD.

PATRICK BRODERICK.

Mr. Patrick Broderick, who owned and operated a farm located about one-half mile from Avilton, in this county, died very suddenly at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Bernard Wilhelm, in South Connellsville, Pa., on March 21st, after an illness of a few days, caused by an attack of erysipelas which later affected his brain and caused his death. His remains were taken to his late home from Connellsville on the 22nd inst. and buried in the churchyard at Avilton, the deceased being a faithful member of St. Ann's church located at that point. Mr. Broderick was born at Pottsville, Pa., in 1853, and came from thence to the George's Creek coal region when quite a small boy where he resided and worked in the mines until 1899 where he purchased the farm above referred to. His second wife died six years ago. He is survived by three sons and four daughters and two sisters, the latter being Mrs. Frank Shaub, of Frostburg, and Mrs. Reynolds, of Lonaconing. As a father Mr. Broderick was devoted to his children; as a neighbor he was good, kind and obliging, and as a citizen he will be greatly missed in his community. He was truly a prince among the sick and wherever help and sympathy was needed he was always present.

A FRIEND.

ADAM FOX.

Adam Fox, a lifelong resident of Garrett county, died at the Home Sanatorium in Oakland yesterday morning at 2 o'clock after an illness of a few days of kidney disease. The deceased entered the hospital about a week ago for treatment, but the disease which caused his death had made such inroads that it had become incurable and his death as above stated occurred. Mr. Fox was aged seventy years and was never married. Until a few years ago he lived at Accident, where he carried on the blacksmithing business, when he removed to a farm he had purchased located near Swanton. Recently he disposed of this and has been for some months past making his home with the Sharpless family near Swanton. He was a step brother of Assemblyman Fred Fox, of Friendsville, who is the only near relative surviving him. His body was removed from the hospital to the Bolden morgue and prepared for burial, the arrangements for which have not as yet been completed, but it is probable that the funeral will occur at Accident where his father, mother and brothers are buried.

Phillips Lee Goldsborough

REQUESTS THE SUPPORT OF

ALL REPUBLICANS

AS THEIR CANDIDATE FOR

UNITED STATES SENATOR

At the primaries to be held Monday, May 1, 1916.

Mr. Goldsborough is the candidate who is best qualified by ability and experience and by the fact that he is known to be the man who will represent all the people of his state and will effectively support their every interest. He is the man to whom all will be proud to point as Maryland's representative in the highest Legislative body in the world.

See what the four corners and the middle of the state say about him.

WESTERN MARYLAND.

Col. W. Bladen Lowndes, son of former Governor Lowndes.

"What I am most concerned about is that we shall name for Senator, a man in whom the people have confidence. He must be a known quantity and a known quality. He must be known by the real test of public life. He must be conspicuous for his ability as a statesman and needs be of recognized personal power as a thinker and speaker. Such a man is Phillips Lee Goldsborough and I am not convinced that there is now available any other man in the state whom we can elect."

Benjamin Armstrong Richmond, Cumberland.

"I believe that the results in the general election depend upon the wisdom of the Republicans in nominating Phillips Lee Goldsborough for Senator. I do not think there is another man in the state who can be elected to that office on the Republican ticket and I do not think there is a Democrat in the state who can defeat him."

SOUTHERN MARYLAND.

Senator John E. Mudd, of Charles county.

"Phillips Lee Goldsborough is the ablest man within the Republican ranks in Maryland. The record he achieved as chief executive of the state is one of which Republicans can feel justly proud. I feel confident he will receive the support of the Independents. He is the man of the hour in the coming Senatorial primary."

Thomas Parran, of Calvert county.

"The public record of Phillips Lee Goldsborough is the best asset of our party and one that appeals to all classes of voters. It will elect him the next United States Senator. I cannot believe that the voters of Maryland will repudiate at the coming primary, the splendid administration that has just been given us by Governor Goldsborough."

NORTHERN MARYLAND.

Senator Richard S. Snader, of Carroll county.

"Mr. Goldsborough is an individual possessed of executive ability high above the average of public men in governmental affairs. As governor he demonstrated he exercises his abilities with an eye solely to the building up of the state. I feel sure we can put Carroll county in the Goldsborough column in the primary."

Clarence Oldfield, of Howard county.

"After careful thought and frequent interviews with Republicans in Howard county, I arrived at the positive conclusion that Phillips Lee Goldsborough is the best qualified candidate for the Republican nomination for United States Senator."

EASTERN SHORE.

Senator Henry M. McCullough, of Cecil county.

"No Marylander has a record of accomplishments that can surpass that of Phillips Lee Goldsborough, who, unaided by fortune, has won success in his political career, entirely through his well directed efforts to serve the people of his state and country."

Wilbur F. Turner, of Wicomico county.

"Mr. Goldsborough is the strongest man in the Republican ranks. His administration demonstrated he knows the wants of the people and is able to secure for them what they need. This applies particularly to the counties and I am for him."

BALTIMORE CITY.

Col. Edward C. Carrington.

"Former Governor Goldsborough has been twice elected by the people of Maryland to high office in a state-wide vote. As between Mr. Goldsborough and his opponent, I would feel that I was guilty of bad citizenship if I did not vote for Mr. Goldsborough."

Dr. Howard A. Kelly, noted surgeon and sturdy Democrat.

"Mr. Goldsborough was the model governor of Maryland and we have never had a better one. His appointments in Baltimore City,—Magistrates, Police Commissioners and members of the Liquor License Board, gave us, without exception, the best officials we ever had in these positions."

John B. Ramsay, vice-pres., Merchants-Mechanis Nat'l Bank.

"Upon the success of Mr. Goldsborough in the Primary, depends the success of the Republican party in the general election."

PRESIDENT WARNS RUMOR MONGERS

Cavalry Pursue Villa 250 Miles Below Border

PERSHING PROTECTING LINES

Repeats Charges Previously Made by Administration Officials Certain Elements Are Contriving to Force Intervention by False Reports.

Washington.—President Wilson appealed to the country for aid in thwarting a conspiracy which he declares has been organized to plunge the United States into war with Mexico.

In a formal statement issued at the White House the President charges that a campaign of falsehood is being carried on through the newspapers of the country "for the purpose of bringing about intervention in the interest of certain American owners of Mexican property."

This purpose the President pledges himself to defeat, but he warns the people of the country that if the campaign is permitted to continue "very serious conditions may be created, unnecessary bloodshed may result and the relations between the two republics may be very much embarrassed."

President Wilson expresses the hope that the people of the United States will be on their guard against crediting any story coming from the border and he entreats the editors of newspapers that they "make it a matter of patriotism and conscience to test the source and authenticity of every report they receive from that quarter."

Pershing Wires to Funston.

San Antonio, Tex.—The fullest report Gen. Funston has received from Gen. Pershing reached southern department headquarters. Pershing announces that Villa broke through the cordon of American troops which had him partly hemmed. Three columns of American cavalry under Col. Dodd are chasing him. The bandit with his men are heading into the Madera Valley which runs south from the Namiquipa country toward Guerrera. The Americans are 250 miles below the border and as far south as Chihuahua City.

It is established that the Carranzistas are not operating with the Americans. Gen. Funston declined to give out the full text of Pershing's complete statement of the location of troops but says three columns of cavalry are following the advance columns as supports, to be called out if needed. Two companies of infantry are at El Valle to protect Pershing's advance base. The principal base is now at Casas Grandes. This means the two companies of foot soldiers have marched 200 miles south.

TROOPS DEFEAT VILLA

Outlaw Fled, Abandoning 100 of His Horses.

El Paso, Tex.—According to General Gavira and Consul Garcia, Carranza troops met and defeated Villa and a large force at Santa Gertrudis.

Seven Villistas are reported to have been killed and a number of others wounded. It is claimed that Villa retreated in the direction of El Oso. More than 100 of his horses were captured.

Santa Gertrudis is a ranch five miles southeast of Namiquipa.

It is considered certain that the first step will be the calling of available troops, with the exception of the coast artillery, to the border.

As the remaining troops number hardly more than 5,000, it is also considered likely that the President will also issue a call for a part of the militia. The state troops will be used for patrol duty on the border to free the regulars for the more serious task of coping with the new Mexican uprising.

Word also reached the capital that Colonel Cano, another Carranza commander, reported a fighting Villa near Namiquipa, had joined the bandit leader after a parley. It is believed that other commanders who have long been lukewarm may seize the opportunity of deserting the Constitutionalists.

URGES FRANCE TO SELL STOCKS.

Finance Minister Would Send to U. S. All That Can Be Picked Up.

Paris.—In his speech in the Chamber of Deputies, the Minister of Finance, M. Ribot, alluding to American securities, said:

"We must look through our portfolios of foreign securities and send to the United States all we are able to pick up in the French market of securities negotiable there. The total of American securities is not so large as we could wish."

HARDER TIME AHEAD—BURTON.

Next President Will Decide Between Peace and War, He Says.

Chicago.—Theodore E. Burton, former United States Senator from Ohio and a candidate for the Republican nomination for President, declared that the next President must face a decision between peace and war for this nation. He said that the times ahead are going to be the most trying in our history. Mr. Burton made an address on "Distinctive Political Ten-Times."

WAITE ADMITS GIVING POISON

Says He Did It to Help Millionaire Peck Commit Suicide

"MEDICINE" PUT IN SOUP

Finding of Arsenic in Body Followed "Tip" by Telegraph—Detectives Find Accused in Stupor From Drugs He Had Taken.

Without manifest remorse, without even a casual expression of regret—just wearily, hopelessly—Dr. Arthur Warren Waite confessed to District Attorney Swann that he procured and handed to his wife's father, John E. Peck, his benefactor, to whom he owed his expensive apartment, his automobile, his idleness, the arsenic which destroyed the life of the old man.

New York.—As an outcome of his investigation of the deaths of John E. Peck, a millionaire drug manufacturer of Grand Rapids, Mich., and his wife at the home of their son-in-law, Dr. Arthur Warren Waite, in the Colosseum, an apartment house at 435 Riverside Drive, on March 12 and Jan. 30, respectively, District Attorney Swann directed detectives attached to his office to arrest Dr. Waite on a homicide charge.

Dr. Waite was semi-conscious from the effects of drugs taken either for suicidal or sedative effect, when arrested.

Mr. Peck died at 435 Riverside drive, the residence of Dr. Arthur Warren Waite, who married Peck's daughter, Clara Louise, at Grand Rapids on March 12 last. He was ill only a few hours. He had come to New York to comfort his daughter over the loss of her mother, Mrs. Hannah Peck, who died exactly six weeks earlier, on January 30, after a brief illness while visiting her daughter here.

On March 17 Peck's will was probated in Grand Rapids and it was found that the bulk of the estate, which amounted to about $1,000,000, had been bequeathed to the son, Percy S. Peck, and the daughter, Mrs. Waite.

About this time Perry S. Peck received a telegram signed "E." which came from New York and is now in possession of District Attorney Swann, advising him to have an autopsy performed on his father's body.

JESS WILLARD BEATS MORAN.

Retains World's Boxing Championship —Excels in Every Round.

New York.—Jess Willard, world's champion heavyweight boxer, defeated Frank Moran, his challenger, in their ten round bout in Madison Square Garden. The gigantic Westerner, who won the title by beating the negro, Johnson in Havana last April, proved his right to bear those honors. He excelled his adversary at every point from the moment they squared off in the first round until the bell ended the battle.

Willard's immense reach proved a telling factor. It enabled him to land long left jabs almost at will on Moran's face, and when the latter happened to be close uppercuts drove him away.

The great gathering saw what was in many respects the most remarkable bout in New York ring history. To begin with it was the most expensive, with the promoters' outlay running past the $100,000 mark. The purse for the fighters was $71,250, of which Willard got $47,500 and Moran half that much. In addition $10,000 was paid the combatants for the moving picture rights, Willard getting $5,100 of that. The State tax deducted by the Boxing Commission was more than $10,000.

A Drill You Will Like — An Empire, Jr.

HAVE you ever thought of increasing your crop yield by planting with an Empire, Jr. drill? It can be done.

Empire, Jr. drilled grain stands a better chance of producing a bumper crop than broadcasted seed. It takes less seed too, and will do a much better job in a wet field than a seeder. Grain put in with an Empire, Jr. drill will all come up at the same time and all ripen at once. This is an advantage that cannot be expected from seed broadcasted.

The Empire, Jr. light draft grain drills have been largely responsible for the big crop yields in the Red River Valley and other celebrated wheat districts. Without the Empire, Jr. drill those farmers would have no better crop than you. Call in some day soon and we will show you why the Empire, Jr. drill produces bigger yields.

PRESIDENT WARNS RUMOR MONGERS

Cavalry Pursue Villa 250 Miles Below Border

PERSHING PROTECTING LINES

Repeats Charges Previously Made by Administration Officials Certain Elements Are Contriving to Force Intervention by False Reports.

Washington.—President Wilson appealed to the country for aid in thwarting a conspiracy which he declares has been organized to plunge the United States into war with Mexico.

In a formal statement issued at the White House the President charges that a campaign of falsehood is being carried on through the newspapers of the country "for the purpose of bringing about intervention in the interest of certain American owners of Mexican property."

This purpose the President pledges himself to defeat, but he warns the people of the country that if the campaign is permitted to continue "very serious conditions may be created, unnecessary bloodshed may result and the relations between the two republics may be very much embarrassed."

President Wilson expresses the hope that the people of the United States will be on their guard against crediting any story coming from the border and he entreats the editors of newspapers that they "make it a matter of patriotism and conscience to test the source and authenticity of every report they receive from that quarter."

Pershing Wires to Funston.

San Antonio, Tex.—The fullest report Gen. Funston has received from Gen. Pershing reached southern department headquarters. Pershing announces that Villa broke through the cordon of American troops which had him partly hemmed. Three columns of American cavalry under Col. Dodd are chasing him. The bandit with his men are heading into the Madera Valley which runs south from the Namiquipa country toward Guerrera. The Americans are 250 miles below the border and as far south as Chihuahua City.

It is established that the Carranzistas are not operating with the Americans. Gen. Funston declined to give out the full text of Pershing's complete statement of the location of troops but says three columns of cavalry are following the advance columns as supports, to be called out if needed. Two companies of infantry are at El Valle to protect Pershing's advance base. The principal base is now at Casas Grandes. This means the two companies of foot soldiers have marched 200 miles south.

TROOPS DEFEAT VILLA

Outlaw Fled, Abandoning 100 of His Horses.

El Paso, Tex.—According to General Gavira and Consul Garcia, Carranza troops met and defeated Villa and a large force at Santa Gertrudis.

Seven Villistas are reported to have been killed and a number of others wounded. It is claimed that Villa retreated in the direction of El Oso. More than 100 of his horses were captured.

Santa Gertrudis is a ranch five miles southeast of Namiquipa.

It is considered certain that the first step will be the calling of available troops, with the exception of the coast artillery, to the border.

As the remaining troops number hardly more than 5,000, it is also considered likely that the President will also issue a call for a part of the militia. The state troops will be used for patrol duty on the border to free the regulars for the more serious task of coping with the new Mexican uprising.

Word also reached the capital that Colonel Cano, another Carranza commander, reported a fighting Villa near Namiquipa, had joined the bandit leader after a parley. It is believed that other commanders who have long been lukewarm may seize the opportunity of deserting the Constitutionalists.

URGES FRANCE TO SELL STOCKS.

Finance Minister Would Send to U. S. All That Can Be Picked Up.

Paris.—In his speech in the Chamber of Deputies, the Minister of Finance, M. Ribot, alluding to American securities, said:

"We must look through our portfolios of foreign securities and send to the United States all we are able to pick up in the French market of securities negotiable there. The total of American securities is not so large as we could wish."

HARDER TIME AHEAD—BURTON.

Next President Will Decide Between Peace and War, He Says.

Chicago.—Theodore E. Burton, former United States Senator from Ohio and a candidate for the Republican nomination for President, declared that the next President must face a decision between peace and war for this nation. He said that the times ahead are going to be the most trying in our history. Mr. Burton made an address on "Distinctive Political Ten-Times."

WAITE ADMITS GIVING POISON

Says He Did It to Help Millionaire Peck Commit Suicide

"MEDICINE" PUT IN SOUP

Finding of Arsenic in Body Followed "Tip" by Telegraph—Detectives Find Accused in Stupor From Drugs He Had Taken.

Without manifest remorse, without even a casual expression of regret—just wearily, hopelessly—Dr. Arthur Warren Waite confessed to District Attorney Swann that he procured and handed to his wife's father, John E. Peck, his benefactor, to whom he owed his expensive apartment, his automobile, his idleness, the arsenic which destroyed the life of the old man.

New York.—As an outcome of his investigation of the deaths of John E. Peck, a millionaire drug manufacturer of Grand Rapids, Mich., and his wife at the home of their son-in-law, Dr. Arthur Warren Waite, in the Colosseum, an apartment house at 435 Riverside Drive, on March 12 and Jan. 30, respectively, District Attorney Swann directed detectives attached to his office to arrest Dr. Waite on a homicide charge.

Dr. Waite was semi-conscious from the effects of drugs taken either for suicidal or sedative effect, when arrested.

Mr. Peck died at 435 Riverside drive, the residence of Dr. Arthur Warren Waite, who married Peck's daughter, Clara Louise, at Grand Rapids on March 12 last. He was ill only a few hours. He had come to New York to comfort his daughter over the loss of her mother, Mrs. Hannah Peck, who died exactly six weeks earlier, on January 30, after a brief illness while visiting her daughter here.

On March 17 Peck's will was probated in Grand Rapids and it was found that the bulk of the estate, which amounted to about $1,000,000, had been bequeathed to the son, Percy S. Peck, and the daughter, Mrs. Waite.

About this time Perry S. Peck received a telegram signed "E." which came from New York and is now in possession of District Attorney Swann, advising him to have an autopsy performed on his father's body.

JESS WILLARD BEATS MORAN.

Retains World's Boxing Championship —Excels in Every Round.

New York.—Jess Willard, world's champion heavyweight boxer, defeated Frank Moran, his challenger, in their ten round bout in Madison Square Garden. The gigantic Westerner, who won the title by beating the negro, Johnson in Havana last April, proved his right to bear those honors. He excelled his adversary at every point from the moment they squared off in the first round until the bell ended the battle.

Willard's immense reach proved a telling factor. It enabled him to land long left jabs almost at will on Moran's face, and when the latter happened to be close uppercuts drove him away.

The great gathering saw what was in many respects the most remarkable bout in New York ring history. To begin with it was the most expensive, with the promoters' outlay running past the $100,000 mark. The purse for the fighters was $71,250, of which Willard got $47,500 and Moran half that much. In addition $10,000 was paid the combatants for the moving picture rights. Willard getting $5,100 of that. The State tax deducted by the Boxing Commission was more than $10,000.

A Statement by

Frederick N. Zihlman

—TO—

The Republican Voters of the Sixth Congressional District

On May 1st next the Republicans of the Sixth Congressional District of Maryland will nominate their candidate for Congress. The responsibility of choosing their standard-bearer is placed upon the individual Republicans of the District, and it is to them I am addressing this appeal for support.

I shall not at this time go thoroughly into the important issues confronting the people of our country or my individual ideas of what should be done to make for progress, protection, prosperity and preparedness; not only against war, but for peace and for commercial expansion and supremacy.

Individual ideas, no matter how strongly buttressed in times like these, must be put through the great melting pot of intelligent and serious conference. The Republicans of the nation will meet in convention at Chicago on June 7th next to nominate the party's standard-bearer for President and Vice President of the United States and to adopt the platform upon which they and, in fact, all the party's candidates must stand and seek the support of the States and the Nation.

My ideas are based upon conditions as I now see them. These conditions may change by the time our party's platform is built and our candidates placed before the people upon its planks—a platform which I believe will bring victory to our party and substantial and lasting prosperity to our people.

As to my subscribing to that platform and doing my utmost to carry out its pledges, if elected I point to and stand squarely upon my record in the Senate of Maryland during the sessions of 1910, 1912, 1914 and 1916, and to my stewardship as my party's floor leader in the Senate in 1914 and 1916, an honor which my colleagues bestowed upon me unanimously.

In the State Senate I have stood for all constructive and humanitarian legislation, irrespective of where such legislation originated. If nominated and elected to the Congress of the United States I shall stand then, as I have always stood, for the greatest good for the people of my District, our State and the Nation.

My duties at Annapolis will preclude my making a lengthy canvass, as the Assembly will not adjourn until less than a month before the primaries. In the brief time left me I shall endeavor to personally meet all the voters of the Sixth Maryland District. Meanwhile I am addressing myself to them and seeking their support for the Republican nomination for Congress from the District.

FREDERICK N. ZIHLMAN.

SENATOR ZIHLMAN'S RECORD

Served in the State Senate during the sessions of 1910-12-14-16 and executed the duties of Republican Senate Floor Leader during the sessions of 1914 and 1916, after having been elected unanimously by his colleagues both times.

During his four sessions Senator Zihlman has worked for and supported much constructive and humanitarian legislation, among which were the Public Utilities Act, Workman's Compensation Law, Ten-Hour Law for Women, Corrupt Practices Act, Uniform Election Laws, Direct Primaries, Penal Reform measures, Good Roads, Health laws, Child Labor Law, State Care of the Insane, Reduction of Legislative Expenses, the Miners' and Operators' Co-Operative Relief Law and many other equally important measures.

Advertisement published by authority of P. G Cowden, political agent.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—With the rapid approach of the Presidential primaries, there is a growing demand for information as to the various Republican Presidential candidates. The supporters of Senator John W. Weeks, of Massachusetts, have been quick to meet this demand by giving out the following facts concerning their candidate:

Senator Weeks is a native of New Hampshire, a graduate of the Naval Academy at Annapolis, served for three years in the Navy in the Asiatic Station, and later went to Boston, where he eventually became interested in a number of financial institutions, including the First National Bank, of which he was vice-president. He was Mayor of Newton, Mass., served six terms in the lower House of Congress and, upon elevation to the United States Senate, severed all business connections to give all of his time to public life.

The Massachusetts Senator was especially active in securing passage of the Postal Savings Bank bill, was author of the Federal Migratory Bird Law in the House, was author of the great Appalachian Law whereby the government regained control of the vast watersheds of the Appalachians, and gained prominence as an independent thinker when he supported the Democratic law providing for federal reserve banks. He was one of the few Republicans to support this law, and did so because he thought there was more good in it than bad, and it was an improvement of the laws then existing.

Politically, Senator Weeks is progressive. It was Senator Weeks who insisted upon the insertion of progressive planks in the Republican platform in the recent State elections, and it was this action, more than anything else, that resulted in returning Massachusetts to the Republican fold. As a presidential candidate, he has a strong following in the West, as well as his own part of the country.

There are a number of States in which the presidential primaries will not be held until a day or two prior to the convening of the Republican convention at Chicago and the political leaders in these States are now busily engaged in devising means of circumventing this threatened difficulty. In West Virginia where the primaries will not be held until the day before the convention it has been decided to let the voters select their delegates at a judgeship election in May, the choice to be ratified on the date originally set for the primaries.

It now appears probable that the State of Minnesota, in its forthcoming presidential primaries, will go to Senator Cummins by default. The other candidates seem inclined to look upon that State as part of his rightful territory, just as they consider New England as belonging to Senator Weeks, and it is doubtful whether any appreciable contest for the State, so far as first choice is concerned, will be made. As to the matter of second choice, however, the situation is different. Several of the prominent candidates, and not a few of the lesser lights who are hopeful of bursting forth as the logical "dark horse," have very active followers in Minnesota who are conducting quiet campaigns for their favorites.

E. A. Sims, a member of the State legislature of Washington, who was recently a visitor at the national capital, gave the East an illustration of how a full-blooded Westerner does things when he makes up his mind that they should be done. Sims is something of a leader in politics "out home," and when he left for the East he promised to look over the various Presidential candidates and pick out "the right man." He attended every Republican meeting he could find at the capital, talked with all of the candidates he could reach, and finally placed his O. K. on Senator John W. Weeks.

"I never do things half-way," he explained, and having made his choice, he engaged two of the hotel stenographers and immediately began the dictation of nearly three hundred personal letters to his friends and legislative colleagues in the State of Washington urging them to support Senator Weeks.

Fortify Hard-Won Height West of Meuse in Advance On Paris-Verdun Railway--Muscovites Make Further Advance at Lake Narooz Under Heavy Bombardment

RUSSIANS GAINING GROUND BY BAYONET CHARGES

Rome—The continued German gains around Verdun have aroused dissatisfaction in France, not only with the War Office but with Gen. Joffre, according to advices from Swiss sources. Paris newspapers are said to have been warned by the authorities against criticising Joffre.

The French War Office reported a lull in infantry fighting in the Verdun region. Near Hill 285 the French blew up a mine and occupied the crater.

In the Woevre district there were outbursts of artillery fire in the sectors of Moulainville and Eparges, both sides taking part.

Unremitting in their sustained advance to force evacuation by the French of positions northwest of Verdun dominating the Paris-Verdun railway, the Germans captured two more trenches in the Haucourt region, the Berlin War Office announced.

The Kaiser's troops pressed forward south of Malancourt against the southwestern side of the French salient. This advance further imperils the projecting French positions at Malancourt and Bethincourt.

Violent Russian attacks continued southeast of Riga and in the region of Dvinsk. All the Russian assaults, however, broke down under German fire, Berlin reported.

Petrograd, on the other hand, declared the Czar's armies to be steadily advancing, stating that savage battles were fought at Jacobstadt, 80 miles southeast of Riga, where the Russians, using liquid fire and gas bombs, are battering in the German salient.

The success of this offensive would remove the German threat against Riga and Dvinsk, and handicap von Hindenburg in any aggressive campaign he might undertake on the Russian front.

The defeat of a British force which attacked a Turkish position on the right bank of the Tigris River, near Felahie, is announced by Constantinople. The report also says that Turkish airmen have again dropped bombs on Kut-el-Amara, where a British force is under siege.

GERMANS' GREATEST GAIN.

London.—By what is hailed in Berlin as the greatest gain since the first days of the battle of Verdun, the Germans have driven forward to within two and one-half miles of the Verdun-Paris railway.

This is the main artery for troops and ammunition supplying the fortress, and is already reported to be under bombardment by the German guns.

The Germans officially claim to have stormed the entire strongly fortified French positions in and near the Forest of Avocourt, southeast of Malancourt, capturing thirty-two officers and 2,500 men and repulsing counter-attacks with great losses to the French.

This new drive of the Germans is being made slightly more than a mile to the west of Dead Man Hill (Le Mort Homme), where, for the last week, both armies have been locked in a titanic struggle.

On three vital points of the long battle line in the east the Russians have launched violent offensives against the Germans and Austrians. According to official admissions from Berlin and Vienna the new efforts of the Czar's troops, whose chief aim is to divert Teuton re-enforcements from the western front and force a discontinuance of the attacks on Verdun, have been crowned by two important successes.

The Russians in the Caucasus have thrown their line several miles nearer Trebizond, on the Black Sea coast, after further fighting with the Turks.

KAISER THANKS VON TIRPITZ.

Also Decorates Him and Keeps His Name on Navy Lists.

Berlin.—The Kaiser has written Admiral von Tirpitz a letter expressing regret at his resignation and thanking him for the excellent services he rendered the country during his long career as creator and organizer of the German navy.

The Emperor at the same time issued orders that Von Tirpitz's name be continued in the navy lists for all time.

BERLIN IN DEFIANT MOOD.

"Lokalanzeiger" Says Not Peace But Greater Offensive Is Near.

Berlin.—The semi-official Lokalanzeiger, in a leading article, intimates that since the Allies have not availed themselves of it, when with certainty the Chancellor on December 9 said that Germany would consider peace proposals when her enemies make an offer they may expect a great increase in the German offensive in order to convince them that Germany is far more powerful than her foes.

London.—England has given her first effective answer to German air raids. A squadron of five seaplanes, convoyed by light cruisers and destroyers, crossed the North Sea and visited the home of the German planes which have frequently visited the English coast of late.

They attacked the German airship sheds in Schleswig east of the island of Sylt. They were met, however, by an effective anti-aircraft defense, while their convoys were engaged by German armed trawlers outside the harbor of Sylt. Only two of the British planes returned; the three others, including a battle plane, were brought down, according to an official statement issued at Berlin.

Stormy weather prevailed, and in the course of a naval engagement the British destroyer Medusa collided with the British destroyer Laverock. The Medusa is believed to have been lost. The Germans, on their part, lost two armed trawlers, the Braunschweig and the Otto Rudolf.

The distance from the island of Sylt to Kiel is about 85 miles; to Cuxhaven about 80 miles; to Bremerhaven about 110 miles, and to Wilhelmshaven about 100 miles.

Sussex, Channel Boat, Mined.

London.—According to the latest reports received by the American Embassy, three Americans known to have been passengers on the Channel steamer Sussex, which was damaged by a torpedo or a mine while on her way from Folkestone to Dieppe, are still missing.

In addition to the missing three Americans are known to have been injured.

The number of victims of the disaster is still uncertain. Seventy-two survivors have been landed at Dover and 250 at Boulogne. There are three dead at Dover and nine dead at Boulogne.

The embassy received word that thirteen American survivors of the Sussex had left Boulogne for Paris.

German Raider Sunk.

London.—Encountering a German raider in the North Sea, the British armed merchant steamer Alcantara destroyed the raider, the Grief, by gunfire, and was herself sunk by a torpedo.

Five German officers and 115 men, out of a total crew of 300, were captured. The British lost 74 men, of whom 5 were officers.

DRAWING NEARER VERDUN.

Berlin.—Slowly but steadily, almost yard by yard, the Crown Prince is drawing the circle tighter around Verdun. With the capture of the extensive French works and positions in the woods northeast of Avocourt, about twelve miles west of Verdun, with 2,500 prisoners and numerous guns and machine guns, the Germans have made a dangerous drive in the direction of one of the two remaining railroads from Verdun to Paris.

The Crown Prince's forces on the west side of the Meuse are now within gun range of the direct Verdun-Paris railway, which lies directly five miles south of Avocourt. The greater part of the intervening ground is covered with dense forest and broken, hilly ground.

PITH OF THE WAR NEWS

The violent bombardment northwest of Verdun in the region of Malancourt continues, while to the north of the fortress and in the Woevre region in the east intermittent cannonading is still in progress.

No infantry attacks on Verdun have been launched by the Germans except to the southeast of Fort Douaumont, where Berlin reports a hand-to-hand encounter with the advantage on the side of the Germans.

Russian reports indicated advances by the Czar's troops in Dvinsk region.

Verdun city was set afire by German artillery fire, Berlin declared.

General Smuts, in charge of the British forces in German East Africa, reported dislodging the German forces from defensive positions on the Lumi River.

It is still in the French and Russian war theatres that the heaviest battles are in progress, but fighting also is continuing in the Austro-Italian zone, in Serbia near the Greek frontier and in Asiatic Turkey.

Rome learned that Rumania's intervention on the side of the Allies depends upon the arrival of war materials to be supplied by Russia. Shipments are expected April 15.

Dr. JOSEPH IRWIN FRANCE

Some Reasons Why Republicans Almost Unanimously Have Declared for Dr. France.

He is the Candidate of no one faction of his party.

He is appealing directly to the rank and file.

He is acceptable to all Republicans.

He is acceptable to the Progressives.

He has the ability to represent the State fittingly in the Senate.

He has the support of the State Wide Press.

He believes the Republican Party should be the MAJORITY Party in Maryland.

His Candidacy, just as did Mr. Weller's, represents an effort to nominate proved men free from previous political alignments. Mr. Weller received the greatest number of votes ever given a Republican Candidate. It is the policy that will build up the party.

His candidacy represents the nation wide movement to nominate candidates upon whom all opponents of the Democratic Party can unite enthusiastically so that the breach of 1912 may be permanently healed.

His Headquarters are at 304 Maryland Trust Building, Baltimore, where he will be glad to meet or hear from all Republicans.

GOVERNOR HARRINGTON ADDRESSES THE CHILDREN

Chief Executive Wants Them to Observe Arbor Day In Maryland.

Under date of March 17th Hon. Emerson C. Harrington, Governor of Maryland, addressed the children of Maryland in the following letter, which is published herewith:

TO THE CHILDREN OF MARYLAND.

My dear young friends:—

I am sure that you know that Friday, April 7th, will be "Arbor Day" and that you know also that while it is not a legal holiday in Maryland, the day has been specially set apart by proclamation as a day for planting shade trees about our homes and along our public roads.

Most work of public interest in the State must of necessity be done by your parents and your grown up relatives, but the work which the General Assembly of Maryland thought important enough to direct the Governor to call to the attention of all our people by proclamation each year, setting apart a special day for it, is a work which little boys and little girls, as well as big boys and big girls, can do, and I am writing you this letter, requesting you to help us do the work.

If I could see each one of you in person and ask you to help me to do something for the welfare of our State, I am sure you would do it if you could, but as I cannot do that, I want you to regard this as a personal request from the Governor and I believe you will grant it. Our State is a beautiful State and we all love it. We love its trees and flowers, its farms and rivers, and loving it, we want to do all we can to make it even more beautiful than it is.

Nothing contributes more to the beauty of our yards and roads than pretty trees, and if each girl and boy in our state will carefully plant a shade tree, in a place where one is needed, along a public highway, you will be helping to beautify our State and helping to make it a more pleasant place to live in. I request you to do this, and I hope that after it is planted you will take a pride in that tree, and that you will watch it as the years go by, and protect it from harm, and that you will do all you can to make it thrive and grow.

If you will do this, it will be a pleasure after you have grown up to manhood and womanhood, to regard the tree as your tree and to point to it with pride as something you have done that has added beauty to the landscape and give comfort to the traveler.

I send a special greeting to you all, and I ask you to help us in this work to beautify the State.

Sincerely yours,

[Signed]
EMERSON C. HARRINGTON,
Governor of Maryland.

New Council To Organize.

Oakland's new Town Council, elected early in the present month, will organize on Monday night of next week, it being the first Monday night of the month, when under the law, the monthly sessions of Council are held. Mr. D. E. Bolden, being a member of the Board of Supervisors of Elections, will not qualify as a Councilman until after the May primary election because of the fact that the State Constitution will not permit one to hold two offices of profit and trust. At the Monday night meeting it is expected that Mayor-elect Giessman will submit his list of appointments and that Council will organize fully upon that date.

MAKING PROFIT.

We certainly expect to make a reasonable profit on everything we sell. If we did not, we would close up shop But mind you, we said reasonable. Some merchants want big profits, but then they are satisfied with few sales. We run our business on a different basis: small profits often repeated. We are satisfied, our customers are satisfied to save money on good quality goods—so everybody's satisfied.
